Lasky-Hart Split?

Differences in Business Relations Reported—Matter to be Settled on Coast

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—It is understood that business differences of a serious nature have developed between Jesse Lasky and William S. Hart and that the matter is of a sufficiently grave nature to lead to a definite split.

At Famous Players on Monday one would talk about the above. It was significant, perhaps, that outright denial was made of the report. One official, as a matter of course, declared that there was nothing to say about it here and that whatever trouble existed would be handled Lasky on the coast.

Hart has completed two pictures for Famous, "Wild Bill Hickok," which is now in general distribution and "Singer Jim McKee."

Releasing Stock Unit

Business Going Into Open Market for Players—More "Farming" to Be Done

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Studio gossip has it that Famous will discontinue carrying a large number of players as a stock company unit and go into the open market in a more definite fashion for future casting. This is predicted when the present contracts expire. Important feature players will not be affected.

It was stated on Monday that Famous has not been carrying any considerable number of players in its stock company. The company plans to "farm out" those of its playing couple to other producers wherever a policy does not interfere with production plans. It is pointed out, for example, that certain players cannot be used for more than two pictures a year because they do not fit into parts other than those in which the public expects to see them. If such players are kept on the payroll on a 52 week basis, it can be readily seen how such items cut into the company's budget. The point seems to be that when the company wants certain players for certain roles, it has them at its beck and call and when it does not need them, the "farming out" process can be resorted to.

De Mille May Work Here

Cecil B. De Mille will probably make a picture in the East in the next Spring.

"The Courtship of Myles Standish" is exceedingly fine, said F. Mordaunt Hall in the New York Times. "Charles Ray deserves many plaudits." Associated Exhibitors.—Adv.

What of 1924?

Federal Reserve Bank Sees Bright Outlook—1923 Showed Conservative Progress

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—The Federal Reserve Board in its annual review of economic conditions states that 1923 was one of conservative progress throughout the nation. Production was greater, expenditures were greater and the savings of the people were greater than in 1922, and the nation's financial and industrial position at the beginning of the new year is said to be favorable for a continuation of prosperity.

Attention is called to the fact that during 1923, financial and industrial operations, taken as a whole, established new records and that this was accomplished without evidence of severe credit strain, scattered speculative activities or price inflation. Emphasis is placed upon the continuation

Fineman With F. B. O.

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—B. P. ("Bernie") Fineman has been appointed general manager of the Robertson-Cole studios which have changed their name to the F. B. O. studios.

After American M'g's

Stoll of England Seeking New Ideas—Offers Post to William Fait of the Eastman

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

London—Sir Oswald Stoll, head of one of the most important theater circuits in England is considering the introduction of American presentation ideas in all of his houses and to that end is negotiating to bring over a number of American theater managers to introduce the plan.

He has offered a post to William Fait, Jr., at present managing director of the Eastman theater at Rochester.

Fait Has Not Decided

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Rochester, N. Y.—William Fait, Jr., admits having been approached by representatives of Sir Oswald Stoll to go to London but he declares he has not as yet decided. The offer, however, has not been rejected by him.

Niblo Renews With Mayer

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Fred Niblo has renewed his contract with Louis B. Mayer for another series of pictures to be released through Metro.

Friend Resigns

Out As Distinctive's President But Remains As Director and Large Stockholder

Arthur S. Friend has resigned as president of Distinctive Pictures Corp. but remains on the directorate of the company.

He is one of the largest, if not the largest, individual stockholder in the company and his resignation as president will in no way affect these holdings.

Friend has been anxious to return to his law practice for some time. Now that he has relinquished his duties as president of Distinctive, he will have the opportunity to carry out his plans. Distinctive is at present making "Blood and Gold." Its releases through Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan are on schedule. The company does not plan an active production schedule until the spring for this reason. A number of stage and literary properties are held by the organization for future use.

A formal statement embodying the resignation was issued late Monday.

Sam Goldwyn Creates Stir

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Sam Goldwyn arrived from the East with a statement to the effect that there were only thirty-three good actors in the entire Hollywood film colony. His statement did not mention any names but created a stir here.

Goldwyn will produce "Potash and Perlmutter in Hollywood," here. Alexander Carr and Barney Bernard will be brought from the East for the title roles. Frances Marion will prepare the script.

Sam Warner Goes South

Sam Warner is now in New Orleans on the first leg of what will be a visit to exchanges handling the Warner output in the South and Far West.

Harry M. Warner is in Cleveland for a few days with Mrs. Warner who is returning to the coast. Herman Starr is back in Los Angeles after a short visit East.

Altman Succeeds Mooney

J. Robert Rubin, general counsel of Louis B. Mayer Prod., has appointed Al. Altman, who has been identified with the company almost since its inception, as Eastern representative, succeeding Paul C. Mooney.

Cody in "Dan McGrew"

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Lew Cody has been selected to play the role of Dan McGrew in "The Shooting of Dan McGrew."

What of 1924?

of an increased consuming power, due to full employment at high wages, and an improvement in the position of farmers, factors which promise to remain during 1924.

Neither a business boom nor a general depression is in sight for the new year, the "Guaranty Survey," published by the Guaranty Trust Co., declares in its annual forecast.

Passage of the Mellon tax reduction plan is looked for, together with defeat of the bonus. Summarizing the world movement, the survey contends the outlook is for the maintenance of a sound middle course for business as a whole.

"There appears a better prospect for the maintenance of the prosperity that now is developing since maladjustments of wages and prices have in a measure been rectified over the last twelve months, and its growth is not in the same degree dependent upon an accumulated demand arising from long deferred purchases," the financial editor of the Tribune says. "There are still several notably weak spots in the domestic situation. The building industry continues on an inflated basis and contributes to a major distortion of what otherwise would be a much better balanced structure than existed a year ago. The evils of wage inflation are also apparent in one or two other lines."

B. C. Forbes in the American and other Hearst papers says:

"Business starts the New Year in a state of sound health, a cheerful frame of mind and reasonably busy.

"Of course, uncertainties lie ahead; uncertainties lie ahead at the opening of every year. Those of 1924 are not unusually grave domestically. In number they are unusually few. And, happily, the disposition is to face the outcome with a rational measure of confidence.

"General trade has slackened somewhat with the arrival of Winter. Yet the volume of business passing still is well above the average."

The National City Bank in its annual survey says, in part:

"The greatest achievement of the year has been the demonstration that the United States can enjoy so large a degree of prosperity notwithstanding the unsettled conditions in Europe. The record of 1923 can be repeated if the American people but have the courage to proceed with the development of their resources and the equipment of their industries as they have done in the past year. There is no lack of work to be done. The chief occupation of the American people is that of supplying their own wants, but that their foreign trade is of a stable character the sustained exports of the last two years have shown. Our trade outside of Europe is growing. The balance between agriculture and the other industries is in the way of being restored, and if we will be satisfied with steady business, without a boom, there is good reason to expect that our hopes will be gratified in 1924."

Giving the dollar a value of 100 cents on Jan. 1, the Department of Labor estimates that its value on January 1, 1923, was 64 cents. On this basis the wealth at the end of 1922 would be $256,000,000,000 instead of the estimated $400,000,000,000.

Even so, the lower figure would represent an increase of 37 per cent in the ten years.

Don't Call Yourself a Showman

till you've played

“DON'T CALL IT LOVE”!

WILLIAM DE MILLE'S "Don't Call It Love" was an absolute mop-up at the Rialto Theatre, New York. It opened to the biggest business on Broadway with the exception of "The Ten Commandments." And on the Sunday before Christmas, the low-tide theatre day of the year, at that!

Every matinee and night "Don't Call It Love" was a sell-out. Here are three reasons why:

1. THE TITLE—If you don't think "Don't Call It Love" is a good box-office title, see the line that drops in just because they read it in the electric lights.
2. THE CAST—The term "all-star cast" is much abused. But here is one worthy of being shown, in full, in lights: Agnes Ayres, Jack Holt, Nita Naldi, Theodore Kosloff, Rod La Rocque, Robert Edeson.
3. THE STORY—The modern "Fool There Was" told in the modern manner. A love comedy, full of humor, charm and appeal for both women and men, done as only William de Mille can do it.

You can afford to make a real noise when you get "Don't Call It Love."
Facts prove the picture will do the rest!

An Appeal

A worthy case has been brought to the attention of THE FILM DAILY. It concerns a film man engaged in the export field who has suffered a mental breakdown because his duties keep him in New York while his five-year old daughter is in a foreign country. The father hasn't the means of bringing his daughter to him, yet her absence is affecting both his health and his work.

One hundred dollars will be sufficient to unite the family. A trifle will help. Those who feel that doing a worthwhile deed will start their New Year in a real way, can send contributions to

DANNY.

Protest Showing Again

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Kansas City, Kan.—A delegation representing the various colored organizations, waited on the censor commissioners with an appeal that they take action to prevent the showing of "The Birth of a Nation," in Kansas City. If, after reviewing the picture, the commissioners failed to prohibit its showing an injunction would be sought to restrain local exhibitors from presenting it.

Two Theaters Close

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Lorain, O.—The Temple is dark because the lease held by Gould & Zimmerman has expired. C. M. Irish, states the house will soon be reopened by a Pennsylvania theater man.

At Broadway Theaters

Capitol

The first number is a tableau—"A New Year Greeting," by the entire Capitol Ensemble; singers and dancers, assisted by the orchestra. Misses Ayres and Rice are next seen in a song and dance number, titled, "Air de Ballet." Following the regular news weekly, the orchestra plays the overture, "1812." The fifth unit is a Russian folk song, "Song of the Volga Boatmen," sung by Capitol Singers. "The Rendezvous," is the feature, which is followed by "Les Patineurs," ("The Skaters"), a dance offering. "A Midshipman Cruise Of The United States Naval Academy" is the title of an interesting film made by the U. S. Navy, which is screened just before a closing march is played on the organ.

Central

Charles Ray's "The Courtship of Myles Standish," is the feature.

Cosmopolitan

The feature picture will be "The Great White Way," opening tomorrow.

Rialto

"If I Were King," is played as the overture; followed by a Post scenic, "Vienna;" the Rialto News Magazine; a song, "When Shadows Gather," sung by Carl G. Formes, baritone; Madge Kennedy in "Three Miles Out;" Lillian Powell in a "Bubble Dance," with music film; and "F. O. B.," a Lloyd Hamilton comedy.

Rivoli

Glenn Hunter in "West of the Water Tower," is the feature. ## First Run Rights

Important Decision in England Affecting Such Showings—Exhibitor Loses in Court

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

London—An important decision has just been filed in the English courts as to the rights of a "first run" exhibitor. The Consolidated Cinematograph Co., Ltd., sued Goldwyn, Ltd., for £10 for alleged breach of contract, in that after having secured "The Poverty of Riches" for first run in Sunderland that the Roker Cinema, an opposition house, billed the feature as coming to this house within a few days of the first run showing, and at lower admission prices.

The Court held that there was nothing in the contract which prevented the Roker organization from advertising the showing and ordered a decision for Goldwyn.

Commenting on this The Film Renter says editorially:

"The decision means that a first-run exhibitor has no legal protection whatever against the advertising by a later-run house of the film which he is paying a large sum of money to show, and may be summed up by the following instance.

If an exhibitor pays a hundred pounds for the first run of a picture and advertises it extensively there is nothing to prevent a man showing it four weeks later from also extensively advertising that the film will be shown in his theater on such and such a date, and that the price of his seats are lower compared to the first run's * * * The only reason that an exhibitor contracts to have a picture for a first run is, as is well known, because he expects to have it exclusively in every sense of the word. * * *

"The issue raised is very important, and is one that should clearly be settled without any further delay."

Eight Ideal's Listed

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Smith Urges Repeal

Tells Legislature in Albany Commission Is No Longer Necessary

—Bill In Assembly

(By Long Distance Phone)

Albany—Governor Smith recommended the repeal of the State M. P. Commission law yesterday when he delivered his annual address before the 147th session of the Legislature.

He declared that "censorship was out of harmony with our institutions and should not be encouraged, and then added:

"It is my recommendation that the law creating the commission for the regulation of motion pictures be repealed. There has not been any necessity whatever for the continuance of this commission of censors and I sincerely invite the attention of your honorable body to a careful consideration of this recommendation for abolition."

Assemblyman Fred L. Hackenberg, Democrat from New York City, introduced a repeal bill yesterday, following the Governor's address.

It is the opinion here that there will be no trouble in passing a repeal measure through the Senate but that trouble will be experienced in the Assembly. It is reported that party lines will not be drawn and that the legislators will vote independently.

The M. P. T. O. of N. Y. State will maintain headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce rooms at the Ten Eyck at Albany to watch all motion picture legislation. Sam Beriman, secretary of the organization, will remain on the ground all through the winter and spring season.

Southwest Theaters, Inc. Formed

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Southwest Theaters Inc., a $1,000,000 company, has been organized here, it is understood, as a subsidiary to West Coast Theaters, Inc. The new unit is said to be a new name for the Turner, Dahnken and Langley circuit which West Coast has absorbed.

5 San Diego Theaters Sold

Newspaper Opinions

"West of the Water Tower"—F. P.-L. Rivoli

AMERICAN—* * * one of the most exact reproductions of Main Street, with every detail, that we have ever seen. * * * No where could we find a better Guy Plummer than in Glenn Hunter. * * * If you have not read "West of the Water Tower," you are going to be enthusiastic about the picture. If you have read the book you will be less fervid in your praise.

DAILY NEWS—All moved up it is simply gnarled romance, * * * the Pollyanna touch laid on to "West of the Water Tower," is so sticky as to be funny, almost, instead of reasonable.

Glenn Hunter * * * is easy to believe in.

EVENING WORLD—He's a capable young screen actor, every one admits that, but he set himself too high a mark by his stage work in Merton. * * * they haven't put "West of the Water Tower," as Homer Croy wrote it onto the screen; not by a long way. But they have put a fairly interesting picture before the public and one that, unless we are very wide in our guess, will start the box office pulse a fluttering.

HERALD—* * * we found it pretty dull. It is beautifully acted, it possesses many fine and authentic reflections of the typical American scene, but it is so poorly constructed that its moments of dramatic value are few and far, far between. Mr. Hunter does much to overcome the stodginess of the story, but even he becomes monotonous after a while.

MAIL—The film is a labored attempt at a study of a small town through a story that is poignantly human in its appeal but so long drawn out to lose its full effect * * * we gained the impression that the photoplay was a succession of animated illustrations from the work of the author, rather than a dramatic presentation of the plot and theme through pictures.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—While the screen version * * * may differ very much from Homer Croy's book, it is nevertheless an interesting picture from start to finish chiefly because of * * * the very fine performances of Glenn Hunter and his able little ally, May McAvoy.

POST—The picture is an uninteresting mass of closeups and titles, and in spite of the excellent work of Hunter, George Fawcett, and Ernest Torrence, it has little to hold the interest.

SUN—* * * a fairly workmanlike adaptation of Homer Croy's story, * * * Hunter gives a homely, worthy performance of a story of youth's passion without embroidery, and Ernest Torrence as his father again upholds the honor of the Torrence family, * * * But for us the best part of the picture was May McAvoy * * *

TELEGRAM—This is an excellent film version in the best manner of Paramount of Homer Croy's popular study of life in a small town.

TIMES—* * * and they have culled from the book a photoplay which for the most part is not uninteresting.

Of course, no production with Glenn Hunter and Ernest Torrence could fail to have certain merits, * * *

The comedy-relief is brought out by the town drunkard, and appears to be hammered into the production, and not really funny at that. However, as a study of some small town this story of Junction City, Mo., has entertaining periods, especially those in which Mr. Torrence and Mr. Hunter appear.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—For the benefit of the censors, the screen version marries them off and takes other liberties that rob the picture of much of the appeal of the book. The picture lacks action, but is interesting, due to the "atmosphere," splendid cast, photography and production.

TRIBUNE—It is our suspicion that Rollin Sturgeon has made one of the best pictures of the year in "West of the Water Tower." * * * it is simply done, that it has charm and naturalness and that considerable imagination has gone into it. It is a beautifully satisfying, finished product. A true, finely acted play of country town life. * * *

WORLD—Glenn Hunter * * * is seen in one of the most adroitly written and acted screen performances which we have ever seen.

"Three Miles Out" Rialto

DAILY NEWS—There's no getting away from the fact that Madge Kennedy, with her bag of movie tricks, is one of the best entertainments to be had. It is good romance. Mr. Ford is one of the manliest of the heroes.

EVENING WORLD—* * * bootlegging and excitement, gives the fair star * * * a chance to do a few film stunts that are more or less pleasing and, take it all in all, we're rather glad "Three Miles Out," swam in for the holidays.

MAIL—This picture is old fashioned melodrama with some conscious humor and some that was unconscious. In other words, the audience sometimes laughed when it was supposed to gasp.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—In "Three Miles Out," she (Madge Kennedy) vindicates our idea that she will never drive any one away from a motion picture theater, but will account for many a long line outside a film house. * * * It is amusing and thrilling, and entertainment of a high order.

POST—* * * John Emerson and Anita Lcos adapted it for the screen, but it does not measure up to their usual clever scenarios. However, Madge Kennedy, equally as charming on the screen as she is on the stage, carries the film on her fair shoulders and makes it good entertainment.

SUN—Madge Kennedy, * * * takes the stuff of which movie producers were won't estwhile to make serials * * * injects thereinto the spirit of the comic, making the whole, * * * very much more than palatable.

TIMES—There was more sniggering than sobbing and more smiles than tears * * * Years and years ago it might have carried a different sort of appeal to spectators, but nowadays they manifest a keen sense of humor.

TRIBUNE—This is a crazy story, which gets you all worked up and thrilly, although you know that it couldn't possibly be true. * * * There are a number of excellent parts and an equal number of excellent performances.

WORLD—A brisk, but not sternly consequential melodrama * * * Thanks to the vibrant personality of Madge Kennedy it succeeds as an amiable diversion.

"Her Temporary Husband"—1st Nat'l Strand

EVENING WORLD—To us, and what seemed like 99 per cent of the others present, Sid Chaplin was delightfully funny, especially in many scenes that called upon him to bring into play all his pantomimic powers. * * * If you enjoy a good, hearty, genuine laugh go see "Her Temporary Husband." You'll laugh even harder than you thought you would.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—As an entertaining picture it is highly satisfactory. It contains six reels of comedy which at times is decidedly of the slap-stick variety and at all times succeeds in being funny and on occasions very, very funny.

POST—Every one expected to see comedy, but was entirely unprepared for the broad farce which followed in "Her Temporary Husband" at the Strand Theatre. It is a screamingly funny film * * *

TELEGRAM—* * * Sydney Chaplin is an uproariously funny Sydney in "Her Temporary Husband," which is a fast-moving comedy * * * Credit for ingenious direction goes to John F. McDermott.

TIMES—* * * the situations in it are sufficient to wring laughter from a most ascetic individual. The theme is not new, but that does not matter. * * * But we must admit that we have not heard as many laughs at any picture in the Strand since Harold Lloyd was seen there in "Why Worry?"

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—It is built for comedy purposes, with the titles getting as many laughs as the action.

TRIBUNE—The picture is one of the most arresting comedies it ever has been our good fortune to see. "Her Temporary Husband" is a riproaring farce, done in a legitimate way, and it is funnier than any of the out-an-out comedies we ever saw, with the exception of about three.

WORLD—Beginning as a conventional light comedy this curious narrative turns into the most boisterous of farce, quite in the Mack Sennett manner, and manages thereby to be exceptionally funny.

Hays On Annual Trip

En Route to Coast on First Visit Since Last December—Stay A Short One

Will H. Hays on Wednesday left Sullivan, Ind., where he had been spending the holidays for a ten day visit to the coast. It will be his first visit since December, 1922.

Hays has been planning this hurried trip for some weeks. Contrary to newspaper reports, he will not concern himself with any effort to clean up the Hollywood colony but will confer with members of the Motion Picture Producing Ass'n relative to the types of pictures they plan to make for late 1924 and 1925.

That Proposed Bank

Allen Carruthers, counsel for the organization committee of the proposed bank to serve motion picture interests, said yesterday that the organization committee expected to meet within about 10 days and finally complete arrangements. The name for the institution is to be the "Times Square National Bank," and application for this has been filed with the Government authorities. He also said that a former well known bank president would head the institution.

Ist Nat'l Buys Three Stories

Brandt and Kirkpatrick have sold the following stories to First National: "Counterfeit," by Leroy Scott; "One Way Street," by Beale Davis and "The Mouth of the Dragon," by Jesse H. Anderson. All of them will be made by First National's own producing units. Colleen Moore will appear in "The Mouth of the Dragon," which will be released as "The Perfect Flapper." Brandt and Kirkpatrick also sold "Sailors' Wives," the new Warner Fabian story to First National.

"America" Premiere Feb. 21

"America," will have its world premiere at the 44th St. theater on Washington's Birthday Eve. The picture is being made by D. W. Griffith.

Plan Big Building Program

(Special to THE FILM DAILY) Marquette, Mich.—The Belt Theater Circuit, headed by "Doc" Gallup, plans a big expansion program. The company, now operating theaters in four Michigan cities, will build houses in five other cities in the state.

"In 'The Courtship of Myles Standish' Charles Ray has made a splendid picture," said Harriette Underhill in the Chicago Tribune. "He gives a gorgeous performance." Associated Exhibitors.—Advt.

Seek 3 Million Gross

First National After High Mark for January Business—Expect $4,600,000 in 8 Weeks

The entire sales organization of First National is geared to top-notch speed in an effort to roll up bookings of $3,000,000 during January which has been designated as First National Month.

E. A. Eschmann, sales manager, declared yesterday he was confident the figure would be reached, especially in view of the unusual line-up of box-office pictures his organization would release. A sales drive was inaugurated the week of Dec. 17 to run through eight weeks. During that period, the national quota has been set at $4,600,000, this estimate, of course, including the $3,000,000 figure set for January alone. Special prizes have been offered the exchange rolling up the highest total.

Newspaper Opinions

"The Courtship of Myles Standish"
Associated Exhibitors
Central

AMERICAN—With only a skeleton of a plot Charles Ray was very brave to attempt to get a ten-reel picture out of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's legendary poem and a few tales told by dead and gone historians. He had neither book nor play to give his picture substance. Unfortunately in those days there were no newspapers or motion picture records.

As a pictorial narrative illustrating one of the most familiar passages of American History, "The Courtship of Myles Standish" is interesting. The Mayflower will delight all those whose ancestors figured in the landing of this vessel.

DAILY NEWS—To the voyage the first half of the film is given, to the agonized months of setting that new, bleak land around Cape Cod the second half. The love story is submerged, only bobbing up here and there to keep romantic playgoers peaceful. "The Courtship of Myles Standish," so easy to sit through and is a labor of merit, as well as (according to Mr. Ray) love.

EVENING JOURNAL—The photoplay is an elaborate, one well produced, and shows remarkable attention to details. There are many thrilling scenes in the picture—the historic landing of the Mayflower, the building of the first homes, and an unusually vivid storm at sea. There is throughout the entire picture an air of sincerity, prayers; a great deal of mutiny; some beautiful forest scenes; and eighty-seven actors in the cast.

EVENING WORLD—Movie audiences always are delighted with Charles Ray, and his new picture is no exception. The well-known romance affords him opportunity for plenty of love scenes with Priscilla, played by Enid Bennett, so here is characteristic Charles Ray acting, and every one appeared pleased. There is a most realistic and thrilling storm.

HERALD—Another "great American epic" opened at the Central last night. It is "The Courtship of Myles Standish," with the agreeable Charles Ray appearing as the John Alden, who was asked to speak for himself. even if one can forget the inadequacy of the scenery, one is not apt to be thrilled to any extent by the drama itself. Of course Mr. Ray is splendid; he has never, to our knowledge been otherwise. He receives good support from several of the cast—notably E. Alyn Warren as Myles Standish and Tom Wilson.

MAIL—Those who are interested in a faithful representation of what took place as documentary history tells it, will find much to interest them in this film.

Its producers would rank "The Courtship of Myles Standish" with "The Birth of a Nation" and "The Covered Wagon," but we feel that the picture will never achieve that position because the human side has been overlooked entirely.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * a great American chronicle done in pictures. When finally our country's history shall have been visualized for the screen it will of right demand the place allotted to the epochal experiences of the Pilgrim Fathers covering in point of time the departure of the little band from England in 1620, on the Mayflower, up to the close of the first years of the Plymouth Colony.

POST—The film on the whole can be called successful for it is sincere, and not for a moment does it lack clarity.

SUN—In this period of squabbling among churchmen it is particularly timely that a story based on simple faith should be chosen for screen presentation.

TELEGRAM—* * * intrigued by history, imagination has built up a picture of those early days, idealistic and maybe untrue, but in its untruth has lain its greatest charm.

All that, and more, has been caught in the filming of the poem. The early days of persecution, the hopeful voyage, the landing at Plymouth, are portrayed with spirit.

TIMES—You will never regret having spent the time in the Central Theatre and watched this photopoeem till the last title which tells that they lived happily and had nine children. * * * There are numerous other scenes in this beautiful production that call forth the undying lines of this glorious epic. And not in a single instance has Mr. Ray interpolated anything that might be construed as absurd comedy or hokum padding.

TIMES SQ. DAILY—It is an artistic success, however, and contains many interesting and effective episodes of the Mayflower and colonial days. In it Ray, appearing in the Alden role, has Enid Bennett opposite and a long list of well-known players in the supporting cast.

At the $1.65 top it is going to find Broadway sledding rough, but in the picture houses at picture prices it might get by nicely.

TRIBUNE—But, if you go expecting to find the true story of the Pilgrim Fathers, their voyage on the Mayflower, and their landing on a stern and rockbound coast with the breaking waves dashing high, then you are not going to be disappointed, for Charles Ray has made a splendid picture. * * *

The storm is the best one we ever saw on the screen. * * * One of the biggest thrills we ever got came when John and Priscilla were chased by Indians. To us its freedom from all movie hokum is its real charm. Mr. Ray gives a gorgeous performance as the reticent John Alden. What an actor that man is! It is a delight to watch him.

WORLD—* * * Stripped almost clear of irrelevant side-play, combining an exciting, and at times gripping picture story of the momentous voyage of the Mayflower across the Atlantic together with a tender and moving love story after the Longfellow poem of "Miles Standish," this new cinema which Mr. Ray has brought to New York stands high up * * *

"The Rendezvous"—Gold.-Cosmop.
Capitol

AMERICAN—I do mean to say frankly that in comparison with some of the other films produced under the direction of this young man "The Rendezvous," will not perpetuate his name for posterity.

DAILY NEWS—Here is a strange picture for you. Strange in choice of material and heroine. * * * Sydney Chaplin supplies more than one bright spot. * * *

Mr. Nagel is noble. * * * But why "The Rendezvous," Mr. Neilan? Why?

EVENING JOURNAL—There is a great deal of what is called character acting in "The Rendezvous" * * * There are assorted tragedies throughout the photoplay. * * *

HERALD—Although equipped with a very silly story, "The Rendezvous" is actually magnificent drama—and it is Marshall Neilan who has made it so. * * * Syd Chaplin. * * * vitally alive.

MAIL—A fine performance by Sydney Chaplin and several exceptional camera effects are the outstanding features * * * the story is dreary and dull.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—It is a production that Marshall Neilan has spent a great deal of time and money on, but which he has not been successful with. He has no objective. The story starts nowhere and gets nowhere, unless you can call marrying the heroine to the hero a complete climax.

SUN—Marshall Neilan's best picture to date * * * joins with the other creations under his signature in marking him out as one of the most original directors of the day, always up to tricks. * * *

The story is a deft commingling of humor, tragedy, thrills and picturesqueness, laid in a village so incredibly real you're astonished the publicity department didn't declare the scenes were taken in Russia and get away with it.

TELEGRAM—It is the tragic story of a little Russian princess. * * * There is comic relief also in the story executed in Neilan's inimitable manner.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—Containing a stereotyped theme, "The Rendezvous" * * * offers something of a diversion in that locale is Siberia, and with Neilan's direction, plus a smooth working cast, it amounts to a pleasing presentable film.

TRIBUNE—* * * We wonder what he was thinking of while he did it. It seems as if he has filmed all the unimportant scenes and left all the interesting incidents to be taken care of in sub-titles. The story is scrappy and incoherent.

WORLD—Whatever it is, it is feeble stuff. The best thing in it is a comedy role acted, by Sid Chaplin, brother of the great Charlie. And this Mr. Chaplin will win no honors this year in the comic division.

Ego or Entertainment

"THE ego of some directors," says Danny in an able editorial in the Film Daily condemning the too-long, "padded" picture, "will only permit them to think in 7-8-9-10-11 (i. e. 7,000—8,000—9,000—10,000—11,000 feet) and because some REAL director with a real story made a justifiable 9,000-foot picture, the ego (not ambition) made the second (great?) director feel it beneath his dignity to make anything less than 10,000 feet—and the third (great?) director's ego (not ambition) can then only think in 11,000 or 12,000 feet. * * * *

"Mr. Exhibitor: Do you realize the millions of dollars this ego costs you? * * * *

"Can you see that the public is willing and anxious to pay for real entertainment—and sooner or later will refuse to pay for 'Ego'?"

Are you giving your patrons diversified ENTERTAINMENT, or foisting some director's ego upon them in the form of long-drawn-out, "padded" features? If you are relying upon "padded" features solely, you are not only in danger of boring your patrons, but you are sacrificing the opportunity to appeal through the comedy and other Short Subjects to the considerable part of your audience that, under any circumstances, will not be entirely pleased with the feature.

Patience

A real necessity for any director. And many could get a lot of tips from Syd Olcott. Who seems to have a barrel of it. Always on tap.

This happened a few nights ago. While making "The Humming Bird" with Gloria. At the Famous Long Island studio:

The entire company had been working from early in the morning to late at night for days and days. In order to make up time lost while waiting to secure a leading man. Everyone was on edge. All were very tired. Olcott directed one of the minor leads in a piece of business. Rehearsed him nine times; took the scene seven times and each time the fellow did just everything Olcott told him not to do. It was enough to make any ordinary man tear his hair out. Not Olcott. When he felt himself growing impatient he began whistling an Irish jig and danced to his own tune to the merriment of all on the set. Relieved a bad situation created by a dumb actor. Finally the fellow got it right and they went into the next shot.

The moral is found in the feeling that every one on the set holds for Olcott. They all said many, many nice things about him. But best of all was demonstrated in their work. They gave him everything they had at all hours, early or late.

Calvert of Educ'al Discovers Difficulty Through Country—Perforations Not Aligned Causing Tears

Lowell V. Calvert of Educational, just back from a tour throughout the country, reports that in many sections he found distributors in difficulty because of trouble with prints which were sadly torn when returned to various exchanges.

He declares that in a test made in New Orleans, of nine feet of stock of Metro and First National subjects, that the perforations did not run true, and that in these nine feet, one of the prints had one more sprocket hole than the other.

"Some exchange men," said Calvert, "are inclined to believe that something is wrong with the stock, but I think it is really in the perforating. At all events, no matter what the cause, we are having a lot of difficulty."

Shorter Features?

Exhibitors say they want shorter features. Yet, on Friday, three New York exhibitors approached Marcus Loew and urged that the big pictures on the Metro schedule for 1924 run 10 reels in length and not eight.

Print Trouble

also found great difficulty with prints during the past year or so. "Normally, we should get about 60 runs to a print," he said. "But because of something that is happening, we are lucky to get 25. Where colored shots are shown, the replacement is tremendous after the first few showings. In our territory we have a lot of very poor machines. I know that. Indeed, I should say that half of the machines in our territory are operated with a crank and that about in the same number of instances, an exhibitor only has one machine."

Friedman's Comment

Joe Friedman, also from the Northwest, commented that in the Northwest a larger percentage of fires had occurred than ever before, and he attributed this to the fact that operators overloaded their reels, either with very long features, or by putting too much of the show on a large reel.

"I feel certain that this has resulted in much of the difficulty and the many fires. This is certain; where an operator places a very large oversized reel of film on his machine, the pull is bound to be felt, especially at the start, and the strain on the sprocket-hole must be intense."

Distributors Pay

Cubberly pointed out that in the end it was the distributor who paid for the wear and tear on the prints, and no one else. "No matter how much the exhibitor is to blame," he said, "in the end, the distributor pays for all the trouble. He must replace, patch the torn sprocket-holes and otherwise take care of his prints as best he can. This is not an important item perhaps, to the old line distributing companies, but to the operator in the state right field, it is a serious matter because in a territory like ours—a 2½ per cent territory—very often the cost of new or additional prints is quite as much as the price we pay for the product and this makes the operation burdensome and difficult."

"Up to a little over a year ago, the Eastman Kodak Co. had sold stock unperforated, but at that time the Kodak Company issued notice that thereafter the perforations would be taken care of without additional charge; to check as far as possible the varying perforations which resulted through different producers and laboratories handling the stock.

Grants First National New Trial

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Utica, N. Y.—The Appellate Division at Rochester has set aside the verdict obtained by the Alhambra Amusement Co. for $17,500 under a breach of contract against Associated First National, of New York.

A new trial has been granted First National.

The Alhambra claimed it entered into a contract with the defendant to purchase twenty-two shares of stock for $2,220 and that these were to carry them with them the right to the use of films produced by the defendant for 25 years.

The Alhambra claimed the distributor broke its agreement causing damages of $40,000.

GIVING CREDIT

Meticulous about these things over at the Fox plant. Made quite a flashy announcement. Of "The Shepherd King" being "an American creation." But sort of overlooked the important fact that "This Freedom" was made by Ideal. And not by the Fox organization.

THE SQUARE DEAL

"Kine" editorial says in part:

Sometimes—only sometimes, of course—an exhibitor gets a bad picture. He looks painfully round the gaps where the audience should be, and goes to town and books a super on which he probably packs his house and comes out on the wrong side in his balance-sheet. Sometimes—only sometimes—he does otherwise. But he rarely does what an exhibitor at Hull did last week. He had booked a bad picture—it is not for us here and now to go into the reasons why he did not know what the picture was like when he booked it. But when he got it he discovered that it was of no use to his theater; that it was not up to the standard of his house. So he advertised widely that the picture he had already advertised would not be shown because it was not what he had advertised it to be. And he put on another and presumably better picture in its place. The result undoubtedly is a large accession of confidence on the part of his patrons and bigger audiences for some time than he would have got if he had shown the picture hoping to get by with it. Of course, the real point is that he should never have booked it, but somewhere in the story there is a moral. Several, in fact.

THOSE "INDEPENDENTS"

Seem to have finally started in the right direction. Referring to the men who have organized the Independent M. P. Prod. & Dist. Ass'n. Surely there are problems enough in the state right field to need such an organization. They had one several years ago. But it went to pieces. Now Fred Elliott and C. B. Hoy seem to have lined them up properly. Practically everyone in New York in the state right field in. And they anticipate lining up West Coast producers as well.

Have a lot of plans. Credits important, but other matters to be settled as well. They intend working together on releases as well as advertising. Irving Lesser tried to get this latter idea in work some months ago. Lunch at the Biltmore, and much talk. But nothing eventuated.

Here's hoping that the new organization does get things done. Talk won't do it.

HAYS TO COAST

Move has nothing to do with the latest front page yarn in which some female stars seem involved. Was on his way before this "broke." Just his usual Winter visit.

"FOOLISH LIVES"

Editorial caption of item in Los Angeles Times. Which, incidentally, says: "It doesn't help any to be able to advertise that a film cost a million or more in the taking. Too many 'flops' have already passed this expenditure. Some story of great dramatic strength may not call for more than $20,000 or $30,000 to place on the screen. The people do not care to pay for luxurious or extravagant settings unless they are getting drama with them. * * * Drama is all in the finding and this may often be a matter of luck or chance. The wastrel who pours millions into a hole may not take hundreds out."

There's a lot of truth in this. But a lot of people out Hollywood way would like to know. Where and how you can make a picture these days for $20,000 or $30,000.

LOOKING AROUND

Bob Bruce. Whose scenics have been a delight. To millions of fans. Bruce has quit making these little gems. Although his latest series is just about to start through Educational. And Bruce wants to get into the bigger pictures. Some concern which is doing things with outdoor stuff should be able to use Bruce to advantage—to a decided advantage indeed.

SOME SHOW

That Xmas bill at the Strand. It was a whale of a show. Great pity that Moe Mark doesn't break loose oftener. Plunkett knows how to do it. That's certain. Incidentally that "Boy o' Mine" is going to draw a lot of people into the box office. And send them home feeling mighty fine. Peach of a picture. And it didn't cost a fortune to make, either.

STIMULATING

Up in Voorheesville, New York. Manager Martin of the Odeon Fellows Hall wanted to stimulate business. So he gave away frankfurters and coffee. To the ticket buyers. Clem Deneker please note.

A STUNT

Arrow shoots out a letter to exhibitors. Regarding "Gambling Wives." And encloses a brand new penny. For the purchase of a stamp. To go on a return postal. Which, when signed will bring info to the exhibitor regarding the feature. An idea.

STUDIO STUFF

Charles Ray. Here for the premiere of "The Courtship of Myles Standish." Has a word to say regarding production. Think that more and more will the studio be used instead of location Bases this on the results obtained for his big picture. Where he not only produced a peach of a sea storm right in the studio, but used a panorama to excellent effect as well. Says working right in the studio helps a lot and saves a lot from going on location.

PRODUCTION SAVINGS

May come. Several large concerns promise they will. But if these reductions arrive star salaries will play little or no part therein. There is every indication that salaries will remain where they are. If they advance don't yell. It won't help. Any saving of consequence must come therefore from preparatory work. Before the "shooting" begins.

Of course cutting footage down to 6,000 feet, or a little more will help a lot. And if this is done much will be accomplished.

PICKING THE MONTH'S BEST FILM

And Lo, "The Virginian" Heads the List

By McELLIOTT.

I know now the feelings of a baby contest editor called on to decide which one of the infants submitted joyously in the lot is the loveliest. Producers, artless, almost, as proud mothers, hold out their choice pictures, as parents hold out golden-haired, blue-eyed offspring, crying out: "See, isn't mine the finest?" or "Observe, is not mine the most clever?"

The prize this month, boys and girls, ought really be divided among three, with a fourth given high mention. But I'll give you the best (as I see them) in order of importance (as I think.) Because by "the best picture of the month" I mean the one which most interested me, and that same one might not be your choice at all. Anyhow, here they are:

(1) "The Virginian."

If the prize were to be divided, then, there would be second and third bits of booty to be given:—

(2) "The Ten Commandments."

(3) "The Acquittal," and an honorable mention to

(4) "No More Women."

Most Simply Told Story.

Again the baby contest idea bobs up, for in affairs of this sort there are always classifications: prettiest baby, healthiest baby, cleverest baby, etc. "The Virginian," then, is, in my opinion, the best rounded story, most simply told; "The Ten Commandments" the most ambitious, most notable in point of "stunt" photography, and achievement, meaning extras, chariots and the like; "The Acquittal" is the best sustained dramatic theme and "No More Women" is the best comedy romance.

However, if you like to have your sifting done for you, and wish to miss some of the tiresome things that go the rounds of the theatres, I don't think you'll go wrong, picking any or all of these.

Yes, "The Virginian" IS a Western, and doubtless a story many people are exceedingly familiar with, although its vogue is rather antique. Kenneth Harlan, who, I am told, carries off prizes in popularity contests of movie magazines in small towns, is the hero, and a regular one. Florence Vidor, one of the most likable picture girls, and pretty in the bargain, is the heroine. There is plenty of comedy (of the "good, clean" sort), and there is drama to spare, especially in a certain wrenching incident where the Virginian and his buddy part for all time. It is, also, so well edited, so knowingly sub-titled, that it leaves you the impression of finish and poise.

There are no ragged ends. There is no false, sentimental appeal. It's a straightaway story. You can take it or leave it. My bet is, you'll take it.

Hoot Gibson in "Hook and Ladder"

Universal

As a Whole... ANOTHER GOOD GIBSON ENTERTAINMENT WITH STAR DOING HIS BEST TO PLEASE HIS AUDIENCE; THEY'LL LIKE IT.

Star... Always dependable. Gives another fine performance and his numerous admirers are going to get a lot of fun out of his learning to be a fireman.

Cast... Mildred June a pretty heroine and Philo McCullough the regulation villain. Frank Beal good as the fire captain. Edward Davis a typical political boss.

Type of Story... Comedy-drama. Gibson strikes another good vehicle in one especially prepared for him by Edward Sedgwick and Raymond L. Schrock. The story starts off to be a particularly original one but drifts into the regulation stock situations with the introduction of villain McCullough and his devilish attempts to put hero Hoot out of the running. Of course the efforts of McCullough and his devil attempts to put hero out of the running. First there's the fight in the dance hall which Hoot battling a dozen antagonists easily enough. Then there's the grand fire climax in which villain plans to get the political boss in trouble and at the same time spoil hero's faith in his sweetheart. His plan miscarries, the boss' home catches fire and hero has a chance to save the girl's life while villain is killed by a dog. The latter reels contain regulation hokum but this isn't going to hurt the film's chances as entertainment.

Box Office Angle... Exhibitors in the habit of playing the Hoot Gibson features should be able to judge pretty well how big a drawing card the star is by now.

Exploitation... Here's a good title and one that should be easy to put over. If you can persuade your local fire chief to cooperate with you, you might have the department parade the apparatus and announce the showing of "Hook and Ladder" at your theater on blank date. Have men going about in firemen's uniforms distributing throw-aways reading: "Would you jump from a ten-story building into a life-net? It's part of a fireman's duty. See 'Hook and Ladder.'" You could easily win the cooperation of the firemen by promising a performance for their benefit.

Direction... Edward Sedgwick; this Hoot Gibson-Edward Sedgwick combination seems to be a wise one; they've already turned out many good entertainments.

Authors... Edward Sedgwick and Raymond L. Schrock

Scenario... E. Richard Schayer
Cameraman... Virgil Miller
Photography... Good
Art Director... E. E. Sheeley
Locale... Los Angeles
Length... 5,568 feet.

"The Rendezvous"

Producer: Marshall Neilan
Distributor: Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan

As a Whole... PRETTY LITTLE LOVE STORY WOVEN IN BUT TOO MUCH ELSE IN THE WAY OF RUSSIAN REVOLUTIONARY BUSINESS THAT ISN'T SO INTERESTING. SOME GOOD DRAMATIC BITS.

Cast... Lucille Rickson gives a thoroughly pleasing and sincere performance as the Russian peasant girl while Conrad Nagel is the American soldier who goes back to claim her as his bride. Elmo Lincoln a fierce villain who cringes and creeps in terrifying fashion. Sydney Chaplin good except in some overdone comedy bits.

Type of Story... Dramatic romance in which a child of royalty, in the old Russian regime, is left in the care of peasants, and reared as one. How she marries a brigand to save the life of the man she believes is her father, in spite of the fact that she is waiting for the return of her American lover, is followed by brutal encounters with the man she has married but avoids. Deaf from a beating he has given her, she fails to hear his cries when he is entombed in a stone shrine. How death comes to the man and happiness to the girl in the return of her lover closes the story. Marshall Neilan travels far for atmosphere in his latest picture, one that starts out to be a lagging Russian revolutionary plot with a prologue that fails to get the interest. Once they get into the main story, there's a pretty love theme, charmingly played by Lucille Rickson and Conrad Nagel, that will probably send them out satisfied. There are several good dramatic climaxes, a trifle brutal in nature, but they'll serve to please those who favor something a little more substantial than just plain romance. The happy ending could be reached much sooner.

Box Office Angle... You might judge this to better advantage by seeing it yourself.

Exploitation... For the romance lovers you can talk about the little Russian peasant girl who became the bride of an American soldier as the happy climax of a tragic and unhappy life in dissatisfied Russia. Talk about Lucille Rickson and the very charming performance which she gives as the little Russian girl. Of course use Marshall Neilan's name prominently, mentioning his previous productions which proved successful.

Direction... Marshall Neilan; good, on the whole, but might have made a much better picture.

Author... Madeline Ruthven
Scenario... Josephine Lovett
Cameraman... David Kesson
Art Director... Cedric Gibbons
Photography... Good
Locale... Russia
Length... 7,415 feet.

Glenn Hunter in "West of the Water Tower"

Paramount

As a Whole... HOMER CROY'S NOVEL GIVES INTERESTING INSIGHT INTO SMALL TOWN LIFE WITH MANY CONVINCING ANGLES THAT ARE SPLENDIDLY BROUGHT OUT. DEVELOPMENT IS FAR TOO SLOW.

Star... One of the best of his screen performances so far. Is given a role that fits him splendidly and handles it well. Is allowed too many close-ups that are too prolonged.

Cast... Ernest Torrence has a less vigorous role than is usually allotted him but plays it very well; May MacAvoy a pleasing heroine; George Fawcett good in minor part.

Type of Story... Drama of small town folk in which the familiar atmosphere is extensively brought out—that of community bigotry. Homer Croy has dealt with the situation rather openly and without stint. He shows them up for just what they are. His handling of the idea is splendid and to be commended. Director's Sturgeon's picturization of Croy's novel is also worth while to the extent that he brings out the author's intention splendidly, pictures his people realistically and puts the more important parts in hands of players capable of getting them over, but Director Sturgeon, from an entertainment viewpoint, has missed on one important point: his development is slow, the theme drags and there is too much arbitrary business, too much uncertainty in the progress, an apparent effort to hold the suspense of the climax by giving each side an equal opportunity to win; either hero or the narrow-minded townsmen.

Box Office Angle... There's a really charming, fine audience appeal ending to "West of the Water Tower" that will certainly send them out feeling fine, but you will have to be judge as to whether or not the foregoing reels will keep them that long.

Exploitation... Paramount, previous to the New York showing of the picture, had billboard teasers that were quite attractive. They contained the picture of a water tower and the word "West." These were followed by the same posters with the title completed. It should prove a good advertising stunt. Get book storedealers to display Homer Croy's novel in conjunction with cards announcing the picture showing at your theater.

Direction... Rolin Sturgeon; good but lets story drag.

Author... Homer Croy
Scenario... Lucien Hubbard and Doris Schroeder
Cameraman... Harry B. Harris
Photography... Good
Locale... Western town
Length... 7,432 feet.

Jane Novak in "The Lullaby"

Film Booking Offices

As a Whole... JANE NOVAK'S EXCEPTIONALLY FINE PERFORMANCE THE OUTSTANDING FEATURE OF "THE LULLABY," A TRAGIC THEME, BEAUTIFUL IN HEART INTEREST TOUCHES BUT OFTEN QUITE HARROWING.

Star... Offers what is probably one of the best performances of her career; carries her emotional bits with a force and deep sincerity that makes her work thoroughly absorbing.

Cast... Robert Anderson gives a splendid characterization as the Italian who worships his Sicilian bride. Fred Maletesta suitable as the jealous friend. Dorothy Marion Mack about the cutest youngster that ever appeared on the screen. Apparently entirely unconscious of the camera, she's bound to win the hearts of everyone. Others are Marguerite Snow, Otis Harlan, Peter Burke, Lydia Yeamans Titus.

Type of Story... Chiefly a tragedy but with a happy ending. Here's a picture that many will like extremely well providing they don't object to having their heart strings tugged upon to a great extent for "The Lullaby" is sad in atmosphere. Mrs. Ducey's story is a pathetic tale of the great love and devotion of a young Italian couple and the sudden tragedy wherein the husband kills his best friend when he finds him attacking his wife. The swiftness of the law which claims the Italian's life and leaves his wife in prison with her new born babe, is probably the picture's most tense sequence.

Box Office Angle... Most women folks enjoy a "good sad picture." Here's one over which they'll enjoy weeping and feel thoroughly justified in doing it. "The Lullaby" is a deeply human and sincere picture with a story that is interesting and good entertainment if they don't mind it being tragic. The happy ending does help to offset the harrowing bits, nevertheless.

Exploitation... Talk about the remarkably fine performance of Jane Novak. Her work merits all the publicity and exploitation that you can give her. Let them know that her's is a real mother role and go into the story sufficiently to give them an idea of what they may expect. Perhaps you'll need to do some considering if you think "The Lullaby" will be too heavy for them or else you might build up your program with 'good, amusing short subjects. The title is a good one.

Direction... Chester Bennet; very good.

Author... Lillian Ducey
Scenario... Hope Loring & Louis D. Leighton
Cameraman... Jack McKenzie
Photography... Good
Locale... New York
Length... 7,179 feet.

Madge Kennedy in "Three Miles Out"

Producer: Kenma

As a Whole... AN UP-TO-DATE PLOT IN WHICH THE POPULAR HERO OF THE DAY—A BOOTLEGGER—PLAYS A PART. OFFERS EXCITEMENT FOR THOSE WHO WANT ACTION.

Cast... Madge Kennedy winsome and pleasing. Has a thrilling time of it trying to avoid marrying a rich bootlegger while the real hero suffers considerably before the happy fade-out.

Cast... Marc McDermott suitable as the "three mile limit" man; Harrison Ford undergoes the hardships of his role bravely and satisfactorily. Ivan Linow gives creditable character sketch and others the regulation types.

Type of Story... Melodrama that has genuine up-to-the-minute atmosphere. You hear a lot about bootleggers these days but they haven't reached any great heights of popularity on the screen until now when "Three Miles Out," a Kenma production, essays to show the workings of rum row rather effectively and in conjunction with a legitimate plot. Madge is engaged to Marc McDermott but she'd rather marry Harrison Ford, a victim of McDermott's in connection with his spurious dealings. How Madge goes aboard one of the rum boats, suffers various attacks from the crew and is eventually rescued by her fiance only to witness his arrest, is followed by the usual happy ending when she is free to marry Ford. Toward the close the plot becomes highly involved with Madge performing some Pearl White stunts capably and through the means of a dream, the improbabilities are overcome.

Box Office Angle... Those who fancy melodramas will be satisfied with "Three Miles Out." You can probably arouse considerable interest by letting them know the story has to do with bootleggers and rum row. The title offers good probabilities providing you don't run up against any interference from prohibition authorities.

Exploitation... If your folks like action pictures with plenty of good thrills and excitement, you will likely find it worth your while to get them interested. Play up the title with catchlines such as: "You've read about 'rum row' and the 'three mile limit.' You can see it in 'Three Miles Out,' a Madge Kennedy picture at the blank theater." Where the star is a favorite let them know she has an exciting time of it trying to avoid a marriage to a bootlegger. Show a trailer of some of the thrills in the climax with the star suspended on a mast with villain hacking away at the bottom.

Direction... Irvin Willat; provides plenty of good action and keeps story moving along at good pace.

Author... Neysa McMein

Scenario... John Emerson and Anita Loos

Cameraman... Henry Cronjager

Photography... All right

Locale... New York

Length... 5,626 feet

"Gentle Julia"

Fox

As a Whole... BOOTH TARKINGTON STORY MAKES AMUSING PICTURE THOUGH IT WOULD BE MUCH BETTER IF THEY BOILED IT DOWN TO KEEP WITHIN FIVE REELS.

Cast... Bessie Love pleasing and suitable in the title role with young Mary Arthur a typical mischievous "kid sister." Harold Goodwin good as Bessie's most persistent suitor. A good many in the picture with Frank Elliott, Charles K. French, Harvey Cross, Jack Rollins, among the more important.

Type of Story... Comedy of youth. One of the typical Tarkington stories dealing with the efforts of a young belle to vamp all the men of the town and the mischievous schemes of her young sister which almost lead to the girl losing the one she really loves. There's much good comedy and many amusing situations in "Gentle Julia," although it is not as good as some other juvenile stories that Tarkington has written. "Gentle Julia" is more or less a series of incidents, not always closely related so, while it holds the interest pretty well, it is not actually a connected plot. Bessie Love helps considerably to make her story interesting and young Mary Arthur offers many laughs for her typical characterization as the inquisitive sister of the heroine. The atmosphere will prove thoroughly appealing to the majority and it is entirely dependable, wholesome entertainment. The little girl's various stunts through which she tries to make her sister realize that Noble Dill is really the young man she should marry provide many of the features' laughs.

Box Office Angle... Good, clean entertainment that should satisfy all of your patrons. This is a particularly good one if you cater to family trade. It's good for old and young.

Exploitation... Use Booth Tarkington's name prominently and let them know that "Gentle Julia" is from one of his novels. Arrange a book-store tie-up for display of the book and announcement of the showing at your theater. Use catchlines such as: "Have you a Miss Mischief Maker in your home? See 'Gentle Julia' and you'll appreciate the difficulties of a young girl to entertain her gentlemen friends against the opposition of a little sister." Make use of Bessie Love's name and use a trailer of some of the comedy bits.

Direction... Rowland V. Lee; usually good although lays too much stress on occasional incidents that really don't warrant it.

Author... Booth Tarkington

Scenario... Donald Lee

Cameraman... George Post

Photography... Good

Locale... Any city

Length... 5,837 feet

Glenn Hunter in "Grit"

Producer: Film Guild
Distributor: Hodkinson

As a Whole... CROOK STORY THAT IS FAR FROM BEING GOOD EVEN WITH F. SCOTT FITZGERALD'S NAME ATTACHED TO IT; AN AMATEURISH LOOKING PICTURE BOTH IN PRODUCTION AND ACTING.

Star... Could have handled the role a lot better. At times meets the situation adequately but more often seems unable to get it over.

Cast... Dore Davidson about the only one who really acquits himself creditably. Clara Bow greatly overdoes her part and Osgood Perkins has a glorious time of it overacting the role of gang leader. Others Helenka Adamowska, Roland Young, Townsend Martin, Martin Broder and Joseph Depew.

Type of Story... Crook melodrama in which a weakling hero, born as his father is killed by a gang he had quit, is kept a coward through his fear of a gun but eventually overcomes his fear, is the means of exposing a desperate gang and is eventually happy with Orchid, a girl of the underworld. F. Scott Fitzgerald, though he be credited with several successful novels, fails to win any laurels for this screen story, a rather weak and poorly developed crook theme, further injured by a rather amateurish production and a cast, incapable at least of putting any realism or conviction into the characters of the story. The atmosphere is greatly overdone. Settings representing Bowery restaurants, street scenes, and filthy quarters in general, are all so overcrowded and so plainly "dressed" that there is little realism. The production is so plainly studio manufactured that it's noticeable. Nor has the story been well handled. There is far too much detail and the development is slow and tedious as a result.

Box Office Angle... Average, if that. They expect a much better crook story than this nowadays and there are so many good ones floating around that they're sure to realize the weakness in "Grit." Slow, positive, over-detailed development doesn't make for a sustained interest.

Exploitation... Not very much for you to exploit in this. If you think that Glenn Hunter's name is sufficient to interest them, use it prominently in your announcements and mention his previous Film Guild productions: "Puritan Passions," "Second Fiddle" and "Youthful Cheaters." You might also use F. Scott Fitzgerald's name if you want to bring them in on the strength of it. Say: "What do you fear most? 'Grit' will help you overcome it. See the picture at the blank theater."

Direction... Frank Tuttle; fair

Author... F. Scott Fitzgerald

Scenario... Ashmore Creelman

Cameraman... Fred Waller

Photography... Fair

Settings by... Junius Cravin's

Locale... New York's East Side

Length... About 5,000 feet

"Restless Wives"

C. C. Burr—State Rights

As a Whole... JUST WHAT THE NAME IMPLIES: A PICTURE DEALING WITH THE POPULAR FORMULA IN WHICH A YOUNG COUPLE AGREE TO DISAGREE EVEN BEFORE THE HONEYMOON IS OVER.

Cast... First rate company with Doris Kenyon and James Rennie suitable as the couple in question. Others Maude Sinclair, Montagu Love, Burr McIntosh, Coit Albertson, Edna May Oliver, Leroy Grooms, Edmund Breese, Naomi Childers.

Type of Story... Another domestic unhappiness theme wherein the husband's devotion to his desk brings about a desire on the part of wife to attend cabarets without him. This husband, like those in previous and similar films, forgets the lady's wedding anniversary and then tries to smooth things over by a second honeymoon but, by this time, wife longs for the gay times and early one morning hubby awakes to find himself alone. The eventual reunion is brought about when the wife's father, being found guilty of misusing stock funds, kills himself. Then she's glad to go back to her husband. There's little to recommend Izola Forrester's story but where they still favor this cut and dried, unoriginal plot, "Restless Wives" may satisfy. The production caters to a certain class of picture patrons and gives them the sort of atmosphere and situations that they revel in. There are cabaret scenes, friendly rows between the husband and wife, and just enough excitement to give them a thrill. It holds no surprises in the development, but sustains the interest fairly well, at that.

Box Office Angle... Many exhibitors will probably be able to use this one to their satisfaction. A good many picture patrons still favor pictures of this order so if you think your crowd is right for "Restless Wives," let them have it.

Exploitation... You won't have to do much explaining with this title. It's self explanatory and should give them a sufficient idea of what sort of a story to expect. Show them a trailer of some of the cabaret scenes and you can rely upon them bringing in a certain majority. Of the players mention the names of Doris Kenyon, James Rennie, Naomi Childers, Montagu Love. If you care to use catchlines, they could read: "Husbands and Wives will find something to interest and benefit them in 'Restless Wives,' A C. C. Burr production at the blank theater."

Direction... Gregory Lacava; sticks pretty closely to regulation routine in his direction; average in quality.

Author... Izola Forrester

Scenario... Mann Page

Cameraman... Jack Brown

Photography... All right

Locale... City and mountain lodge

Length... 6,041 feet

Little Building Activity in Phila.

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Philadelphia—According to figures compiled by William W. Gamble, statistician of the bureau of building inspection, "four places of amusement" were built in Philadelphia in 1923. Their total value is placed by him at $375,000. No further description is given.

"Black Oxen" in Baltimore

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Baltimore—The Rivoli is celebrating its third anniversary this week. "Black Oxen," is the feature. The house is showing a special reel, "Flashes of 1923," prepared by the Baltimore American and showing news events that occurred here during the past year.

Cleveland Theater Damaged

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Cleveland—In a sweeping fire that destroyed a number of buildings at St. Clair Ave. and E. 40th St., the Ideal theater was damaged. Bolislav Ungerman, the owner said the loss was about $2,600, unprotected by insurance.

Petersburg, Va. House Sold

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Petersburg, Va.—The Century has been purchased by R. L. Thomas of Charlottesville for $50,000. The theater which is at Sycamore and E. Bank Sts., one of the busiest corners in town, is assessed at $75,000.

More Dabbling in Real Estate

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—The Christie Bros. intend dabbling more extensively in real estate than heretofore. A hotel on Hollywood Blvd. is being considered by the company which has increased its capital to $1,000,000.

"Hunchback" Grosses $75,000

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—"The Hunchback" has ended its run at the Harris. The picture is said to have grossed $75,000 for 98 performances. This is claimed to be a record, since the house seats less than 1,000.

"On Time" Finished

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Hollywood—Henry Lehrman, has completed work on "On Time," the second of the Richard Talmadge pictures for Truart.

Young Becomes M. P. Editor

Irving Young assumes charge of the motion picture department of "Theater Magazine" with the February issue.

"Tire Trouble"—Our Gang—Pathe Excellent Amusement

Type of production... 2 reel comedy
Hal Roach's ingenuity never fails him when it comes to thinking up new stunts for his gang of rascals to romp through. This time it is a real automobile of their own construction. The trick appliances, self starters, etc. are marvelous in themselves, but when you see them in action they are bound to bring forth plenty of laughs. In addition to this intriguing feature, there is a revel at an amusement park where the kids, from freckled-faced Mickey down to little Farina, chute the chutes to their hearts' content. If you haven't been booking these most excellent comedies, don't fail to get them for 1924.

"The Big Idea"—Hal Roach—Pathe An Average Comedy

Type of production... 1 reel comedy
Snub Pollard is seen as the inventor of a street cleaner in "The Big Idea," which will probably be received favorably where Pollard is well liked, although there isn't very much that is different or highly comic in it. However, where a one reel comedy of the knockabout variety is desired it will more than likely fit the bill. Pollard, after much trouble, gets an opportunity to demonstrate his street cleaner before the town officials, but the invention blows the dust in their faces instead of cleaning the street.

Augusta Prices 40 Cents; Others (Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Augusta, Ga.—The Herald, after conducting a survey of admission prices in Southern states draws the conclusion that prices in Augusta, while recently raised, still are not at the level of similar first run houses in the South. The Modjeska's top at night has been raised from 30 to 40 cents and the matinees to 30 cents. The matinee at the Rialto has been reduced to 20 cents for adults.

House for Columbus Suburbs (Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Columbus, O.—Henry C. Moon, owner of the Hilltop, will build a new theater to cost $35,000, and to be located on Broad St., between Eureka and Park. It will seat 650.
The Victor, 253 E. Livingston Ave., has been sold by D. B. Ulrey and Fred Postle to the Photoplay Amusement Co., Cincinnati, operators of the Majestic for $100,000.

Competition Arises In Albany (Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Albany—Local exhibitors are wondering what will happen now that Harmanus-Bleecker Hall will show pictures the first three days of the week and burlesque the other four days. The theater has been running a straight burlesque program. A 20 cent admission will be charged.

"The Caddy"—Century—Universal Well Constructed; Entertaining

Type of production... 2 reel comedy
This is one of the most entertaining and well constructed Buddy Messinger comedies in quite a while. There is an absence of the usual slapstick "messy" sort of comedy that is to be commended. Two little girls help the picture considerably, also. Buddy is seen as a mistreated member of an orphanage. The first reel deals with his efforts to escape from the clutches of two "keepers." The action is swift and enjoyable. The second reel is devoted to his actions on a golf course where he is caddy for a player in the championship game. Should please any audience.

"The Call of the Game"—Spotlight —Pathe Diversified Action

Type of production... 1 reel sport review.
The make up of this Grantland Rice sport reel is a bit different from the usual, inasmuch as it contrasts short bits of different sports, leaving the spectator to decide which he most prefers—the sports where thousands cheer, the silence of trout fishing or mountain goat hunting. The backgrounds in this latter bit are extremely beautiful. For the action lover there are shots of an Army football game, the Yankee stadium during a world's series game and a horse race at Belmont park.

McCurdy A Vice-President (Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—J. L. McCurdy, manager of the Randolph, has been elected a vice-president of the Randolph Theater Corp. that has been formed to take over the management of the theater. E. H. Goldstein, treasurer of Universal, is president of the new company; P. D. Cochrane, secretary of Universal, is secretary-treasurer, with J. H. Harris, controller, the latter's assistant.

1st Nat'l Release Weekly

Fourteen productions, will comprise the First National program for the first quarter of 1924. One picture a week will be issued until the end of March.
January releases include "Boy of Mine," "Black Oxen," "The Song of Love," "The Eternal City," and "Painted People."
February releases will be "When a Man's a Man," "Torment," "The Love Master," and "Secrets."
March will see "The Galloping Fish," "Flowing Gold," "The Enchanted Cottage," "Lillies of the Field" and "Sundown."

Sterling Chain Includes Two (Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Windsor, Ont.—Max Allen of Sterling Theaters, Ltd. has taken over the Allen formerly controlled by Allen Bros. of Toronto. The company also operates the Walkerville at Walkerville, which adjoins Windsor.

Three Leads In Cast

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Hollywood—James Kirkwood, Cleo Madison and Grace Darmond are three of the principals already cast for "Discontented Husbands," a Columbia feature for C. B. C.

Fire Damages Peerless, Chicago (Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—Fire-recently caused $10,000 damage to the Peerless on Grand Blvd.

27 Pictures Reviewed In 20 Cities

"Black Oxen"—1st Nat'l Grand Cen'l, West End Lyric, Capitol, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—First National has a fascinating star in Miss Griffith, * * * Her gowns are exquisite and her convincing playing leaves nothing to be asked. Here truly is a sensational "find" * * *

The Gertrude Atherton text is followed closely and readers of the book will be well pleased with the picture. Frank Lloyd, the director, has given it sumptuous settings and a society atmosphere in which everything is done in perfect taste.

POST DISPATCH—* * * This is a rather tense film drama * * * Conrad Tearle * * * is a mis-cast. In fact his portrayal of the role robs the story of its one legitimate punch. * * *

Neither is Miss Griffith much more convincing in her portrayal of a rejuvenated woman. * * * The story as screened also lacks punch. The proper sympathy is not aroused by the Countess and her young American lover.

The story of the rejuvenation is interjected too late in the action.

STAR—* * * a rare treat for moviegoers, developing as it does an unhackneyed theme in an interesting and persuasive manner * * * Miss Bow, * * * cute and pretty * * * One finds it hard to conceive that Miss Griffith ever was 60 years old, * * * It is 100 per cent in entertainment.

TIMES—Corinne Griffith is a charming Countess, but Conway Tearle is not sufficiently impetuous * * * The text of the novel is followed closely, and the photoplay has been well directed. The picture of the flapper is delightful, because it is not a burlesque. And, she wins sympathy.

"Boy of Mine"—1st Nat'l State, Minneapolis

STAR—It is the kind of picture that all fathers of growing boys should see.

"Bright Lights of B'way"—Principal Lyric, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—While the story has little to offer in the way of original treatment, it serves its purpose and provides entertainment.

POST—* * * does not depart as far from the orthodox movie theme of country girl a lure of New York as you might like, but the first-rate cast, good direction and sustained interest make the film at the Lyric one that entertains thruout.

TIMES-STAR—Although the plot is so old * * * there are numerous thrills to be found * * *

Central, Washington

POST—The suspense though not well carried at the beginning of the story is adequate at and near the end. The acting, while not making any great demands upon the histrionic ability of the cast, is competent. The play is good old-fashioned melodrama.

STAR—* * * a brilliant picturization of the story of a pretty girl's ambition to join the ranks of those behind the footlights.

"The Call of the Canyon"—F. P. L. Mc Vicker's, Chicago

HERALD—An interesting story, expertly narrated; a group of significant characters deftly portrayed—could you ask for better? The gods of the Paramount studio were generous when this film was produced.

JOURNAL—Lois Wilson plays * * * an unnatural role * * * Marjorie Daw looks well in her sombrero, * * * Noah Beery, almost as good a villain as brother Wallace, acts one of those nasty men in chaps, * * *

Palace, Washington

POST—But if the picturesque qualities are missing so far as the characters are concerned, the real beauty of the true West is represented scenically and the photographer should have been jointly starred * * *

STAR—* * * neither a maserpiece nor a bore—just one of those delightfully entertaining stories that wait an audience away from the worldly cares for an hour or two and carry it to the land of make-believe where everything comes out all right in the end.

"The Call of the Wild"—Pathe New Lyric, Minneapolis

STAR—It is a fine picture.

"The Common Law"—Selznick Alamo, Louisville

HERALD—Corinne Griffith, as beautiful as ever, and wearing gowns that are positively ravishing, is the lead * * * Conway Tearle plays opposite and the pair combine to build up a splendid picture.

TIMES—Mr. Tearle, * * * caused much favorable comment, again proves himself one of the foremost male stars of the screen by his superior acting.

"The Covered Wagon"—F. P. L. Ford's Baltimore

AMERICAN—It is a film well worth waiting for. In a way, it is really great. Perhaps it is one of the two finest photodramas to be screened in these United States. From start to finish, almost everything about it is better than the story upon which it is founded.

NEWS—It is one of the finest lessons in "Americanization" that possibly could be taught, * * *

"The Covered Wagon" is a picture of thrills. * * * To those who know the West the picture is a treat. To those who do not it is a revelation.

SUN (EVENING)—It is most certainly. It is the sort of picture that stirs the most apathetic citizen to the "love of country" * * *

The story is simplicity itself and of the stuff that makes real "moving pictures."

Stillman, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—It is the simple picturization of the utter commonplace that makes "The Covered Wagon" a genuinely great picture * * * It is also the careful balance in action, offsetting the great and spectacular shots with the intimate views * * * Certainly it is not the acting, if you for a moment will leave out Trader Tully Marshall and Scout Ernest Torrence.

PRESS—Back of the conventionally romantic story of hero and heroine courtship, there is something real and stirring in * * * "The Covered Wagon."

What impresses us is the intelligence with which the movie is constructed.

"The Dancer of the Nile"—F. B. O. Broadway, Los Angeles

(Two weeks ending Jan. 5)

EXAMINER—If you're just a picture-goer you'll get plenty of enjoyment out of the picture for its own sake. If you're interested in the films—either professionally or artistically—you'll get an especial thrill. * * * The romance is colorful. The story is obvious, but the love interest is real enough and the intrigue and the situations "get over" with a good degree of effectiveness.

EXPRESS—* * * a snappy tale of love and intrigue * * * whether historically authentic or not, this makes a highly atmospheric tale. * * *

Several of the temple scenes and interiors are exceptionally artistic and massive, but the costuming and the street scenes and one or two garden settings are exceedingly artificial.

HERALD—"The Dancer of the Nile" is interesting. It is different from the usual run of photoplays and is a spectacular production to say the least.

RECORD—The picture is optically interesting with its women clad in Egyptian economy of costume, and some impressive settings of the motion painting type that has been more successfully developed by W. P. S. Earle's brother, Ferdinand Earle.

TIMES—A spectacular production that does not limit itself to being a spectacle; that contains stirring dramatic power as well as beauty of setting * * *

"The Dangerous Maid"—1st Nat'l Walnut, Cincinnati

POST—* * * seemed a bit dull to us. * * *

We are hoping that Connie may go back to roles like those in "A Virtuous Vampr," "Two Weeks" and "The Love Expert."

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—The ending is happy and worth seeing.

TIMES-STAR—* * * it is not a picture which will add anything to the prestige of Constance Talmadge or those associated with her in it.

Regent, Rochester

DEMOCRAT-CHRONICLE—While all the frills and furbelows * * * make them all very charming to the eye, we found it impossible somehow to get the seventeenth century spirit. * * * Miss Talmadge is too much the modern flapper in stage clothes * * * make her or any of the ridiculously impossible situations in which she becomes involved credible. * * *

Even so, the paradoxical admission must be made that the photoplay is enjoyable.

HERALD—Here is a picture that is frankly romantic, rather unpretentious as to "drama," simple, entertaining and remarkably photographed. * * *

This, very sketchily, is the story of an amusing and entertaining film. One, while not startling in its excellence does very well to pass away an hour's time.

JOURNAL—Despite the portentousness of the situation it is taken lightly by the star and the entire cast. * * *

Constance is undeniably cute, but hers is, for the most part, at least, a forgivable cuteness, and she injects considerable humor into several scenes. * * *

TIMES-UNION—Constance Talmadge is such a charming little actress that she makes it quite easy to believe in all these things in the pleasing little romance which has been built around her personality * * *

The play is adequately set and costumed * * *

"The Daring Years"—Equity Kings, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—* * * is one of the most absorbingly interesting pictures of the year * * * The whole story builds logically through a series of tense situations to a climax that is both unusual and interesting.

POST-DISPATCH—* * * has a capable cast. * * * It is a melodramatic story of the type * * *

It is a story that has been told many times but the cast in this instance gives it distinction and it is fairly entertaining.

STAR—It is just one more of those alleged sensational pictures which sags in the middle. The piece is well acted, well staged * * *

TIMES—Here is an orthodox theme, treated in an orthodox manner, leading to a conventional and clumsy climax. * * *

Of its kind, this photoplay is good. It has been well done.

"Don't Call It Love"—F. P. L. Metropolitan, Los Angeles

(Week Ending Dec. 29)

EXAMINER—It was adapted—and skillfully—from the Julian Street novel, "Rita Coventry," was directed by William de Mille, includes a large and capable Paramount cast, * * *

EXPRESS—* * * but we assume that in the hook the sex situations are bolder, for there is nothing in the picture to disturb one's most prudish maiden aunt.

RECORD—William DeMille has made us an interesting enough and amusing enough picture for all its obviousness.

TIMES—* * * sophisticated and entertaining. * * * No matter what the flavor of the offering, whether whimsical or sophisticated he gets the very tang of that flavor into his production.

Missouri, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—* * * "Don't Call It Love" is a delightful and appealing story of American life. * * *

POST-DISPATCH—* * * Rod La Rocque, * * * is "different." This film actor has a distinct—one might say unfair—advantage over most of them. * * * He is a quick-acting person. * * * The way La Rocque, * * * proposes to Rita Coventry, * * * provides one of the best bits in this sparkling piece.

STAR—* * * incoherent and barely serves to carry her (Nita Naldi) through a series of more or less amorous affairs concluding with the cad hero (Jack Holt) * * *

TIMES—The novel was titled simply "Rita Coventry," but that would never attract patrons to the box-office, so—* * *

There is any number of morals. Visit the Missouri and take your choice.

"The Eternal City"—1st Nat'l Circle, Indianapolis

STAR—Fitzmaurice has not adhered closely to the novel, but he has managed * * * to spin an engaging story. * * *

Richard Bennett, an actor of parts, manages to steal the picture from the three featured players. * * *

Old Roman ruins have been used to give this film some of the finest backgrounds a picture ever had.

"Fashion Row"—Metro Colonial, Indianapolis

STAR—* * * gets off to an elaborate start, but the windup is far more interesting. For it is in the latter reels of the picture that the older sister passes away, leaving the younger girl to demonstrate what Miss Murray can really do in the line of acting.

State, Los Angeles

(Week Ending Dec. 29)

EXAMINER—* * * one of the best pictures in her career. * * * The variety of setting and costume which the picture demands, the wild Russian scenes, the conventional domesticity and finally a dramatic climax, all hold the attention of the spectator firmly.

EXPRESS—* * * afford her opportunity for a wider display of ability than many of her most ardent admirers ever believed she possessed. * * * The story, while somewhat improbable and sketchily told, holds interest.

HERALD—* * * Miss Murray's handling of the scenes in which the sisters appear together speaks much for her ability and versatility. * * * The thing most commendable about the picture, however, is the smooth-running interesting story it tells.

RECORD—For this drama is Miss Murray's best since that Spanish picture, what was it?—"Fascination." * * *

TIMES—* * * perhaps just a little above the quality of the entertainment that she proffers in that it affords her real opportunities for dramatic fireworks.

Stanley, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—Dazzled by quick action and glittering luxury, for once the improbability of it doesn't matter.

INQUIRER—She is at her best as Olga and does far much better acting. In the role of the younger sister she has tried to pattern herself after Lillian Gish. The part is not convincing.

The plot of the picture is melodramatic and romantic to the extreme, but does no tax the mind to any extent.

NORTH AMERICAN—Without doubt this is about the sanest and most interesting one of her productions within many months. In it Miss Murray has an excellent chance for real acting and she acquits herself nobly

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—The picture holds the interest through every foot. Continuity and photography are excellent and the vehicle fits Miss Murray perfectly.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—Mae Murray demonstrates her amazing versatility in the dual roles * * * Both characterizations are clear-cut and marvelously well done. "Fashion Row" is an absorbing tale * * *

RECORD—"Fashion Row" is entertaining, with many a thrill and numerous examples of splendid photography.

Columbia, Washington

POST—Miss Murray's flair for the extravagant and the exotic sometimes conceals the plain fact that she can perfectly well act an ordinary human being. The truth is that she is at her best, so far as real value is concerned, when she assumes a simple, everyday character.

In "Fashion Row" she runs the range of her talent by playing two sisters of contrasting personality.

STAR—"Fashion Row" has the usual embellishments which distinguish Mae Murray productions—sumptuous interior settings unbelievably beautiful lighting effects which bring out the fragile loveliness of the star and gown creations which are startling in their originality.

"The Hunchback"—Universal Tivoli, Toronto

MALL AND EMPIRE—The plot in its bare outline might be almost that of the modern movie. But it is distinguished and removed to a plane of its own by the richness of its setting and by the fullness of life which it portrays. The casting of the production is flawless.

"Long Live The King"—Metro Capitol, Cincinnati

The chief kick we have is that the film is too long and that Jackie is overshadowed by the massive settings.

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—With Jackie Coogan almost any picture will hit the bull's-eye. Added to the entrancing little actor the romantic story by Mary Roberts Rinehart of the mythical Balkan kingdom of Lavonia, set up in regal grandeur, you have excellence plus excellence.

TIMES-STAR—While the picture is diverting, with many good touches, Mr. Schertzing apparently failed to get full value out of his material. Moreover, he didn't seem to know when to stop, for he prolonged the footage beyond the logical ending * * *

Mary Anderson, Louisville

HERALD—Jackie Coogan again demonstrates his unusual ability to please and divert especially the children * * *

TIMES—Pathos, comedy and romance are delightfully woven into an unusually interesting picture * * *

Capitol, Montreal

STAR—If the part does not suit him quite as well as some other characters that have made him famous, * * * he is, at least, always interesting and spontaneous, always a natural and winning youngster.

The picture has been well staged. The palace scenes are admirable, * * *

"Mile-A-Minute Romeo"—Fox Rialto, Milwaukee

JOURNAL—* * * if you like him (Tom Mix) you're sure to like what he does.

Moon, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—* * * a clever picture * * * There is a good western background. * * * Lambert Hillyer is responsible for the good direction.

"North of Hudson Bay"—Fox Majestic, Louisville

HERALD—A production that is replete with the tang of the frigid north wastes. It is a gripping picture and one that demonstrated conclusively the strides Mix has made in improving his histrionic ability.

TIMES—Again the picturesque beauty of the frozen North is unfolded a story that is crowded with entertainment, and the theme is one that gets away from the hackneyed plot, which should make it appealing to those whose tastes are a bit jaded along this line.

"Our Hospitality"—Metro Delmonte-Rivoli, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—* * * a wonderful comedy melodrama, in which Keaton is seen at his very best.

POST-DISPATCH—* * * the best sustained effort of the frozen-faced comedian. It is not funny all the time, but when the laughs come, they have behind them the force of an avalanche of humor.

STAR—It cannot be classified as straight comedy, for there are heavy moments of slapstickery, and it is not consistent satire or burlesque. Nevertheless, it provokes a smile here, a chuckle there and a guffaw once in a while, and is, on the whole, diverting.

TIMES—Here is an evident refinement in comedy, a step forward in Keaton's offerings, a comedy with atmosphere, with plot, and with a reason for being. There's fun in the natural situations arising from the story. There is delicious fun in the picturization of a railroad journey on the primitive train of that day.

"Red Lights"—Gold-Cosmop. Strand, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—Thrills galore, mystery and romance.

POST—If you crave excitement see "Red Lights" by all means. It is mystery without bloodshed. The crooks make motions but they are deflected from their evil ways.

TIMES-STAR—While somewhat overdramatic, "Red Lights" provides a nerve-tangling entertainment.

"The Rendezvous"—Gold-Cosmop. California, Los Angeles

(Week Ending Dec. 29)

EXAMINER—Despite the merciless cutting room scissors, enough action, characterization and story are left in this film to make first-rate, very much alive entertainment. A few sequences end abruptly, it is true, and a number of transitions are a bit shocking in their suddenness. * * *

EXPRESS—Marshall Neilan's real genius and poetic imagination lightens and makes a thing of beauty of a grim and terrible tale that unrolled on the California screen yesterday. "The Rendezvous" is a creation of artistic merit and exceptional human sympathy.

HERALD—While there have been countless pictures with more elaborate settings and larger casts, it is doubtful if any recent picture has been able to pull at the heart strings of an audience like this film. It is a not altogether sad picture. You will laugh on numerous occasions with Sydney Chaplin.

RECORD—This is one of Neilan's best pictures. But I think he heedlessly passed up the opportunity to make it a great picture by failing to build up to this idea of the rendezvous of friendship, of love, of death.

TIMES—* * * Lucille Rickson, Sydney Chaplin and Conrad Nagel. * * * work so excellently that the picture is worth going to see on their account. Otherwise it is uninspired, draggy and trite.

"Reno"—Gold-Cosmop. B'way Strand, Detroit

FREE PRESS—Rupert Hughes has written and directed an unusual film play * * * Decidedly daring and risqué in spots, "Reno" nevertheless brings to light some facts on the incongruities of America's divorce laws.

NEWS—* * * drama foremost and pictured commentary on existing divorce conditions * * * If you are satisfied to look upon "Reno" as merely a diverting melodrama, with moments of comedy relief, then you will enjoy the picture * * *

TIMES—There's a lot of good, sound teaching in "Reno." Basically it's founded on cold fact * * * Photographically the picture is perfection itself. It is sensational in its revelations, at times, * * *

Strand, Louisville

HERALD—Altho we do not altogether share the rather far-fetched conclusions of the author nevertheless it must be admitted that there is a world of truth in what is laid graphically before the eyes of the film fans. Moreover the silver sheet feature is corking good entertainment and presents scenes in some instances that are positively sensational.

Merrill, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—* * * Hughes, who directed the picture in addition to writing the story, has satirized it by handling it seriously we think, for as a result the finished product is as much overdrawn melodrama as satire.

"Reno" is the type of picture the average playgoer wants and enjoys.

Rialto, Washington

POST—The plot seems to resemble a sort of matrimonial hash, * * *

STAR—The actors are most serious in their performance of roles portraying domestic tragedies. Doubtless not one incident in the play is exaggerated, for it is well known that such things happen. But there is something wrong with the story somewhere that stamps it as mediocre.

"The Shepherd King"—Fox Washington, Detroit

FREE PRESS—The value of filming a story of the magnitude of "The Shepherd King" on the exact sites described in the Bible can be seen in the matchless natural atmosphere which surrounds the thrilling dramatic action in the film. No studio setting could approach the historical sites selected in Egypt and in the Holy Land.

TIMES—The picture is a spectacle, and full if there is an equal in the annals of filmdom. * * *

In every way "The Shepherd King" is a great work.

Liberty, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—Massive sets and impressive mob scenes add to the spectacular beauty of the picture at every turn. The interiors of the picture are remarkable enough, but the active desert scenes, filmed in the shadows of the pyramids, are even more so. Spectacles of this nature are few and far between, but "The Shepherd King" will long be remembered as a great motion picture.

STAR—"The Shepherd King" is gaudy rather than gorgeous, and obviously expensive rather than brilliant in production. J. Gordon Edwards did it.

TIMES—The picture is a spectacle, and the massive interior scenes and the desert views are superb. But that fails to make of the photo play a convincing story.

Such a picture is long remembered, because of its spectacular appeal and its Biblical theme.

"The Silent Command"—L. A. Sun, Omaha

WORLD-OMAHA—It carries a most interesting story which, for a while, appears to be simply the adventures of a weakling officer fascinated by the beautiful feminine decoy of the enemy. Then it takes an unfamiliar and perfectly satisfying twist.

"Six Cylinder Love"—Fox Fox, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—There are laughs aplenty in every cylinder of "Six Cylinder Love," which has humor or high horse power and finishes with a high speed record.

INQUIRER—The play has lost little in its transference to the screen. * * * is a comedy in every sense of the word and is replete with laughs from beginning to end. The picture has been realistically handled and none of the laughs are forced. It goes along in a breezy way.

NORTH AMERICAN—This is a charming little comedy * * * Truex is much the same on the screen as on the stage, and many of the details of his performance are highly effective.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—* * * so genuinely funny in its foundation that it overcomes some rather shoddy direction and an absence of subtlety. Perhaps an even greater factor in its success is the work of the four players referred to above.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—The plot has its weak spots, but there is enough freshness in the acting to make up for this lack. We believe that the stage version was more striking * * *

RECORD—Much of the humor of "Six-Cylinder Love" lay in the dialogue and that was not an easy matter to handle for the screen. In consequence some of the Truex humor is lost in the "shuffle." * * *

"Stephen Steps Out"—F. P.-L. Piccadilly, Rochester

DEMOCRAT-CHRONICLE—Our final expression on "Stephen Steps Out" is that it consists of finely interwoven threads of comedy and melodrama with a gifted young pantomimist to wind them about the heart strings.

HERALD—Douglas Fairbanks, * * * is not bad, but he is in no way startling. One feels that any youth of 14 or 15 could do just about as well. * * *

A rather entertaining picture in which Theodore Roberts, James O. Barrows and Harry Myers do fine work.

JOURNAL—* * * an admirable vehicle for introducing Douglas Fairbanks Jr. * * *

It is extremely light comedy, concerned with those things that never happen but which prove highly diverting.

TIMES-UNION—* * * "to be natural" and this Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. accomplishes to an admirable degree in his interpretation of the title role * * * He both looks and acts like the elder Fairbanks * * *

"Her Temporary Husband"—1st Nat'l Wash. St. Olympia, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—* * * makes up in humor what it lacks in plausibility. * * *

Sydney Chaplin's acting is as nearly technically perfect as a comedian's can be.

Park-Mall, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—In three reels, as an ordinary slapstick comedy, "Her Temporary Husband" would probably cause the audience to pull down the chandeliers in its amusement, but six or seven reels of it is much too much.

PRESS—* * * a mild stage play made into a routine movie comedy which echoes the style of Mack Sennett.

Strand, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—We promise you a hour of laughter. * * * Added to this is a light story which has a bit of drama, mystery and comedy.

Metropolitan, Washington

POST—* * * a lengthy and lively cinema comedy of situation in which mistaken identities, an effort to defeat the proviso of an eccentric's will and much slapstick provide the hilarity. * * * Excitement and fun there are a-plenty, and good acting, too, but Mr. Chaplin's performance is not particularly noteworthy.

STAR—It is one of the funniest pictures, with really clever comedy situations and sub-titles, that has been shown in Washington. Audiences packed the theater to capacity and laughed and shrieked over it yesterday afternoon and evening.

"Twenty-One"—1st Nat'l Allen, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—It is indeed a picture which will amuse you, and after you have seen it you will say that it's quite unworthy of Barthelmess' talents.

"Twenty-One" is filled with situations intended to "get to" you * * *

Whatever there is against it, it is well made, and it will entertain you.

PRESS—But it is only fair to say that Julian, as played by Barthelmess, is a likeable youth and the other actors, for the most part, do their best with the material they have to work with.

Madison, Detroit

FREE PRESS—The closing reels border on melodrama, but Richard acquits himself manfully, * * * interesting, even if it is not to be compared with many of this young star's releases of other years.

TIMES—If Dick Barthelmess would only stick to stories like "Twenty-one," * * * he would make his fortune—maybe not in dollars and cents but, surely, in popularity. * * *

"Twenty-one" is a nice combination of romance and melodrama—two ingredients you seldom find well mixed on the screen.

BUSINESS

By DANNY

This is the show business. Not just the picture business. There is a difference. A big difference. And the men who fail to recognize this may as well be tagged dumb Dora's now as any time. Before the millions of fans knew all about pictures—well, it was different. Today they do. So you have to be a showman to get the money in the till. And lay off buying red ink.

So exploitation has come into its own. Because this is a show business. That's one reason why the new Hodkinson organization may go a long way. John Flinn is there. And if you don't know what started "The Covered Wagon" on its big money making career you should. It was Flinn. How Famous ever let him get away is still a secret. This is sure. They never should have.

And there are others beside Flinn. Who know this exploitation business from the ground up. Little pictures which get over in a big way have proven that time and again. Have the Warner's—with all their pretentious pictures of this season—put any of them over as they did "School-days" or "Why Girls Leave Home?" They have been too busy making big pictures. To put over the little ones. Look at "The Third Alarm" and wonder where the business came from. And get back of the scenery and see exploitation. Nothing else.

Good pictures minus exploitation will always do a certain volume of business. But good pictures plus exploitation. And boy, there's a mint. That's why First National is stepping along. The exploitation work on "Flaming Youth" and "Black Oxen" is making such a fuss that people believe they are great attractions regardless of the actual product. Look at "Ponjola" for your answer. Not much of a picture. Production values messy. Cast unimportant. But did it do business. I'll tell the world it did. Why?

Exploitation

"Mabel Normand in 'The Extra Girl' is one of the greatest laugh-provokers of all time," declares the Denver Post. It's a Mack Sennett production distributed by Associated Exhibitors.—Advt.

Among State Righters Admitted—"Broke" Says One Operator of Average General Field Conditions

"The state right market is broke," said a prominent operator in that field on Saturday. "And if you think this is pleasing to those of us who have fortunes invested you're making a mistake. The question is: what can we do about it?"

When this was put up to several men in the state right field various remedies were suggested. One was that the new organization of Independents would be able to furnish a lot of aid if the members would work together.

"The new organization offers the only aid there is," said one state righter. "Unless we can work out these problems there will be fewer and fewer operators next year. And so on down the course of time.

"There are fewer concerns doing business in the state right field today than ever in the history of the business. They are being driven out every day. The

Educators Discuss School Films

A two day conference in which educators from various parts of the country discussed the production of school films with a committee of the Hays organization was terminated on Saturday. Eventually, some member company of the Hays group will make pictures for schoolroom use. Just when is doubtful at the moment and is dependent entirely on the decisions reached by the educators as to the correct lines to follow in production.

Questionnaire

THE FILM DAILY has just completed an investigation which, through several hundred theaters, reached several thousand patrons of the higher class of intelligence.

The questionnaire was as follows:

What admission should be charged in a first class theater?

What type of picture do you most prefer? Give title.

Do you prefer a show of one long feature or a feature of shorter length together with news weekly, comedy, etc.?

Have the quality of pictures advanced or are they at a standstill?

Are feature pictures too long?

Do you think the average picture exercises a good or bad moral effect upon the community?

What type of short subject do you most prefer?

Of the features you have seen lately what three did you like best?

Of the short subjects you have seen lately what three did you like best?

market is tightening. In a few years—unless something happens to check it—the so-called independent producer will be frozen out of business."

This was admitted: the chief cause for so many failures in the field is lack of capital. This plus the high cost of operating, causes the trouble. Print costs, as pointed out in Saturdays issue, also is a problem.

Fred Cubberly, one of the cleverest operators in the state right field, declared on Saturday that it costs him 40 per cent for distribution in his territory doing a business of $5,000 a week which he claimed was more than several old line concerns did in the same district. "And after going over the books," he said, "having done as much business as we normally can expect in our territory, we find we made no money in 1923. And we have ample capital. If, under these conditions, we find it difficult to operate, what about the man who hasn't the capital?"

One of the remedies pointed out was a further development in each territory of the plan effected in New England where a half dozen state right operators got together to reduce operating and other costs. Whether this can be done through the new organization is a question.

Again Universal Rings The Bell!

WID you ever try to tell someone how good anything was and find yourself simply lost at sea without half enough of the right kind of words to express your enthusiasm?

That's how I feel about "Sporting Youth," the newest gem from Universal City!

Time after time, season after season, but especially this season the Universal has been hitting the bull's-eye and ringing the bell, until I thought—and maybe you thought—we could not keep it up. But now comes "Sporting Youth" to cap the climax!

It is dazzling!

It is a constant whizzing succession of love, drama, comedy, love, drama, comedy and then love . . . drama . . . comedy.

It will make you laugh. It will give you a thrill. It will stir up all the romance of your heart and soul and just when you are getting tender at the throat and dewy-eyed, it will rock you off your chair with another darn fool situation and another laugh.

I wish I could get that combination into every picture Universal makes. It would be a marvel. But no company on earth can produce such pictures as "Sporting Youth" every crack out of the box.

Dazzling! That's the word! Every foot of it is dazzling. Reginald Denny's work, Laura LaPlante's work, the whole cast's work—and then Harry Pollard's directing—dazzling, simply dazzling, nothing less!

You know what your people like. You know what sends them out of your theatre with that cheered-up look. You know how you look for this indefinable something in every picture you buy. Well, take my word for it, it's here in "Sporting Youth," it's in every reel and it will make you play a repeat engagement whether you ever repeated a picture in your life or not!

You think you have seen speed pictures, but you can't know the half of it until you have seen "Sporting Youth." You think you have seen love stories, but you never met Cupid on the screen until "Sporting Youth" arrived. You think you have been thrilled, but your heart never leaped to your throat as it will leap when you get your first taste of the road race in "Sporting Youth."

Gentlemen, you've got a feast coming and it's a Universal. Fifteen thousand exhibitors now claim to be the original discoverers of the fact that "Universal has the pictures." The more the merrier!

Don't let the handsome Universal salesman get away from you until you have begged him to let you have "Sporting Youth."

Newspaper Opinions

Additional newspaper reviews, local and out-of-town will be found below:

New York

"The Great White Way"—Gold-Cos. Cosmopolitan

AMERICAN—Take a tip from us and do not miss it.

DAILY NEWS—I was going to say the film had been devised mainly for the outlander, but that's not really so; since the Bronx probably believes more truly in the romance of Broadway, than, say, Phoenix, Ariz. It does move swiftly, and has plenty to say in a snappy way.

EVENING JOURNAL—There is a thrilling plot, and there are a great many interesting features.

EVENING WORLD—The picture as a story has everything in it save the sinking of a battleship. * * * We believe "The Great White Way" will prove rather interesting and satisfying to those folks who revel in Eden Muses and like to watch the wheels go 'round.

MAIL—Like the musical comedy the film is weak in plot and strong in incidents which have no connection with the story, yet when combined produce a thoroughly enjoyable and unique screen play. * * * this picture is destined to remain at the Cosmopolitan longer than any of its predecessors at that theatre.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * there is a genuine old-time melodrama plot to it. * * * The scenario is just what the picture calls for, sheer melodrama in most ambitious settings. Mr. Hopper handled his scenes with entire efficiency and brings out all possible effects. The story is not difficult to follow.

POST—* * * although one doubts that a series of Gotham news events vying with a fairly interesting story will have great appeal when roaming far from Broadway, yet other cities and towns may be curious.

SUN—"The Great White Way" ought to be as popular as Luis Angel Firpo in Buenos Aires. The film titles by H. C. Witwer, from whose story the moving picture was adapted, brought roars of laughter from the audience. * * * Big moments abound in the story.

TELEGRAM—This is the most illuminating film of the gay life in New York that has ever been made, and it has been made with overwhelming extravagance and unflinching dramatic power.

TIMES—It is a film entertainment and one which will have difficulty in keeping the crowds away from the box office, but it marks no progress for motion picture direction or for acting. * * * Undoubtedly it will have its appeal in the well known persons who are in the production, and not in the narrative.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—It is said to have cost $700,000, but doesn't look it.

But outside Times Square the natives should love it. * * *

There's enough action dragged into the story to keep it lively. While the picture, as a whole, is an oddity, if not a freak in its way, the numerous introduction of personages other than the principals should make this a go anywhere.

TRIBUNE—* * * for it is one of the most entertaining pictures we have seen in some time. * * * Anita Stewart seemed to be better than she ever has been before.

WORLD—Stripped of its irrelevant episodes at the outset, in which "many celebrated newspaper writers and artists" are pictured at work and at play. "The Great White Way" is a first rate film comedy of Broadway life. * * *

We have never seen Miss Anita Stewart either so charming or so effective in emotional scenes as she appears in this picture.

Elsewhere

"The Song of Love"—1st Nat'l Eastman, Rochester

DEMOCRAT-CHRONICLE—But now she has gone in for desert things; and, try as much as we will, we cannot reconcile the scantily garbed dancing girl of Algiers with the queenliest among American screen actresses. So much for personal opinion.

What as to Norma's ability to interpret a new role? She is as capable as ever, giving a convincing portrayal, especially in emotional scenes. She dances a bit, rather well too; rides a horse, or else a double does it for her with remarkable ability.

In fact, so far as cast and settings are concerned, the production is of the same finished excellence we have become accustomed to expect. * * *

"Thundering Dawn"—Universal Apollo, Indianapolis

STAR—Kerrigan and Miss Nilsson are skilled performers and do very well with parts that were fashioned for no rhyme nor reason. Anna Mae Wong is excellent as a seductive little Japanese and the rest of the cast is capable enough. Garson has fashioned a very realistic typhoon scene and the rain is good enough to boost the sales of the umbrella peddler on the street outside.

"The Thrill Chaser"—Universal World, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—It is a fine comedy picture with the star at his best in * * *

New Hampshire Bans Normand

The M. P. T. O. of New Hampshire has barred out from that state all pictures in which Mabel Normand appears. Similar action is looked for in Ohio. The Women's Federation of Canada has asked the Canadian Government to instruct censorship boards in the Dominion to bar Normand and Edna Purviance films.

Sets Destroyed by Fire

Universal was advised by wire on Saturday that the sets erected for "The Inheritors" and "Love Insurance" were destroyed by fire on Friday. They had been built on what is known as the back ranch stages at "U" City. The loss was estimated at $250,000.

LAEMMLE

By DANNY

Forty years ago on a bleak and cheerless February day there landed in New York an undersized, underfed, shy lad from Laubheim. The sky line of New York wasn't so thrilling then. But it was enough to make him wonder. As compared to the little German village in which he had spent his early years. New York was a thrill. A real thrill.

The big city, with its rush, its noise, its lack of acquaintances did not hold him long. He went to the Mid-West and located in Oshkosh. It was quieter there. More like Laubheim. And there as he grew older he became more confident. He was in the clothing business. But he wanted to get out of it. And did. Through the influence of R. H. "Bob" Cochrane. That was 17 years ago. Cochrane's inspiration lead Laemmle to motion pictures. He has been there since.

And how he has been there! First running a little theater; then a larger one. Then, because of difficulties in obtaining film from the Trust he went into production. And fought the Trust tooth and nail. Right through the Supreme Court. And won.

And this victory should not be discounted. It led to the open market. It led to independence—to a square chance for all. Every producer—excepting Pathe and Vitagraph—owes much to this little man—little only in physical structure. For he is mighty big in many other ways.

This is sure—he's big enough to fight. And he has an unhappy knack of dropping his hat in the ring without warning. As some gentlemen know. And he shoots square.

Of course he's a bit older now. But he's still shy. And retiring. So that's why his boys. Led by Cochrane. Are putting up a celebration month for Laemmle. In February. To make him feel good.

Well, he deserves it. There isn't any doubt about that. And here's hoping he lives to see a lot more Februaries. And all the other months.

Drop Group Selling

Warners' To Sell One Picture At a Time Next Year—Twenty Productions Planned

The Warners' will drop group bookings for the 1924-1925 season and sell all of their pictures on an individual basis. At present, the current pictures are being handled in groups of six.

Harry M. Warner is lining up story material for next season. Twenty pictures will be produced and of that number Ernest Lubitsch will direct two and perhaps three. As noted, his next will be based on

Hays Arrives On Coast

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Will H. Hays declared yesterday that his visit here was his annual one and that he was here to check up on the industry. The elimination of waste and the establishment of sound business principles were his chief concern, he said.

McConville in Town

Bernard McConville, supervising production at Universal City, arrived in town yesterday.

Deny Ruining Joel

Famous Players Hopes to Disprove Forcing Lakeland, Fla. Exhibitor Out of Business

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Jacksonville—The attorneys for Famous Players state they are prepared to disprove the contention of the Federal Trade Commission that L. D. Joel, at present manager of the Casino here, was ruined by Southern Enterprises, Inc. when he operated a theater at Lakeland.

Bruce Bromley, of counsel for the respondents, declares he has secured a large number of witnesses to bear

The financial editor of the Mail said yesterday: "New stock market sponsorship for Goldwyn Pictures has been arranged, according to reliable information. Accumulation for the new interests has begun and higher prices are talked."

E. J. Smith With F. B. O.

Edwin J. Smith, former general sales manager for Universal, has joined F. B. O. in an executive capacity.

New T. O. C. C. Plan

To Be Discussed at Meeting Friday—May Placate Dissatisfied Elements in Organization

A special meeting of the T. O. C. C. has been called at the Astor for Friday at which time Charles L. O'Reilly is expected to announce details of a new plan which will change the workings of the organization along expanded lines and which, it is figured, will serve to smoothen the ruffled feelings of the dissatisfied elements in the organization.

O'Reilly continues to maintain silence relative to the undercurrent of gossip in local film circles which has arisen over the resignations from the Chamber. He is known to feel however, that the talk of a disrupted organization has been prompted by a group that is playing politics and that the T. O. C. C. does not face disorganization, as has often been reported.

Klein Handling "Armageddon"

"Armageddon," a five reeler owned by the British Government is in New York. Edward L. Klein will arrange distribution for the picture which deals with the campaign of Lord Allenby in Syria and Jerusalem during the World War. The picture has excited unusual interest in England where it recently completed a long run at the Tivoli theater.

Klein will show the picture before the Army and Navy Club on Saturday night and later will take it to Washington to screen it for the War College.

Rowland Leaves

Richard A. Rowland and Mrs. Rowland left for the coast yesterday. They will pick up Sam Katz in Chicago and together they will travel to Hollywood.

Fox, Goulding to Coast

William Fox expects to leave for the coast about Feb. 1.

Edmund Goulding will go to Hollywood about the same time.

Admission Prices

"What admission should be charged in a first class theater?"

Excerpts from letters of several thousand fans, reached through several hundred theaters, in answer to this question will appear in tomorrow's issue of THE FILM DAILY.

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Helena, Mont.—Under the caption of "Jim Bridger's Reputation," the Helena Independent says in part: "Virginia Bridger Hahn of Kansas City, daughter of the famous plainsman and guide, "Jim" Bridger, has brought a suit for $1,000,000 against the motion picture company which produced 'The Covered Wagon,' claiming damages because the old man is pictured as drinking whiskey and flirting with a couple of squaws. * * * She wants a million dollars because the producers did not pin a white ribbon in the button-hole of Jim Bridger's buckskin jacket and put a Gideon's Bible in his hip pocket instead of a flask of Jamaica rum.

"The Independent has no desire to prejudice the case and keep the woman and her attorney from dividing the million dollars, but if anyone is guilty of libel against the memory of Old Jim Bridger, it is Mrs. Virginia Bridger Hahn and her Kansas City lawyer. It is a libel on the memory of any plainsman to allege, even in a court complaint, that he did not have guts enough to drink raw red liquor and pinch the voluptuous squaws until blushes showed through their well smoked skins and their breath came hot and fast."

Fears Loss of Ocean Park House

Press dispatches from Ocean Park, Cal. report the loss by fire of several theaters there on Sunday. Irving M. Lesser of West Coast Theaters, Inc., stated yesterday that, although no word had been received he was reasonably certain that the Dome had been destroyed inasmuch as it was built on Pickering pier, reported lost. The Dome had 2,000 seats and had been recently remodeled at a cost of $140,000. Lesser also stated he could not see how Jim Sams' theater, the Rosemary, escaped the flames. West Coast also operates the La Petite in Ocean Park.

Consolidated Stockholders Meet

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Terre Haute, Ind.—Several hundred Wabash valley stockholders of the Consolidated Realty and Theaters Company at a meeting at the Liberty theater formed a stockholders' organization. The officers are W. G. Sanford, president, and W. A. Elliott, secretary-treasurer. A committee of three, William Blocksom, R. J. Collier and Elmer Levering, was appointed to represent this district at the meeting of the corporation Feb. 7, which Fred A. Sims, receiver, has scheduled in Indianapolis.

Schedule Filed

American Releasing Corp. has filed a bankruptcy schedule, listing liabilities at $334,000 and assets at $75,462. The principal creditors are: A. S. Kinografen, Copenhagen, Denmark, $5,000; A. B. Le Mats Filmbyra, Stockholm, Sweden, $5,000; Quality Features, Ltd., N. Sydney, Australia, $9,380; Wardour Films, Ltd., London, $57,500; Walker Pictures, London, $5,592; Rosette & Deutch, New York, $2,750 and Standard Engraving, New York, $7,908.

Another Objection

Texas Exhibitor Attacks Statement That Exhibitor Loses On Only Three Films Yearly

H. A. Cole of Cole Bros. who operate the Grand theater at Marshall, Tex. takes exception to the statement attributed to "a prominent exhibitor of the Middle West" who declared in a recent issue that the average exhibitor does not lose money on three pictures a year. Cole says:

"I am rather surprised that you quoted this statement so prominently, giving it the unearned dignity of being accepted as even possibly true.

"It is possible that he is referring only to those houses that run a picture a week or more. I personally do not run a house of that kind, nor am I familiar with the business of that class enough to deny his conclusion. But I do not see where he gets the right to call this class the average exhibitor.

"So far as the rest of us are concerned—the more than 90% of houses, who run a picture one, two, or three days—his statement is so ridiculous that it hardly needs denial to one who is at all familiar with the business. Even in the best of years, when business was fine and profits big, there were few houses in our class that did not show a loss on more than the three pictures to which he refers.

"And as to the last two or three years—I wonder how he would explain the houses closed and out of business (between 50 and 100 in this State alone); the changes and transfers in ownership (practically every one at a loss); and the dozens of business statements I have seen and verified, showing a loss not on a particular picture, but on an entire year's business?"

"I don't make a practice of answering articles, but such a statement, made in so prominent a paper as yours, might possibly be accepted by some who do not know the facts."

Many Favor Sunday Movies

Resolutions in support of permitting Sunday amusements in Jersey City were adopted at three mass meetings in theaters last night. About 5,000 persons favored the resolutions.

Speakers declared the "blue laws" were absolute, and that closing of motion picture theaters, Sunday concerts and similar amusements was infringement of personal liberty. No Sunday amusements are permitted in Jersey City.

out his defense. He expects to prove by them that the ruin of Joel claimed by the Government was a result of the war that Joel himself started on the respondent corporation rather than from any act on the part of Southern Enterprises, Inc.

It is charged by the Commission, however, that at the time of the alleged acts, there were two picture theaters in Lakeland, one operated by Joel and the other by B. B. Garner and that Southern Enterprises, Inc. purchased a fifty per cent interest in Garner's house and started a price cutting war for the express purpose of putting Joel out of the running.

Blaney Returning East

Charles E. Blaney is expected back from the coast in about a week to start work on "The Unwanted Wife" for Vitagraph release. Several sets for "One Law for Woman," another Blaney film, were destroyed at the Universal City fire last week. Mildred Harris will appear in the new picture.

Harding Memorial

Industry's Contribution of $10,000 Raised Quickly at Luncheon—Schwab and Brisbane Speak

Executives of importance in the producing and distributing end of the business donated $10,000 yesterday to the Harding Memorial as part of the $50,000 quota being raised in New York by Charles M. Schwab.

Mr. Schwab and Arthur Brisbane were the only speakers, but their remarks were well worth going a long way to hear. Both were in excellent form and their quips and stories were stylishly enjoyed. Schwab teased Brisbane for developing as a movie actor at his age and time of life and Brisbane got back at Schwab for suggesting to him that he (Brisbane) buy rubles.

The $10,000 was subscribed so quickly that Schwab said he was amazed. He read off a list of contributors to the Memorial, incident—

Warner Sales Plan Not Set

At the Warner offices it was declared yesterday no selling plans had been completed for the year's product. In some centers distribution has not been arranged. After this is done, in a few weeks, the sales policy will be decided upon.

West-Truart Deal for Six Years

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—M. H. Hoffman has signed an agreement with Roland West for six years, whereby West will produce two productions a year for Truart.

Pathe Acquires Nigh Film

Pathe will distribute "Among the Missing," the first of Will Nigh's new picture reels. The picture played at the Rialto recently.

Laemmle to Coast

Carl Laemmle leaves for the Coast tomorrow to pay his usual mid-winter visit to Universal City.

Five Key City Runs

For "Ten Commandments"—General Road Showing Occurs Late In Fall of 1924

It is quite likely that Famous will arrange for five key city runs of "The Ten Commandments" only and then do nothing with the picture so far as the remainder of the country is concerned until the fall of 1924 at which time it will be road showed in a manner similar to "The Covered Wagon."

Admissions

The first of the series of questions presented to several thousand fans by THE FILM DAILY through several hundred theaters was:

What admissions should be charged in a first class theater?

Replies were received from a class of people usually regarded as the highest grade, including college professors, ministers, club-women, etc.—the type of person most likely to be interested.

The compilation shows the great majority think 50 cents the top price and from 10 to 15 cents the minimum. Less than 100 thought 75 cents to $1 should be top.

Some of the more interesting ideas advanced follow:

Maximum	Minimum
50c	10c	Maude Richman, State Super. of H. E., Oklahoma City.
40c & 15c	25c & 10c	School teacher, Richmond, Va.
50c	10c	C. C. Marshall, First Methodist Episcopal Church, Bridgeport, Conn.
50c	25c	F. A. Woll, Assoc. Professor, C. C. of N. Y., New York City.
50c	25c	Frank N. Freeman, University of Chicago, Chicago, Ill.

Hearing Over in Jacksonville—Famous Introduces Many Witnesses At Sessions There
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Jacksonville—Efforts of the defense in the hearing of charges by the Federal Trade Commission against Famous Players Lasky Corp., alleging unfair business tactics in restraint of trade were concentrated on seeking to refute testimony to that effect brought out by government witnesses in hearings at other cities throughout the country.

The hearing which was held in the Arcade theater building before Commissioner E. C. Alvord was concluded yesterday after which the commission will go to New Orleans where further testimony will be taken.

Testimony of the defense was directed largely towards two ends; first, an attempt to show that the respondents only went into towns and leased or built theaters where bad

Circuit Court Rules Reissues Must Clearly Indicate That They Are Old and Not New Films

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, in an opinion written by Judge Rogers, upholds an order by the Federal Trade Commission directing Fox to desist from employing methods of unfair competition. The order was made as the result of a complaint that in 1916 and 1917 three pictures circulated as originals were really reissues of older films.

Judge Rogers said: "There is no objection to the use of a former photoplay if the name be not changed and no deception practiced in its release to exhibitors."

Premier For "Hoosier Schoolmaster"
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—"The Hoosier Schoolmaster," the Whitman Bennett-Hodkinson production, was given a premier last night at the New Willard to an audience composed almost wholly of Senators, Congressmen and high government officials. Jane Thomas who shares the starring honors with Henry Hull in the picture acted as hostess and officers and members of the Indiana Society were in attendance.

Title Now "Abraham Lincoln"

The Rockett Bros. have changed the title of "The Dramatic Life of Abraham Lincoln" to "Abraham Lincoln." A Broadway house is being sought for a run, while throughout the country the picture will probably be roadshowed. A local office has been opened in the Strauss Bldg., in charge of Harry Kline. Bernard Sobel will handle publicity. Si Snyder is in town from the coast in connection with the local premiere.

J. L. and S. Plan Two Houses

You have always been a good fellow and this week business is not so good, so I'll tell you, take these five and this one at $100. The five others one day each for $20 per—$200 for $500 worth of pictures that you can't buy anywhere for anything like this price. No! Say, man, you don't know a real bargain when you see one. Let me show you some more stills. Boy, ain't they some pictures? Sure I know you'd agree. Now I'll tell you, I don't think a contract with only six pictures will go through, but I can submit it to the boss and let him send it to New York for O.K.

"What! You can't use six pictures? Full up to March? Well, give me two dates anyway. No? Well I can't leave town without some business so I'll tell you—you take this special at $100 for three days and one other at $35 for one or two days and I'll send it in."

Exhibitor—"Now listen—I don't need no pictures. I'm filled up. But if you want me to I'll pay you $75 for that special alone and play it three days."

Salesman—"Well, I'll tell you, I shouldn't do this and I know the boss will raise h— with me for taking this, but I'll tell him how bad business is in your town—Sign here. What time's the next train for Harrisburg? Thank Good bye Joe. See you next week."

One hour later (midnight) in Colonial Hotel, Harrisburg

Film Salesman—"Got a room? That's fine. No! without. What? two bucks? How come? All other film salesmen pay $1.50. That's better. Any of the boys in town? What room?"

(On phone)—"Hello, Sammie. How's business? Yeah; me too. But say, I'll tell you I got the best contract out of Hemtown you ever seen —20 pictures average price $35 per and one special at $200. That bird can pay—you just gotta sell 'em that's all. How much for the week? $3500. But I'll tell you, that's not a good as last week. Good night Sammie!"

T. O. C. C. Ball Jan. 24

At a special meeting held yesterday, Billy Brandt was placed in charge of the committee on arrangements for the T. O. C. C. ball at the Astor on Jan. 24. Harry Reichenbach will handle the publicity.

Arrangements have been made with the New York American to conduct a popularity contest with the title of King and Queen assigned to the star receiving the greatest number of votes. The contest will also be broadcasted over the radio. Two orchestras will supply the music, A Jocker's and the California Rambler.

CARL LAEMMLE, Pres.,
Universal Pictures Corp.,
1600 Broadway, N. Y. C.

The Hunchback of Notre Dame opened today at advanced prices dollar and one-half top, to new record for Alhambra Theatre, formerly held by Over The Hill. Have never heard such unanimous exaltation of a picture. Should break box office records everywhere and be a clean-up for exhibitors.

conditions existed in regard to operation of theaters already there, in regard to management of such theaters, and in regard to the character of films exhibited; second, an attempt to show that the "block booking" charged by the government as one of the alleged means of creating a monopoly for defendants by requiring theater managers to book all of a certain block of pictures put out by defendants in order to get any of them and thereby consuming most of his exhibition time is not monopoly building but is a common trade usage with all of the big producers throughout the country as well as the defendant corporation.

Strenuous objection was raised by Government attorneys to the efforts of the defense counsel to put on the stand a number of "character" witnesses for the purpose of showing that better theater conditions and a higher grade of film showing has obtained in towns and cities entered by defendants since their entry than existed before. Counsel for the Government contended that such testimony was irrelevant to the purposes of the investigation and Famous attorneys argued that it was revelant as showing the purpose with which they entered local theater fields and sustained their contention that they did not enter fields where good management and picture showing obtained; thus tending to refute the claims of attempts to monopolize the entire film exhibiting industry.

The greater portion of the hearing Monday was taken up by the examination of witnesses whose testimony tended to refute charges by the Government that the defendant corporation through one of its subsidiaries had entered the Lakeland field and by buying an interest in a rival theater and inaugurating a policy of admission price slashing had brought about the business ruin there of L. D. Joel, who formerly operated a picture house in Lakeland. A large number of witnesses from Lakeland testified to the effect that Joel brought about his own downfall there by beginning a war on the defendant corporation and that the latter acted only in self-defense. During the afternoon the defense began the introduction of testimony on the alleged "block booking" tactics complained of by the Government in its original complaint. According to the Government charges the failure of an exhibitor to book defendant's films in this manner resulted in the defendants buying or leasing a theater in the territory of the exhibitor and entering into active competition with him.

Cameo

"Echoes From Broadway" is the title given the overture, which consists of four popular airs: "I Love You," "Raggedy Ann," "In Love With You," and "Climbing The Scales." The next two offerings are Pathe News and an Aesop Fable, followed by "Inbad, The Sailor," a Sennett comedy. "Through the Dark," is the feature which is screened before the last number, a closing solo on the organ.

Capitol

Selections from "La Boheme" is played as the opening musical unit. "Mah Jong" a musical pantomime and the Capitol Magazine are second and third on the bill. Next is offered an elaborate song and dance number, titled, "A Pan-American Episode," "Reno" is the feature picture. Gambarelli is presented in "The Silhouettes." "The Morning After," an Aesop Film Fable precedes an exit march, played on the organ.

Rivoli

The feature this week is "Pleasure Mad." Other screen numbers include the Rivoli Pictorial and a Universal comedy, "A White Wing Monkey." The balance of the program consists of the overture, "Finlandia;" Russian Impressions with the Moscow artists' ensemble an elaborate song and dance presentation; "Volga Boat Song," played by the Balalaika Orchestra.

Strand

The Strand program is composed of the overture, "March Slav;" Topical News Review; "The Miniature Review," in three scenes with the Russian Balalaika Orchestra; "Black Oxen," the feature; "Odds and Ends," a compilation of interesting short subjects; and Percy Starnes at the organ.

At Other Houses

At the Astor, "The Hunchback;" Central, "The Courtship of Myles Standish;" Cohan, "The Ten Commandments;" Cosmopolitan, "The Great White Way;" Criterion, "The Covered Wagon;" Forty-Fourth Street, "Scaramouche;" Lyric "The White Sister;" "West of the Water Tower" which played the Rivoli last week and is now playing at the Rialto.

Five Key City Run

The picture is at present running Grauman's Egyptian in Hollywood and at the Cohan in New York. Chicago premiere is scheduled for Woods' on Feb. 10. It was reported yesterday that the picture would be low "Scaramouche" in the Alcazar Philadelphia at $1.65 top but was denied by Sydney R. Kent who said no arrangements had been made for that city. However, Philadelphia will be included in the major engagements, as will Boston.

"Commandments" Makes Record

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—"The Ten Commandments" grossed $27,937.75 at Grauman's Egyptian last week. This represents a new record at that theater and tops the previous mark reached by "The Covered Wagon" in the fourth week of its run $24,416.

Back to Hollywood

Tom Geraghty, who wrote scenario for "Pied Piper Malone," returned to Hollywood.

Rod La Rocque, who came to Hollywood several weeks ago to play opposite Gloria Swanson in "A Society Scandal," has returned to Hollywood to start in "Triumph."

The Melodrama Magnificent:

SEE this picture as soon as you can. By all means see it before you play it.

—so that you can plan a campaign in keeping with this picture's tremendous value to you and its assured success with your public!

Filmed in the heart of the famous Painted Desert of Arizona, the scenery is marvelous, almost supernatural. Here is by long odds the most beautiful picture ever made!

But see the picture for yourself, and know! Know that you can throw your hat into the air and advertise and shout to the limit!

Millions have read the book by Zane Grey. They'll be fired to new heights of enthusiasm by the picture. And whether they've read the book or not, they'll praise “The Heritage of the Desert” as one of the finest Western photoplays ever made!

Newspaper Opinions

Additional newspaper reviews, local and out-of-town, will be found below:

New York

"Black Oxen"—1st Nat'l Strand

AMERICAN—But there is an interesting picture, and one that will keep Joseph Munkett, managing director of the Strand, busy counting the box office receipts, if the first day's business is any indication of what we may expect all week. * * * Mr. Rowland * * * not only filmed a subject that had universal interest, but he has made a picture that is a credit to his company.

DAILY NEWS—Nice, compact bit of work, this. Compact is exactly the word, since the story (Mrs. Atherton's) is faithfully followed, and there are no loose ends. * * * The theme is new, the acting has dignity and the picture merit.

EVENING WORLD—* * * in the capable hands of Frank Lloyd, blossomed forth as a fine, stalwart bit of picture making. * * * it makes for film entertainment that we think will start you thinking. Better see it.

MAIL—* * * gives every indication of being as good a seller as the book was. To see the picture was dull entertainment.

The film is just another of the flapper, high society variety of which, if we have never seen one, we have seen fifty or more during the past year.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—The picture plunges right into the story in direct fashion. * * * In our opinion they tried to put too much in the picture, and the attempt to capture the jazz element every few minutes almost a bit too obvious, though very entertainingly presented.

Frank Lloyd has given the piece a sumptuous production with sets that shriek for good taste. Some of the extra * * *

POST—* * * finely acted and staged and the story is interesting every moment of the way. In fact, very few "movies" are so brilliantly cast throughout.

Corinne Griffith * * * is beautiful; yet there is an enigmatical, provocative air about her that gives an ad combination of cynicism and sweetness * * *

SUN—* * * one of the most fascinating features of the year. * * * seems to us a fantastic, brilliant story. * * * The picture follows the book operation for operation, as might say, and it is one of the photoplays that ought not to be missed.

TELEGRAM—"Black Oxen," faithfully transplanted to the screen. * * * tells a neat story with dramatic portentousness which every seeker after genuine entertainment will like. It also has the advantage of fine acting * * *

TIMES—* * * a brilliant example of faithful adherence to an intensely interesting narrative. * * * There is dignity and grace in her movements, so pronounced that she almost forgets that Miss Griffith is acting for the screen. * * * This is a delightful picture with a well-told story.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—Corinne Griffith gives a likeable delineation * * * Madame Zatianny and Mary Ogden. However, it is in the youthful stuff that she excels.

Lloyd has given the film adequate direction and has provided a competent supporting cast. Nevertheless, there is nothing outstanding other than the unusualness of the story. If that is sufficient it will get over.

TRIBUNE—Probably no one who saw the picture was disappointed, for if there was any who had not read the story the suspense was well sustained as to the identity of the heroine, and the adaptation cannot prove anything but satisfactory to those who know the story. * * * The whole cast does splendid work.

WORLD—* * * Corinne Griffith is not only one of the loveliest figures which we have looked upon in the films for weeks but she acts various scenes in the story with remarkable sweep and charm. * * * There is nothing very exciting about the action of this picture, and so it is likely there will be set up howls of devitalization. * * * We have never seen a motion picture brought to a close with such abruptness and lack of care as to dramatic effect.

"Pleasure Mad"—Metro Rivoli

AMERICAN—The titles are bromidic, of the trite sort that we used to say were just grand about ten years ago. We hate to be unkind, when a director like Reginald Barker makes a picture and really tries to do something, but "Pleasure Mad" is almost the worst thing he or Louis B. Mayer have ever brought forth for our gaze. * * * most of the cast is as good as it can be in a picture of this kind.

DAILY NEWS—"Pleasure Mad" is entertaining, though not specially original.

EVENING WORLD—This being a more or less typical movie, all the happenings are not pleasant. * * * With Mary Alden and Huntley Gordon heading a cast containing such names as William Collier Jr., Frederick Truesdell, Winifred Bryson and Joan Standing, there are bound to be some excellent spots in any picture * * *

MAIL—It is executed in a highly emotional key and never becomes maudlin. It is sincere and on the whole excellent entertainment. We enjoyed it very much.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—Taken all in all, this picture is good entertainment, and there is a kick in the last scenes which will make the film fans sit up and gasp.

POST—Reginald Barker has done a great deal with a well-worn story * * * but even at that it is a good film, which will entertain the majority who will see it.

SUN—It is a well assembled picture, largely through the ministrations of its cast.

TELEGRAM—* * * just as appealing on the screen as it is between book covers.

TIMES—It is not often that we have to sit through a picture quite as bad * * *

The picture appears to go on, on and on.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—There is nothing new about it no matter from what angle one views it. As a whole it is tabbed as just an ordinary program feature more or less stereotyped in plot and direction.

TRIBUNE—It has been done so often and so much better that it seems a waste of time for the producer and a waste of time, though in a lesser degree, for the spectator. * * * by any other name it would be quite as dull. * * *

WORLD—* * * there are numerous scenes of fine appeal and competent acting, and still there is not much in it worth telling about.

The appearance of Mary Alden, always a capable actress in mother parts, and of Huntley Gordon and William Collier, Jr., will help it much.

"Reno"—Gold.-Cosmop. Capitol

AMERICAN—But be that as it may, "Reno" has a box office title that will mean money to the exhibitors, even though it will never do much toward helping the divorce laws. Probably Mr. Hughes never intended it as a lesson, only as an amusing satire on one of the burning questions of today.

EVENING JOURNAL—The story is interestingly presented and well acted, and succeeds in showing the trouble occasioned by going from one state—matrimonial as well as geographic—into another.

EVENING WORLD—We have never seen more human characters on the screen than most of those which go to make up the grand ensemble of "Reno," and it is just this attribute that made "Reno" such a thoroughly enjoyable picture to us. * * * It is a Goldwyn production, and they should be right proud of it.

HERALD—But Major Hughes makes his point at the expense of his story, and what starts out as legitimate drama turns into an incoherent diatribe. Thus, Hughes's argument is sound, but his picture is not.

MAIL—* * * about the worst we've ever seen. * * * It's the type of film that would be advertised in the trade magazines as a "smashing box office success." The idea behind "Reno" is a very good one. * * * The greatest fault of the film is the lack of proper treatment.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—The tale fairly oozes with melodramatic incidents, and not always very convincing incidents, either. * * *

Certainly this is a hectic and improbable story. * * * "Reno" is an argument for four-wheel brakes on matters matrimonial, but with a stronger and less theatrical story it could have been a hundred per cent more convincing.

POST—It is really an interesting theme with many ramifications; and it is just the latter which unbalances this production and makes it too long drawn out. * * * It is a pity for the acting, staging and photography are all well done.

SUN—The author seems a little confused in his mind as to just what he is working toward. * * *

TELEGRAM—* * * highly dramatic and absorbing story.

TIMES—* * * would have made a side-splitting farce. But as a drama it is as flat as the proverbial pancake, in spite of the capable acting and pleasing countenances of some of the players. Certainly it has its entertaining moments, but they are not frequent, and on the whole the narrative is obvious, the comedy is poor and the direction quite faulty.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—It's not the best thing the author-director has done, but should register on the strength of the production, cast and the divorce angle.

TRIBUNE—* * * its entertainment value. * * * seems to us negligible. * * * Perhaps "Reno" is a good picture. It is certainly a picture that is "different," but it seems to us merely indifferent. It failed to entertain us in the least.

"Through The Dark"—Gold-Cosmop. Cameo

AMERICAN—* * * keep your faith. George Hill, the director, has made it one of the liveliest melodramas we have ever seen.

EVENING JOURNAL—Adventure, romance and dramatic situations make * * * "Through the Dark," a compellingly interesting "crook" photoplay. * * *

EVENING WORLD—Colleen Moore is seen as the Daughter and it is one of the best things she has yet done for the screen. She is ably assisted by Forest Stanley, as "Blackie," Hobart Bosworth, George Cooper and Margaret Seddon.

If you enjoy a crook yarn, here is one that you must not miss.

MAIL—The story is intelligently told, the characters seem real and there is not one bit of hokum in it, with the exception of a paragraph that is flashed on the screen at the very end. * * * It was evidently inserted at the request of the censors.

Such a film as this one is a decided relief after the flood of costume, high society and flapper pictures to which we have been treated.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—A well-written and well-told crook melodrama * * * a treat to all who revel in detective stories and tales of adventure.

POST—Pretty good entertainment, in spite of the preachy subtitles.

SUN—We must admit that we liked it all very much. And you probably will, too.

Hobart Bosworth * * * still possesses as much virility and acting talent * * *

Colleen Moore is just as efficient as she was in "Flaming Youth." But Forrest Stanley will always labor under a handicap until he is cast in a great production * * *

TELEGRAM—Even if you are not always convinced of the plausibility of the story, there are plenty of thrills in these crowded reels.

TIMES—Except for the fact that it rather glorifies felons and flings mud at officers of the law. "Through the Dark," * * * is by no means a bad picture. The story moves along rapidly, and the suspense is well kept up.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—It is a corking melodramatic picture that is full of thrills and is certain to hold any picture audience from the first moment that it starts to the finish.

TRIBUNE—"Through the Dark," would have been an intensely interesting picture if it hadn't been so eager to point a moral.

WORLD—Not content with producing a moderately interesting crook drama, the manufacturers were moved to soak it in sirup of sweetness and light. * * * The chief current of interest * * * is the playing of Colleen Moore. Particularly able in her support are George Cooper and Hobart Bosworth.

TRIBUNE—The play has, it seems to me, been rather clumsily adapted to the screen. It has scolding locks. Sensing this untidiness may have had a great deal to do with the star's acting, which is, in the main, colorless. . . . The picture was filmed in the Yosemite valley and the scenery is beautiful.

Garrick, Minneapolis

STAR—On the whole "Tiger Rose" would stand alone as an entertaining film story, but with Miss Ulric in the title part it assuredly becomes a ranking piece of current photoplay.

"West of Water Tower"—F. P. L. Fenway, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—This major deviation from the spirit of "West of the Water Tower" is enough to invalidate the best efforts of an unusually excellent cast. Even Mr. Hunter as young Plummer cannot overcome so preposterous . . .

"Strangers of the Night"—Metro Strand, Minneapolis

STAR—The photoplay is well produced, has plenty of action throughout, and yet is not overdone. No one part sticks out, and there are practically no rough places. It is thoroughly enjoyable.

"To The Ladies"—F. P. L. Capitol, Detroit

FREE PRESS—Six reels of delicious fun . . . If you want a hearty laugh attend the banquet called by the chief at which the decision is to be made. It is one of the most delicious bits of comedy ever screened, and a decided relief from the usual slap-stick stuff on which fans are fed up.

NEWS— . . . filled with more funny situations and clever passes than any picture in a long, long time.

TIMES—If you want a real New Year's treat in the way of light comedy on the screen, don't leave the Capitol out of your movie schedule. It's the old hokum like "Lightnin'" but it's funny and Jimmie Cruze because of his nice sense of humor has made it a real directorial treat.

"The Virginian"—Preferred Rialto, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—Mr. Harlan is ideally cast as the hero. He never overstresses a single scene. . . . The story is presented with beautiful locations excellently photographed. . . . Very few western picture can stand comparison with this production.

"The White Rose"—Unit. Artists Ohio, Indianapolis

STAR—It is this often-told story of a man's retribution to a girl he has wronged that Griffith tells again. But he tells it gracefully (if at great length) and "The White Rose" is notable if for nothing else than that it brings Mae Marsh back under Griffith's aegis. . . . It is uncommonly well cast and Griffith proves as adept at subtle shades of feeling as he ever was with the more impressive and spectacular battle scenes.

"White Tiger"—Universal Hippodrome, Cleveland

NEWS—her personality dominates her every move. . . . However, in this photoplay she has been more fortunate than in some of her previous offerings.

PLAIN DEALER—"White Tiger" has Miss Dean and two other favorites to recommend it—Wallace Beery, . . . and Raymond Griffith

There's nothing else to recommend it "White Tiger" is filled with dime novel thrills and strained situations. Melodrama with too much ham in it.

PRESS—"White Tiger" is a conventional thriller

"Wild Bill Hickok"—F. P. L. Karlton, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—It is a motion picture to delight the hearts of admirers of Hart's two-gun style. . . . Hart performs all his former stunts, . . . but it seems that the hand of age has laid heavy upon him, and he is not what he used to be.

INQUIRER—William S. Hart, . . . if such a thing is possible, a far better actor. As if in the lapse of time, he had become far more sympathetic, with a heart grown bigger and a better understanding of the human soul.

NORTH AMERICAN— . . . contains all of the qualities which characterized his earlier films and a few more, only as far as the star himself is concerned it seems as if "the old gray mare ain't what she used to be." . . . Only the hand of age has lain visibly on him, and he cannot accomplish these various deeds as gracefully as in earlier years.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—It affords him every opportunity in the world to bring in his talents of shooting from the hip and hitting what he shoots.

RECORD—The picture abounds with glimpses of frontier life and is not without a strong vein of sentiment centring around a dance hall queen and a married woman . . .

"Wife in Name Only"—Selznick Victoria, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—But nowadays it seems a bit old-fashioned, yet there is a deal of interest in the film version. . . . There's nothing convincing or real about the story, but the makers have added a lot of material which gives it the semblance of reality.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The cast is quite exceptional, . . . It's quite a relief not to have the settings too lavish. There is a real punch in the climax, which saves the picture from being just another one of those pictures dealing with the "400."

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—The story is not strikingly original, but the players are the thing this time. . . . The picture is artistically, if not lavishly, mounted.

RECORD—Theatre, has a good plot and is well acted.

Walnut, Louisville

HERALD— . . . Florence Dixon . . . possesses not only physical beauty and talent but a personality . . . "Wife In Name Only" is a worthwhile picture.

TIMES—Florence Dixon, . . . scores another triumph . . .

"Woman Proof"—F. P. L. Strand, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—Tom Meighan can always be depended upon to provide amusing and wholesome entertainment, and it is to his work as star rather than the fact that George Ade was its author that "Woman Proof" owes its delightfulness as comedy.

The plot, while not a knockout for originality, is bright and humorous . . .

"You Can't Get Away With It"—Fox Rialto, Louisville

HERALD—A splendidly enacted piece of work . . . Plot of the play is rather sophisticated . . .

TIMES— . . . an unusual picture with a still more unusual ending, . . .

"Youthful Cheaters"—Hodkinson Empress, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—Glenn Hunter . . . gives a fine picturization of this role, being especially clever in the episodes in which he first feels the effect of cocktails and jazz . . .

Relief Fund $123

Father and Daughter Can Now Be United Through Generosity of Film Men

The relief fund sponsored by THE FILM DAILY in order that a five year old kiddie can be united with her father who is employed by one of the film companies in New York has been closed with total contributions at $123. The money will be cabled to the foreign country in which the child is now living and transportation arranged. She will be kept from her father only as long as it takes to make the journey from a far-off city to New York.

At the exporters' table at the Astor yesterday, the conversation turned toward this worthy case with the result that Lou Baum, Louis Brock, Jack Glucksman and George E. Kann each contributed a dollar. The mail yesterday brought a check from Mrs. Florence Strauss of First National for $5; $2 from J. E. Stocker, of the Myrtle theater, Detroit; $10 from Jimmie Grainger and $10 from Harry J. Cohen while Charles Walton personally visited THE FILM DAILY office to donate $5. One dollar was received from an anonymous donor who signed himself a reader of THE FILM DAILY and said in his letter:

"I'm awfully sorry it can't be more, but I do hope this will help."

Cuts $958,278 In Debts

Selznick Reduces Indebtedness That Amount in Eleven Months—Statement As of Dec. 31

A statement covering the financial affairs of Selznick Distributing since its reorganization last Spring, shows that almost a million dollars in debts, which had stood as prior liens against films and accessories at the time of the re-organization, or in the shape of advanced payments from exhibitors or service to be rendered later, have been paid up to Dec 31, from the earnings of the company. This does not include the amount due to holders of two year notes, but to obligations of prior standing.

The exact amount of indebtedness which has been written off the books of the reorganized corporation in the eleven months is $958,278.14, of which $60,336.64 represents payments to note holders, and $257,941.50 the liquidation of advance payment from exhibitors. This means that the outstanding obligations have been reduced in average monthly payments $87,000.

for "Abraham Lincoln" Which Opens Jan. 21 at the Gaiety—14 Companies Going Out

"Abraham Lincoln" the big special of the life of the martyred President, will be road shown. Fourteen companies are expected to be sent out playing the Erlanger houses, and it is anticipated by the Erlanger management that the road shows will run through 1925.

As a result of this move, the contracts being signed yesterday, the Rockett brothers are in no hurry to lose distribution plans for regular picture house showings. This, despite that several of the larger companies have shown interest in trying to obtain the picture.

The picture will open here at the Gaiety on Jan. 21. The Rockett's are in no hurry to start out the other companies. The leading cities will get the picture by next Fall.

At the opening George A. Billings, who impersonates Lincoln, will be present, as well as Ruth Clifford and Frances Marion who prepared the script. The premiere promises to be an important event, with many film notables of the East present.

Country-wide Sales Convention Opens at the Congress, Chicago Tomorrow

The first country-wide sales convention of Universal will be held in Chicago beginning tomorrow.

Discussions will include stunts scheduled for Laemmle Month and the releasing arrangements for "The Hunchback." The convention will be held in the Congress Hotel, and will be under way Friday evening. It will end Sunday night with a big dinner.

The convention will afford Al Lichtman the first opportunity of coming in contact with his field force. Whether or not the conference will result in any change in the handling of "The Hunchback" remains to be seen, but it is very probable that steps will be taken to make it available to more exhibitors in each territory as soon as possible. One phase of the celebration will be a tribute paid to Laemmle. This will take the form of additional booking days.

The home office group leaves today on the Century and will include, Carl Laemmle, R. H. Cochrane, Al Lichtman, Ned Marin, George Brown and Paul Gulick. Others will be:

Radical Changes in Booking Plans May Grow Out of F. P.-L. Hearing

If Commission Orders End of "Block" Booking Paramount Will Seek Court Order Binding All Other Companies As Well—No Decision Looked For About a Year

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Jacksonville—Possibility of far-reaching consequences looking toward a revolution in the booking of pictures if the Federal Trade Commission hands down an order requiring Famous Players-Lasky to desist from the practice of "block" bookings loomed yesterday as the Jacksonville hearing of the corporation's defense against charges of unfair business methods and attempts at monopolization came to an end.

According to counsel for the defendants, a decision of the Commission holding that "block" bookings must cease and a sustaining of that decision by the Federal Courts will immediately be followed by action on the part of Famous Players seeking to force the Federal Trade Commission to issue similar orders to every other production and distribution company in the business.

This attitude of Famous is in line with the defense testimony introduced during the hearings here designed to sustain the contention that "block" bookings do not constitute an unfair business method or an attempt to monopolize the exhibition field, but is a common trade practice indulged in by all companies of importance.

"In 'The Courtship of Myles Standish' Charles Ray has made a splendid picture. What an actor that man is!" says Harriette Underhill in the Tribune. Distributed by Associated Exhibitors.—Advt.

It was admitted that universal application of an order, the effect of which would be to abolish "block" booking, would revolutionize the exhibition features of the industry by doing away with ability of the companies to sell a sufficient number of films at one time to warrant the expenses incident to the sale. Such a condition, it was stated, would practically place the producers at the mercy of the individual exhibitor who could arbitrarily purchase one or two pictures at a comparatively low cost, according to present prices, and refuse the remainder of the films produced during a given space of time.

Such a condition, it was stated, would result probably in increased costs of admission to the public as the producer would be compelled to increase the cost for a given film to the exhibitor in order to make single bookings pay, or exhibit such films in theaters controlled by themselves. In either case, the ultimate result, it is claimed, would be to increase the cost to the public.

Hint At Changes

While such a condition generally is not sought, it was stated, there is a determined intention on the part of Famous Players that flesh shall not be made of it and fowl of another and if it is required to desist from "block" bookings it will endeavor to see that the rule is made to apply to all of its competitors.

Bruce Bromley, of counsel of the defense, epitomized the situation as viewed by his concern by stating as an illustration that often a salesman has to travel several hundred miles, with incidental expenses to sell the films to a theater.

"In small towns where the price per night on a single film would be so small as to be ridiculous," he said, "the company could not get its expenses out of such a sale. Recently, a salesman had to travel several hundred miles in Florida to see a prospect. The trip cost him over a hundred dollars in expense money. The sale of one of the films for a single showing, which is all the average small town can stand, would have amounted to approximately $7.50. In order to make anything out of it the company had to either sell him a number of films or charge him a price for the one picture that would have been prohibitive to him. What would be the results of such a condition?"

"He would be unable to purchase first class films because the company could not stand the expense of giving them to him at a reasonable price. Therefore he would have to use the cheapest kinds of films for his theater and the public of his town would suffer. By his taking a "block," say of 13 or more pictures, one item of expense covers the whole thing. He is enabled to buy good pictures at a reasonable price and the people of his town get a high grade of pictures at a reasonable admission. That is the way the matter works out and all other companies are pursuing the same practice; which is the only way for the small town man to get high grade pictures for his patrons."

In its original complaint, the Government charged that the defendants' "block" booking of pictures tended to monopolize exhibition by requiring the exhibitor to buy so many pictures from the defendant as to practically consume all of his time, thereby prohibiting him from purchasing from competitors of the defendant company.

Final decision in the case is not expected for about a year. There are a number of cities yet in which hearings are to be held, after which the testimony taken in all of them must be transcribed and considered by the Federal Trade Commission. If its decision is adverse to the defendant, an appeal will be taken to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and perhaps from there to the United States Supreme Court if the Court of Appeals sustains the Commission. If the Commission sustains the defendants' contention, that will end the matter. Otherwise it will probably be several years before the case is finally adjudicated.

Commissioner Alvord and Government and defense counsel left Tuesday for New Orleans where additional hearings will be opened next Monday. Alvord before leaving denied the defense the privilege of introducing motion picture patrons from various towns in Florida for the purpose of showing that theater and picture conditions in such towns had improved since entrance there by the defendants. An appeal will be made to the Federal Trade Commission to allow this character of testimony, the defense announced, to rebut charges by the Government that the defendants entered these fields for the purpose of coercing theater owners into purchasing its pictures. The defense contends that it built or leased theaters in towns where conditions were bad in respect to the theaters themselves, or the management of the theaters or where an inferior class of films was being exhibited, and not for the purpose of threatening or coercing managers into purchasing films from Famous Players.

Four 1st Nat'l Stars

To Be Boosted This Year—La Marr, Griffith, Colleen Moore and Ben Alexander

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—Richard A. Rowland, who stopped off here to pick up Sam Katz before traveling to the Coast, said prior to his departure:

"First National, is going to promote four new stars this year, in addition to those who have already proven themselves to be the biggest box office assets in the business, such as Norma Talmadge, Constance Talmadge and Richard Barthelmess. We look for great things from Barbara La Marr, Corinne Griffith, Colleen Moore, and Ben Alexander."

He stated that while on the Coast he expects to take action in regard to dividing First National production between the West and East. He would say nothing definite about the time such a move might be expected, or what studio arrangements First National contemplates making in the East; but it is known that Rowland advocates a decentralization of production as one of the ways in which excessive negative cost may be lowered. He maintains that a more equal division of production would make more actors available thereby placing salaries on an equitable basis.

Two pictures that Rowland thinks will be outstanding features of the 1924 program are "The Sea Hawk," which Frank Lloyd is now making, and "The Bird of Paradise for which Richard Walton Tully will take a company to Hawaii.

In The Courts

Supreme Court Justice Mullan has vacated the service of papers in a suit of David P. Howells, Inc., against France & Goulette Inc., of Manila, Philippine Islands, for a breach of a contract to buy films. The papers were served on James D. Barton on the ground that he is the agent of the defendants in New York and that no officer of the defendant could be found here. The court held that there were not sufficient facts shown in the inability to find an officer of the defendant here, and also that it is doubtful whether Barton was agent of the defendant.

The Howells company furnished affidavits that Barton bought films here for France & Goulette, and that he complained that after he had bought a film to be shown exclusively by the defendant in the Philippines that the film was shown by the U. S. Navy at Cavite. He wrote later cancelling the contract for films on the ground that they were released directly by Associated First National to the U. S. Navy and shown in the Philippines in competition with those sold to France and Goulette.

Danny, Film Daily, New York.

Dear Danny:—

The best news for the New Year is contained in your story in THE FILM DAILY, with reference to footage on features for the coming season. It looks as though at last some of our efforts in this direction are going to bear fruit. You and Bill Johnson deserve the thanks of the exhibitor industry for your persistent and consistent efforts along this line.

Sincerely,
WILLIAM FAIT,
Eastman Theater.

Tangle Over Fight Films
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Cleveland—Edward Sullivan of Cleveland owns state rights to the Dempsey-Firpo fight films. The pictures have been in Columbus for two weeks waiting for the Ohio Censor Board to pass or reject them. Vernon Riegel, head of the board, is quoted as saying that the board cannot reject them because there is no ground for rejection. The Ohio laws say it is unlawful to bring fight pictures into the state. Sullivan says he did not bring the pictures into the state. He only wants to exhibit them.

Wants Selling Executives To Aid In Production—New Zoning System Planned

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Chicago—Forty-five representatives of the Universal sales force were present at the Congress Hotel on Friday when the company's national sales convention opened for a three day session.

Al Lichtman outlined an entire new sales policy which he has drawn up, the highlight of which provides that sales executives shall have a say in the production policy of the company. A new zoning system has been perfected to go into effect in April. Under it, Lichtman hopes to double annual sales.

Michaelove Joins Universal

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Chicago—Dan Michaelove, for the first time an important official in Northern Enterprises, Inc., has resigned to join Universal. He is now attending the company's national sales convention. A division of the Southern territory with Ned Pinnet and Michaelove in charge is expected.

Harry Goldberg, who has been assisting Harold B. Franklin in the control of the theater department at New York, will take over Michaelove's duties but will continue his headquarters in New York.

"Inferno"

"Bill" Fox all set to make Dante's "Inferno." On a walloping scale. Using a modern story to start with. And then bring in a big spectacle showing the tremendous story, probably similar to the manner in which DeMille handled the Biblical episode of "The Ten Commandments."

Unless something goes wrong with the plans this will be one of the big specials for next season. Fox has had this in mind for some years. It is one of his pet projects. And it should be big.

MAKING IT HARD

Independent distributors often wonder why foreign buyers—especially those in England—turn a cold shoulder to new propositions. All they have to do is to regard the schedules of the American Releasing bankruptcy. And note that Wardour of London was hit for $57,000; a Danish concern for $5,000; a Swedish organization for another $5,000 and an Australian organization for nearly $10,000.

These figures tell all there is to tell.

"THE PROBLEMS OF 1924"—A WARNING

Editorial in "Kine"—evidently written by Tilley—says, in part:

"For the producing industry in this country, block-booking holds a danger, which later will transfer itself to the exhibitor in a larger form, which has not yet been put forward, and which may at the moment be regarded as wild fantasy.

Controversy Ends

Goldwyn and T. O. C. C. Settle Long Squabble—Two Hundred Theaters Involved

Official announcement was made late Friday of the settlement of the long quarrel between Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan and the T. O. C. C. over contracts on "Enemies of Women" and "Little Old New York."

The Chamber has rescinded the resolution which prevented its members from dealing with Goldwyn on those two Cosmopolitan productions while the distributing company, despite the fact that it has not agreed to recognize the old Famous Players contracts, will give T. O. C. C. members holding them a priority in their dealings.

M. P. Carnival Feb. 13

Prominent society leaders, including Anne Morgan and Mrs. E. M. House are on a reception committee which will sponsor a M. P. Carnival at the Plaza Feb. 13. Six organizations including the Film Mutual Benefit Bureau, the Dugout, Nat'l Hospital for Speech Defects, Free Home for Girls, Travelers' Aid Society, and the Orthopedic Ward of the Post Graduate Hospital will share in the proceeds. Important producing companies will co-operate. Col. Jason Joy of the Hays office is on the committee.

Mason The Scout

To Represent Hodkinson on Coast—Will Help Inject Sales Angle In Production

Lesley Mason leaves for Los Angeles on Tuesday to become West Coast representative of the Hodkinson Corporation. His duties there will be more particularly concerned with the injection of a sales angle into productions made for the Hodkinson organization.

It is anticipated by Hodkinson officials that Mason's wide experience will give their producers a helpful vision of the public and exhibitor taste through his knowledge of sales values in pictures.

Picture Types

Lack of space prevents publication today of the second section of THE FILM DAILY questionnaire which deals with the type of pictures that the public most prefers. Interesting data, with titles of pictures, will appear in Monday's issue.

Jazz The Rage

In Australia—Swanson and Murray The Leaders There, Film Man Writes

Thomas M. Meehan, of Union Theaters, Ltd., with headquarters in Australia, in a letter to Millard Johnson, of Australasian Films, Ltd., declares that pictures of the jazz type are the most popular there. He says:

"Gloria Swanson and Mae Murray have proved the greatest profit-makers this year. In 'Her Gilded Cage' and 'The Impossible Mrs. Bellew' and 'Prodigal Daughters', Gloria drew top figures. In 'Broadway Rose' and 'Fascination', Mae scored heavily. You will see that photoplays of the jazz type are highly favored.

"Theodora,' boosted by big advertising, pulled well for one week, then flopped. 'When Knighthood was in Flower' failed badly. 'Robin Hood' pulled well at first, then slackened. Chaplin in 'Pay Day' and 'The Pilgrim,' maintained his reputation as a sure-fire draw card.

"Valentino in 'The Young Rajah' and 'One Night' drew top figures.

"Norma Talmadge in 'Smilin' Through' had the tamest reception ever recorded to a Norma Talmadge picture in Sydney.

"Valentino, Chaplin, Swanson and Murray are the only ones who can be positively certain to draw top attendances in Sydney today. Photoplays with comparatively little known stars like Claire Windsor draw poor business here.

"Stories of the frozen north get the icy hand. Western stories of the Jack Hoxie type don't go over at all. Sea stories like 'The Isle of Lost Ships' draw big attendance. Jazz stories of the Mae Murray type draw best of all."

Tippett Handling Gevaert Stock

John D. Tippett of London has taken over the distribution of Gevaert raw stock for this country and has formed a company bearing his name for that purpose. Offices have been opened on the 17th floor of the State Bldg., in charge of A. G. Steen, who was formerly with Bay State Film.

German Papers Form Film Dep't

Fox (Australia) Office In Fire

The Associated Press on Friday reported from Sydney, Australia, that the Fox offices there suffered a £50,000 loss by fire. About 1,000,000 feet of film were lost.

Equity Film Contract

Frank Gillmore Leaves for Coast to Confer with Hays on Standard Form of Agreement

Frank Gillmore, executive secretary of the Actor's Equity, has left for the coast to confer with Will H. Hays on Thursday, relative to a standard form of contract between producers and members of the Equity.

Those connected with the Equity declare that although it has not as yet been feasible to introduce the Equity shop in the film industry, the matter of a standard contract has been agitated for many months, since the vast majority of picture players are Equity members.

The proposed contract would standardize wages and overtime for all extra actors. Provisions are also included protecting actors from needless danger and cruelty in the filming of spectacles. Hays is said to be favorable to reapproachment with the Equity, and it was stated at the latter's headquarters that Mr. Gillmore's trip was taken with a view to final settlement and signatures.

At the Hays office, it was stated on Friday that discussion of a standard contract was not on the General's program when he left for Hollywood. The opinion was advanced, however, that officials of the coast Equity branch had spoken to Hays about the matter and that the reported conference between him and Gillmore was then arranged by telegraph.

"But it is real, and it is this:

"Having succeeded in crushing all competition by selling so cheaply that no British producer, with his limited resources and equally limited market, can continue the struggle; having bolstered up their presently weak finances and re-established their credit resources by the bulk of their block-bookings, the half-dozen big American companies will have the exhibitor at their mercy.

"By that time they will have acquired key theaters in all the big cities; they will exploit their pictures, and they will sell them to the exhibitor at prices which will force him to mortgage his theater in order to pay them.

"And—again—the only solution is not to book in blocks."

REVIVING AN ANCIENT SPORT

Arthur S. Kane and Douglas MacLean indulging in Hotel Astor table cloth figuring on the plains of Hollywood.

HIGH PRICED ENTERTAINERS

If you went out to book the biggest act in the business. And you found it consisted of Arthur Brisbane, of the Hearst papers, and Charles M. Schwab of Steel fame; you would shudder at the possible cost. But those gentlemen entertained prominent film folk muchly. At the Zukor lunch given to raise $10,000 for the Harding Memorial. Both were in excellent form. Their humor—chiefly personal—proved delightful. So much so that "Roxy" tried to capture Schwab. To talk over the radio. But Marcus Loew blocked him. Said Schwab was a stockholder in his company. And if he did any radio'ing it would be through the Loew station. And not through the Capitol.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Writes "Doc" Holah from the Mid-West—apropos of the few lines suggesting that we all stop calling this a "game." Says "Doc":

"Have made one resolution for this year and that is to eliminate the word 'game' from motion picture business. I know this will please you much. However in passing, you cannot help but agree that most everyone has called it a 'game' in the past due to many reasons: 'Full Houses,'—'Four Horsemen that were supposed to be 'four of a kind'—exhibitors 'raising' the ante on admission prices—'Straight' from the shoulder talks by Laemmle—Well known Berry, Managing Director of the Circle, Indianapolis, better known as 'Ace.'

"I'll get the 'deuce' for this last remark from Harry T'Arzan Riechenbach—and last but not least, the well known 'jack' pots of the bankers on loans called on producers.

"Then we all know a few have played at 'put and take'—'put' in the picture on percentage and 'take' out the rugs and chairs after the engagement is over."

TOMMY RUNS A COLUMN

No press agent stunt in this. Jay Kaufman—who runs "Round the Town" in the Telegram. Called on Tommy Meighan to run it for a day. And Tommy did. Wrote about Barney Ruch. George Ade. And other celebrities. And did it might well. Any time Tommy wants to run this column he can.

Incidentally Kaufman described him as "the most popular film star in America." Ahem; well, we might even go that far. If Tommy will write this column.

AUSTRALIA'S FAVORITES

Who do you think are the best drawing cards in far off Australia? Letter just received from a well posted film man says Valentino, Chaplin, Swanson and Mae Murray. In the order named. Also says that they seem crazy over "jazz" pictures Australia.

Nothing new in that. They are just as crazy here. If you don't believe it ask "Dick" Rowland.

PASSING THEM BY

Incidentally—talking of "jazz" pictures—did you know that Famous Players turned down "Flaming Youth" and Black Oxen? Yep. Afraid of them. Who knows why may earn a big red apple. Nice and fat.

By the way that "Black Oxen" looks like a wallop at the box office. They are holding it over for another week at the Strand. No wonder. The way those women—eight to 80—piled in. You get an idea of the picture—they all read the book—was a delight to the eye. If this isn't a clean-up all the dope runs wrong.

LIBEL

Secretary of State Hughes is quoted. By Claire Price in the Times Sunday Magazine section: "I wish indeed that the most important educational instrument, the moving picture, was not so frequently used in foreign countries to give forth impressions of American life. It is most discouraging to reflect upon the extent to which the best efforts of educators and the men of public affairs are thwarted by the subtle influence of a pernicious distortion among other peoples with respect to the way in which our people live and the prevalence here of vice and crime."

Then the writer proceeds, under the caption: "Do Our Movies Libel Us Abroad?" to say some things. To prove, perhaps, that they do. Tells of the weird plots of pictures to be released shortly in England. And presents an excerpt of what Hays said in London: "Steps have been taken to insure that every film leaving America shall faithfully portray American life and aspirations."

But oh; those plots; those stories!

"The Great White Way"

Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan

a Whole....BIG SPECTACULAR PICTURE DESTINED TO PLEASE THE CROWD THAT LIKES VARIETY... WILL PROBABLY MAKE GOOD IF YOU DON'T MIND ADVERTISING ANGLE.

st....Hearst just called for a copy of his payroll and put everyone to work, from Arthur Brisbane down to the office boy and then coaxed a few celebrities to lend their names to good advertising by "doing a turn." They include Tex Rickard, Irvin S. Cobb, H. C. Witwer, Ned Wayburn and many notable Hearst publication artists and writers. Anita Stewart's work is pleasing. Oscar Shaw foregoes personal appeal to be a convincing pug, and T. Roy Barnes gets over his comedy business satisfactorily.

Type of Story....Once they get through exploiting Mr. Hearst's employees and showing the workings of his newspaper office and presses "The Great White Way" gets started. It's a late start for the story, especially since there is so much of itself, minus the publicity trimmings that are padded in. The plot, credit for which is simply given H. C. Witwer, is the average "movie" meller with just about one new angle to give it some substance—that of a press agent who plans to boost two people, one a dancer and the other a fighter, by a tie-up arrangement which provides his paper with a nice sensational yarn and at the same time, gains the desired publicity for his clients. The idea, from here on, permits of the usual display and spectacle. It rings in the Follies, cabaret scenes, a prize fight, the races, a fire and about everything that the exhibitor recognizes as sure-fire audience getters. The fire and the fight offer good thrills and they've apparently spent considerable upon the production even though many of the mob scenes are news reel excerpts.

Box Office Angle....Whether or not you can use the names of the Hearst writers and artists to advantage is a question, but you will undoubtedly interest them with the combined names of notables and players who appear. The picture, minus its advertising angle, should have a good play.

Exploitation....Names galore for you to use and a title that will entice them. There's a certain lure about titles that suggest a theatrical atmosphere. They'll fall for it one and for the benefit of the men folks, be sure to talk about the prize fight. Use a trailer to give a hint of the variety the offering contains—bits of the fight, fire and stage sequences. If they're interested in statistics, Cosmopolitan will furnish figures.

Norma Talmadge in

"The Song of Love"

First National

As a Whole.....NORMA TALMADGE IN SHEIK STORY THAT IS QUITE INFERIOR TO WHAT SHE REALLY REQUIRES; ATMOSPHERE LAID ON THICK AND STORY SLOW MOVING.

Star....Handles the role capably and is effective in emotional bits. Seems to have been stricken with modesty. Dancing girl garb appears to embarrass her. Usually quite well photographed.

Cast:.....Arthur Edmund Carewe gives a good performance as the desert chieftain and Joseph Schildkraut profiles his way through in the romantic role which he fills correctly. Others are Laurence Wheat, Maude Wayne, Earl Schenck, Hector Sarno.

Type of Story...Drama that is poorly suited to star. Instead of exploiting the ability and charm of the star, the prominence goes to the conventional sheik business in which a would-be desert King plans an attack upon the white natives with his scheme thwarted by the dancer whom he loves but who sacrifices her life to warn her white lover of his danger. The actual plot is slight but director Franklin has padded it out to nearly eight reels with the result that "The Song of Love" is a slow-moving, over-detailed picture, which, consequently drags to its final conclusion, the inevitable happy ending uniting the dancing girl and her white lover. There has been too much time spent upon unimportant detail,—too great an attempt to build up a suspense over a piece of intrigue, the substance of which doesn't warrant it. The love story angle is pleasing, only it would be so much more pleasing if they would have given it a better place and made less of costumes and atmosphere.

Box Office Angle....Not likely to pull as big as her pictures usually do. Too much of everything but Norma.

Exploitation....It depends upon just how big a drawing card Norma Talmadge is in your house. She's supposed to be one of the biggest. In that event you'll probably want to play "The Song of Love." Whether or not it will please is a matter of conjecture. Let them know just what to expect:—the star in the role of Arabian dancer who betrays her native admirer to the white man she loves. In view of the popularity of Sheik stories, it's possible that the atmosphere will warrant exploiting. Use stills and trailers to give them a better idea.

Direction....Chester Franklin and Frances Marion; good but picture far too long.

Viola Dana in

"The Heart Bandit"

Metro

As a Whole....VIOLA DANA IN ONE OF HER TYPICAL ROMANTIC COMEDIES, SOMETHING ON THE ORDER OF SEVERAL OF HER PREVIOUS RELEASES. SHE'S A GOOD BAD GIRL WHO REFORMS.

Star....Will please her following. Resorts to all her old tricks and makes the most of opportunities that come her way. Doesn't photograph as well as usual.

Cast....Milton Sills opposite star. Gertrude Claire, Bertram Grassby and Wallace MacDonald.

Type of Story....Comedy-drama.Runs along pretty much the same lines as many of the preceding Dana vehicles, the sort of situations and atmosphere that suit her particular personality best. She has a rollicking time of it playing a tough kid who chews the end of a cigarette while she shoots dice with the chauffeur, talks slang to her benefactress and generally succeeds in convincing you that she's hard boiled. Of course it's all to be taken pretty much for granted—this idea of the kind old lady taking the injured girl into her home and supplying her with not only necessities but luxuries while she's trying to recall her identity which she cleverly pretends to have lost track of when thrown from a machine. Naturally there's a leading man in the same household who supplies the romantic angle and when Wallace McDonald, who threatened, at the outset to fill this position, becomes superfluous, he's killed off conveniently. "The Heart Bandit" is an amusing picture, agreeably entertaining and there's not too much of it to make it tiresome.

Box Office Angle....Your folks will like this one, or at least they will if they're out to be amused. In case they happen to be looking for something to criticize, they'll probably find fault with things in the story but, on the whole, they should be pleased.

Exploitation....Tell them "The Heart Bandit" is an amusing story of a girl crook who suddenly finds herself being patronized by a rich old lady who has plenty of money and a wonderful son. That ought to be enough to let them guess the rest and get them sufficiently interested in the unusual heroine, to bring them in. Show them a trailer of Viola playing "galloping dominos" with the chauffeurs.

Direction....Oscar Apfel; especially good in that he knew when to stop.
Author....Fred Kennedy Myton
Scenario....Thomas Hopkins
Cameraman....John Arnold
Photography....All right

As a Whole....SHOULD PROVE AN EXTRAORDINARY BOX OFFICE SUCCESS PARTICULARLY BECAUSE OF ITS APPEAL TO WOMEN. NOTHING INTERESTS WOMEN SO MUCH AS AGE—THE CHIEF POINT OF THIS POPULAR STORY.

Cast....Headed by Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle. They make a tremendously interesting pair of lovers. Clara Bow a hit as the "flapper." Alan Hale excellent. Others unimportant. Extras hardly looked the part of members of New York's most exclusive set. Rather they looked cheap.

Type of Story....Tremendously interesting theme of how woman of 60, through the Steinach gland treatment, appears as a woman of 25 or 30, falls in love with a young playwright, but in the end realizes they cannot marry and leaves him to take up her former work of rebuilding Austria. One of the best box office stories of the year, based on Gertrude Atherton's best seller of the same name. Tearle as the handsome lover gives an unusually fine performance. Corinne Griffith does all that was expected of her, and more. She handles a bit of character work excellently in the brief flash of the old woman. Clara Bow as the flapper gets all the laughs. She has a "fat" part and gets a lot out of it. Corinne Griffith loses none of her famous sex appeal. Lloyd gets a lot from his leading players. Tearle is unusually good. There are many striking costumes worn, Miss Griffith having a different gown for almost every new sequence. The production runs a little too long and could be cut to advantage.

Box Office Angle....This should be sure fire. Flappers in raccoon coats and old women in sables jammed the Strand at six o'clock Monday night—so you can figure what business this will do at regulation times. Should prove a big matinee puller.

Exploitation....Should be easy. You have the name of the book—it was a best seller last year and is still going strong. It's appeal to women will be almost universal. Then you have the names of Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle to entice them. You can easily make promises. They deliver the goods. Don't overlook Clara Bow and tell them that she was in "Down to the Sea in Ships." Then you have the name of Frank Lloyd, whose direction of Norma in "Ashes of Vengeance" and other notable pictures has made him a well known figure among fans.

Direction....Frank Lloyd; excellent as a rule; types selected without great consideration.
Author....Gertrude Atherton
Scenario by....Mary O'Hara
Cameraman....Norbert Brodin
Photography....At times poor; too much lighting
Locale....New York and an Adirondack Lodge
Length....7,937 feet.

Announcing

Big Warner Bros.

Past Promises Fulfilled

For the year 1923-24, we promised to produce Eighteen Warner Bros. 'Classics of the Screen.' We are not merely fulfilling that promise—we are exceeding it. For the current year we are delivering a total of Twenty big pictures instead of the promised Eighteen, thereby keeping faith with our Exhibitor friends and public.

1924 - 1925

“Classics of the Screen”

A Promise for the Future

For the year 1924-25, Warner Bros. will produce a total of Twenty 'Classics of the Screen.' Just as we are delivering this year's product as promised, so shall we deliver the Twenty big pictures promised for next season. That's something you, Mr. Exhibitor may bank on for the year 1924-25.

"Defying Destiny"

Selznick Distributing Corp.

As a Whole.....PRETTY GOOD STORY ALTHOUGH IT IS ONE OF THE POPULAR FORMULAS DEALING WITH THE FAMILIAR REVENGE ANGLE, EVERYTHING WORKING OUT, HOWEVER, TO EVERYONE'S SATISFACTION.

Cast.....Irene Rich pleasing and Monte Blue good as far as his work is concerned but the scar which he wears on his face, as part of the role, is very unreal and unnecessarily exaggerated. Russell Simpson much better in character parts than as a straight villain. Others Jackie Saunders, James Gordon, Z. Wall Covington.

Type of Story....Drama of a fairly familiar order but it has been rather well handled and played by a good company which helps considerably to cover up the shortcomings as far as its being unoriginal is concerned. There are some illogical steps in the development, such as the fact that after hero is proven innocent of fraud, the bank fails to carry the investigation further that it might trace the missing funds. Naturally this omission provides for further complications and permits of a grand finale confession which clears hero. This and other bits that are somewhat improbable may be overlooked for what they provide in the way of increased suspense and carrying on the interest generally. Once more plastic surgery is boosted and hero returns to the town which ostracized him, his face cleared of the scar, and with a mustache as further disguise, carries on an elaborate scheme of revenge, only to forego all prejudice when his name is cleared and he is free to marry his childhood sweetheart.

Box Office Angle.....Satisfactory average audience picture. "Defying Destiny" will please the majority and may be offered in the usual way without special exploitation or advertising. It is an average entertainment but not worthy of special promises.

Exploitation.....You have a good cast to talk about for one thing. They should like Irene Rich very well and if you think she is popular enough to warrant it, you might make an effort to interest them through her name. Also mention Monte Blue and Russell Simpson although they'll probably expect to see Simpson in a different role from what he has. You could use catchlines such as "Does revenge pay? 'Defying Destiny,' at the blank theater, answers the question."

Direction....Louis Chaudet; satisfactory.

Author .... Grace Sanderson Michie

Scenario ..... Not credited

Cameraman ..... Lenwood Abbott

Photography ..... Good

Locale ..... Small town

Length ..... 5,600 feet.

"The Whispered Name"

Universal

As a Whole....BLACK MAIL STORY IN WHICH COINCIDENCE IS THE CHIEF FACTOR IN PLOT DEVELOPMENT. MAYBE IT WILL BE INTERESTING BUT THEY'LL HAVE TO BE LIBERAL THINKERS TO BELIEVE IT.

Cast.....Ruth Clifford a very innocent co-respondent and Charles Clary the other innocent victim of a divorce scheme. Niles Welch a real hero who straightens out the tangle and marries Miss Clifford. Others Herbert Fortier, William Lawrence, May Meresch, John Merkyl.

Type of Story....Domestic drama in which efforts of millionaire to befriend girl being tricked by man who pretends marriage, lead him to difficulties when wife's detectives secure snapshots of him with the girl in a hotel. How the blackmailers carry the plot further and the incident threatens the happiness of the girl, now in love with the editor of the paper for which she writes, is followed by a general exposing of the culprits and happiness all around. The story taken from the play "The Co-respondent," makes fairly interesting entertainment provided you don't object to a plot development that is based chiefly on coincidence of the most exaggerated sort. Of course it can be conceded to be fairly probable that such things would happen, but they are usually pretty farfetched. Capable direction, a good cast and a satisfying production help considerably to make the offering of average merit.

Box Office Angle..The picture holds the interest nicely and there is a good cast to talk about. On the whole, "The Whispered Name," should do adequately.

Exploitation .....The title can be linked up effectively with teaser advertising such as the distribution of throw-aways containing: "Watch out for the whispered name. The initials are R. C. Who is she?" Follow these with others reading: "Learn the identity of the woman in 'The Whispered Name.' She is R. C. See her at the blank theater on (date)." You can later announce the cast of "The Whispered Name," with Ruth Clifford's name standing out prominently as the woman of the whispered name. The divorce angle might be used to interest them if you want to start a controversy. Tell them that in "The Whispered Name," they will see one of the illegitimate methods of obtaining a divorce, through blackmail.

Direction King Baggot; has managed to sustain the interest very well and handled players to advantage.

Authors .....Rita Weiman and Alice Leal Pollack

Scenario .....Raymond L. Schrock

Cameraman ..... Jackson Rose

Photography ..... All right

Locale ..... Any city

Length .....5,196 feet

"Phantom Justice"

Producer: Richard Thomas

Distributor: Film Booking Offices

As a Whole.....CROOK STORY THAT HAS SOME GOOD ANGLES AND WILL LIKELY PROVE INTERESTING ENTERTAINMENT FOR THE MAJORITY. DREAM ENDING QUITE A DISILLUSION.

Cast .....Rod La Rocque makes a shrewd young criminal lawyer and Estelle Taylor an effective girl crook. These two the more important with others: Garry O'Dell, Kathryn McGuire, Lillian Leigh-ton, Fred Moore, Rex Ballard, Norval MacGregor.

Type of Story....The dream ending doesn't say whether or not the hunch given forth should be accepted by crooks as "good dope" or not but if it is straight they'll surely get a worth while tip from "Phantom Justice." It's this: no matter what the evidence may be against you, you can't be convicted of murder if the victim is never produced. So it's very necessary to completely dispose of the body. This is the big situation of Daniel F. Whitcomb's story, a genuinely absorbing and interesting crook theme—up to the point where hero awakes in a dentist chair and spoils the whole thing by having been dreaming. There are all kinds of ways of arriving at a happy ending. It wouldn't satisfy the "customers" to have a perfectly good romance spoiled, so instead of the young attorney going "up the river" with the crooks he aided, they make a dream of it, hero realizes he must stop defending crooks and give up his illicit practice,—so he marries the girl.

Box Office Angle Tell them "Phantom Justice" is a crook story with a brand new angle. Don't tell them it's a dream. They'll probably get over the disappointment when they find it out for themselves, however.

Exploitation.....There isn't very much in the crook angle of the story that you can use for exploitation and you can't make use of the dream idea without giving it away so you'll have to resort to catchlines, stills, trailers, names of those in the cast, etc. You might use: "Are you familiar with the intricacies of the law? There are some interesting loopholes exposed in 'Phantom Justice,' F. B. O's latest release at the blank theater." Use the names of Rod La Rocque and Estelle Taylor. A jewelry shop display would be effective with a placard reading "The lure of diamonds. See the trouble they cause in 'Phantom Justice.'"

Direction ....Richard Thomas; quite satisfactory.

Author ..... Daniel F. Whitcomb

Scenario ..... Burnell Manley

Cameraman ..... Jack W. Fuqua

Photography ..... All right

Locale ..... Any city

Length ..... 6,238 feet

"Reno"

Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan

As a Whole...IT MAY BE INTENDED SERIOUSLY BUT "RENO" IS HIGHLY AMUSING, AND NOVEL ONLY IN THAT HUGHES FINDS A BRAND NEW WAY TO DISPOSE OF A SUPERFLUOUS HUSBAND.

Cast.....A long list of notables with all hands well suited and easily capable of fulfilling the meagre requirements of "Reno's" people. Among those present: Helen Chadwick, Lew Cody, George Walsh, Carmel Myers, Hedda Hopper, Dale Fuller, Kathleen Key, Rush Hughes and many others.

Type of story....Anything you don't know about divorce and divorce laws won't be explained to you in "Reno." Rupert Hughes evidently took his cue for "Reno" from court records of divorces and the various laws of the different states pertaining to divorce. From the sub-title it is to be inferred that the laws are conflicting, ambiguous, to numerous and lacking in uniformity. In fact there is so much that's wrong with the laws and Hughes has tried so intensely to show the faults, that he isn't much clearer than the laws. "Reno" may be intended as a serious treatment of a national problem but it is doubtful if it will be taken in that way. It's comical, silly, far-fetched and finishes up with a mellow climate that is the only original angle—Hughes exits the much-married Lew Cody by means of a geyser that sends him up into space and then down, as well as out. The leaves his three wives all very much pleased and settles all the plot complications without further footage.

Box Office Angle.....You'll find a certain majority of most any audience that will be pleased with "Reno." There's a more or less sensational atmosphere about that can be exploited to box office advantage providing you don't cater to discriminating patronage.

Exploitation.....Reports from Chicago indicate that one man in the balcony of the theater when "Reno" was being shown, became so alarmed at Lew Cody's plight when he is hurled into a boiling geyser, that he fell into the orchestra. So much for the thrill that closes "Reno." You can discuss this for what it's worth in considering the feature's possibilities. There's a long list of prominent players and a title that should be easy to advertise. Debates on the question involved and statements from prominent persons might provide added interest.

Direction.....Rupert Hughes; adequate except for occasional rather irrelevant detail.

Author ..... Rupert Hughes

Scenario ..... Rupert Hughes

Cameraman ..... John Mesca

Art Director ..... Cedric Gibbon

Photography ..... Good

Locale ..... Reno

"Let Not Man Put Asunder"

Short Subjects

"Lest We Forget"—"Sing Them Again"—Educational

Carries Peace Appeal

Type of production... 1 reel novelty

A title designates this "a modernized revival of the songs you used to sing" and the first number of the issue lives up to the title by modernizing a trench song composed during the Civil war and sung by the Yanks in the World War—"Tenting Tonight." The pictures illustrating the words show a group of the boys around a camp fire, writing home, etc. and stopping all other activities to sing. The second selection is more cheerful, "Wait Till The Sun Shines, Nellie," and the accompanying pictures show Nellie and her beau being caught in a shower just when they are about to have a picnic feast. The final selection is one that will appeal to everyone—"Mother Machree." In view of the several titles pleading for universal peace and brotherhood of man at the opening of this reel and also the first number sung, this reel might be especially good on Armistice Day or for use in connection with a feature dealing with the war.

"The Canadian Alps"—Fox Educational

Many Fine Views

Type of production... 1 reel educational

If "The Canadian Alps" does nothing else it certainly establishes the bravery of the cameramen who took the pictures. They scaled some dizzy heights to obtain the views to be seen in the film and evidently took many chances to provide the public with unusual shots of the Canadian Mountains. The offering is thoroughly enjoyable, both for its scenic value and for the thrills it affords in the pictures showing the method of climbing the ice covered peaks. The photography is splendid and the offering is of pictorial value. It will fit nicely on any program and is deserving of your consideration.

"The Homemaker"—Wilderness Tale—Educational

A Simple, Placid Tale

Type of production... 1 reel scenic story

Robert Bruce's "Wilderness Tales" are well-known, or should be, to every exhibitor in the country. They combine beautiful photography, exquisite backgrounds with a "different" sort of story, in a manner that is thoroughly enjoyable and gives an interesting note to any program. This one, "The Homemaker" deals in a simple, placid manner with the way an elderly couple find and make a home on a river barge after their little house has been taken over by the sheriff. The masculine player in this "Tale" is particularly worthy of commendation.

"The Black Sheep"—Aesop Fable—Pathe

Nice Little Cartoon

Type of production... 1 reel animated cartoon

"The Black Sheep" is entirely up to the usual good standard of this cartoon series. The drawings are cute, the action amusing and the animation smooth. The little story deals with a pup who is considered the black sheep of his family and is thrown out of the family kennel. However, he performs several brave deeds for which he is rewarded by a farmer with a medal and a huge plate of bones which he bears proudly home as a peace-offering.

"Own a Lot"—Century—Universal

An Average Comedy

Type of production... 2 reel comedy

The Century Follies Girls are very much in evidence in the opening sequences of "Own a Lot." After considerable frolicking on the beach by the girls and a newly married couple who are honeymooning in a flivver, the girls exit from the picture and the rest of the action deals with the married couple's trouble in a rented bungalow, in which the walls continually break and the furniture is concealed in closets, etc. It's an average comedy.

"Smithy"—Hal Roach—Pathe

Funny Slapstick

Type of production... 2 reel comedy

There are laughs in this one. To be sure, they are occasioned by carpenters being hit on the head by various tools falling off a roof on a house in the course of construction, and Stan Laurel getting mixed up with a lot of tar paper and tacks and wet shingles, but they are none the less hearty for that. Where this type of comedy is desired "Smithy" will prove satisfactory.

Victor Seastrom is preparing his second picture for Goldwyn.

35 Features Reviewed In 17 Cities

"The Acquittal"—Universal Ohio, Indianapolis

NEWS—The adaptation is a bit loose, perhaps, but the result is a greater coherency than the play possessed. And, too, it seems that the suspense is more deftly maintained.

STAR—* * * makes capital screen entertainment.

It is, for one thing, an absorbing mystery drama that is full of the elusive quality of suspense.

"Black Oxen"—1st Nat'l The Chicago, Chicago

HERALD-EXAMINER—Corinne Griffith is pictorially a glamorous Madame Zatianny, though she finds it difficult, at times, to sustain the impression of a sixty-year-old mind in a thirty-year-old body. Conway Tearle, as Clavering, admirably fits the words of Mrs. Atherton. The film follows the novel carefully. You will find "Black Oxen" an interesting, originally plotted cinema, though it is not quite as cruel a thrust at our traditions of love as was the novel.

POST—Outshining everything else in "Black Oxen" is the wonderful beauty of Corinne Griffith, and combined with the luxuriously individual clothes which she wears the effect is certainly an artistic triumph. * * * they have transferred it to the screen exactly as the plot was unfolded for you in the book, and even the dramatic ending remains unchanged.

Walnut, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—We found "Black Oxen" a thoroughly pleasing feature of the most modern type.

Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle are excellent in the leading roles. The remainder of the cast is very good.

POST—Frank Lloyd has done a very good job.

The story has been followed very faithfully. The continuity flows smoothly and while there is not a great deal of action in the plot the interest is unflagging.

TIMES-STAR—Gertrude Atherton's book, * * * has been made into an excellent photoplay.

Corinne Griffith's interpretation of the leading role is an appealing and intelligent piece of work, * * * She is so stunningly beautiful, however, that her splendid acting is likely to be overshadowed by admiration of her radiant beauty.

Circle, Indianapolis

NEWS—* * * a fairly faithful adaptation of the book, with the same point of view and the same incident. One has a suspicion, nevertheless, that the picture is bound to be a success, for it is wrought with a knowing hand.

Miss Griffith does well * * *

STAR—* * * Lloyd has spun an impelling story. It is destined to stir up a great deal of comment and cause no end of talk. * * * Corinne Griffith * * * gives an excellent performance. * * *

Strand, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—There is really little plot as the story consists largely of episodes in the life of the fascinating Countess Zatianny. In translating it to the screen First National has adhered closely to the book and has done well by its task.

Rialto, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—Her makeup is a remarkable achievement. Conway Tearle is splendidly cast * * * There is a background of beautiful settings and gorgeous costuming which adds much to the pictorial beauty of the photoplay.

"The Broken Wing"—Preferred Strand, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—The refreshingly clean love story that runs throughout, with a judicious mixture of close-ups of Mexican life, is its chief charm.

POST—Snappy titles, good acting, fine direction and first-rate photography make "The Broken Wing," * * * an exceedingly interesting photoplay.

TIMES-STAR—Melodrama and comedy vie with each other for supremacy throughout the picture. The action is rapid and the humor of a pleasant tempering nature, * * *

"The Call of the Wild"—Pathe Crystal, Indianapolis

NEWS—With a St. Bernard dog as the outstanding feature, the story is an unusually entertaining one.

STAR—Jack Mulhall, Walter Long, Sydney D'Albrook, Laura Roessing and Frank Butler are in the cast, but none of them comes up to Buck for sheer acting.

"Cameo Kirby"—Fox Lyric, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—It follows in general the development of the stage play of the name. * * *

A more-than-Southern atmosphere is employed in the picturization.

POST—* * * is a colorful movie of old-time Mississippi River life. * * *

That you will like this old-fashioned melodrama, with its romance and action, with its steamboat race and card games, almost is a foregone conclusion.

TIMES-STAR—* * * is one of the most picturesque, romantically-beautiful films seen in Cincinnati for a long while. The director has managed to capture the greater part of the charm of Booth Tarkington's famous book, and Cameo Kirby.

Fox, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—* * * compares favorably with the play * * * John Gilbert, as Cameo Kirby, does some excellent acting.

NORTH AMERICAN—John Gilbert, * * * gives a very artistic and charming performance as the hero of the story.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The present picturization compares favorably with both former events, and is an absorbing story.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—* * * not so good as "If Winter Comes," but it is, nevertheless, a fine picture. * * *

John Gilbert has an appealing smile and an altogether romantic appearance.

"Chastity"—1st Nat'l National, Louisville

TIMES—* * * an interesting, if far-fetched, picturization. * * *

Elaborate settings and costumes furnish a pleasing portion of the offering. * * *

"The Cheat"—F. P.-L. Colonial, Indianapolis

NEWS—* * * the wildest kind of melodrama glossed over with the acting of the chief player and the direction of George Fitzmaurice. The combined efforts of these two help. * * *

It seems rather a pity to waste Pola Negri on such stuff.

STAR—The chief fault with "The Cheat" is that Hector Turnbull's story is too well known to afford any star a proper vehicle. As a result of the old situations she was called on to deal with, La Negri (made up like the best of domestic actresses) falls below the par of her German pictures.

"Crossing Trails"—S. R. Regent, Indianapolis

NEWS—* * * a combination of western humor, thrills, action and suspense.

STAR—Having run out of film themes, the Western pictures have fallen back on the original plot stand-by, circumstantial evidence.

"The Dangerous Maid"—1st Nat'l Strand, Minneapolis

TRIBUNE—The role of Barbara Winslow gives Constance ample opportunity to display her dramatic ability.

"The Day of Faith"—Gold-Cosmop. California, Los Angeles

(Week Ending Jan. 5)

EXAMINER—From a spiritual angle the theme is of interest but the Tod Browning direction leaves much to be desired, in the way either of climaxes of sympathy, and the picture is decidedly weak as a whole, however well the individual members of the cast have enacted their roles.

EXPRESS—"The Day of Faith" is of the "Miracle Man" and "Faith Healer" school, very well handled by Tod Browning and enacted by Eleanor Boardman, Tyrone Power, Raymond Griffith and others.

HERALD—* * * flawlessly staged by the generally-to-be-relied-upon Mr. Browning, measures well up with the mighty dramatic pieces of the season. Presenting a big, powerful theme, with a thunderous dramatic climax, the Roche story, fairly pulsating with pathos throughout, holds the eye riveted to the screen with hardly a moment of diverted attention.

RECORD—It is sufficient to relate of "The Day of Faith," the accompanying feature, that it is a modern miracle story. The miracle is that an intelligent exhibitor should show it and that intelligent spectators should sit through it.

TIMES—* * * entertaining enough, with some impressive bits. But on the whole we are pretty tired of these near "Miracle Man" themes.

"Don't Call It Love"—F. P.-L. Madison, Detroit

FREE PRESS—There is little plot to the story, which is nothing more than a succession of flirtations. * * *

The de Mille touch can be seen in the lavishness with which the picture was produced.

NEWS—"Don't Call It Love" is just another picture which hasn't a big moment in it.

TIMES—An ancient formula was used by both the author and the scenarioist in fashioning this one.

"The Eagle's Feather"—Metro Park-Mall, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—Every inch of "The Eagle's Feather," * * * is intelligent, clean and thoroughly adult screen entertainment.

Simply, quietly and smoothly, it tells the story. * * *

"The Eleventh Hour"—Fox Victoria, Rochester

JOURNAL—* * * a real "thriller." * * * replete with exciting situations.

"Enemies of Children"—S. R. Regent, Philadelphia

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The cast is large and competent. * * * has many moments of human interest, but there is a drags in spots.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—It has its moments of real human interest, but it tendency for the love interest to lag.

"The Eternal City"—1st Nat'l Grand Cen'l—West End Lyric— Capitol, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—"The Eternal City," has been modernized by the author to introduce new political developments in Italy. * * * It is a story of deep situations and real romantic thrills. Bert Lytell is admirable as the lover and John Barrymore is the profiteer. Miss La Marr already is established as one of the screen's finest actresses and should go far in her new capacity as a star.

POST DISPATCH—Those who read Hall Caine's novel * * * will find the old plot in a new dress. * * * There are some notable crowd scenes * * * there are some rare and beautiful vistas of the Eternal City and its surroundings.

STAR—It is not bad if one has not read the book. It is mockery if one has.

TIMES—Bert Lytell * * * and Lionel Barrymore * * * do good work. * * * There are plenty of complications.

"Eyes of the Forest"—Fox Family, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—It's the first time that Mix has changed his means of locomotion in some little while, and the change comes as an agreeable surprise. * * * many thrilling experiences of the kind that usually feature a Tom Mix production.

POST—The usual Mix thrills and comedy touches are interspersed with the telling of the story.

TIMES-STAR—The plot abounds in action and includes a pretty romance in which Miss Pauline Stark is the attractive and clever heroine.

"Fashion Row"—Metro State, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—With "Fashion Row" she comes as close to making "a picture as she will just as long as she continues to pouting, pirouetting, making-mouths way. * * * lovely in its settings, photography, and it has its exciting and interesting moments.

PRESS—Miss Murray's playing of the first role is entirely charming. * * *

Her playing of the second role is quite the worst piece of acting we have witnessed on the screen in some months. The plot is slight.

The Milwaukee, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—* * * Mae Murray does some real acting, in addition to her usual work displaying a bizarre wardrobe and her terpsichorean ability. * * *

Palace, Montreal

STAR—It is doubtful, however, if she has ever accomplished so much genuine acting or filled roles with such vim and such conviction as she reveals in her latest picture. * * *

"Flaming Barriers"—F. P.-L. Metropolitan, Los Angeles

(Week Ending Jan. 5)

EXAMINER—The story starts fast, it has enough punch to its climax to allow marked and sustained acceleration for a windup.

EXPRESS—The story itself is full of glaring inconsistencies, but the fire scenes and the good work of the entire cast almost succeed in redeeming the picture. Jacques Logan, always good to look upon, is an actor heroine. She enters into the spirit of the affair and troups successfully throughout.

HERALD—* * * traditions of right triumph and the swatted villain are convincingly combined with logical plot and realistic setting.

RECORD—* * * a combination of the ingredients that make up a sure-fire hit.

TIMES—It has a rather interesting cast but really not much else. As it stands, the entire last half of the picture would be heard if it were compressed into about half the footage it now occupies.

"Flaming Youth"—1st Nat'l State, Los Angeles

(Week Ending Jan. 5)

EXAMINER—Colleen Moore flames with vital youth and sincere dramatic finesse.

The picture to be sure is strong meat to any audience. * * *

The cast throughout is excellent with many well-known names. * * *

EXPRESS—Of Colleen Moore's sensibility and acting ability there could be no doubt. * * *

John Francis Dillon's direction is marvelous. He has taken a theme, well known as viewed from entertainment viewpoint, and made a rapidly moving and absorbing though somewhat hectic tale of it.

HERALD—Colleen Moore is in great measure responsible for this twist to the picture.

T.O.C.C.

for she gives such a delightful and ingenuous characterization of Patricia, * * *

RECORD—"Flaming Youth" takes place with "Prodigal Daughters" in the best picture of cosmopolitan manners of 1923. * * * notable for one of the most striking individual characterizations of the year—that of Colleen Moore * * *

TIMES—So deftly is the ticklish plot handled, however, and so clever and amusing are some of the scenes, and so diverting is the inimitable presence and sprightly acting of Miss Colleen that you're sure of a goodly share of enjoyment as long as you're looking at the screen.

State, Minneapolis

TRIBUNE—As the vivacious flapper, * * * Miss Moore establishes herself as a screen actress of exceptional talent. * * *

A highly tensioned climax brings about a delightful ending.

Capitol, Montreal

STAR—There are many highly dramatic scenes, and Colleen Moore does some remarkable acting. Her naivete is expressed as convincingly as her sophisticated ways, so that despite the most extreme actions, she never appears brazen. She has extraordinary facial control and mimetic ability, * * *

Metropolitan, Washington

STAR—So much of the fire of "Flaming Youth," Warner Fabian's risqué novel, has been extinguished in its picturization that even the most sensitive moralists ought not be offended by the screen feature * * * It has been made into an honestly entertaining portrayal of a "dangerous age" and would be more satisfying had not several too patent efforts to introduce supposedly naughty scenes been made.

"Hook and Ladder"—Universal
Isis, Indianapolis

NEWS—If you like them wild and woolly "Hook and Ladder" will prove to be what you want.

STAR—A fire scene near the end of the picture provides some "punch" * * *

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame"— Universal, Pershing, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—In this instance the motion picture screen reaches and attains that indefinable status known as "art." Scarcely has a picture ever been made that approaches the beauty, force and compelling thrills of this. Too much cannot be said for it, and yet it is hard to say enough.

POST-DISPATCH—Settings, photography and lighting effects never surpassed in the movies, the best work of his career by that protean screen actor, Lon Chaney, and the rising of a new star in the person of Patsy Ruth Miller are among the many unusual features of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" * * *

STAR—* * * A classic of the screen * * * There is romance, action and tragedy, but not many laughs (and there should not be) in this great picture. It is impressive. You are sure to like it.

TIMES—A marvelous and stupendous production, ranking with the finest achievements of the screen, * * * The story even in screen form is overlaid with sadness, with terror, with tragedy. * * * Those who seek on the screen only light-hearted entertainment, will find this too heavy. But those who appreciate a worthwhile achievement will applaud.

"If Winter Comes"—Fox
New, Baltimore

SUN—We won't say it's mightier, but it is just as good, and to say that any film could be as great a success from the picture angle as the original story could be from the literary angle, is, we think, saying something.

"Little Church Around the Corner"— Warners'
Hippodrome, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—Hokum of every kind is paraded in this picture. * * * In fact, it has everything but unity. It is not a driving, powerful story but merely a series of dramatic incidents.

"The Mail Man"—F. B. O.
Victoria, Philadelphia

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—"The Mail Man" is one of the most thrilling pictures that has been made in some time.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—Ralph Lewis, * * * is excellent and Johnny Walker, as his son, is equally good. There are many thrilling moments * * *

"The Man Life Passed By"—Metro
Palace, Washington

STAR—* * * ends happily after weaving the warp and woof of a powerful drama of emotional intensity. * * *

There are gorgeous scenes, particularly the Roman revel, * * * Victor Schertzinger, has achieved here a beauty in grouping and picture composition believed by some to rise almost to classic effort.

"The Meanest Man in the World"—
1st Nat'l
Strand, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—The atmosphere is very good. So is the photography.

"Michael O'Halloran"—Hodkinson World, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—The sentimental side of the picture predominates. What is needed, however, is comic relief. As presented, the production is a study of sadness which seems a trifle far-fetched.

"The Old Fool"—Hodkinson
Majestic, Louisville

TIMES—Humor and pathos are blended in delightful fashion in "The Old Fool," the Majestic's feature offering for the week. The story is built around * * *

"Our Hospitality"—Metro
Allen, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—* * * consistently entertaining, often it prompts sudden and noisy laughter, frequently it is very exciting, but it always amuses.

It is freer of slapstick than anything Keaton has done since "The Saphead."

PRESS—The only fault of the movie we find is that in an effort to get length the comedy is thinned out, and some of the story has the effect of being padded.

"Pioneer Trails"—Vitagraph
Rialto, Louisville

TIMES—Otis Harlan offers an unusual characterization in his portrayal * * *

Moon, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—David Smith who directed * * * has handled a spectacular period in American history in a way that will furnish entertainment for any people.

"Pleasure Mad"—Metro
Adams, Detroit

FREE PRESS—A play that was obviously written for small-town people and stay-at-home folks in the big cities * * *

SA the mother Mary Alden does a beautiful and praiseworthy piece of acting.

NEWS—The story carrier an obvious preachment for the sanctity of marital vows and the situations run from one another in familiar fashion.

TIMES—There are however, some new angles to the story and the acting of William Collier, Jr., Huntley Gordon and Mary Alden saves the picture from becoming too dull.

Delmonte, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—Score still another triumph for Reginald Barker! Last night a capacity audience sat entranced * * * The new production brings him back to his favorite field of domestic drama, and is certain to add new luster to his name.

POST-DISPATCH—Mary Alden again scores heavily in a "mother role" * * * This is a domestic drama of striking contrasts. * * * It is entertaining all the way.

STAR—When poor, the family played panches; rich, they played with fire. This having already been the theme of nine hundred and ninety-nine other society photographs excuses a yawn or two at "Pleasure Mad." * * *

TIMES—The plot is not original, nor is the treatment of the situations novel. Nevertheless, the story is entertaining, * * *

Additional newspaper reviews will appear in Monday's issue of THE FILM DAILY.

The settlement was made by Charles L. O'Reilly and Sol Brill on behalf of the T. O. C. C. and by James R. Grainger and Sam Eckman on behalf of Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan. Individual treatment will be accorded each exhibitor while the exhibitor will, in turn, agree to increased prices and extended runs where it is possible in order to allow Goldwyn to secure a revenue from the picture commensurate with its value as a box-office attraction. The T. O. C. C. officially declared that it did not expect its members to play "Enemies" and "Little Old New York" on the original terms of the Paramount contracts.

The settlement is apparently in line with the suggestion first made by Grainger last summer but at that time rejected by the T. O. C. C. The meetings were renewed about ten days ago, following long conferences with attorneys for both sides and the actual recourse to the courts of law for a decision which the T. O. C. C. hoped would be sweeping enough to cover the entire situation. Friday night, Grainger declared he had found O'Reilly always considerate and ready to listen to reasonable suggestions. About 200 theaters are directly affected by the decision, since contracts to that extent have been entered upon for either or both of the pictures. This number does not include new ideals which are sure to follow now that the matter has been amicably adjusted.

The controversy has been a bitter one. It was finally taken before Will H. Hays for adjustment. Many conferences were held looking toward a settlement. At least two law suits were filed and in each case, the T. O. C. C. failed to secure the decision it looked for. In the meantime, dissatisfaction grew in the ranks of the T. O. C. C. Louis Blumenthal of Haring and Blumenthal resigned because of the Chamber's stand in the matter. Marcus Loew also withdrew because he resented any interference in the conduct of his business.

Friday's meeting of the T. O. C. C. concerned itself entirely with the Goldwyn situation. It is felt that the unrest which grew out of it will now, in a measure disappear. The reorganization plan outlined in THE FILM DAILY providing for a division of theaters according to size could not be reached but will probably come up at the meeting Tuesday.

Boone Heads The Thespians

John A. Boone has been elected president of a new organization of actors known as The Thespians. The body is primarily designed to be social and fraternal body. Its sponsors declare that it will not work in opposition to any group in either the film or legitimate field but that will co-operate with managers, artists, agents and the like. The membership includes a number of actors who are engaged in picture work. Other officers besides Boone are L. Beggs, vice-president; John L. Woodford, treasurer and Joseph J. Holtz, secretary.

To Film Hip Show

The Keith Circuit has rigged lights in the interior of the Hippodrome and for the first time in the history of that theater will shoot a performance. The picture will be released to the news weeklies.

EVILS

By DANNY

This talk of honesty being the best policy is old stuff. But it's worked out for years. It will. All of which is pertaining to the state right field and the operators in various sections of the country.

This isn't intended as a reflection upon any individual; nor are names being tied to anyone. But this is also true: there are many territories from which the state right dealer feels he is getting what he should. Either in actual cash or a square deal.

Several leading state right men informed a Western operator last week that he was the only distributor who forwarded them checks 18 months or more after release of their product. In other words no one seemed interested in selling the old pictures. Or if they were there was little indication of it.

A good state right picture should give the life of any other good product. That it should cease bringing in revenue a few months after it was released is silly; certainly un-businesslike. And if an operator in one section can develop revenue from a picture 18 months or two years old, why the revenue isn't developed elsewhere is hard to figure.

The state right field is full of difficulty. Anyone in the business will admit that. But if the men interested in sales out in the "sticks" would do it that their business was properly operated it would help a lot.

No genius is required to sell a good state right picture at the beginning when the advertising, promotion and all other aids are marshalled for the campaign. But it takes straight methods, hard plugging, and a never quit spirit to keep bringing in the revenue after the first few months.

By the way; what becomes of the product on the shelves of the state right operators? What revenue does it material produce—if any?

Goldwyn Leaves for East

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Sam Goldwyn left New York Saturday.

"In 'The Extra Girl,' Mabel Normand does her best acting," said Carl Sandburg in the Chicago Daily News. "She rises to great pantomimic art." Associated Exhibitors.—Advt.

Busy On Legislation

Charles C. Pettijohn To Confer with Republican National Committee—Three Day Session

Charles C. Pettijohn, general counsel of the Hays organization returned on Saturday from a trip through the Middle West and Washington and again left yesterday for the latter city where he will confer with members of the Republican National Committee relative to legislation.

Pettijohn was in Washington last week acting as sort of scout for the picture interests in legislative circles there. His present trip will be of three days' duration during which time he will pow-wow with important Republicans.

He found business conditions at the Middle Western points like St. Louis, Little Rock and Indianapolis satisfactory but not unusually good. The radio is extremely popular in that part of the country.

Samuelson Coming Here

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

London—G. B. Samuelson, producer of "Napoleon and Josephine," will leave for New York shortly.

"Napoleon and Josephine" is being handled in Canada by Dominion Films, Ltd. It has been shown at several points in New England and played to business that was reported very satisfactory. No distribution for this country has been arranged.

Henley Signs With Mayer

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Hobart Henley has signed a contract with Louis B. Mayer to direct special productions for Metro release.

Picture Types

Through a questionnaire answered by several thousand fans reached through the courtesy of a large number of theaters, THE FILM DAILY is able to present interesting information relative to the types of motion pictures preferred by the public.

This is the second question of a series prepared by this publication. The first concerned maximum and minimum admission prices. Today's discussion centers around this question:

Over the Hills—Sky Pilot—Bonnie Brier Bush—Community Bldg., Rev. E. K. Spiller, Lanesboro, Iowa.

History-Drama—Covered Wagon—Robin Hood—Bureau of Visual Instruction, Extension Division, Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind.

Covered Wagon—Old Nest—Rent Free—Kansas State Teachers' College of Pittsburg, Pittsburg, Kansas.

One that teaches America's highest social and moral ideas—The Old Homestead—The Miracle Worker—Orphans of the Storm—Those that teach true heroism, sympathy, service, patriotism and uprightness—Bill Hart is usually good—A. M. Rowley, Bedford, Ohio.

The Servant in the House—A. B. Meyer, Tell City, Ind.

I have no preference as to the type of picture—Mrs. James T. Chandler, Jr., 214 W. 9th St., Wilmington, Del.

Drama—Acquittal with Claire Windsor, Norman Kerry—Green Goddess with Arliss—Orpheum Circuit, Palace-Orpheum Theater, Milwaukee, Wis.

No special type, but quality of type—Green Goddess—Mrs. Louis Jersawit, 485 Central Park West, New York City.

Karlton, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—The plot, while highly improbable, is one which holds the interest of the audience from the beginning to end.

NORTH AMERICAN—A thrilling tale * * * Her (Anna Nilsson's) impersonation, of the young man is excellently done, and completely lacking in the various superfluities usually indulged in by actresses who are called upon to play such a role.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The picturization * * * hits a high mark in clever scenes and good acting.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—The clever performance by Anna Q. Nilsson, * * * is highly commendable, and * * * is one of the high lights of the production. * * "Ponjola" is a picture that holds one's interest throughout. The plot is unique.

Eastman, Rochester

DEMOCRAT-CHRONICLE—There are some realistic settings, a fairly good supporting cast and the commendable work of Miss Nilsson before mentioned to recommend the photoplay to prospective patrons. From a technical viewpoint the picture suffers from an excess of introductory incidents.

HERALD—Except for its ending, that part of it which makes a subservient bow to the theatrical box office, it is a good picture. Miss Nilsson, as Desmond, does a splendid bit of screen acting and James Kirkwood as Lundi Druro is exceptionally fine.

JOURNAL—* * * Entertaining picture * * * I liked Miss Nilsson a whole lot. It's difficult a difficult job to play the part of a boy, and she does it rather well. Mr. Kirkwood didn't please me quite so much.

TIMES-UNION—* * * good, interesting drama well worked out in the medium of the motion picture, its only flaws being some minor comedy bits which go over the verge into farce and offer a jarring note in the general excellence of the film.

"The Rendezvous"—Gold-Cosmop.
Rialto, Washington

STAR—The picture is dramatic—very. It's characters are picturesque and the settings exotic.

"Rupert of Hentzau"—Selznick B'way Strand, Detroit

FREE PRESS—* * * follows the book more faithfully than is usually the case.

NEWS—* * * melodramatic events begin to happen with startling regularity and much suspense is aroused.

TIMES—* * * is not unlike "Zenda." It has that same military swagger, the same plot intrigue, the same gorgeous spectacle of court life and is laid in the same locale. It has the edge on "Zenda" in the cast which it presents.

"Six Days"—Gold-Cosmop.
Mr. Smith's Indianapolis

NEWS—The film is worth little.
STAR—It takes eight long and laborious reels to develop Miss Glynn's painfully detailed story * * * waste their dramatic talents on a worthless story.

Sun, Omaha

JOURNAL—Gorgeous settings, the beauty of Corinne Griffith, and acting which makes the best of a mean deal—* * * Also melodrama, large quantities of it.

WORLD-HERALD—And the scenes underground! Weird, some may call them horrible; these scenes fascinate and are intensely dramatic and marked by a number of thrills. There seems to be an absolute disregard for expense in production.

Piccadilly, Rochester

DEMOCRAT CHRONICLE—Regarded as a series of pictures, the photoplay is a delight to the eye; regarded as a dramatic production, the merit of the play and players is moderate indeed. * * *

However, "Six Days" will be a financial success.
HERALD—* * * makes up one of the most monotonous strung out and wholly without reason motion pictures that the present writer has had the misfortune to view.

TIMES-UNION—There are plenty of gorgeous gowns and every habitation is on the scale of a palace. Corinne Griffith looks exceedingly beautiful * * * the producers, with the fear of the censors in their minds, and the censors themselves, have kept the film technically clear but the Elinor Glynn touch is there * * *

"The Song of Love"—1st Nat'l
Capitol, Detroit

FREE PRESS—* * * has at least novelty to recommend it, splendid acting on the part of the star and her capable supporting cast, several excellent scenic "shots" and such action as is usually found only in western drama. * * * may not be Miss Talmadge's best picture, but it is a colorful, lively romance, capably acted and produced on a costly scale, and to 99 per cent of screen followers it will prove highly entertaining.

NEWS—* * * it is decidedly box-office, as the exhibitors put it. * * * There are many nice things that could be said * * * the sets are many and beautiful and the night scenes showing the Arabs * * * are picturesque. Still it is not a big picture or one worthy of the beauty and talents of Norma Talmadge.

TIMES—Schildkraut gives one of the finest performances * * * we have had the pleasure of reviewing since Percy Marmont was seen in "If Winter Comes." * * * "A Song of Love" builds to a climax that can even eclipse in dramatic intensity, the acting of Miss Talmadge and Schildkraut * * *

"The Temple of Venus"—Fox
Apollo, Indianapolis

NEWS—* * * is a curious mixture of fact and fancy, drama and melodrama, and practicality and mythology. Yet, despite such a conglomeration, it is interesting.

STAR—* * * marked by nothing so much as versatility. * * * at least a little bit of everything ever thrown on the screen.

"This Freedom"—Fox
Washington, Detroit

FREE PRESS—* * * not only the finest picture that has ever been imported from that country but also equal to the best American society dramas. * * *

Denison Clift, an American director, in handling delicate situations, has shown rare skill; * * *

TIMES—* * * A daring film * * * Fay Compton, directed by Denison Clift, is incomparable in her part as the woman. The supporting cast is to be complimented * * *

Liberty, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—A splendid picture, finely directed, well acted and artistically executed * * * The story is one that not only stirs the feelings, but appeals to the mind.

STAR—* * * an improvement on the book * * * This theme is developed with intelligence in the picture, and is superbly handled by an English actress, Fay Compton, dignified, expressive, earnest.

TIMES—* * * more interesting as a motion picture than it was in novel form. * * * Perhaps it is not. At any rate, the theme has been intelligently developed, and the resulting photoplay is good entertainment.

"Through the Dark"—Gold-Cosmop.
Kings, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—The story is unraveled neatly and rapidly and proves engrossing from the first flicker to the final

"Tiger Rose"—Warners
Stanley, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—* * * one of the most thrilling pictures of the season. * * * Miss Ulric's characterization is excellent, and as a whole the picture is well above the average.

NORTH AMERICAN—The picture is one of a very common type of "northwest" films, * * * There are many tense moments and suspense is excellently maintained until the end of the picture.

It is interesting to compare Miss Ulric's performance on the screen with her stage performance, and done finds, in spite of very fine work and excellent direction, that her funny little rough voice is sadly missed.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—"Tiger Rose is neither the worst nor the best melodrama of the North Woods that ever found its way to the screen. It is filled with action, and even though that action is not always new it holds the interest. * * * In certain close-ups she (Lenore Ulric looks like a woman of forty, * * *

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—There is nothing novel about the story. There have been so many stories of this type shown on the screen that it is a great tribute to the acting of Miss Ulric to say that it does furnish real entertainment.

The picture is notable for its beautiful settings.

"To The Ladies"—F. P.-L.
Mc Vicker's, Chicago

HERALD-EXAMINER—* * * I don't think there is any one alive with soul so dead as to miss or not appreciate its point. * * * If you miss "To the Ladies" you are missing one of the best comedies ever written, better directed and better acted than most of the productions you'll find in town.

NEWS—It is a simple and honest picture, telling its story just as Jimmy Cruze wanted it told, without any useless flourishes.

"Unseeing Eyes"—Gold-Cosmop.
Alamo, Louisville

TIMES—Tremendous scenic effects mark Lionel Barrymore's latest picture, "Unseeing Eyes," at the Alamo all week.

"The Virginian"—Preferred
Regent, Rochester

DEMOCRAT-CHRONICLE—* * * one of the best photoplays it has been our gratifying pleasure to review for this paper in months. Here is a photoplay that revives the spirit of hope in that will-o'-the-wisp, cinema art.

HERALD—The Virginian, all told is very well done. It is not high drama, it is what one might call restrained melodrama of the old home sort, and consequently, well worth the visit. This best seller of a score of years is fairly truthfully depicted in the screen version.

JOURNAL—* * * a better western film than most, with less shooting and more excuse for it than is usual. * * * it holds with admirable veracity to the text and brings to the screen all the essential elements of the book except the Virginian's own particular, deliciously profound humor.

TIMES-UNION—* * * have faithfully transplanted the characters of the novel to the screen and have used excellent discretion in selecting the incidents so as to give smoothly running, if slim, plot and plenty of action.

"West of the Water Tower"—F. P.-L.
Rivoli, Baltimore

AMERICAN—"West of the Water Tower" in passing from book to screen has been pretied up and censored considerably. Nonethless, I am not so sure that it isn't one of the best films of the current season.

Capitol, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—Can offer only one excuse for existence—its appearance, and a painfully frank picturization of things that once were taboo in good society.

POST—Glenn Hunter, Ernest Torrence and May McAvoy do some fine work in "West of the Water Tower," from Homer Croy's novel, but that is about as far as we can go in recommending it.

TIMES-STAR—* * * a flat disappointment. In the first place, it is a theme which does not lend itself well to screen translation. Secondly, the original plot has been so altered * * *

Missouri, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—* * * an unmitigable masterpiece if not a screen epic credit for this beautiful picturization must be divided between the cast of the picture and Rollin Sturgeon, the director. The delicate situations in the book are handled with degree of intelligence that is gratifying and reflects the ingenuity of Sturgeon's efforts.

POST-DISPATCH—* * * the book was not butchered in the filming, to be true, the story has been altered somewhat, but it means to its artistic hurt. * * * a simple natural, human tale of life as life is lived in a small itic anywhere in the great Mississippi Valley.

STAR—* * * a notable piece of work though, frankly, reducing Homer Croy novel of Junction City, Mo., to movie for lost much of the book's pungency.

TIMES—"West of the Water Tower" as fine screen entertainment as it was novel form. * * * One may call the story a bit sordid, but one cannot deny that the characterizations are well done, and the photoplay is a finished production.

NTINEL—It is a simple, human story, tragic, but sophisticated, of the lives of three people. (Week Ending Jan. 5)

EE PRESS—There is not one inconspicuous feature in the whole of the film, on the very face of it, bears the stamp of perfection in screen directing. The singular richness with which the story goes from sequence to another, betokens the fact that the scene was filmed in its proper place, in logical chronological order.

TRIBUNE—Charles Chaplin, in making his serious photoplay, has achieved a two-triumph. "A Woman of Paris," is sure to rank with the best pictures of 1923, and to place Charles Chaplin, the director, among the foremost of the screen—yes, with Griffith and De Mille. "A Woman of Paris" is unquestionably one of the finest products of the screen.

Los Angeles—Al Christie says: "All of the predictions now being made by various leaders of our industry point the way to the greater ascendancy of the short subject during the year of 1924. Probably one of the most encouraging things which have been said recently was Marcus Loew's statement through the Los Angeles press, that he would in the coming year concentrate on one and six reel pictures."

Mr. Loew, being one of the largest theater owners in the United States, should know of what he speaks and when he says that theater owners and the public are tired of padded pictures, and predicts that the reason for making eight, nine and ten-reel padded super-pictures will soon die out, he encourages every producer of short subjects to serve to round out a varied bill."

Crosland Prod.

For Hodkinson Distribution—Compson in First Two—Deal on With Dean

Alan Crosland has formed his own production company and has made arrangements to distribute his pictures through Hodkinson. Betty Compson has been engaged to star in the first two of the series which will be made at the Tilford studio and in Florida.

Miss Compson is now on her way East from the coast. Crosland has just completed "Six Days," for Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan by whom he was borrowed from the Hearst organization. In the last year he made "Enemies of Women," and "Under The Red Robe," for the Cosmopolitan Corp.

It is reported that Hodkinson is negotiating with the Priscilla Dean Prod. for that star's pictures. One has already been made at the Hollywood studios. At Hodkinson, this was not confirmed yesterday but it was perhaps significant that the report was not denied.

Denver Talks of Theater Deal

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Denver—The Times publishes a long article concerning the reported sale of the Isis, American and Colorado theaters to Famous Players. The paper adds that, if the deal is consummated, the Princess will be closed and Paramount will use the theaters named above for its first-runs. Fox is reported interested in the purchase of the Strand.

Officials of both Famous Players and Fox disclaimed any knowledge of the above report yesterday.

British Rules Easier

Censors There Will Pass or Reject Pictures in Bond, Thus Eliminating Import Duty

According to a communication received yesterday from E. Peterson, manager of Bonded Stores, Ltd., of London, the British Government has made easier the restrictions governing the importation of foreign pictures into the country.

Peterson declares that arrangements have now been made whereby all films can be passed by the British Board of Film Censors in bond, obviating the paying of import duty until it is decided whether films are suitable for that country or not.

In addition to this, special facilities are now available for re-editing and

Fred C. Quimby is expected to start duties with Universal tomorrow as short subject sales manager. He will handle one and two reel comedies, westerns and dramatic features, but not serials or the International News Weekly.

Quimby has been out of the distributing end of the business for quite a period. At various times, he was reported working on an independent distributing scheme with John S. Woody and will be remembered for his work in organizing Associated Exhibitors, Inc., several years ago.

The Universal sales convention in Chicago was practically brought to

Washington Favors Lifting of Tax On Admissions Up to Fifty Cents

Not Likely That Levy Will be Removed Entirely—Hearing Held Yesterday at Capitol—Closing of 1,400 Theaters in Sixteen Months Partially Blamed on Tax

Washington—It was predicted in well-informed legislative circles here yesterday that if any change is made in the revenue law so far as admission taxes to theaters is concerned, such change would apply to admissions of fifty cents and under.

It is not held likely that the tax will be removed in its entirety. A plea for the repeal of that portion of the revenue law that affects theaters was made yesterday by a delegation representing the industry and composed of Jack S. Connolly, Washington representative of the Hays office, Charles C. Pettijohn, and Joseph R. Dennison, president of the M. P. T. O. of Michigan.

Dennison acted as spokesman for the group and told the Congressional committee that the admission tax was a contributing factor in the closing of 1,400 theaters in the past sixteen months. He was questioned at length by the members of the committee and the fact that the members did indulge in queries of this character was taken to mean that they were unwilling to consider an entire repeal of the tax.

It was apparent that some of the Congressmen favor the repeal on admissions of thirty cents and under while others might favor fifty cents as the line between taxed and untaxed admissions.

Dennison said exhibitors were not asking for the repeal of the seating tax because he said they did not believe they were discriminated against in that respect. Pettijohn produced some figures to show that more than half of the theaters of the country charge admissions under twenty-five cents and that only nineteen throughout the country ask $1 or more.

The question of salaries of stars again came up but Dennison sidestepped this. He expressed the belief that rentals have not advanced much during the past year and indicated that film prices cannot be held responsible for the closing of so many houses.

In The Courts

Spreme Court Justice Cohalan has signed an order in the suit brought by Hugo Riesenfeld against Rialto Prod. Inc., and M. D. Fields and Samuel R. Reece, trading as the Rialto Film Exchange, in which the defendants are directed to surrender to Riesenfeld's attorneys, Thomas & Friedman, films of the series of photoplays made in 1921 known as "Funny Face Comedies." The attorneys are to hold the negative and prints pending the trial of Riesenfeld's suit to declare cancelled a contract made with Rialto for distribution.

The petition alleged that under the agreement Rialto was to distribute the films for three years, but if its credit became impaired and it failed to carry out its financial obligations the contract was to be declared cancelled. Riesenfeld alleged that the contract was transferred to Rialto Film Exchange in November, 1922, in violation of the agreement, and that Fields and Reece have refused to account to him for the proceeds, and the books are in such condition that he is unable to tell the amount due. He said he desired possession of the negatives and prints to make new contracts and to prevent them from being "duped."

Monday Morning

TIME—Any Monday morning.
PLACE—Any Film Row in any Exchange Centre.

CHARACTERS—Two good film salesmen—Abe & Sammie

They meet on the corner; brief case in one hand, bag in the other.

"Hello Sammie, Howya Abe, which way you going—Death Valley? Me, too. Well let's catch that 11.30 and make this trip together. Fine. Wait here about five minutes 'til I go back to the office, the cashier has a couple tickets that the shipper bought to check two features to Whichville. We can use them and save four bucks a piece and make Whichville together. We can buy the cashier a couple good cigars and he'll be happy. I'll get 'em and give 'em to him now.

"Awright Abe, step on it. I gotta hit $2,000 this week and what a chance I've got? But between the two of us we oughta be able to knock off that guy in Whichville fer plenty. You boost my pictures and I'll boost yours. Hear he's gotta lotta open dates.

ON THE TRAIN

"Whatta ya mean these tickets ain't no good? When did that rule go in effect? I been doin' this for the past four years regular once a week and saving enough to pay for my smokes but if you are so cheap we'll pay. Come on Sammie, cough up four bucks ter little Jessie James here and then we can sleep; it takes about two hours to Whichville and I can use it—I was out late last night.

TWO HOURS LATER

"WHICHVILLE!"

"WHICHVILLE!"

"Here we are Sammie grab your bags and let's go. Ever been in this town before? Say I know a swell one here; met her last trip thru. Lets give her a ring from the Station here.

"D—these phones, why don't they have one system like we have in Li'l Old New York. Say Abe what's her name—It ain't Babe is it—Yea? Eddie gave me her name and told me to call her if I ever hit this burg. Got her? Good!

"Hello Babe—how are ya—Fine. Whatta ya say if you get another girl, I got one of the boys with me; the four of us can go some place fer dinner or something. Fine; meetcha in ten minutes.

11 p. m. that night

"Gee Sammie ain't they the darb's?—Say, we just got ten minutes—shall we make this train for Schoolville or see old crabby down at the theater?—I don't think he needs anything anyway; lets pass him up and make Schoolville tonight? Atta boy!

"Wish I hadn't given that cashier them cigars.

This is the little kiddie who, through the generosity of a number of film men, will shortly be united with her father. Her transportation has been arranged for on the return trip of a boat en route to the city in which she is now living.

An additional $5 was contributed yesterday by John D. Clark.

ing films in bond in order to take them suitable for the British market before duty is paid. This enable foreign producers to present their films to British buyers in complete and ready-to-show form, thereby enhancing their value, and by avoiding paying duty on eliminated parts of films which are not used by the censors.

Apparently all that it is necessary for producers here and in other countries to do now is to send their films to London, in care of Bonded Film Sales, which stands willing to look after the censoring and re-editing, provided the shipper has no representative in England.

Drive Against Poor Projectors

Dura Film Protector Company, 220 West 42nd Street,
New York, N. Y.

Gentlemen:

We wish to advise you that we are well pleased with the duratizing we have had done to date. We have kept a very close check on this and find that it is the biggest help we have ever had in keeping our films in first class condition.

For your information we use an inspection in and out card on each print. This card is given the inspector each time she inspects the print and the film is graded according to condition from #1 which represents new film, to #7 which is junk film, and every time the inspector finishes with a print she makes a record on this same card as to the condition of each reel.

For the past year or so we have had a lot of trouble with prints of two reel comedies going to the bad quickly so we decided as a last resort to try duratizing them. We started this as you know, on the 1st of September and some of the first two reels that we had duratized have had as many as forty runs and are still in #1 and #2 condition according to the inspection card. Where heretofore two reel comedies that had had forty runs were usually down to about #4 or #5 condition.

We really believe that duratizing film gives the exhibitor a cleaner print and prolongs the life of the film. We are so well pleased with it that we are giving all of the laboratories instructions to have all of our film duratized - not only the two reel comedies.

Wishing you continued success, we are,

Very truly yours,

Here is how a brother exhibitor put his show over. Send along your ideas. Let the other fellow know how you cleaned up.

A Novel Stunt

New Haven, Conn.—When "Anna Christie" was due to play the Olympia, Tod Browning, the manager, mailed out post cards to a city-wide list, stating that Anna Christie was coming to town. This was done about a week before the opening. Later, another card followed asking the public not to judge her too harshly until they knew all the facts. Then a third told of her arrival, stating that she would tell all at 146 Temple St., Sunday evening, the place and time of the opening.

A Good Emergency Stunt

David Bader, director of exploitation for Century Comedies tells how a Baby Peggy "double" contest was staged, when the picture played the Columbia, Far Rockaway.

When "The Darling of New York" was scheduled to play the Columbia, for two days, he found only a little time to pull the regular ballyhoo stuff. The semi-weekly papers were all ready out. So, he sold a kiddie shop the idea to find the Baby Peggy of the Rockaways. The entire store windows told of the contest.

Gets 75 Special Window Displays

San Francisco—No less than seventy-five stores gave elaborate display advertising "The Country Kid" when it played the California. This was accomplished through the agreement the Warner's have with the Ingersoll Pencil Co. for a co-operative tie-up on both the latter's product and the picture in all stores that handle Ingersoll pencils.

ARTISTRY

By DANNY

When Goldwyn announced Victor Seastrom had been selected to direct in this country a man who knew the ability of a really great artist congratulated those who had engineered the deal. Yesterday at the Capitol Seastrom's first—and so his only picture made in this country was shown. And in the last title appeared and several thousand left the theater, in turn, knew what but a handful of Americans had appreciated—that here was a really great director—a producer of common ability. To say that Victor Seastrom is among the great at the top of the ladder is dressing it mildly.

"Name the Man" based on Halliday's famous story of "The Masque of the Red Death" was the vehicle which Seastrom used to express his ability. He did it wonderfully well. It is not only a great, artistic production, but better still, it spells real life at the box office. What tears women of his country will shed! They will delight in the pathos of the humanness of the story.

And what direction! The temperamental critics raved over the new school of directing as demonstrated in Chaplin's picture. They will see more of it—yes, even better done—with a master hand. And now Seastrom lays his contrast! It balances perfectly. Light and shade; laughter and tears.

is a picture of women—for women. A picture of a false step, and complete regeneration. It is a triumph.

Swanson's Latest

"The Humming Bird"—looks like they are in at the till. Too much war—far too much. Checks the eye and hinders. Would be a lot better without it. Swanson doesn't wear her gorgeous plumage as usual. Appears often dressed as a boy and in as a girl of the Montmartre of Paris. And how your women folk like that remains to be seen. Does some good work however, and you may think her "cute."

"Mabel Normand broke all house records both Friday and Saturday with 'The Extra Girl,'" R. W. McKinney of the Regent Theater, Los Angeles wired J. S. Woody. It's an Associated Exhibitors release—Adv't.

Brady Plans Set?

Reported First Picture Will Be "Simon Called Peter"—Production in Ft. Lee

The New York Herald yesterday stated that William A. Brady had completed plans for the resumption of picture making and that his first picture would be Robert Keable's book, "Simon Called Peter." According to the newspaper, Brady will concentrate his activities in Fort Lee.

"He said his plans had reached the point," the Herald story goes on, "where he could sign the necessary papers today and start production in a week if he so desired."

"Other plays available from his manuscripts are 'Forever After,' by

Moss—Burr Deal

For Production Under Way—One Picture Planned But There May Be Series

B. S. Moss is about to re-enter the production field after an absence of some years. It is understood he has made arrangements to make at least one picture in conjunction with Charles C. Burr and that the plan may be extended to include a series.

Moss will probably be remembered as a picture producer by his "Three Weeks" and "The Salamander." At his office yesterday, he could not be reached for a statement but it was declared that "there was nothing definite" to talk about.

An effort made to communicate with Burr failed.

Universal Executives Return

George Brown, Paul Gulick and Ned Marin, of the home office staff of Universal, returned from the company's sales convention in Chicago yesterday. Earl Kramer, Buffalo; F. C. Hopkins, Albany; Jules Levy, Philadelphia; and S. S. Liggett, New Haven, came back with the party for a short stay here before going home. Al Lichtman returns today with Dick Anderson.

Seeks Special Tax

Kansas Senator Would Collect 25 Cents On Each Admission in a Specified Range of Prices

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—An amendment to the revenue bill when it comes over from the House to be proposed by Senator Curtis (Rep.) of Kansas contemplates a tax of five cents for each twenty-five cents or fraction thereof of the amount paid for admission to any place of amusement where the amount so charged is in excess of twenty-five cents and not in excess of $1. Where the admission is more than $1, a tax of twenty-five cents of each dollar or fraction thereof would be charged.

Under the Curtis proposal, it is further provided in the bill that the revenues collected from Jan. 1, 1924

New Reinforcing Process

A new type of reinforced film has reached the market. The process consists of sewing into the sides of the film a double strand of very strong thread. The manufacturer claims that it will greatly lengthen the life of film which is already worn out at the sprocket holes and says it is particularly useful in continuous advertising machines where the film undergoes great wear and tear. Henry Bollman is the sales agent.

Resumes Old Duties With West Coast Theaters, Inc.—Planned Business of His Own

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—David Bershon, former booking manager for West Coast Theaters, Inc., has reconsidered his resignation which was to become effective on Jan. 1, and is now back again with the Gore Bros.-Lesser interests.

Bershon, at the time of his resignation, planned to enter business for himself but was persuaded to change his mind by Sol Lesser and Mike Gore. At the time he decided to leave West Coast Theaters, it was the belief here and in the East that his decision was influenced by the peculiar position he was placed in continually with distributors with whom he was always doing business. His post was a difficult one to handle because the question of price was always a live issue.

Cost Accounting in Motion Pictures

William R. Donaldson, of Philip N. Miller and Co., has prepared an article titled "Cost Accounting in the Production of Motion Pictures," and published by the National Association of Cost Accountants. It was first read before the New York chapter of the organization.

"Little published data," says Mr. Donaldson, "is available on the principles and the practices of cost accounting in the production of motion pictures. Such a condition is easily understood, for the industry is a comparatively new one and its methods have but recently approached any basis of stabilization. This 'infant industry'—born within the lifetime of most of the readers of this article—has had a prodigious growth. Today, it is one of the foremost in the country, motion picture theaters in the United States alone numbering about 15,000, the attendance at which is estimated at over 50,000,000 per week."

Discussing important considerations in designing a system of accounting, the author says:

"It should be kept uppermost in mind that photoplays are in no sense standard, and that as a result a comparison of costs between them is only of relative value. Furthermore, price setting (ordinarily one of the predominating reasons for securing accurate information) is not determined by the cost of the picture. Any system of accounts installed in a studio, however, should be sufficiently complete and accurate to serve as a proper control of assets and liabilities, including a perpetual inventory of stores and fixed assets, and to permit compilation of reasonably accurate costs of productions made. Since a unit is not standard, no attempt was made in the early years of the industry to strive for accuracy in costing out productions, and producers were content to run their accounts on a cash disbursement basis.

"Outlining any system to be installed in a business that is truly an art, where the products and their component parts are in a great measure entirely dissimilar and where the real value to be measured is rather the 'idea' and the brain effort expended to crystallize it into photographed action, makes the problem a peculiar one. To set up in a production the cost of 'ideas' is impossible, though a considerable portion of the huge amounts expended as salary is paid to persons for the purchase of such ideas and their translation into photographs. While such a person is present in the studio presumably employed upon a certain production, he may be actually formulating ideas for use in succeeding ones. This is further complicated by the fact that during what may be termed 'lost time' (when the employee is absent or unassigned or when he is resting between the completion of one picture and the commencement of a new one, a frequently occurring situation representing large items of cost) such ideas will continue to be formulated and will be embodied in future productions, together with ideas developed entirely outside of 'office hours.'

Chart of Accounts

"This outline of the 'manufacturing process' forms the basis for the system of accounts and records built around a studio's operations to effect the general purposes outlined.

"The chart of organization reproduced here requires no extensive comment. It represents a typical departmental and divisional arrangement of a large studio, working on say eight to twelve pictures at a time, which is equivalent to turning out a product costing about $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 per annum."

Style Cost Sheet

An analysis of cost in production is then reproduced as follows:

The news about Gloria Swanson in Sidney Olcott's production of "The Humming Bird"

Everyone knows it's one of the greatest entertainments in picture history!

The critics analyze it this way:

"One of the best pictures of the year. Everyone is delighted with it. Gloria Swanson ideal. Mr. Olcott has done splendid things with the direction." TRIBUNE

"By all odds the most skillfully acted picture she has ever done. Makes us feel like standing up and yelling 'Bravo, Gloria.' A stirring, gripping, admirable screen play." WORLD

"She is more than a wearer of superb clothes. She expresses the dramatic quality of this odd little heroine to perfection." TELEGRAM

"Good entertainment and well worth seeing." AMERICAN

"Mr. Olcott has done a fine job all the way through. Gloria Swanson most effective." HERALD

"A particularly engrossing picture. One of the best we have ever seen and one in which there is not an uninteresting instant." TIMES

"Masterfully directed, stirring and beautiful. A fascinating bit of entertainment of which we shall always have pleasant memories." MAIL

"One of the most popular stars now acting. You will like 'The Humming Bird.'" EVE. WORLD

"A truly remarkable performance. She is everything the advertisements say she is." SUN

"Could have gone in the Criterion and pulled big money for ten or twelve weeks. A safe bet for anyone, anywhere." TIMES SQUARE DAILY

That's the way the critics'll talk wherever this picture is played.

charge to the burden account on a percentage basis of 20% to 33 1-3% per annum. While this is the easiest way, it does work inequity between pictures. For example: A picture in which most of the action occurs in the 'great outdoors,' drawing but little on the studio stock, is charged equally with a picture in which most of the action takes place in 'interiors' in the studio, drawing heavily on the studio's stock. Where it is the practice to charge depreciation into 'stage overhead' on a percentage basis, and thereby absorb into productions making use of stages, this inequity is not quite so patent, but nevertheless it may well be that one type of picture requires rented props almost exclusively, while another is able to make use of the studio's stock. In such a case it is evident that the former picture would bear a double burden."

Newspaper Opinions

"The Humming Bird"—F. P.-L. Rivoli

AMERICAN—* * * Her (Miss Swanson's) big moment has arrived. Forrest Halsey has enhanced this dramatic occasion by furnishing one of his best scenarios, and Sidney Olcott, who is a director of directors, has given Miss Swan on the benefit of his skill. * * * While "The Humming Bird" is neither new nor especially original * * * it is good entertainment and well worth seeing. Miss Swanson is always interesting.

DAILY NEWS—"The Humming Bird" would merit a classroom rating of about 85 per cent, I think, with credit off for having thrown so much of the burden on the war.

EVENING WORLD—There were some moments of her work that we enjoyed immensely while others were just so-so. If you are a Gloria Swanson fan, and there must be millions, * * * then you will like "The Humming Bird" better than we did.

HERALD—As a matter of fact, Director Sidney Olcott has done this war stuff exceedingly well, and has made his pictures seem eminently real. * * * Mr. Olcott has done a fine job all the way through, particularly in his selection and direction of the cast. * * * Gloria Swanson herself gives a very uneven performance. * * *

MAIL—The film is masterfully directed, stirring and beautiful. Never have we seen Miss Swanson act with such fine zest. * * * The story contains nothing that is striking. It is one that has been told many times on the screen, yet Sidney Olcott, the director, has lifted it above the ordinary and made it a fascinating bit of entertainment of which we shall always have pleasant memories.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—The picture has a true Parisian savor, and Gloria Swanson does much for the rather common-place story by her performance. * * * On the whole, this film is good motion picture entertainment.

POST—"The Humming Bird" is the best thing she has ever done and she proves that she is an actress of no mean ability. * * *

Sidney Olcott, the director, has made a truly good film, full of interest and the fact that it does not resemble the Maude Fulton play does not distract from its quality in the least.

SUN—In the early part of the picture she runs away with everything, giving a truly remarkable performance of a Paris Apache and not caring if it does take the marcel wave out of her hair. Then the picture steps in and runs away with her despite further valiant efforts on her part at acting.

TELEGRAM—Miss Swanson * * * expresses the dramatic quality of this odd little heroine to perfection.

TIMES—This is particularly engraving picture with characters and types carefully selected * * * directed with fidelity and discretion, and something much different from the usual moving pictures. * * * The acting is extremely efficient throughout. It is one of the best pictures of Paris and Apaches we have ever seen, and one in which there is not an uninteresting instant.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—Here is a case of another girl who for years has been used as a clothes mannikin on the screen finally coming into her own in a picture that has the advantage of superb direction at the hands of Sidney Olcott. * * * As a picture this one is a safe bet for anyone anywhere with the advance assurance that it will pull money. * * *

TRIBUNE—Gloria Swanson is an ideal choice for Toinette. * * * She may not be French, but she is refreshing. * * * Mr. Olcott has done splendid things with the direction, and altogether "The Humming Bird" is one of the best pictures of the year.

WORLD—"The Humming Bird" is by all odds the most skilfully acted picture play which she has ever done, so far as we know. It is a stirring, gripping, admirable screen play. Miss Swanson can act. This is a certainty. * * * The "types" are carefully and sensibly selected, and the settings, many of which necessarily were constructed under difficulty, scarcely ever reek of artificiality.

"Let Not Man Put Asunder"—Vita. Rialto

AMERICAN—"Let Not Man Put Asunder," is bad in logic and somewhat dull, but Commodore J. Stuart Blackton has given us some beautiful scenes and sets that help. All in all, including the cast, * * * we have seen much poorer pictures with much less to recommend them for Broadway booking.

DAILY NEWS—The basic idea of this film is sound. Its execution is slightly nutty. * * * Some of the acting is so wild, some of the situations so palpably absurd, that you are inclined to dismiss the good with the bad and give vent to a fervent "tosh."

EVENING JOURNAL—Pauline Frederick, Lou Tellegen, exotic dinner parties, sob-saturated situations, and a constant procession of divorces, constitute "Let Not Man Put Asunder." * * *

EVENING WORLD—It isn't a picture to get wildly excited about, even if Miss Frederick and Lou Tellegen are in it.

MAIL—A preachy tone runs through the whole picture and there are several captions from the Bible.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—It is replete with inconsistencies, numerous sub-titles, and bits of action that convey little and lead nowhere. The scenes are short, and are poorly directed.

TELEGRAM—* * * made very skilfully into an absorbing film drama by J. Stuart Blackton.

WORLD—Except for the familiar competence of Pauline Frederick the picture seems to have no claim whatever for attention as a work of art, a sermon or as an entertainment.

TIMES—The lighting in this picture gives an artificial aspect to many of the scenes. * * * This is not a film we would like to see more than once, and we would willingly have sacrificed the chance of viewing it at all.

TRIBUNE—It is the nominal feature at the Rialto Theater and it seems to be drawing vast crowds. * * *

36 Jewels From "U"

Three-Fold Increase Over Present Schedule—Means $5,000,000 Increase in Production

With the return from Chicago yesterday of Al Lichtman and R. V. Anderson, it was announced that the biggest point decided at the Universal sales convention, was the formulation of plans to make 36 Universal Jewel productions a year, or three times the present number.

This means a production policy which will call for an annual increase of $5,000,000. Carl Laemmle decided upon this course at the solicitation of Lichtman and the assembled exchange managers, who reported that Universal exhibitors wanted more Jewels. Laemmle is now on the Coast to put the program into effect.

Universal officials declared yesterday that this was the biggest single step ever taken by Universal in production.

"Each of these pictures will be sold on its own merits," explained Licht-

$50,000 Action in St. Louis Seen as Aftermath of Christy Cabanne's Venture There

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

St. Louis—An aftermath of William Christy Cabanne's producing venture in conjunction with local people is seen in a suit just filed in the St. Louis Circuit Court by the National City Bank against Florence A. Campbell Van Heel and Klas Van Heel to collect $50,000 on ten promissory notes of $5,000 each executed May 1, 1923, in payment for $50,000 of stock in the William Christy Cabanne Trust Estate formed by Cabanne to produce "The Eternal Force."

The trust had a capitalization of $250,000 and shortly before receivership proceedings in New York the promoters announced that $162,700 in stock had been disposed of. Later it was stated that a number of subscribers had defaulted in their pledges for stock for about $25,000. Recently suit was filed in a Justice of the Peace Court against Mayor Henry W. Kiel of St. Louis to collect $500 alleged to be due on a stock subscription and similar suits are pending against other prominent men in St. Louis business, political and social circles.

Mrs. Campbell Van Heel is the widow of James Campbell, railroad, traction and public utility magnate, who left her an estate valued at $25,000,000 when he died. Van Heel was scheduled to have been made vice-president of Cabanne's organization.

Contract Ready

(3) A clause reserving lease holds on all maritime or oversea (foreign) rights with special reference to the United States Shipping Board and the Navy.

(4) A clause with respect to the granting or leasing of all rights of exhibition on all pictures listed under the agreement making specific provisions for the granting or retention of non-theatrical and theatrical rights.

There is seemingly a division of opinion among members of the committee as to whether the producer should or should not reserve the right to permit re-editing or re-cutting of pictures. The committee is reported to have reached a solution and will draft a clause relative to cutting prints and submit it for the consideration of the association at its next meeting.

Another matter under consideration covers the question of a uniform rebate to the producer or distributor when a picture is condemned in any territory. The committee is also considering the length of time for which pictures will be territorially leased. This phase of the contract, however, will in all probability be left entirely to the discretion of the parties concerned in any deal.

Would Erect New Structure

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Kansas City—Negotiations are understood to be under way for the erection of a new theater to replace the Victory. A syndicate would build an office building of from six to eight stories, with a new theater to be leased for 99 years to the Josephson Amusement Co., present operators of the house. If an agreement is reached, the Victory will close either late in March or April 1 at which time work on the new building will begin.

Spoor Preparing His First

Reinhardt Signs

Famous German Director Placed Under Contract For Five Years By Cosmopolitan

Cosmopolitan announced yesterday that it had engaged Max Reinhardt, the German director, to direct Marion Davies in a series of pictures for a period of five years.

Reinhardt, under the contract, will receive a large salary and will devote twelve weeks in each year to the supervision of the productions. The negotiations with Mr. Reinhardt were conducted personally by William Randolph Hearst, who witnessed the American premiere of "The Miracle" and who was so impressed with the staging that he immediately sought the services of the director.

The German director's new duties probably will take him entirely away from regular stage production. He will begin work upon the production immediately following that of "The Prince Meredith," the name of which has as yet unannounced.

Brady's Production Plans

It is understood that a conference was scheduled for last night between William A. Brady and representatives of the Hodkinson organization, with a view to possible release of Brady's productions through that organization.

"Stick," Says Brady

Former Head of National Body Urges Development of Independent Organization

William A. Brady made, as he put it, his "re-entree" to the picture business yesterday, for the first time since he left the old National Association, when he was the chief speaker at the first public luncheon held by the new organization of Independent M. P. Producers and Distributors Ass'n.

He started off by saying that he had studiously avoided making any public statements since Will Hays took up the work, and said he wanted to congratulate Hays on what he had done for the good of the industry.

Brady urged the independents to stick together and predicted that

J. Gordon Edwards has started work on "It Is the Law" at the local Fox studio. Herbert Hayes is prominent in the cast.

Flint Coming East

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Los Angeles—Motley Flint left here yesterday for New York.

A Release Weekly

From Famous Between March 3 and July 1—Lubitsch-Negri Film on List

Famous Players yesterday announced a series of seventeen pictures, designed for weekly release beginning March 3 and ending July 1. Prominent in the list is "Montmartre," a Pola Negri picture made in Europe by Ernest Lubitsch and said by Lubitsch's friends to be the finest Lubitsch picture yet to reach the screen.

The company's announcement stressed the point that in each studio there has been established an estimating department, composed of production experts, whose duty it is to go over each script with the director and scenario writer and estimate the cost of every scene in the picture before any photographing is done at all.

Aside from the names of those pictures which were announced for release, there was also included several properties which will be shortly placed in production. Some of these titles such as "Merton of the Movies" and "Monsieur Beaucaire," have already been announced but in addition in the list included "The Swan" which is one of the stage successes of the New York season; "Tomorrow's Bread," and "Feet of Clay," both of which will be made by Cecil B. De Mille and "The Salamander," which was once before produced by B. S. Moss.

Leatrice Joy will be formally introduced as a star in "Take It or Leave It," which Joseph Henabery will direct.

The seventeen pictures listed follow:

William S. Hart in "Singer Jim McKee," directed by Clifford S. Smith.

Famous to Build in Tampa

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Tampa—Famous Players has taken over a piece of property on Franklin St., on which a 2,000 seat theater will be built. The company at present operates four houses here.

Atlanta Project on Tap

Harold B. Franklin of Famous declared yesterday that no decision had been reached about a project to build a theater at Peachtree and Cain Sts., Atlanta. Newspapers in that city declare that Louis Cohen of Southern Enterprises, Inc., has practically closed negotiations and that the house will be operated jointly by Famous and the Keith interests. The reported cost is $750,000.

In The Courts

Supreme Court Justice McCook has denied the application of Leon D. Britton, Inc. and Leon D. Britton, to dismiss as against the Brittons a suit by Albert Calaza for an injunction and accounting. He sues Fox Films, Firpo and Tex Rickard in addition to Britton, alleging that Britton gave Firpo the right to distribute films of the Firpo, Willard, McAuliffe and Floyd Johnson fights in the South American countries and Firpo assigned the right to him. He asserts that Fox obtained films of the fights and is using them in violation of the contract.

Papers have been filed in the Supreme Court in a suit of Abraham L. Levy against Charles O. Baumann on a note for $2,500. They showed that a process server tried for fifteen days in December and January to serve the papers personally on Baumann both at his office, and his residence, 180 Riverside Drive, but couldn't find him. It was alleged that Mrs. Baumann refused to say where her husband could be found. The note was made last fall and was due in sixty days.

when business depressions developed, that then, with the proper kind of an organization, the Independents would come into their own, and be the most important factors in the country "because the other fellows won't be able to weather the storm."

He dwelt on the evils of the star system, and the place the independent producer held in the picture business. He ended by declaring they could call on him day or night, that he would go anywhere for them, from the Pacific to the Atlantic Coast, or "to hell."

L. K. Bartlett told of conditions in England and Martin Quigley, of "The Exhibitors Herald," spoke briefly on the importance of organization to the independents.

The I. M. P. P. D. A. now has a total of eighteen members. An executive meeting was held yesterday following the open discussion at which five new members were elected: Anchor Film Distributors, Inc., Artclass Pictures, Canyon Pictures, Ben Wilson Pictures Corp. and Fidelity Pictures.

Lang Re-elected A. D. A. Head

The Assistant Directors Ass'n of New York held their semi-annual election Wednesday evening. Walter Lang was re-elected president. Bert E. Siebel was elected vice-president; Charles Berner, treasurer, and Walter R. Sheridan, secretary. Seven members were elected to serve on the Board of Governors, comprising George Cline, chairman; John V. DeLacy, John Coleman, Michael Mig-gins, Leon d'Usseau, Bert Tvey and Ben Behrens.

Wittman Re-elected President

At the recent election of the Bronx M. P. T. O. Ass'n, John J. Wittman was re-elected president, his twelfth term. John C. Bolte was re-elected vice-president for the fourth time; Henry Cole, executive secretary; J. Rothman, treasurer; L. Jacobs, three year trustee; A. Leff, two year trustee; H. Stravita, one year trustee, and William Wilson, sergeant-at-arms.

Mr. C. R. Seelye,
1650 Broadway, N. Y. C.
Dear Mr. Seelye:

Jan. 16, 1924

We control three leading theatres in Schenectady, The State, Strand and Albany. We therefore have choice of most of best pictures made. Your picture, "Daughters of Today," which we are running this week, is one of the best pictures ever produced. The following box office receipts for first four days of "Daughters of Today" as compared with other big pictures proves this.

	Daughters of Today	Flaming Youth	Little Old N. Y.	White Rose	Common Law	Ashes of Vengeance	Main Street	Woman Proof
Sat.	$1,800.05	$1,259.70	$1,044.63	$834.39	$913.62	$928.55	$892.40	$868.01
Sun.	1,905.40	1,487.10	1,269.42	917.55	805.74	882.75	1,002.60	848.20
Mon.	480.20	308.15	453.15	320.69	353.22	399.03	281.21	192.88
Tues.	460.55	370.75	516.58	219.59	685.15	495.73	309.84	137.25
	$4,646.20	$3,425.70	$3,283.78	$2,292.22	$2,757.73	$2,706.66	$2,486.05	$2,046.34
Daughters of Today grossed more by	$1,220.50	$1,362.42	$2,353.98	$1,888.47	$1,940.14	$2,160.15	$2,599.86

Flaming Youth, which stands next to your picture in the above table, in seven days grossed $4,337.15 which is $309.05 less than "Daughters of Today" has grossed in four days. Little Old New York had Thanksgiving week and Ashes of Vengeance had New Year's week. You will also note that with but one exception each of the above pictures are released by different companies, First National, Goldwyn, United Artists, Selznick, Warners and Famous Players.

Based on the figures for the first four days and considering the fact that matinees have been far in excess of matinees on other pictures I feel certain that all Schenectady records will be broken by your picture and this does not bar the records in Schenectady of Robin Hood, Knighthood or Harold Lloyd.

Our advertising appropriation, spent in newspapers, on most of the above pictures varied from $250 to $500. On your picture we will expend less than $100. More advertising was not needed because in the newspapers, magazines, pulpits and schools as well as in nearly every home there is daily discussion of the theme of your picture, the conduct and habits of the young women of today. All classes of patrons have congratulated us for running such an interesting and pleasing picture and one which drives home such an excellent moral lesson regarding life today.

Yours very truly,

WILLIAM M. SHIRLEY,
Vice President and Managing Director.

Putting it Over

Here is how a brother exhibitor puts his show over. Send along your ideas. Let the other fellow know how you cleaned up.

Two New Houses for Boston
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Boston—Two new vaudeville-picture theaters are under way here. One, the new Keith house, is going up at the corner of Washington and Essex Sts., while the other is the new Gordon, to be built on property adjoining the Wilbur theater on Tremont St.

Can't Stop "Birth of Nation"
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Wichita, Kans.—The City of Wichita has been restrained from interfering with the showing of "The Birth of A Nation." Robert C. Foulston, city counselor, declares the picture will not in the future be interfered with here.

Would Tax St. Louis Theaters
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
St. Louis—Alderman Samuel Wimer, who has introduced more freak and unpopular bills probably than all the other members of that board, has presented a measure to the aldermen providing for a tax of one mill on each 50-cent theater admission.

Seattle Theaters Cut Prices
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Seattle—The Coliseum has reduced admission prices to twenty-five cents. The Heilig recently announced a twenty-five cents admission as part of its new policy. It is not believed this will cause other houses to reduce their admissions.

Ridge Ave. House Reopens
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Philadelphia—The Ridge Avenue theater will be reopened the latter part of this month as the Elk. The house has been closed for about a year. H. L. Kapner of the Jefferson and Park, will assume management.

Brady With Metro
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Buffalo—Tom Brady, recently manager of the Buffalo Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan office, has become associated with Metro. He will handle "The White Sister" and "Scaramouche."

"Covered Wagon" In Phila. Jan. 21
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Philadelphia—Randolph Hartley, advance exploitation agent for "The Covered Wagon," is here getting things ready for the opening of that picture at the Forrest on Monday.

Party For Heenan
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Philadelphia—William J. Heenan, manager for First National will be given a birthday party tomorrow night at the Majestic Hotel by exhibitor and exchange friends.

Held for Showing Without License
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Oswego, N. Y.—George W. Ripley is being held by a grand jury on bail, charged with showing films without the State censor's license.

West Coast Still Growing
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Los Angeles—West Coast Theaters, Inc. have acquired the new Balboa and the Cabrillo in San Diego.

"Buddie" Stuart Scores

Boston—"Buddie" Stuart, F. B. O.'s exploitation man is credited with putting across a very successful campaign for "The Mailman," during the run of that picture at Fay's theater. His campaign incorporated several new and unusual features, among which are:

Stuart had a trailer made showing the inside workings and details of the local post-office, this trailer, together with the regular trailer, was used about a week in advance of the opening. A letter carrier, in uniform, made speeches twice daily for several days in advance of the showing. He told of the hardships the mailmen undergo in the faithful discharge of his duties and the small pay he receives. The talk ended by telling how true to life Emory Johnson's, "The Mailman" was.

Arrangements were made with the postmaster to have the carriers distribute envelopes addressed "A message from the mailman," with a two-faced card on the inside, one side carrying an ad on "The Mailman" and the other urging the recipient to write his congressman in behalf of the mailmen.

On Sunday all local post-office employees, mailmen, etc., and their families attended a special showing of the picture, at which the mailmen's band gave a concert in front of the house.

Another stunt that proved effective was the use of a 24-sheet poster as a curtain which was lowered at each performance. The back of a regular drop-curtain was used on which one of the 24-sheet posters was pasted. This was lowered at each performance while the house was dark and a spotlight thrown on it.

Plenty of free newspaper publicity and advertising put the campaign over with a smash.

Tie-up With Realtors

Los Angeles—Although the campaign used for boosting the premiere showing of "The Man That Life Passed By," at Loew's State, consisted mostly of the regular variety, still there were a few stunts that attracted attention. Phil Geresdorf, Metro, was in charge.

A large number of window cards were distributed throughout the city. The local newspapers all carried free publicity, besides the regular ad announcements. Tie-ups were made with local real estate dealers. Special window cards were gotten up which read like this: "Don't be the man life passed by. Own your own home," with the usual opening wording. A man dressed like Percy Marmont appeared on all the principal streets with a mask, carrying a sign that read "The Man Life Passed By."

Stringing 'Em Along

Waterloo, Ia.—Manager Weld arranged a special campaign when he played "Circus Days," at the Strand.

He made a novel display of the tent lobby, he artistically clad usherettes who resembled a part of Mr. Ringling's trained equestriennes and put the freaks on exhibition. His biggest drawing card was the humorous slant given the display by titles. Some were:

"Caucasian Whutizit! Don't get too near, it's almost human." This was a mirror freak. "Egyptian Guseba. Captured in King Tut's tomb. Only one in captivity. So small it is invisible to the naked eye." Hundred strained their eyes to find out what that cage contained. It was empty. "Grecian groundhog. Native of the city of Hamburg in the Sandwich Islands. Caught in the panhandle district after a hot chase through Greece." The Grecian groundhog was represented by a hamburger sandwich. "Mexican chinchilla! Spooning specie. Deadly foe of bugs and cockroaches. Usually found near food geysers and hot dog joints." The deadly "chinchilla" was a bowl of chili and a spoon. "Irish Red Bat. Flying variety. Captured near the coast of Ireland as it darted from a chimney toward the earth." It was simply a brick.

The idea of kidding the show along got over, combined with an attractive lobby.

Putting The Lobby To Work

Portland, Ore.—Careful attention to detail contributed greatly to the drawing power of the lobby arranged by Manager Stille of the Liberty, for "The Fighting Blade." An account of the front is found below:

A beaver board castle with crossed swords and a roof where the joints were cut off in squares. The lobby displays around the box-office were distinguished by the arrangement of the stills, placed so as to overlap the edges of the shield. Handsomely bordered insert displays at each side of the entrance resembling a mirrored reflection.

Crescent To Have Sales Drive
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Kansas City—The Crescent exchange will dedicate March as Crescent Month. A sales campaign will be featured by the Kahns. As a cooperative measure with exhibitors, a posters, accessories, etc., will be supplied at half price.

Hubbard, 2nd, Plans Theater
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
East Aurora, N. Y.—Backed by local capital, Elbert Hubbard, 2nd., will erect a new theater here.

GET THIS RIGHT!

We've hit a tremendous winner in our first picture—but we are playing fair (This is our policy).

This big box-office bonanza will not be "Rough Showed"! It will be sold on the First Equal Contract ever offered you!

YOUR voice, Mr. Exhibitor, raised in protest against the evil of the over-long, padded feature, is being heard. The first signs have been seen of a move by some producers toward a more reasonable average length for feature pictures.

This is not victory for you, however. It is only the first sign of coming victory—if you keep up the fight.

Don't let your protests weaken, but rather make them louder now that you are sure they are being heard. Remember that you can't use Real Showmanship when you book a picture so long that it leaves no room for anything else on your program.

Hurst To Produce

ans Pictures for Principal—Aside from Long Island Studio Proposition

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Albany—Eastern Productions, of New York, have been incorporated here, listing 600 shares of common stock, no par value. The incorporators are Charles S. Hervey and William O. Hurst. M. L. Lesser is the attorney.

W. O. Hurst has engaged space at the Glendale studio where he will produce "The Masked Dancer," an adaptation of the German stage play, "The Woman of the Mask" by Rolf Lotchar. It will be distributed through Principal on a franchise basis and there is a possibility that Hurst will make a series for that Company. Burton King has been engaged to direct also Helene Chadwick and Powell Sherman for the leading roles. This producing project is aside from the nine-stage studio which Hurst is sponsoring. A site has been secured in Long Island City. It covers about three and a half city blocks bounded by Skillman Ave. on the south; Dickson St. on the west; Midway Ave. on the north and Woodside Ave. on the east. The road is on the Roosevelt Ave. subway line and is about three minutes from Bridge Plaza.

Actual construction will probably started in March.

Mabel Normand in "The Extra Girl," a box office winner wherever it has played, opens a run at the Central Theater, New York today. It's distributed by Associated Exhibitors.—Adv't.

Another Contract

T. O. D. C. Frames One With Original Objectionable Clauses Removed

The Theater Owners' Distributing Corp., of which W. A. Truc is president and Sydney S. Cohen, chairman of the board of directors, has developed a uniform contract of its own. It is called the "Theater Owners Standard Contract" and is to come into being with the release of "After the Ball," through Anderson Pictures.

Carl Anderson on Friday issued a long statement tracing the history of uniform contracts from the time the first conferences were held by committees of the Hays organization and of the M. P. T. O. A. The statement declared that after the present form of contract was finally developed it was adopted by the distributors but not by the exhibitors because, the statement averred, "many claimed that the very things for which they had fought the hardest were denied them."

His contract, Anderson said, contained seven items which had not been agreed to by the exhibitors and which they contended could be overcome "if the distributors desired to play fair." Anderson then apparent-

Reinhardt

Master craftsman. Producer of unusual ability. Just signed by Hearst. For Cosmopolitan. Which may mean much to picture making—and makers—of this country. Great genius that he is, it takes but a visit to the Century to see "The Miracle" to have this demonstrated. For after all "The Miracle" is really a living motion picture. In all the three and a half hours of the show there is but one point where words are used. And then only to hear a part of the Lord's Prayer, spoken by the penitent heroine. Otherwise it is all pantomime. But such pantomime!

Every motion picture director—every producer—should see this spectacle. For groupings; for effects; for touches; for probably the finest handling of a crowd ever seen in the theater. And for much more; which lack of space prevents describing. But the producer, the director, who can, and fails to see this is trifling with his opportunities.

It will be absorbingly interesting to watch what Reinhardt does with an American producer. In Hearst he has as an aid a visionary; a dreamer, whose greatest difficulties to date have been that he has been unable to develop his organization to meet those dreams. Perhaps Reinhardt will aid.

Boom In Japan

Business Has Not Suffered Because of Earthquake, Film Man Writes
Louis Auerbach

Although fifty picture houses were destroyed in Tokio by the Japanese earthquake, a well known film man has written Louis Auerbach, vice-president of Export and Import, that business has not suffered.

"I have not had the pleasure of addressing you since the earthquake catastrophe owing to press of work in order to get my affairs into working order again," says the letter, in part, "as you no doubt can understand it has been impossible to attend to foreign correspondence when everything was in such a state of disorder that our very existence was for a time at stake.

"However, I am glad to say that some order has been regained, and no doubt Tokio will be just as busy and prosperous within a very short time. As you are primarily interested in the picture world in Japan, I would like to say that although some 50 picture houses were destroyed, business has not suffered. In fact, at present picture houses are doing an enormous business owing to lack of attractions in other lines. All the houses which were destroyed are being put up as quick as possible.

Coast Unit Formed

Producers' Organization Gets Incorporation Papers—Active Since the Summer

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Articles of incorporation for the Ass'n of Motion Picture Producers, Inc. have been filed here.

The fifteen original incorporators are:

Associated First National Pictures, Inc.; Christie Film Co. Inc.; Famous Players-Lasky Corp., Fox Vaudeville Co., Thomas H. Ince Corp., Louis B. Mayer Studios, Inc.; Metro Pictures Corp., Principal Pictures Corp., Hal Roach Studios, Joseph M. Schenck Prod., B. P. Schulberg Prod., United Studios, Inc.; Universal Pictures Corp., Vitagraph Co. of California and Warner Brothers.

Courtland Smith, secretary of the Hays association, stated Friday that the new coast unit has been functioning since the summer. It is a new organization of producers, to succeed the former M. P. Producers Ass'n which collapsed following the M. P. Revue and Exposition held in Los Angeles in June. Smith declared that the formality of getting a name for it had been neglected until now. The Ass'n of M. P. Producers, Inc., will be the name for the West Coast office of the Hays organization as well as that of the producers who are members of it.

Music Publishers to Produce

It is understood that a syndicate of music publishers will jointly produce a series of pictures starring Mary Kissell at the Peerless Studios in Fort Lee. The first will be "The Flaming Highway" and will go into production in February. Miss Kissell has appeared in a number of pictures. It is reported Kenneth Webb will direct the first.

"The Puritans," Maude Adams' First

"The Puritans" will be the first production of the Film Guild in which Maude Adams will assist in supervision and direction. This production is one of the Yale University series of "Chronicles of America." Casting will probably begin next week. After "The Puritans" is under way the Guild will start work on "Aladdin."

Another Contract

ly got busy in drawing up an agreement that would eliminate those clauses to which the Cohen group objected.

"Such important questions," said the statement, "as the ownership of accessories, cash deposits, right to cut out scenes of advertising or propaganda, requirements that the exhibitor must name the producer and distributor in his paid newspaper advertising, method of fixing playdates and time limit for rejection of applications together with method of arbitration—all of these important points were left unsettled by the national organization of producers' and distributors' contract. In the new contract all of these points are said to have been overcome by their elimination or adjustment' and it is this 'Theater Owners Standard Contract' that Anderson Pictures will use beginning with its first release."

When the Hays office was asked about the Anderson contract on Friday, no one there had heard of it. It was very clearly recalled, however, that at the time the Cohen group withdrew from the Hays conferences, objections had been raised to only four of the twenty-one clauses while seventeen had been approved.

Bollman Gets Hunt Film

Henry Bollman has closed a distribution contract with Producers Security Corp. for "Vanishing Game Trails of Africa," a feature produced by William P. Harris, Jr. It is a record of a five months' expedition into the heart of the big game country. Major A. R. Dugmore was associated with Harris in the expedition.

Gold" and "Lilies of the Field." The latter with Corinne Griffith—back and all. Every time Dick reaches the Coast he feels good. But his chief reason for feeling good this time is that he won't go back there very often. First National will produce chiefly in the East. After April. And then one of Rowland's choicest dreams will come true.

PRODUCING NEAR THE BANK

One of Rowland's strongest reasons for making pictures in the East: He maintains—and has a lot of company—that no other manufacturing business on earth would have a factory 3,200 miles away from the executive offices. And he's right. But for years there has been developed an idea that Hollywood was the only place to make pictures.

All of which is the bunk. There are, of course, many good reasons for producing in Hollywood. But to say it is the only place—well, forget it. Bob Kane has proven that good pictures can be made at a profitable figure in Paramount's Long Island studio. Other producers have proven Eastern pictures can be right—take "Potash and Perlmutter" for instance. Fitzmaurice is making another one here now—"Cytherea." Sid Olcott has made some mighty fine pictures here. And there are too many others to mention.

SEGREGATION WORKS POORLY

When you get a lot of people of one kind—with one thought—one idea—segregated; it works for mischief. Every once in a while the Pennsylvania State police have to go into the coal mining towns and club a few Poles into understanding of law and order. Put a hundred novelists in one hotel. Let them see no others, hear no others and only have a chance to squabble about their work and they'll need the police, too. That's natural.

And that's the chief difficulty with Hollywood. Several thousand boys and girls out there making pictures. Nothing else to do. No diversion, worth talking about. One little cafe; one hotel to dance in; one theater—up next month. No wonder things happen when a lot of young people with big incomes, and time on their hands seek to break the monotony of things. Put that same crowd in any big city—with its many diversions, and you'll end all these messy stories. Each of which costs this business untold fortunes.

THAT BANK

Some weeks ago there was a lot of talk in the newspapers of a motion picture bank being formed. And all the boys who are in the hands of the bonus gang wondered when the good news was going to prove true. And they are still waiting.

STUDIO STUFF

When Gloria Swanson completed her latest "She Laughs Last" at the Long Island studio she gave a tea to all the working force. To celebrate the event. One of the electricians was told it was going to be a formal affair. So he made a deal with the Wardrobe Dept. folks. And strolled in dressed in a dinner jacket. And a lot of fancy fixings. Only to be told that dinner clothes weren't used at tea time. Couldn't understand it.

Maybe he had seen a Cecil DeMille society drama.

MANNY'S CHANCE

Manny is a trap drummer. Formerly of the Rivoli orchestra. But switched to the Rialto last week. To help put over Earl Hurd's "Pen and Ink Vaudeville." And got away with it. Incidentally used a new contraption to make a sound like singing. Hurd is so tickled to death with the result that he will buy Manny a new drum. Maybe.

PETE SMITH'S LOVE

Writes Pete Smith from ye Coast:

"Dear Danny:—

I note in your Dec. 30 issue what "Vee-Dee" says about press agents. As a humble P. A. I would like to say:

I love the movie editor.

I love the nice fellow who tells you he is going to use your stuff, makes you give it to him exclusively—and the next day informs you it was 'crowded out.'

I love the gent who drops in around lunch time regularly.

I love the gink who never comes around excepting he has a hunch on a scandal story.

I love the editor who thinks he is the only critic in town whose reviews amount to anything.

I love the gent who insists upon original copies of all stories—but never opens your envelope.

I love the person who dams the press agent but depends upon said P. A. for the material he uses in his paper.

I love the gentle soul who always insists upon ten pair of passes to everything—but uses none.

I love the fellow who is too busy to see you on an important story because he is writing a four line quip about nothing in particular.

I love Los Angeles because it is free of these types.

I love all editors but I often not only wonder why some of them are, but how they could ever be?"

CARDS OR PICTURES—WHICH?

Which affects the morals of a community the more—playing cards or seeing pictures on Sunday?

Howard Bryant, president of the City Council of Baltimore is finding out. Has sent a questionnaire to a lot of mayors in various cities, trying to determine.

There is a censor commission in Baltimore. Acting for the State. And Sunday shows are prohibited in Baltimore. Possibly the Bryant idea may develop into Sunday shows in Baltimore.

THE RIGHT SPIRIT

Next month is Laemmle month. And the Universal crowd are on their toes. To make a record. To help out in this Adolph Zukor has written Laemmle he wants to co-operate "in a business way" to make the celebration a success.

Of course Laemmle is happy over the idea. And so expresses himself to Zukor.

That's the right spirit. That's what this business has needed for years. If there was more of this sort of thing—and less of the rest of things that need not be mentioned—this business would get a lot further a lot quicker.

Incidentally many other executives might write Laemmle. And offer to co-operate. He's done a lot for this business. For them.

PAGING THE AUTHOR

While "resting"—during the legal squabble with Famous-Valentino wrote two books. One on keeping fit and healthy; the other a small volume of poems. This is sure: the volume on keeping in good physical condition may get nowhere. But how his flapper fans will eat up his poetry!

STEPPING OUT

The re-built Hodkinson organization. Takes a big breath of new life by signing up Alan Crosland to do two with Betty Compson. And they do say that there are other ideas being worked out. Which should make Hodkinson verra, verra important in the season to come.

IT'S A BUSINESS

Independent exchangeman. Typical of today. In an independent producer's office. Wants some pictures for his territory. You know the kind I mean. Says he never gave a note in payment for film in his life. Always pays cash. Three buttons, a shoe hook, and $4 for a $20,000 picture.

They are talking about a picture. Exchangeman wants to know if it has thi-r-rills. Yes, says producer. Has it action? Yes. Is it rough and ready? Yes. ARE THERE ANY HORSE IN IT? What do you want with horses? says the producer. Must have horses. NO; WE HAVE NO HORSES—WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE? If you don't have horses, says the exchangeman, you can't put them on the posters, and I must have a horse on every poster I have on a picture. That's the only kind I can see

DANN

"The Love Master"
 Producer: Lawrence Trimble
 Distributor: First National
 a Whole.... STRONGHEART
ONCE MORE ACQUITS HIMSELF CREDITABLY IN PICTURE THAT'S FULL OF BEAUTIFUL LOCATIONS AND MIGHTY INTERESTING DOG ACTING.
 st.... The wonder dog at his best in story that, while probably not as good as some others he has appeared in, gives him ample opportunity to be appealing. Some other clever animals give Strongheart excellent support, particularly Lady Jule. Lillian Rich, Harold Austin and John A. Richardson, the heroine-hero-villain trio of the human angle of the story, but far less interesting than the dogs.
Type of Story.... Drama of the frozen North. As in previous productions exploiting the unusual instinct and almost human characteristic of Strongheart, "The Love Master," once again gives the dog star a chance to do the sort of things that have already gained a following for him. He's a loyal protector for the man who befriends him, loyal to the extent that he fights for him, guards him, works for him and once, when the man is near death, the dog's remarkable behavior, a wild barking that might be construed as a violent prayer, appears to be the means of the man's recovery. There are numerous similar incidents that make the offering rich in human interest. The picture is beautiful to look upon. There is one gorgeous shot after another of wonderful snow-covered country, scenes showing the dog sleds racing up and down the mountains and splendid sunset views. Scenically the film is superb. The actual plot is conventional, dealing with hero's love for the girl and the attempt of villain to take her away which is frustrated by the appearance of the dog who brings hero to the scene.
Box Office Angle.... This is a good audience picture. There are but few people who are not interested in dogs, especially a dog as unusual and with such remarkable human instinct as Strongheart.
Exploitation.... Probably the best means of acquainting your folks with "The Love Master," is a trailer that will give them an idea of the picture, its splendid pictorial appeal and the clever work of the dog. Use plenty of stills in the lobby and especially one showing Strongheart with his "wife and family." If you have snow during the showing, it would be very good advertising to rig up a dog sled and have it driven about to advertise the picture. Most any kennel would be glad to cooperate with you by lending dogs.
Direction.... Lawrence Trimble; satisfactory.
Hours.... Lawrence Trimble and Gene Murfin
Scenario.... The same
Cameraman.... Charles E. Dreyer
Photography.... Very good
Locale.... The North
Length.... About 7,000 feet

Betty Compson in
"Woman to Woman"
 Selznick Distributing Corp.
 As a Whole..... ONE OF THE BEST ENGLISH MADE PRODUCTIONS EVER SHOWN HERE. BETTY COMPSON DOES HER BEST WORK IN PATHETIC STORY THAT BRAVES AN UNHAPPY ENDING.
Star.... Probably her best performance since "The Miracle Man." Gives a really sincere and effective interpretation in the role of a French dancer, victim of a war romance. Very pretty in some close-ups and usually well lighted.
Cast.... Clive Brook's work satisfactory but he's rather a cold type for the work. Marie Ault pleasing as the dancer's companion and maid. M. Peter, the child, poorly suited and Josephine Earle adequate as the society wife.
Type of Story.... Romantic drama with tragic ending. Deloryse, little French dancer, holds sacred the memory of her lover, David, who is called to war on the eve of their marriage. Shellshock erases Deloryse from David's mind and he becomes the husband of an English woman who refuses to bear him a child. A dramatic meeting with the dancer restores David's memory. Deloryse agrees to part with her son—and David's—that he may have a name, then performs her "death dance" at a fete given by David's wife, thus bringing the story to a tragic close. There is nothing offensive in the illegitimacy angle of the theme. It is carefully handled and the story beautifully told and with the interest well sustained, except for occasional unnecessary detail. The production is very good and with many unusually artistic effects, especially in settings and lighting.
Box Office Angle.... A very good picture but just what it merits as a box office attraction is doubtful because of the tragic ending, a perfectly logical one; but it won't satisfy where they still want sugar-coated endings. The picture will go out with this ending but exchanges will be able to supply you with an alternate happy ending, if you think it will put it over to better advantage.
Exploitation.... Here's a fine one for your women folks. Give them the problem presented and get them interested through catchlines: "If you found the man you loved, and the father of your boy, married to another woman, would you give her your child? See how it works out in 'Woman to Woman.'" Play up the romantic angle with suggestion of a love story, a little French dancer and a British officer, the principals. Use Betty Compson's name prominently and show stills in her dancing costume.
Direction.... Graham Cutts; very effective.
Author.... Michael Morton
Scenario.... Alfred J. Hitchcock
Cameraman.... Claude McDowell
Photography.... Good
Locale.... England and France
Length.... 6,994 feet.

Gloria Swanson in
"The Humming Bird"
 Paramount
 As a Whole.... MINUS HER GORGEOUS GOWNS GLORIA SWANSON GIVES A STRIKING PERFORMANCE AS A PARISIAN WAIF BUT WOMEN FANS WILL MISS HER USUAL REGAL ATTIRE.
Star.... Does very good work, almost equalling that of "Zaza"—her characterization of the Montmartre girl who, at times disguised as a boy, becomes notorious as "The Humming Bird," a thief. Offers opportunities which are not lost but the important question remains whether the women who crowd in to see Gloria want to have her appear in such characterizations. Her wardrobe, her unusual ability to dress a part, has materially aided in building her present strong position.
Cast.... Unimportant. Edward Burns makes a handsome but somewhat weak lover. There is little for others to do.
Type of Story.... The love affair of a Montmartre waif for a newspaper correspondent; how she ceases thieving and the natural climax after his heroic war record. Not very much of a story and they have padded it to extremes with too much footage of war shots, soldiers marching etc. unnecessary. Drags picture considerably.
Box Office Angle.... Where they like Gloria they will probably "eat" this and like it. Your women fans, however, may be disappointed in not seeing her usual collection of bizarre costumes.
 On the other hand you can well promise that Gloria's work here fulfills the promise she gave in "Zaza" when she showed she could really act. She has passed the point where she need be figured just as a splendidly dressed actress.
Exploitation.... Play up Gloria all you can. Some fans may remember the title as that of a very successful play of some years ago but take no chances. Use Sidney Olcott's name and recall such of his recent productions as "The Green Goddess" and "Little Old New York." The Parisian atmosphere of the story may also be exploited to attract them. Stunts to put the picture over might include the distribution of small celluloid birds with tags attached reading: "Let 'The Humming Bird' guide you to the blank theater where you'll see Gloria Swanson as an Apache." Your lobby, attractively decorated with birds in cages will also bring them in. These might readily be secured from a local bird shop.
Direction.... Sidney Olcott; fair. Parisian women do not swagger as Gloria does. His touches, however, are excellent, especially in the earlier portions of the picture.
Author.... Maude Fulton
Scenario.... Forrest Halsey
Cameraman.... Harry Fishbeck
Photography.... Good
Length.... 7,577 feet.

"Name The Man"
 Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan
 As a Whole..... TREMENDOUS DRAMA, MAGNIFICENTLY PRODUCED. GREAT ENTERTAINMENT FOR YOUR WOMEN PATRONS. SEASTROM'S DIRECTION SUPERB.
Cast.... Conrad Nagle gives one of very best performances—probably his very best. Mae Busch excellent as the "wronged girl." Patsy Ruth Miller of "The Hunchback" fame has a saccharine role. Hobart Bosworth gives the outstanding performance of the production. Others, excepting Creighton Hale, unimportant.
Type of Story.... Strong drama, based upon Hall Caine's famous novel, "The Master of Man" which deals with the betrayal of a country girl by the man who succeeds his father as the Chief Justice of the Isle of Man, and subsequent developments when, arrested for the murder of her child, she is sentenced to be hung by the infant's father. The regeneration of the man, and the happy ending, complete the story. This brief outline fails in many ways to indicate the strength, power and interest which the story holds. Most important, in this connection is the treatment of the subject and the direction of Seastrom. The skill; the cleverness of handling his cast; his ability, by touches, to put over essentials, is unusual and excellent.
 The usual strength of a Hall Caine story is there, and in spots where censors wield wicked shears there may be some difficulty. But this should be overcome easily. It is strong gripping drama, of the type of "Anna Christie." If this went over well with your people this later subject should prove a big winner.
Box Office Angle.... Of particularly strong appeal to women. Love story will hold them to the very end. Unusual treatment of rather old theme.
Exploitation.... You will have to depend upon Hall Caine's name, together with the players mentioned, because American fans as a whole are not familiar with the great work of Victor Seastrom whose first American production, however, will place him in the front ranks here. He has made a really great picture. You can make strong promises for this one.
Direction.... Victor Seastrom; has made one of the finest pictures of this era of big, important productions.
 Keep your eye on Seastrom. He is liable to do some things that will make him one of the most important directors in this country. He is one of the greatest of the foreign lot. Incidentally, if they can prevail on him to act in one of his productions he will also prove surprising.
Author.... Hall Caine
Scenario.... Paul Bern
Cameraman.... Charles Van Enger
Art Director.... Cedric Gibbons
Photography.... Magnificent
Locale.... The Isle of Man
Length.... 7,771 feet.

Investigation Of Five Southern States Shows Exhibitors Are Willing To Cooperate

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
New Orleans, La.—Mrs. Elizabeth Werlein, new director of public relations for the Saenger Amusement Co. finds that exhibitors are willing to cooperate in making their theaters community centers and in building up a demand for a better class of pictures. Mrs. Werlein after making a survey finds:

Before I started I thought it might be interesting to see what the response might be to the idea of a public relations department among exhibitors in New Orleans. I was limited for time so decided to go on just one and choose the Saenger Amusement Co. They were not enthusiastic about the idea and needed every help and cooperation possible—gave me letters to all the exhibitors they thought it might be interesting for me to meet—invited me to have an office in their building and be anxious to work in the new office of the Hays organization just as soon as it could be arranged. I found them eager to help in every way toward building the motion picture into the high place in civic life and its great possibilities point the

My first stop was at Washington. I went to the Crandall theaters and found that the Crandall theaters were being used as community centers and meeting places for any committees working for educational, civic and welfare advancement. That Sunday mornings the theaters were all given over to Bible societies and that weekly classes were held there, that in some instances church services were held.

GEORGE JEAN NATHAN in THE SMART SET

"Through the Dark"

Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan

As a Whole.....GOOD CROOK MELODRAMA OF THE TYPICAL JACK BOYLE-"BOSTON BLACKIE" VARIETY; HAS ACTION, SUSPENSE AND PROPER REQUISITES TO MAKE IT APPEAL.

Cast....Colleen Moore pleasing as the little girl whose love reforms Blackie, played effectively by Forrest Stanley. George Cooper's comedy touches are not amiss only there should have been more of them. He's clever at this type of characterization. Margaret Seddon provides the heart interest touches as "Mother McGinn." Others are Hobart Bosworth, Eddie Phillips, Wade Boteler, Tom Bates and Carmelita Geraghty.

Type of Story...One of Jack Boyle's "Boston Blackie" stories, originally called "The Daughter of Mother McGinn." For the patrons of crook melodrama "Through the Dark" will provide a thoroughly enjoyable entertainment and for the public at large, it has enough good elements of audience appeal to get it over without much difficulty. There are many real bits of action with a thrill in the early reels that gets it off to a good start—that in which heroine Colleen Moore is rescued from a runaway horse by Forrest Stanley, fugitive. Director George Hill has supplied a first rate suspense, kept the story moving and handled the production end of it very well, besides selecting a suitable cast. "Through the Dark" is conventional, if you want to be critical, but then the crook regeneration theme still seems to have the public's approval.

Box Office Angle...Should pull a good crowd. You know pretty well what business you can do with a picture that boasts of a "Boston Blackie" story. There have been enough of them made for you to be able to judge the drawing power of another. If they want action, thrills, suspense, heart interest, romance and all the other so-called audience getters, here's your picture.

Exploitation...You might do well to exploit this one in teaser fashion. The title lends itself readily to a variety of stunts. Have bill posters placed prominently throughout the town. They should contain merely the words "Follow the lantern through the dark" and to one side of this line there might be tacked a real lantern. Throwaways in the shape of lanterns, with the teaser line: "Are you traveling 'Through the Dark,' might also arouse curiosity. Follow the stunts with regulation announcements, names of the cast, especially Colleen Moore, mentioning her recent success "Flaming Youth," and use a trailer.

Direction...George Hill; good but takes too long to reach climax.
Author ..... Jack Boyle
Scenario ..... Frances Marion
Cameramen .. L. W. O'Connell and Al Ziegler
Photography ..... All right
Locale ..... San Francisco
Length ..... 7,999 feet.

"Hoodman Blind"

Fox

As a Whole....CONVENTIONAL HOKUM BUT WILL LIKELY REGISTER SUCCESSFULLY WITH THE AVERAGE PICTURE AUDIENCE. HENRY ARTHUR JONES' STORY OF THE OLD FASHIONED, CUT-AND-DRIED VARIETY.

Cast...Gladys Hulette gives the best performance in dual role, giving good distinction to each and making her roles convincing. Marc McDermott adequate as her scapegrace father and Frank Campeau a typical villain. David Butler a regular he-man hero who has more strength than common sense. Others Regina Connelly, Trilby Clark, Jack Walters, Eddie Gribbon.

Type of Story...Drama of the old school order. Plot one of those elaborately planned and planted affairs in which the complications keep piling on merely because the characters fail to do the natural thing and seldom apply any common sense to their actions with the result that the plot thickens, the intrigue of the villain becomes more involved and things continue to go from bad to worse until the climax solution and the happy ending. And at that there are still a good majority of patrons who are strong for this order of picture. Director Ford tells it straight, without any attempt to apologize for the hokum.

You have a man who leaves his wife and baby, goes off with another, then leaves her. How the old skin flint, in whose care the girl is left, plans to get the man's money for himself provides plenty of excitement and thrills.

Box Office Angle...The public usually favors these sensational hero-heroine-villain entertainments and so long as they provide action, thrills and a touch of romance, they're usually satisfied. "Hoodman Blind" has all these requirements and a good cast to boot.

Exploitation...One of the best ways to interest them in "Hoodman Blind" will be to show them a trailer of the storm sequence in which the crew of the wrecked vessel is brought ashore in a breeches-buoy. This sequence furnishes good thrills and they'll probably be interested to see the rest of the film. Talk about Gladys Hulette's work and use stills showing her in the two different roles. The title can be exploited in teaser fashion if you care to arouse curiosity before announcing the showing. Post bills containing the picture of a mask and a big question mark. Below have a picture puzzle made up of drawings of a hood, a man (with sight) and another man blind. Tell them the pictures represent the title of the film you will show.

Direction...John Ford; good, doesn't waste footage.
Authors .. Henry Arthur Jones and Wilson Barrett

"Alimony"

Film Booking Offices

As a Whole.....HACKNEYED PLOT GIVEN VERY POOR PRODUCTION AND A NOT OVER CAPABLE CAST. GOOD DIRECTION MIGHT HAVE PUT THIS OVER FAIRLY SATISFACTORILY.

Cast...Jackie Saunders has a glorious time of it in the climax when her husband goes to shoot her lover. Such overacting you seldom see. Grace Darmond the best in the cast. She tries very hard but there are too many handicaps for her to overcome. Warner Baxter and Clyde Fillmore poorly suited and Ruby Miller a heavy, unattractive vamp.

Type of Story...One of those grand plots in which the villain cries "I always get what I want" and then when he finds he can't win the wife of the man he made rich, he proceeds to ruin him; but the faithful little wife has a clever head on her shoulders and saves the day with the alimony money her husband had given her. And that's all there is to recommend "Alimony"—the faithfulness of the wife, played rather sincerely by Grace Darmond whose performance is the only one that could be called satisfactory.

A. T. Locke, author of the piece, can make no claims for originality here. The idea has served time and again for picture plays. Nor has he given any new solution. Everything happens along in the same old way with the vamp and the villain running true to form. Director James Horne has certainly failed to improve on the story. At times it would almost seem that he was off the "lot" when they made the scene so badly do the players behave.

Box Office Angle.....Suitable only where you don't cater to a critical audience. Or you will probably find that a down town trade will like the diet it offers. You cannot show this to discriminating patronage without hearing from them.

Exploitation.....Plenty for you to talk about to bring them in providing you want to. You can advertise the title effectively and in catchy fashion by distributing stage money bearing the line: "Here's your 'Alimony.' What are you going to do with it? See what one wife did in the picture at the blank theater." There are no especially well known names to use so you'll have to stick to titles, stills, catchlines and the usual routine advertising.

Direction.....James W. Horne; ordinary.
Author ..... A. T. Locke
Scenario .... Wyndham Gittens and E. M. Ingleton
Cameraman ..... Joseph DuBray
Art Director .... Wm. L. Heywood
Photography ..... Average
Locale ..... Any city
Length ..... 6,917 feet.

"Thundergate"

First National

As a Whole....ORIENTAL DRAMA CONTAINING VERY FAIRLY FETCHED PLOT BUT WILL PROBABLY DRAW WELL WITH A GOOD MAJORITY—ESPECIALLY THOSE WHO LIKE PLENTY OF INTRIGUE AND THRILLS.

Cast.....Owen Moore has a busy time of it playing a dual role, that of Lord of Thundergate and also a young American reared in China. Moore's performance quite interesting. Robert McKim up to his usual villainy but he doesn't appear very often. Richard Cummings contributes some good comedy bits. Others Virginia Broderick, Edwin Booth Tilton, Sylvia Breamer, Tully Marshall.

Type of Story....Drama laid in the Orient. The theme is quite fetched but those who will accept it for the adventure and thrills that it contains and not look too closely for logic and plausibility, will amply be satisfied. There is considerable plotting and a great wealth of intrigue in which an American hero arouses from a drug stupor and finds himself installed as the grand Lord of Thundergate, a faction in China's old regime opposed to the new Republic. Hero assumes an impersonation since it affords him the opportunity to prove to the unworldly cast him off, that he was not neglectful of the latter's interests in China and that the uncle's representative had double crossed him. Of course there is a romance woven in that affords some more intrigue with the real Lord of Thundergate returning to claim the white girl had forced into marriage and who now loves the American. Director De Grasse has dressed the story attractively with settings and realistic effects that give the picture a good pictorial appeal.

Box Office Angle...Where they like adventure stories and won't pick it apart because this or that is "possible," you can count "Thundergate" getting by.

Exploitation...Promises of a picture with Oriental atmosphere are sufficient lure for many picture goers. There's something fascinating about them that attracts many you might make it a point to concentrate upon the locale, using prominently in the lobby and trailer of some of the more interesting bits. Tell them about Owen Moore's dual role. Decorate your lobby with lanterns, etc. and have your ushers in Chinese costume.

Direction...Joseph De Grasse; supplied good production.

For Spring and Summer, 1924

(To Be Released One a Week Beginning March 1st.)

IS YOUR MILL ON A STREAM THAT NEVER RUNS DRY?

THE wise miller gets his power from a stream he can depend upon—one that furnishes steady power in the droughts of summer as well as in the floods of spring.

Exhibitors are like millers. They depend upon producers for the power that runs their theatres.

To be successful, a theatre must be furnished with a constant stream of uniformly good motion pictures. Month in and month out the stream must continue.

An "in and out" stream makes an "in and out" theatre—holding nobody's good will, nobody's steady patronage.

The Paramount exhibitor has put his mill on a stream that never runs dry. It's a Niagara of power, unceasing, steadily performing the work entrusted to it. The greatest springs combine to feed this mighty stream, thousands of exhibitors use its power.

It was no accident that Paramount produced last year the two greatest pictures ever made—two pictures that have been and will continue to be of incalculable value to the entire industry—"The Covered Wagon" and "The Ten Commandments."

Inspired by one aim, better pictures, Paramount has grown and developed, and around these better pictures has grown the industry.

Paramount has never failed exhibitors. For ten years, the Paramount product has been recognized as the finest all-round, high-class business-building picture product in the industry. From eight years of continued national advertising the name Paramount has been made synonymous in the public consciousness with "the finest motion pictures." There is no doubt about that fact. You can test it out for yourself.

And now for the spring and summer of 1924, Paramount is building as it has built for twelve years, not for temporary success but for all time.

And the exhibitor who is building for the future must build upon that solid and dependable rock to tap the stream that never runs dry.

THOMAS MEIGHAN

in

"Write Your Own Ticket"

MEIGHAN is one of the few sure bets of the screen. Every picture in which he stars is a certain success in advance.

"Write Your Own Ticket," is a virile crook story of the type of "The Miracle Man," bristling with punch scenes and surprises. Meighan chose it personally from over 150 stories which he considered. It was written by Laurie York Erskine and ran in All-Story Weekly. Victor Heerman is directing, and the supporting cast, which includes Virginia Valli, is AA1.

Meighan has the role of a New York underworld leader of power, fearlessness and a splendid heart.

Here's money in the bank!

"Icebound"
with
Lois Wilson, Richard Dix
Supported by Vera Reynolds

IF you have played "Don't Call It Love," you know William de Mille has struck his box-office stride and is producing big money-makers. "Icebound" will beyond a doubt be the greatest de Mille box-office picture of them all.

As a stage play, "Icebound" won the famous Pulitzer Prize, given each year to the greatest American drama, and ran over a year at the Harris Theatre, New York. The story is about a girl who inherits a handsome but wild young adventurer in a will and proceeds to make a man out of him. From the play by Owen Davis. Screen play by Clara Beranger.

"FAIR WEEK"

WALTER HIERS

A COMEDY of thrills. Laughter interwoven in a satirical fashion of confidence-man melodrama, with scenes of broad comedy, mingled with plenty of action. The flight of the runaway balloon, where Hiers rescues a little girl in mid air, the remarkable fight in belfry, the small town locale and the romantic reinstatement of the hero in the eyes of the community make a most interesting comedy feature. Directed by Rob Wagner, famous Saturday Evening Post writer, and written by Walter Woods, the man who adapted most of the James Cruze and Wallace Reid successes. This is a highly satisfactory feature in every way and is sure to give immense pleasure to picture-goers.

Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky present

GLORIA SWANSON
in
"A Society Scandal"
An Allan Dwan Production

GLORIA of "The Humming Bird," again in silks and laces, Gloria in furbelows, Gloria wearing gowns as only she can wear them! But the new, vital, flashing, dramatic Gloria that you saw in "Zaza" and "The Humming Bird."

That's Gloria Swanson in "A Society Scandal," a great dramatic comedy-romance of high life, love and divorce.

The supporting cast includes Rod La Rocque, of "Ten Commandments" fame, Ricardo Cortez, Ida Waterman, Allan Simpson, Yvonne Hughes and Fraser Coulter. Produced by the man who made "Robin Hood," "Zaza" and "Big Brother." Written for the screen by Forrest Halsey. From Alfred Sutro's play, "The Laughing Lady," in which Ethel Barrymore starred on the stage.

"MAGNOLIA"
By Booth Tarkington

With Ernest Torrence, Mary Astor, Cullen Landis, Phyllis Haver, Noah Beery

AFTER "The Covered Wagon," "Ruggles of Red Gap" and "Hollywood," your patrons and you know what to expect in a James Cruze production. His picturization of Booth Tarkington's latest and greatest stage play, "Magnolia," is destined to be the biggest Cruze picture of them all.

"Magnolia" is a romantic drama of the old South, the South of Mississippi steamboats, feuds and love. The hero is a timid youth who, under the jovial eye of a great gunfighter, is transformed into a reckless dare-devil and thus wins the girl.

Cruze is producing this marvelous drama in the lower Mississippi country with the great cast named above. Torrence has the role of the gunfighter, his best since "The Covered Wagon." Adapted by Walter Woods.

Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky present
POLA NEGRI
in a LUBITSCH production
"MONTMARTRE"

A STORY of the Parisian Latin Quarter—the artists' studios and gilded cafes of Montmartre, a place of color and romance and a vivid stage for both joyous comedy and sordid tragedy.

With Pola Negri as Yvette, the darling of the studios, a warm-blooded, carefree grisette, to whom each day meant a new tilt with men and fortune.

A splendidly produced photoplay made by Ernest Lubitsch, who brought Pola Negri to stardom. A flaming story of love with Negri in a part exactly suited to her remarkable talent.

Vivid, colorful, living, vital, "Montmartre" will score a sensation wherever played. Adapted from "The Flame" by John Miller.

"The Dawn of a Tomorrow"
With Jacqueline Logan

JACQUELINE Logan in one of the greatest roles of fiction, suited to her as if written for her, a part similar to the one she played in "The Light That Failed," that of a girl too hopeful to despair, although the morrow holds nothing for her. She comes to the rescue of London's greatest man at a moment when power and riches and responsibility combined have forced him almost to the point of suicide. A story of new life and regeneration, the supporting cast headed by David Torrence and sumptuously produced. By Frances Hodgson Burnett. Adapted by Harvey Thew.

in

"Singer Jim McKee"

THE second William S. Hart picture since his return to the screen, written by Mr. Hart himself, with the supporting cast consisting of Phyllis Haver, Ruth Miller, Bert Sprotte, George Seigman and many others. A typical outdoor Hart Western picture, with Mr. Hart in the sort of role he likes best to play. If "Wild Bill Hickok" was a success, this will be even more so. A well developed human, vivid story, which will please all lovers of William S. Hart.

By William S. Hart. Adapted by J.G. Hawks. Directed by Clifford Smith. A William S. Hart Production.

Production
"Triumph"

With Leatrice Joy - Rod La Rocque, Robert Edeson

THIS picture will be bigger than "Manslaughter!" Like "Manslaughter," it is a strictly modern love story adapted from a Saturday Evening Post serial and novel. De Mille is producing it with characteristic lavishness of cast, gowns and settings, but devoting to it the same inspired talent and care that he did to "The Ten Commandments"

The story is about a strong man ruined by sudden wealth and a weak man regenerated through the loss of his fortune, and through a wonderful girl.

Besides the principals named above, the cast includes Theodore Kosloff, Victor Varconi, and Charles Ogle. Screen play by Jeanie Macpherson from the story and novel by May Edginton!

MONTH after month this great novel by Mary Roberts Rinehart has been a best-seller throughout the country. Practically every woman in America has read it or heard of it favorably.

"The Breaking Point" is the story of a man who, after a wild youth spent with wine, women and song, reforms and marries. Memories of his old life suddenly come flooding back—with dramatic and sensational results.

This picture, produced with the all-star cast partially named above and by the director of "The Spanish Dancer" and "Shadows of Paris," is bound to be one of the two or three great pictures of the Spring.

Adapted by Julie Herne and Edfrid Bingham.

A SAM WOOD Production

WHAT happens to a girl when she is thrown entirely on her own resources in New York? when she wants to be clean and honorable? and when she wants to make a success and the ordinary means to success are denied her? This is a story of "Bluff" written by Rita Weiman and Josephine Quirk, produced by Sam Wood, who made "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife" and played by a great cast. A story of New York gorgeously produced and having in it every element of motion picture appeal, youth, beauty, romance, mystery, suspense, love interest and a happy ending.

ZANE GREY'S

"The Wanderer of the Wasteland"

With JACK HOLT

an IRVIN WILLAT PRODUCTION

HERE'S something that will amaze and delight the whole screen world. A better Zane Grey story and even more magnificent scenery than you saw in "The Heritage of the Desert," produced entirely in natural colors by the famous Technicolor process! This will be unquestionably the most beautiful and the most widely discussed picture of the whole season. Featuring manly Jack Holt as a typical Zane Grey hero and directed by the man who made "The Heritage of the Desert." Supported by a marvelous cast and produced entirely in the Western locale of the story.

POLA NEGRI in "Men"

IT'S the fiery, flashing, tigerish Pola Negri of old that you'll see in "Men." Written and produced by Dimitri Buchowetski, the great Polish director who made "Peter the Great." Made in the Lasky studio with an all-American supporting cast, this picture will exceed anything Miss Negri has yet done for dramatic fervor and lavishness of production.

Pola has the role of a famous beauty with many loves and adventures. The cast will be composed exclusively of big box-office names.

"Men" will undoubtedly be the biggest Negri picture of them all, not excepting "Passion." Adapted by Paul Bern.

DOROTHY DALTON

"The Moral Sinner"

PRODUCED from the great drama that was one of Mrs. Fiske's most popular stage plays. A story remarkable for its accuracy, its beauty, its depiction of modern Parisian life, and the simple sincerity of its characters. A story of real human emotion and real, vigorous human beings, not mere movie puppets. And a great box-office title. A mystery tale adapted by J. Clarkson Miller from "Leah Kleschna," the play by C. M. S. McClellan. Cast includes James Rennie, Paul McAllister and Alphonz Ethier.

in

"Take It or Leave It"

A JOSEPH HENABERY PRODUCTION

PRODUCERS don't make stars. Exhibitors don't make them either. The public makes them. The public has been hailing Leatrice Joy as a star ever since her wonderful work in "Manslaughter." Her performance in "The Ten Commandments" is one of the few superfine characterizations in screen history.

You have been putting Miss Joy's name in electric lights for many months now. We do not "make" her a star. We simply officially recognize the fact that the public has long hailed this beautiful and splendidly talented actress as a star and bill her as such.

"Take It or Leave It," Miss Joy's first starring picture, will establish her more firmly than ever with the public. It is a great love-drama produced by the man who made "The Stranger."

"In The First Degree"

A REMARKABLE mystery story of a lovable old man who proves to be a blundering sort of detective and in a humorous but determined way solves the mystery of the murder of his own brother. A picture of romance, intrigue, some scenes chilly and uncanny but with the same mingling of love, comedy and pathos as distinguished "Grumpy," yet a story different entirely, resembling "Grumpy" only in its elements of simplicity and appeal. Written by Clara Beranger especially for William de Mille and played by a typical William de Mille cast.

Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky present

"The Code of the Sea"

With

ROD LA ROCQUE

A VICTOR FLEMING Production

THE hero of "The Ten Commandments" in a story written by Byron Morgan, the author of the Wallace Reid auto successes, and produced by the director of "The Call of the Canyon." A great story of the Marine Light Ship service, wherein a young man is called on in the most dramatic possible a situation to fight off the call of the blood and the call of his own heart. Situation piles on situation, tempest on tempest, until a climax such as is given few melodramatic stories. Mr. Fleming has called to his aid all the resources of the Government Light Ship Service, and the best of the Pacific Coast ships. Some startling new features will be shown in this picture, a melodrama of the sea, vivid, real, awe-inspiring. Scenario by Bertram Milhauser.

"The Age of Desire"

Producer: Arthur Jacobs
Distributor: First National

As a Whole...HAS EFFECTIVE AUDIENCE APPEAL AND GOOD HEART INTEREST IN ITS MOTHER LOVE ANGLE; A WELL SUITED AND CAPABLE CAST AND FIRST RATE PRODUCTION ALSO.

Cast....Myrtle Stedman particularly capable of putting over this type of mother role. Poorly photographed, however. William Collier, Jr. very good as her son and Mary Philbin a charming sweetheart. Others Josef Swickard, Frank Truesdell, Baby Bruce Guerin, Frankie Lee.

Type of Story....Drama. Woman deserts little son to marry rich man and in after years tries to satisfy her yearning by finding her son. How she accomplishes this but is eventually confronted by her husband who refuses to accept her son is followed by the reformation of the boy, who had become a crook, and a general reunion when his mother's husband agrees to accept him and his sweetheart takes him back. Frank Borzage doesn't usually have such conventional material but his skillful treatment and capable handling of the story, covers up its triteness and makes it effective and pleasing entertainment that should be agreeably received by the majority. He has injected a splendid heart interest through the mother love angle and gotten over a few more or less illogical steps in the development without making them especially prominent. He has secured a well suited cast which he uses to advantage and his production is all that could be desired.

Box Office Angle.....Should pull satisfactorily with the average audience. It contains the right appeal for the masses and you can count on the mother love business to give it a proper tone, sufficient to offset the blackmail sequence' improbabilities. The cast will please.

Exploitation...A catchy title should afford you many means of profitable advertising. Throw-aways can contain lines such as: 'Women call it 'desire.' Philosophers call it 'discontent.' Find the answer for yourself in Frank Borzage's production 'The Age of Desire.' Or, 'She gave up her son in order to obtain riches. Was she happy then? Which is to be more desired, wealth or happiness? A trip to the blank theater where 'The Age of Desire' is playing, will convince you.' Use the names of those in the cast especially Myrtle Stedman—recalling her work in "The Dangerous Age" and "The Famous Mrs. Fair," also Mary Philbin. They'll remember her for "Merry-Go-Round."

Direction.....Frank Borzage; quite capable.

Author.....Dixie Willson
Scenario.....Mary O'Hara
Cameraman.....Chester Lyons
Locale.....Any city
Length.....5,174 feet.

Jack Hoxie in

"The Man from Wyoming"

Universal

As a Whole...AVERAGE WESTERN FEATURE THAT BOASTS OF SOME GOOD ACTION BUT NOT VERY MUCH THAT'S NEW IN ITS SITUATIONS.

Star....Hasn't as good a story as he had in "The Red Warning," his last vehicle, but makes the most of opportunities that come his way. His action bits well handled and he's quite likeable except where they give him close-ups in which he poses too much.

Cast....Lillian Rich would be a lot better if she didn't look so soulful. The role doesn't call for it but most of the time she looks very sad. Claude Payton the regulation villain. Others in the supporting company the usual western types.

Type of Story..Western; a familiar story of a feud between cattle and sheep herders, based on the once bitter fight between these two factions. The cattle rangers had everything their own way until the sheep herders arrived to share the great open spaces of Wyoming. Upon this they build a rather conventional plot in which an ex-convict, to keep from being exposed, is forced to assume the ownership of villain's sheep herd and suffer the antagonism of an adjacent cattle raiser. The latter is killed from ambush by villain but the blame goes to hero. Later he is given a chance to clear himself and wins the love of the girl who falls heir to the cattle ranch after he has saved her from the villain. There are intermittent bits of action and the story moves along at a satisfactory pace. Some of hero's remarkable victories over his enemies are so improbable as to be rather humorous.

Box Office Angle.....All right for western fans and the action lovers. An average picture of its kind. You know best how to handle it.

Exploitation....If you succeeded in getting them interested in Jack Hoxie, a comparatively new portrayal of western roles, and they've seen him in "Don Quickshot of the Rio Grande" and "The Red Warning," let them know that he will appear at your theater in his latest Universal release, "The Man from Wyoming." Universal's press sheet offers contest suggestions that cannot be explained here but might well be taken advantage of. Run a trailer showing them a few of the more exciting moments in the picture.

The familiar stunt of having a cowboy on horseback driving about town will also be good advertising. He should display signs reading: "The Man From Wyoming" is in town. See him in action at the blank theater on (date)."

Direction...Robert North Bradbury; usually satisfactory.

Author.....Wm. McLeod Raine
Scenario.....Isadore Bernstein
Cameraman.....Merritt Gerstad
Photography.....All right
Locale.....Wyoming
Length.....4,717 feet

Opinions on the Quality of Pictures

Has the quality of pictures advanced or is it a standstill was the question put to a representative number of fans through a questionnaire of THE FILM DAILY. The survey was made with the co-operation of several hundred theaters throughout the country and has revealed a mass of extremely interesting information relative to picture values. Some of the replies are found below:

- "Not much change in quality last 6 years."—University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis.
- "Advanced."—Nat Golden, 717 Vernon St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
- "I think the quality is advancing."—Dr. W. H. McMaster, Pres. Mt. Union College, Alliance, Ohio.
- "Better class films have advanced."—Mrs. Benjamin T. Rochester, 1022 So. 18th St., Birmingham, Ala.
- "Advanced."—E. D. Turner, Mgr. Imperial Theater, Asheville, N. C.
- "Some are better—especially the expensive type like 'The Covered Wagon.'"—Illinois State Normal University, Normal, Ill.
- "Not advanced very much."—Rev. Paul L. Grove, Redwood Falls, Minn.
- "Advanced."—A. Angold Brown, Pastor St. Luke Cong. Church, New Orleans, La.
- "Some improvement in last 5 years."—T. A. Tripp, Pres. Oklahoma C. E. Union, Oklahoma City, Okla.
- "The quality of pictures have advanced."—Lloyd V. Almirall, Harvey School, Hawthorne, N. Y.
- "They have advanced considerably, witness 'The Covered Wagon.'"—E. N. DeSoto, 8 Dellwood Rd., Hasbrouck Hill, Staten Island, N. Y.
- "Showing some advancement."—Wm. G. Taylor, V. P. Delaware Trust Co., Wilmington, Del.
- "Advanced markedly."—Rabbi Lee J. Levinger, 905 Van Buren St., Wilmington, Del.
- "Can't see much change except in price."—W. F. Harris, Palace Theater, Petersburg, Va.
- "Yes, they have advanced."—Rialto Theater, Clinton, Iowa.
- "I believe the quality has advanced materially."—A. O. Grier, City Editor, Every Evening, Wilmington, Del.
- "Quality today is far better than those of other years. I consider that motion pictures are constantly improving in every way."—Mrs. James T. Chandler, Jr., 214 W. Ninth St., Wilmington, Del.
- "Noticeable improvement in this season's product."—Mgr. Palace-Orpheum Theater, Milwaukee, Wis.
- "Distinct advancement, with exceptions of course."—Mrs. Louis Jersawit, 485 Central Park West, N. Y. C.
- "Standstill."—W. T. White, Birmingham, Ala.
- "This season at a standstill."—Harry T. Wasserman, Mgr. Eagle Theater, Roxbury, Mass.
- "No improvement."—President Mass. Agricultural College, Amherst, Mass.
- "There is on the whole an advance in moral quality."—Rev. Ed. W. Scofield, D.D., 155 So. Church St., Goshen, N. Y.
- "Some are better but apparently the mass no."—A banker.
- "Advancing steadily, to my mind."—M. Caroline Bell, 430 E. Lafayette Ave., Baltimore, Md.
- "Improving slowly."—California Polytechnic School, San Luis Obispo, Cal.
- "Advanced."—Virginia Theater, Hazard, Ky.
- "Generally advanced."—A teacher.
- "With notable exceptions they are going back."—C. C. Marshall, Methodist Episcopal Church, Bridgeport, Conn.

- "I think they are certainly better than they were. There is still some very poor work being done and some poor judgment used."—F. Woll, Associate Professor, College City of N. Y., N. Y. C.
- "At a standstill."—Frank N. Freeman, University of Chicago, Chicago, Ill.
- "They are worse now than they were before."—Louis Frohman, 209 Greenmount Ave., Baltimore, Md.
- "Advanced."—Miss Edna Hatfield Edmondson, Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind.
- "They have a little."—Rev. D. M. Johnson, St. Ignatius Rectory, 65 Glenwood Ave., Chicago, Ill.
- "Marked advances have been evident."—Henry E. Bliss, College of City of N. Y.
- "They have advanced."—Office of the Dean, University of Ill., Urbana, Ill.
- "In the main I think they have advanced slightly."—John C. Ruckelshaus, Attorney Indiana Trust Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
- "Advanced."—South Boston Amusement Co., South Boston, Va.
- "Much advanced artistically."—Rev. Ambard M. Blackford, Chairman Reviewing Committee, Better Films Comm. of Jacksonville, Fla.
- "Quality in technical details of mechanics, scenic designs, bizarre novelty and charlatany have vastly advanced. The subject matter of the pictures has retrograded. Take 'Jazzmania' for instance and Gloria Swanson's wardrobe exhibits. The fundamental basis of a picture is commercial. It is made to please the mob-mind and the mob is located on a plane lower than any individual constituting the horde. A picture is intended to give the people what they want and what people want is a gratification of the senses and not appeal to their heroism, ideals or to beauty."—Rabbi Joseph Leisner, Beth El Congregation, Helena, Ark.
- "Advanced."—Rev. E. D. Spiller, Lanesboro, Iowa.
- "Advanced."—Bureau of Visual Inst. Extensive Division, Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind.
- "About a standstill."—Kansas State Theaters College of Pittsburg, Kansas.
- "I believe the exhibitions in Ohio have improved much in two years."—M. Rowley, Bedford, Ohio.
- "Advanced."—Maude Richman, State Supervisor of H. E., Oklahoma City, Okla.
- "Standstill."—A. B. Meyer, Tell City, Ind.
- "Advanced."—Mrs. Joseph E. Friend, 1807 Palmer Ave., New Orleans, La.
- "Advanced."—B. P. Donovan-Equitable Trust Co., S. E. cor. Fayette Calvert Sts., Baltimore, Md.
- "If we look back over a period of years, the pictures have advanced. In the average pictures at present however, improvement might be made."—Mrs. Arthur Twining, Ft. Wayne, Ind.
- "Advanced."—A lawyer.
- "Advanced."—Mrs. Bloomfield Moore, Sec. Ind. Indorsers of Photoplays.
- "Bigger and Better than ever."—New Grand Central Theatre, Grand Bluffs, at Lucas Ave., St. Louis, Mo.
- "The quality of pictures has undoubtedly advanced during the last year or two. I asked this question of a group of men and women recently and the answer in the affirmative was unanimous."—E. Higbie, Pres., Eastern South Dakota State Normal School, Madison, S. D.
- "Mechanically, much; from a dramatic standpoint, not so much."—E. Dysinger, Fullerton High School, Fullerton, Cal.
- "Still, except on high psychic phenomena."—The Lowe Observatory, Lowe, Cal.
- "Can see little change, except in large films."—A teacher.
- "They advanced considerably."—Rabbi Raphael Goldenstein, Temple B'nai Israel, Pasadena, Cal.

Short Subjects

"The Frontier Woman"—Chronicles of America—Pathe
Worth-while Historical Drama

Type of production... 3 reel historical drama
Historically correct, well acted and produced, "The Chronicles of America" series which Pathe are releasing, and of which this is a part, are very worth-while. They offer, also, to the wide-awake exhibitor, an excellent means of tying up with and obtaining the cooperation of local patriotic organizations, schools, colleges, American legion posts, etc. In "The Frontier Woman"—the story of the trials of a settler's wife in the days of the Revolution and the hostile Cherokee Indians—the part played by the brave hearted women in the founding of this country is brought out very strikingly. A desirable short subject for any program.

"Neck and Neck"—Mermaid—Educational
Should Find Favor

Type of production... 2 reel comedy
This is the sort of comedy that is generally well-liked, and it certainly does contain plenty of fast action, quick laughs, and slapstick of an amusing variety. It is a Jack White production with Lige Conley, directed by Fred Hibbard and photographed by Francis Corby. The business dealing with a homely girl's efforts to attract a man—any man—is not particularly new, but it is laughable as presented here. The boat race sequence is a new twist. In this, the boat that Conley is rowing suddenly bends in the middle and in spite of all his efforts simply goes around in a circle. This bit is very novel. Altogether a comedy that will be liked.

"Aggravating Papa"—Christie—Educational
Much Helter-skelter Action

Type of production... 2 reel comedy
Much running around by all members of the cast which includes Duane Thompson, the girl, George Pearce, her father, who forbids her to see Jinnie Adams, her ardent suitor and owner of a drug store, and his Belgian wolf-hound, Peter the Great, comprise most of the plot and action of this Christie comedy. Getting into a rage because he finds Jimmy and his dog calling on his daughter, father contracts a terrible headache. Daughter goes to Jimmy's store for some headache powders and Jimmy discovers after she has left with them that he has put arsenic into them—or thinks he has. Thereupon ensues much helter-skelter action to prevent father from taking them. The cast works very well as a whole, and the dog exhibits considerable intelligence.

"The Broncho Express"—Jos. M. Schenck—Educational
Fine Pantomime Work

Type of production... 2 reel comedy
Written, directed and played by Clyde Cook, "The Broncho Express" offers some enjoyable humor. All of this is due, however, to Cook's fine conception of the art of pantomime. All his laughs are gotten over by means of this. For instance, his funny bewilderment when the bad man of the west shoots his bowtie off. He feels of his ear, and looks questioningly at the shooter, of his nose, and repeats the look, of his hat, and still looking his question, finally discovers that his tie is missing. Fine stuff. The comedy deals with Cook's efforts to exist in the wild west of the 60's, where, as a title gives it, "men are men and women are women—because they can't help themselves."

"Help One Another"—Hal Roach—Pathe
Good Number of Good Series

Type of production... 2 reel comedy
If you aren't playing the "Spat Family" series, you are overlooking one of the most amusing series of comedies on the market. There are only three people in the cast—Mr. and Mrs. Tewksbury Spat and Brother Ambrose—but they are sufficient unto themselves. The discord that arises between them, the manner in which each thinks they "know it all" and can do everything perfectly, and the constant mishaps that occur will bring forth spontaneous laughter from any audience. In this number they decide to paint their country house. And after that one decision—discord reigns supreme. Everything that can possibly happen, happens, except the painting of the house. Very amusing.

"The Mandarin"—Universal
Amusing Nonsense

Type of production... 1 reel comedy
Once again Neely Edwards and Bert Roach are seen as the happy-go-lucky pair of tramps, always trying to beg, borrow or bluff the price of a meal. The gags in this reel sometimes approach the nonsensical but the easy way in which the team puts them over makes them register effectively. The facial expressions of both Edwards and Roach are first-rate. Richard Smith directed.

"Pen and Ink Vaudeville"—Earl Hurd
Amusing Cartoon Number

Type of production... 1 reel cartoon
To get the most out of this Earl Hurd cartoon you'll have to have an orchestra. It can be used without it, of course, but not to as good advantage. The reel consists of a burlesque on a vaudeville show with the orchestra providing a wild accompaniment to the various acts, all of which are humorously sketched and naturally much exaggerated. It's a good novelty number that will give your program variation and offers a good number of laughs.

"The Butterfly"—Secrets of Life—Educational
Highly Interesting

Type of production... 2 reel educational
Louis H. Tolhurst's microscopic lens delves this time into the life history of the butterfly—one of the most fascinating evolutions of nature. In this reel is shown in the most complete detail, with every step explained by means of first-rate titling, first the grotesque caterpillar, hatched from a butterfly's egg, then the manner in which it spins its silken cocoon, then the finished cocoon and lastly the butterfly. The butterfly emerging from the cocoon is not shown, however, although numerous types and kinds of butterflies are pictured and even the construction of their wings given in detail.

"One of the Family"—Hal Roach—Pathe
Not Much—But Pleasing

Type of production... 1 reel comedy
Charley Chase's second comedy for Pathe is a nice little one-reeler. Chase is provided with a good supporting cast that helps considerably. Particularly is this true in the sequence where Chase, a good looking chauffeur hired to make his mistress's husband jealous—is taken home to dinner by the pretty little maid whose parents are decidedly Irish. The way the family imitate his manners at the table will certainly bring forth the laughs. Nothing much to it, but it's pleasing.

"A White Wing Monkey"—Universal
A Clever Monk

Type of production... 1 reel comedy
Joe Martin, the well-known monk, is seen for the first time in quite a while in this Universal one reeler. His work is exceedingly good, but he shares the picture with several lions which romp around and presumably scare everyone to death. On the whole, however, this will be found an entirely satisfactory short reel.

Won't Ban Normand Films Yet
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—Until investigation of the Normand affair is made, the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs refuses to approve the resolution recommending that pictures in which the star appears be banned in this state.

Williams Denies Report

J. D. Williams denies the report that appeared in the Journal on Friday to the effect that Henry King would direct Rudolph Valentino's first for Ritz.

"Leather Pushers" Series Finished
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Filming of "Big Boy Blue," the sixth and last production of Universal's first series of "Leather Pushers" starring Billy Sullivan, has just been completed.

49 Features Reviewed In 15 Cities

"Anna Christie"—1st Nat'l State, Minneapolis

STAR—It is one of the most satisfactory transcriptions of a stage-play or novel ever exhibited in Minneapolis. * * * the cast does some excellent character portrayal—something seldom seen in the movies. The acting of Marion is perfect.

TRIBUNE (MORNING)—* * * gives an authentic interpretation of the drama and displays a colorful background which enhances the story.

"The Bad Man"—1st Nat'l Strand, Cincinnati

POST—* * * is one of the most enjoyable comedy-dramas in many moons. Blinn, * * * has the title role, and his characterization * * * is very amusing.

TIMES-STAR—There is every reason to believe that Mr. Blinn's artistic translation of this character into photoplay form will rank as one of the best film achievements of the year.

"Big Brother"—F. P.-L. Columbia, Washington

POST—The usual play of propaganda is unconvincing or dull, but such is not the case here, * * *

Some of the best acting the local screen has shown this year is on view, * * *

STAR—Although Mr. Moore has the leading role, he is almost outshone in acting by a new screen prodigy, Mickey Bennett by name.

"Black Oxen"—1st Nat'l Capitol, Detroit

FREE PRESS—* * * an excellent photoplay and is unusually faithful to the novel. The changes are few and unimportant. * * * Miss Griffith, beautiful as always, enacted the difficult role with skill and understanding, but she does not look the part. * * *

The real star of the picture is little Clara Bow. * * *

NEWS—By giving the story a long imaginative handicap, the average spectator will find it very acceptable screen amusement. Certainly the book has been followed closely and every important playing role has been exceptionally well handled. * * * Corinne Griffith is very much the whole thing in "Black Oxen." She is beautiful, sweet and cynical as the situation demands * * *

TIMES—In the ten years we have been reviewing pictures we haven't seen "Black Oxen's" superior as genuine screen entertainment. We have seen more spectacular drama, we have seen more massive productions, we have seen more thrilling plot material, but never have we seen a picture better directed, acted or produced or carrying a bigger universal theme * * *

Metropolitan, Washington

POST—In fact, one of the most pleasing features of the screen version is the accuracy with which it follows the action of the book.

Veracity is not, as is all too often the case, sacrificed in the interest of a sugar-coated ending. * * *

The play is very much Conway Tearle and Corinne Griffith.

STAR—A carefully selected cast adds much to the picture, Corinne Griffith does her best work on the screen so far * * *

A commendable feature of the picture is its faithfulness to the script.

"Boy of Mine"—1st Nat'l Circle, Indianapolis

NEWS—This plot, perhaps, sounds a bit threadbare, but with Mr. Tarkington guiding its minor points, one forgets how familiar it all is. There are present those careful touches, those moments of skillful character drawing, brief flashes of understanding which have made the author the genius he is.

STAR—"Boy of Mine" is an outstandingly human study of a real boy. William Beaudine, who directed it, supplied some fine comedy scenes.

"The Country Kid"—Warner's Apollo, Indianapolis

NEWS—The picture is alternately amusing and sad. * * * There is not a too-evident desire to appeal to the weaker emotions. The film, in fact, is to be recommended for diversion.

STAR—William Beaudine has inserted plenty of laughs in the film.

"Cupid's Fireman"—Fox Monroe, Chicago

HERALD-EXAMINER—"Cupid's Fireman," isn't going to send you cheering * * * nor is it going to drive you out jeering. Though obviously an invention, there is an element of mild humanity about it.

Liberty, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—If you like the excitement and confusion, * * * that means a big fire, then you'll find a thrill in "Cupid's Fireman." * * *

STAR—* * * has a strong emotional appeal even if it obtains it by the obsolete methods of panting heroes and heaving heroines.

TIMES—There are no problems in the story, no great wickedness, and plenty of thrills. * * * Yes, it is good entertainment.

"The Dangerous Maid"—1st Nat'l Rivoli, Baltimore

SUN—Many of the smaller roles are very well handled and the whole picture is quite entertaining.

State, Cleveland

NEWS—To use a curt expression, Connie's latest is nothing to brag about. By the same token it is not what one would call a really poor screen production. Simmered down the foregoing means that "The Dangerous Maid," is just a picture.

PLAIN DEALER—From the beginning to well into the middle * * * "The Dangerous Maid" is good entertainment because the comedy vein is uppermost. You begin to have hopes that the costume drama has plenty of honest laughs in it, but toward the close the picture settles into straight run 100 proof drama and the interest drops off somewhat.

PRESS—The plot pursues a rather unsteady tempo, at times rising to mildly exciting, at other times falling to rather slow.

"The Darling of New York"—Universal Rivoli, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—With marvelous and adept skill Baby Peggy portrays a very big role in this picture, and along with her childish pranks, enacts the story with such dramatic force as to win the sympathy and admiration of her audience.

STAR—It is an excellent picture.

POST—The picture is well acted, though there is a little too much melodrama, and is quite good, all told.

"Defying Destiny"—Selznick Broadway, Los Angeles

(Week ending Jan. 12)

EXAMINER—Monte Blue and Irene Rich do very well in the leading roles. Several of the love scenes are particularly worthy of note. They are very realistic and very convincing. * * * The direction of this film is adequate all the way through, but the cutting and general editing is quite loose in a number of spots.

EXPRESS—Luckily the role is entrusted to Monte Blue and he is so natural in his acting that a certain amount of credulity accompanies him in his wanderings. In fact, the cast throughout is excellent, Irene Rich.

HERALD—The action is fast and furious from the start. * * * It is a good picture, to say the least, with an unusually good cast. For real acting ability nobody would deny Irene Rich that honor.

RECORD—While the Selznick picture is featured, the extremely funny satire ("The Soilers") is by far the best bet of the two.

* * * From viewing the feature picture, one is convinced that even destiny can be defied by plastic surgery.

TIMES—* * * a triumph for plastic surgery if not for picture art! It is rather old-fashioned stuff, though holding some interest, and is exceedingly well played by a very fine cast.

Central, Washington

POST—The production is a thoroughly natural and convincing one and Monte Blue and Irene Rich contribute their usual facile characterization. The other members of the cast do excellent work.

"Don't Call It Love"—F. P.-L. McVicker's, Chicago

HERALD-EXAMINER—On the whole the production is disappointing, and though there is evidence of Mr. De Mille's rapture in finding his favorite situation he hasn't done the picture with his usual finesse and delicate satire. * * * The cast, saving Rod La Rocque and Theodore Kosloff, distinguishes itself by some singularly unconvincing character work. * * * Brother William slipped on this one.

Stanley, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—* * * a picture of unusual merit at the Stanley this week. While the title seems too trivial and "movie-fied," it does not detract from a story which lends itself well to screen adaptation and is of well-sustained interest.

INQUIRER—* * * will appeal to many. It has many points in its favor. Love is always an absorbing theme to persons of all ages, it seems, and since love is the basis of the picture, that alone should make for its popularity.

NORTH AMERICAN—The story in itself is very light, but it has been very amusingly produced, and the titles are decidedly happy, in that they give the spectator credit for some intelligence and do not describe in detail events that every one can see for himself.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The cast is imposing, * * * The bizarre costumes worn by Nita Naldi are especially noteworthy.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—* * * has no great appeal to the thrill hunter, but it does have a very fair entertaining value and a cast containing seven screen favorites.

"The Eternal City"—1st Nat'l Madison, Detroit

FREE PRESS—One of the most stupendous and gripping screen dramas of recent release * * * From a photographic point of view, "The Eternal City" will be a constant delight, as view after view of surpassing beauty is flashed on the screen.

NEWS—The settings for this picture are beautiful, * * * Barbara La Marr does the best work of her screen life as the girl, and Richard Bennett comes near being the star * * *

TIMES—* * * he has given the production beautiful backgrounds and "in spots" has risen to the real intention of the author, but—taken as a whole—"The Eternal City" is a great disappointment.

"Fashion Row"—Metro Strand, Minneapolis

JOURNAL—* * * the most interesting Mae Murray venture in a long while, to say that it is high art, or anything of sort, for the art in Mae Murray pictures consists of giving audiences something different rather than something real or earnest. "Fashion Row" does all that. It is a turgid sort of thing.

STAR—Although the plot is not so original, and although the cast is not exceptional, it is a good picture. And work of the director shows most in the art of Mae Murray who plays a double role.

TRIBUNE (MORNING)—Admirers Mae Murray may be startled when witness their screen idol in her latest role "Fashion Row," at the Strand theater week, for she has assumed a dual role which has a deep appeal.

"Her Fatal Millions"—Metro Piccadilly, Rochester

DEMOCRAT-CHRONICLE—* * * though the diminutive comedienne may be about the most attractive ingenue on screen, she will have a final "fade-out" some one is not soon discovered who supply her with the right sort of plays—live, shrewd and jaunty showcases for little lady's unquestionable talents.

HERALD—That over-delightful, an exquisite little actress, Viola Dana, is ring in a rather bold comedy on the Piccadilly screen this week. * * * A very interesting and diverting picture.

JOURNAL—* * * is a typical vehicle, a light, inconsequential comedy on broadly farcical situations, but amusing. There can be no question that Dana is funny * * *

TIMES-UNION—There is more than comedy in "Her Fatal Millions," and Miss Dana's personality and manner fit excellently into the role * * *

"Flaming Barriers"—F. P.-L. Missouri, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—* * * posse most auspicious cast * * * The story is and wholesome and is generally spiced with thrills and romance. The picture also has its spectacular moments, including a mammoth forest fire that is most realistic.

POST-DISPATCH—Old-fashioned drama recovers its long-lost glory in "Flaming Barriers," * * * an unusual picture.

STAR—A machine-made melodrama a la the-turned villain * * * and a sensational hero * * * Some compensation fact that the heroine in Jacqueline who is always good to look upon.

TIMES—Jacqueline Logan and Moreno scamper through "Flaming Barriers" in a thorough satisfactory manner for reels of romance and thrills. * * * of action, plenty of thrills, but a sad of originality in the theme.

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—* * * is a y of frenzied imagination written around adventures of Patrick Malone * * * OST—* * * there is something lacking stands.

IMES-STAR—"Yuh ain't bein' to foree the old mortgage, be yuh?" This, led with a love affair and a fire engine, substitutes the plot of "Flaming Barriers,"

"Flaming Youth"—1st Nat'l
Rialto, Louisville

HERALD—"Flaming Youth," at the lat- theater is a silversheet production of h any producer might be proud.

IMES—* * * the frankness of (the ) is tempered by the many humorous ations which arise. Types of modern depicted in the film are true to life.

"Temporary Husband"—1st National
Eastman, Rochester

DEMOCRAT-CHRONICLE—If "Her oporary Husband," * * * produces as h hilarity at every performance as it at the first of the week, there is sufficient on to infer that the Eastman photoplay success. * * * the comedy is well prod- and, and those seeking relaxation will find a goodly measure at the Eastman this HERALD—* * * picture in which Owen ore and Sydney Chaplin do some fairly d acting and in which Sylvia Breamer , not so good supernumary. The picture parts is funny, in no part does one find ruly humorous in the higher sense. It none of that exceedingly rare cinema ity, capable of bringing a smile. * * * re are parts which are moderately ous.

JOURNAL—Still, after "Her Temporary band" got started, there was a good of laughter heard resounding through- the Eastman theater * * * A lot of melo- na is injected and the final scenes are a table riot of false whiskers, smashing kery and overturned furniture.

IMES-UNION—Stand and sedate Roterians giggled, shuckled, chortled, shout- and finally shrieked, last night, as the riment of the play mounted higher and er and the interest of its rapid action : them out of themselves.

"His Children's Children"—F. P.-L.
Colonial, Indianapolis

NEWS—The sets, as one expects them to these days, are lavish and ornate. The d of parties is done up in good style, with he splendor regarded as necessary. The too, is good.

TAR—George Fawcett, an able character r, gives an excellent performance as old r Kayne; Dorothy Mackaill is lovely as la. * * *

"His Mystery Girl"—Universal
Crandall's, Washington

OST—The production is one of the most plete in detail of recent Universal re- s, and the members of the supporting pany are uniformly capable.

TAR—Herbert Rawlinson gives a grace- and spirited performance in "His Mys- Girl." * * *

"Hoodman Blind"—Fox
Washington, Detroit

NEWS—If you prefer your movies well- with melodrama and flavored with thrills action, you will like "Hoodman Blind."

IMES—Probably only one other char- actor on the screen excels Marc Mac- nott and that one is the invincible Henry thall. * * * wonder picture * * * a ling story * * *

"Jealous Husbands"—1st Nat'l
Park-Mall, Cleveland

NEWS—There is nothing in this pro- duction that startles one unless it be the acting of Ben Alexander.

PLAIN DEALER—* * * in many spots it is deadly dull going. Near the end the in- terest revives somewhat * * *

PRESS—Ben Alexander * * * is a like- able youngster without the ungainly manner of Barry.

There is just a trace of the smart-aleck in him, tho, which must be squelched if he is to become popular. As an actor he shows possibilities, with the right directing.

The picture has little else to recommend it.

"Judgment of the Storm"—F. B. O.
Kings, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—* * * has every quality that goes into making a fine pro- duction. To begin with there is a real story * * * It has a plot that is off the beaten path, a plot which has so much "meat" that the director (Del Andrews) has been able to inject a punch in each reel big enough for the climax of several ordinary photoplays.

POST-DISPATCH—An effort was made to put a punch in every reel—and with fair success. Punches and probability, however, do not always go together. * * * The story works to a climax in a wonderfully realistic snowstorm * * *

STAR—* * * is of the "Way Down East" school of drama, not badly done but not very entertaining.

TIMES—The film has been misnamed, but it is good entertainment nevertheless. There is a normal amount of mush, and much real sentiment.

"Lucretia Lombard"—Warners
California, Los Angeles

(Week ending Jan. 12)

EXAMINER—But the picture is real. * * * the film version is first rate in its own right.

In the first place, "Flaming Passion," offers one of the most sincere and most con- vincing love stories that's been woven into a screen drama in many moons.

EXPRESS—* * * a melodrama that is, to the majority, grippingly realistic. And many sit tense in their seats * * * as the photoplay un winds a denouement which is, in the main, full of spectacular punch and "heart interest."

HERALD—* * * entertainment of the first class.

RECORD—That hectic title ("Flaming Passion") is likely to keep many persons away from what is really a good picture. Certainly best in points of humanness and drama of the week's new-offerings. * * * Thrill- ing enough, and with an excellent minia- ture for the birdseye shot of the breaking dam, the rest of the picture is simply hokum melodrama. But remember, as a whole it's a good picture.

TIMES—* * * a flaming beacon, lighting the way for real screen achievement in the realm of melodrama. It is melodrama with enough freshness of plot, enough character study, enough of a psychological twist, to make its climax, that great forest fire, not merely a thrilling stunt but tremendous drama.

"Main Street"—Warners
Allen, Cleveland

NEWS—Of all the motion picture pro- ductions of so-called "small town life," few if any have equaled the entertainment value as contained in * * * "Main Street" * * *

PLAIN DEALER—* * * highly amusing, but it cannot be said that the producers have caught or have even attempted to catch the spirit of the book. * * * Few will argue about the way the film handles them. The types are largely untrue. The situations are exaggerated.

PRESS—"Main Street," the movie, misses the point of the Sinclair Lewis "Main Street." * * * The movie scenario writer and di- rector * * * present no fresh view of a small town, but merely repeat the view which has been used in hundreds of plays and vaude- ville sketches.

"The Man Life Passed By"—Metro
Delmonte, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—If a splendid story, with a tear now and then and a tempest of thrills and heart throbs, makes ideal screen entertainment, no fan can possi- bly afford to pass by "The Man Life Passed By." * * *

POST-DISPATCH—There is an excellent supporting cast * * *

STAR—* * * a poor attempt to be "stu- pendous."

TIMES—While there is an absorbing plot, and an abundance of tears, hokum, fights, thrills and drama, the scene the di- rector must have set his heart on is a "Roman revel."

"Maytime"—Preferred
Regent, Rochester

DEMOCRAT-CHRONICLE—Very lovely to look upon is our verdict of "Maytime," but * * * if you don't like to imbibe sac- charine matter simultaneously with the de- lights in photographic art the director of this picture has provided for your vision, then look elsewhere than the Regent for your pleasure this week.

HERALD—And this could have been such a splendid picture had it only been cast dif- ferently. * * * The story of "Maytime," is delightful, sentimental if you will, but never- the less delightful. * * * The end of the picture is in rather delightful colored motion pictures.

JOURNAL—* * * a charming romance of two generations, * * * It is a dainty little story, appealingly told. * * * The cast is excellent, and so is the photoplay, except for the final scenes in color, which turn Miss Shannon from a brunette to a blonde and reveal Mr. Ford in a green shirt. * * *

TIMES-UNION—The motion picture fol- lows the thread of the story of "Maytime," but goes painstakingly into detail in many of the scenes that were left to the imagination in the musical play, and entirely loses the atmosphere of romance of the former which, sentimental as it was, yet had an undeniable charm.

"The Net"—Fox
Victoria, Rochester

DEMOCRAT-CHRONICLE—The "Net" is well built and entertaining melodrama— if one overlooks an absurdity at its main turning point. Despite this weakness, J. Gordon Edwards has constructed some pretty tense scenes.

"Our Hospitality"—Metro
Majestic, Louisville

HERALD—* * * Buster Keaton in "Our Hospitality," presented at the Majestic, is well up to the standard of that comedian.

TIMES—* * * there are few moments dur- ing the course of this picture, as well as in many that have gone before, that the au- dience is not swept by gales of laughter.

"Paddy-the-Next-Best-Thing"—Allied
Regent, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—Mae Marsh plays the title part in winsome and appealing fashion. Scenes in London and Ireland are in evidence during the progress of the story.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—* * * one could scarcely find more wholesome en- tertainment. It marks the return of Mae Marsh to the filmfold. Few pictures can boast of such fine photography. It is a pleasure to see such crystal-clear work.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—Mae Marsh is her same old charming self * * * She is seen as the heroine in a picture which has many thrilling moments. * * * One could not find a cleaner, more wholesome picture if one looked a thousand years.

"Pleasure Mad"—Metro
Capitol, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—The story is a cross-section of modern life as it has been exemplified by more than one newly rich family. * * *

POST—Of course, you are sure he will see the error, of his way before the final fade- out, but it makes an entertaining picture, what with the fine performance of Huntly Gordon * * * Mary Alden * * * William Collier Jr. * * * and Norma Shearer * * *

TIMES-STAR—The material of the plot has been used so frequently that it contains not a single element of surprise or novelty; and yet such is the artistry of Mary Alden's acting and Reginald Barker's direction that the film gripped Sunday's audiences * * *

Palace, Montreal

GAZETTE—The play has been fashioned with a dramatic effectiveness and the parts are all depicted with a naturalness and a con- vincing quality that rob the piece of any suggestion of preachment, strongly as the moral element is emphasized. * * *

"Ponjola"—1st Nat'l
Strand, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—Cynthia Stockley's stories are always bound to be far-fetched and origi- nal as well as popular. Her "Ponjola," which has been made into a First National attraction is no exception. * * * The success with which Anna Q. Nilsson carries of the male impersonation is the outstanding feature of the picture.

"The Prodigal Son"
Imperial, Montreal

STAR—* * * an English film of quite unusual merit—* * * originally an entire evening's entertainment of eighteen reels. * * * The cutting, however, has been done with no little skill, and the story in its condensed form presents a continuous and co- herent whole, with certainly not a single foot of superfluous scenery or incident shown.

The acting is remarkable for its authority, * * *

"Rosita"—United Artists
Capitol, Montreal

GAZETTE—* * * quite as charming as Mary of the ringlets. * * * the characteri- zation remains a most winsome and sym- pathetic one. * * * and with an effective background of royal residences, dingy dun- geons, and picturesque ancient streets thronged with carnival-mad revellers. Mr. Holbrook Blinn gives a strongly drawn and clearly-outlined portrait of the kingly vol- upuary, * * *

"Shadows of Paris"—F. P.-L.
Adams, Detroit

FREE PRESS—Pola Negri has come back. Disregarding the artificiality that made her earlier American pictures unpopular in so many quarters, this lovely foreign girl dis- plays * * * a great deal of the talent that won her fame.

NEWS—A good many of those admirers of Pola Negri who were alienated by "Bella Donna" and "The Cheat" may be won back by the fiery performance of the European star in "Shadows of Paris." * * * gives Miss Negri wider scope for her talents but it is not so strongly dramatically or pictorially as "The Spanish Dancer."

TIMES—Herbert Brenon has turned out another good picture with Pola Negri—* * * "Shadows of Paris," is a real, actionable, entertaining melodrama. * * *

"Six Cylinder Love"—Fox
Hippodrome, Cleveland

NEWS—* * * retains much the same en- tertainment as did the stage version * * *

This is due in a good measure to the fact that several of the members of the original stage company appear in the same roles in the celluloid edition.

PLAIN DEALER—* * * comes better out of the celluloid hopper than a great many of its predecessors. * * * catches the spirit of the stage play pretty deftly. It comes near making slapstick out of some of the situations, we admit. But in general it runs along smoothly and amusingly. * * *

"The Social Code"—Metro
Capitol, Philadelphia

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—Viola Dana is ably assisted by an excellent cast. * * * The picture was directed by Oscar Apfel and is a worthy addition to his list of productions.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—Viola Dana has the leading role and manages to make it sufficiently interesting to hold the attention * * * The story is not particularly noteworthy for its originality, but it has an element of genuine interest in its acting.

"The Song of Love"—1st Nat'l
Grand Central—West End Lyric—Capitol,
St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—The best picture Norma Talmadge has ever made since the good old days of her tremendous popularity. She has never been quite so beautiful, nor quite so effective as an exponent of intense romance.

POST-DISPATCH—* * * she becomes an Arab dancing girl, but without the Oriental touch that means everything in a role of that kind. She is Norma Talmadge all the way and considerably more at ease in the later episodes of the story, when her gowning is more ample. * * *

STAR—* * * it is exceedingly bad, a melange of absurd hokum disguised by gorgeous theatricalism and the romance that is supposed to attach to the Sahara. Another heresy of which this critic is guilty is a belief that Norma Talmadge is growing old. * * * This feature is, in a couple of words, a "box-office picture," which is what the managers say of anything that will pack their houses.

TIMES—The desert atmosphere is interesting, and Miss Talmadge gets an opportunity to display bizarre costumes. The love passages show Norma to advantage.

"Squibs, M. P."
Loew's, Montreal

STAR—* * * with Betty Balfour * * * is bound to win all hearts here as she is reputed to have done across the pond," in "Squibs, M. P." * * * Betty Balfour's comedy is perfect of its kind.

"Strangers of the Night"—Metro
Century, Baltimore

AMERICAN—Once it has really got under way, "Strangers of the Night" is a pretty jolly sort of photoplay. After a slightly tedious beginning, Fred Niblo has directed the offering in fine style.

"This Freedom"—Fox
The Fox, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—* * * the director has faithfully reproduced "This Freedom" as near possible to the story as the author told it. The theme, dealing with the problems of woman combining business and marriage, interests many, although "If Winter Comes" was far better acted and a more interesting story than Hutchinson's second novel.

INQUIRER—Persons who see the picture expecting to see another "If Winter Comes" will be sadly disappointed. That is not the fault of the picture, but rather the fault of the book. "If Winter Comes" was full of dramatic situations and was the sort of story that lent itself to the screen.

NORTH AMERICAN—"This Freedom" is an interesting study of the possible consequences of a mother and father pursuing independent careers. * * *

The principal feminine role is played by the eminent English actress, Fay Compton, and rarely, indeed, has there been seen on the screen a finer portrayal of a character from the age of 17 to 40 than hers.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—Fay Compton, as "Rosalee," during the stressful years from seventeen to forty, is all that could be desired. Her portrayal * * * is a marvelous performance.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—Fay Compton carried the burden of the leading role in "This Freedom," the feature picture, most ably. She rose to fairly lofty heights of acting. * * *

"To The Ladies"—F. P.-L.
Garden, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—* * * quite as genuinely pleasing in celluloid form as in spoken. For this, we think, the praise belongs to James Cruze, * * * who selected ideal types to portray the amusing and original story. * * *

"Trilby"—1st National
New Lyric, Minneapolis

JOURNAL—"Trilby" might not please George du Maurier, but it will please most theater goers. It is not a great picture; but it is a good one, chiefly because of the compelling work of Andree Lafayette. * * *

STAR—Edmund Carewe's portrayal of Svengali, * * * is a characterization which affects one's visual memory * * * You simply cannot shake it off.

* * * The story is intensely fascinating and the production is artistic. The screen interpretation of the famous story is intelligent, which alone places the picture in a class by itself.

TRIBUNE (MORNING)—In the initial role of Trilby, Miss Lafayette proves to be an unusually interesting type as well as a highly talented actress. Mr. Carewe interprets the role of Svengali with supreme skill.

"West of the Water Tower"—F. P.-L.
Palace, Washington

POST—A real hit was scored * * * when Paramount offered * * * its gripping and graphic picturization of Homer Croy's "West of the Water Tower," with an excellent cast. * * *

STAR—* * * has at least two striking virtues—it is a thoroughly entertaining picture story and it is interpreted by one of the best casts Washington has seen for some time.

"The White Sister"—Metro
Alhambra, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—Another noteworthy picture has been added to the screen's honor roll. * * * To make the production spectacular there is an outburst of Vesuvius, and later a flood, but even without these the picture would be an unusual one, its only fault being its excessive length of eleven reels.

"Wild Bill Hickok"—F. P.-L.
Lyric, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—The play is highly seasoned with love, pathos, drama and quaint humor.

POST—The action of the picture is fast-moving, and Hart disposes of dozens of villains in its seven reels. * * * We liked the ending. Hart defies movie traditions by eschewing the conventional "clutch."

TIMES-STAR—It is a typical Bill Hart picture. It gives him the chance to do again those things he does so well. * * *

"Wild Oranges"—Gold.-Cosmop.
Rialto, Washington

POST—An author of the first rank, an able director and a notable cast combine to give Washingtonians an 18-carat play in "Wild Oranges." * * * The cast is particularly well chosen.

STAR—* * * a strong photoplay, "Wild Oranges," full of punch and thrill with five characters in its cast. * * *

"A Woman of Paris"—United Artists
Orpheum, Chicago

AMERICAN—You will find a handling of subject matter which suggests the unique. You will find boldness and, if you wish it, considerable daring, not only in the subject matter but in the treatment of it. * * * The picture as a whole has a morbid touch, which will surprise many.

JOURNAL—* * * a great dramatic photoplay. * * * Here is a picture constructed on a plan different from that of the usual film. Its drama lies in its simplicity. * * * The plot is scant, everything is centered in the characters, and Chaplin has pressed a story out of them. He has built up little, inconsequential incidents into huge, revealing chapters.

POST—She can stand comparison with any of the best actresses we have. No spotlight is needed to pick out the star in this picture, for Edna Purviance and her splendid acting are the whole picture. * * * Charley's direction is very clever.

Gifts, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL-TRIBUNE—This first effort in a new field on the part of Chaplin deserves the highest praise. The story is interesting and well constructed, and what is more important, it is plausible from beginning to end. There are no slip-ups in the action to break the illusion. Throughout the plot is dramatic in treatment with now and then a touch of the really tragic.

POST—The genius of Charles Chaplin is stamped all over * * * "A Woman of Paris." It proves Charley is as great a director as he is a comedian. It is not so much the story, but the way Chaplin has handled it, * * *

TIMES-STAR—Chaplin has taken this opportunity to acquaint the film world with another phase of his creative talent, and he has worked out in highly commendable form an absorbing study in realism. That mastery of detail which has made him the foremost comedian of the screen is in evidence in its soberer form as applied to intensely dramatic situations.

"Woman to Woman"—Selznick
Metropolitan, Los Angeles

(Week ending Jan. 12)

EXAMINER—"Woman to Woman" has a more definite appeal for the theatergoer than this, however, in that it offers Miss Compson opportunity for excellent dramatic work. The story is likewise novel, for the film, in that it gets away with realism and excellent logic from the usual "happening ending." * * *

EXPRESS—* * * Betty Compson. * * * meets all demands of the role in intelligent fashion. Each succeeding role finds Miss Compson advancing in histrionic measure.

HERALD—The picture has a strong, human story, well told and, except in spots, well screened.

RECORD—It's not Miss Compson's best, nor yet her worst. She is pictorially at a disadvantage under the harsh lights of the European studio, * * * But there are some delightful scenes with the son, a winning little lad.

TIMES—The picture is far from being a great or even a good one in its naturalness. There are moments when you wonder why its pathos does not reach you more, especially in the closing scenes. At the same time there is a peculiar charm to what transpires of romance; * * *

"You Can't Get Away With It"—Fox
Tally's Los Angeles

(Week ending Jan. 12)

EXAMINER—It's all a bit sordid, and it's a pity to give Mr. Marmont, such a silly role after the splendid work he has done on the screen. Not even his excessively interesting profile can quite excuse the namby-pambyness of the part.

EXPRESS—There was absent that most essential element of both drama and photoplay, real conflict, although the cards were stacked for a good sizable dramatic situation, and a tensely tragic ending. Neither developed.

HERALD—This is a problem play and the ending may suit you or it may not. * * * If you enjoy pondering over the problems of the present day, you will enjoy this picture.

RECORD—* * * Marmont is woefully miscast. * * * Just a tract for shopgirls and a pretty obvious one at that.

TIMES—In spite of the story, Rowland Lee, who directed, has turned out an entertaining picture—one that you will find it fairly easy to enjoy.

"Zaza"—F. P.-L.
Ohio, Indianapolis

STAR—Miss Swanson plays Zaza with a bad-tempered, coarse, insolent woman, not in the least appealing.

Bad direction may be responsible for this, * * * seems inferior stuff.

STAR—Miss Swanson plays Zaza with a great deal of fire and temperament.

"Flattery," Mission's Second
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Mission Film is producing "Flattery," from an original story by H. H. Van Loan. Tom Forman is directing. In the cast are John Bowers, Marguerite de la Motte, Alan Hale, Grace Darmond, Edwards Davis, Louis Morrison and Larry Steers. Jefferson Moffatt wrote the continuity. Leon Rice is president of Mission and Norman Walker, business manager.

Capital Increased Half a Million
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Dover, Del. — Animated Picture Products Co. will be known hereafter as Animated Products Corp., a name change to this effect having been filed with the Secretary of State. The corporation has also increased its capital from $1,000,000 to $1,505,000.

Song Cartoons

Planned by Harris and Fleischer
Red Seal—State Rights Distribution—To Be in One Reel

Chas. K. Harris and Max Fleischer of Out-of-the-Inkwell Films arranged with Red Seal Pictures to produce a series of old-time mated song cartoons.

A perfect synchronization of popular song music with animated cartoons is promised. The first reel now in work and will be finished the next few weeks.

Strict secrecy is being maintained as to just how the effects are going to be produced, but it is known some rather unusual machinery, just been devised and installed in Out-of-the-Inkwell studios, is to handle this novelty properly.

The series will be distributed by Red Seal through state right changes.

Promotions at Universal

Harris P. Wolfberg who was pointed assistant general manager exchanges at Universal some time ago has been made district manager in charge of Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis. Wolfberg was a former district manager for Famous Players.

Ike Von Ronkel, who is also well known among exhibitors, has been made district manager in charge of Des Moines, Sioux Falls, Omaha.

Starts Scenario Contest

The Film Mutual Benefit Bureau announces a scenario contest open to any writer, professional or amateur. The script must provide for a reeler and the best story submitted will be cast and rehearsed by Famous Players. The finished picture will be shown at the M. P. Carnival on Jan. 13 at the Plaza.

Trowbridge Leaves U. A.

Plans

Definite concrete ideas as to the manner in which West Coast producers plan to effect savings on production for the 1924-25 season were voiced by Joseph M. Schenck, who is here en route to Palm Beach.

"Producers will work much closer together," said Mr. Schenck. "In the past there have been at times plans of this character made but as a result of production costs which ran to exceedingly high figures during the past year, there have been a number of conferences and discussions among producers of importance with the result that there is a much better understanding and there will be a much closer cooperation than ever before.

"Producers will notify each other when important players or stars will be at liberty and this also applies to directors. Instead, therefore of high-priced artists being unoccupied while on salary with accumulative costs developing for the producer who uses them next, production schedules will be planned to meet this end, and as a result these higher costs of important players and stars will in a measure be reduced.

"Another reason for lower production costs can be attributed to the fact that there will be but few costume pictures made on the Coast during the coming year. No other phase of production was as costly as costume pictures.

Sees Active Spring

Schulberg Here from Coast—Says Production is Reviving in Active Manner in Hollywood

B. P. Schulberg arrived in town from the coast on Saturday to arrange production and distribution plans for 1924-1925. Preferred, as noted, will make eighteen pictures for next year. Schulberg said that he looked for a busy spring in production on the coast. Many of the companies are again resuming work in an active manner. So far as Preferred is concerned, Gasnier is editing "Poisoned Paradise" while work on "The Breath of Scandal" will be started at once. In the Hollywood studios, which he has taken over, Schulberg believes he has a better plant than the Mayer studio at which he has been working until now. Some of the independent units now using space on the Hollywood lot will remain there.

Schulberg will remain in town for two weeks and will then return to the coast to get busy on the plans he expects to consummate while here.

Doubt Over Educat'ls

M. P. Commission Wants That Type of Picture Defined—Submits Report

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Albany—The M. P. Commission is seeking to have Section 6 of the law which created it amended so as to remove the uncertainty and confusion which it claims now exists as to what constitutes "an educational, charitable or religious film" and also so as to give the Commission authority to issue permits for industrial films without the payment of the fee fixed by the statute.

A second amendment is sought of that clause which imposes penalties for securing a license or permit on a false affidavit and of that portion of the clause which provides for the immediate revocation of a license or permit if any change or alteration is made except upon written direction of the Commission. The Commission holds, however, that violations may occur, which are the result of carelessness of employees and which, owing to the large property interests involved, would not warrant so drastic a penalty as the removal of the film from the screen. ## Plans

"Arrangements have been made whereby producers will cooperate for the use of outdoor sets to a much greater extent than heretofore. There are a number of other matters under discussion which I believe will lead to a material reduction in the cost of negatives.

"It is quite true that the average negative cost for next season will be not over $175,000 per picture.

THE COAST vs. THE EAST

Asked whether there seemed to be a sentiment among producers to leave the coast to make pictures in the East, he said:

"I think, generally speaking, that 75 per cent of all production activities will always be on the Coast. The chief reason for this is a desire of the important artists to live and work in Hollywood rather than elsewhere. After all there are but a limited number of important directors, leading performers and stars and it is their will rather than the desire of the producer which will prevent any great migration of production from the Coast to the East. Weather conditions, etc., have really little to do with this important matter. It is rather up to the individuals of importance and as long as they desire to work on the Coast just so long will pictures be made there. A producer may prevail upon a director or star or performer of importance to leave the Coast for, let us say, a picture or so, but in the main these artists desire to work in Hollywood and their wishes must be respected."

It was Mr. Schenck's idea that story value would remain the chief point for the development of the better and finer picture. He has voiced this belief on many occasions. So impressed was he upon this point that at the moment he is considering the curing of a Broadway house in which to present "Secrets," the latest of the Norma Talmadge productions because in his belief the story is so compelling, so strong and so interesting, in spite that it is not a so-called "big" picture in the usual sense of the word, that it is suitable for a special Broadway showing.

Doolittle Explains

Tells How Foreign Buyers Secure Protection Under Selznick's Guarantee Trust Fund Plan

In commenting on Danny's editorial comment of recent date which concerned the indebtedness of American Releasing toward foreign buyers including Wardour Films of England, E. J. Doolittle, foreign manager of Selznick has some interesting things to say. He points out in a letter that protection is guaranteed under the company's guarantee trust plan and says:

"I have just finished reading your interesting column in THE FILM DAILY under date of January 13th and feel compelled to take issue with you on the statements contained in paragraph two, under the sub-head 'Making It Hard.'

"It might appear to one unacquainted with the facts that to list the various foreign buyers in the bankruptcy schedule of American Releasing Corp. as creditors to the tune of nearly $100,000 would mean that a major loss would be sustained by these buyers, but in the light of what actually happened the result will prove not to be so serious from the foreign buyers position.

"The various amounts listed in the bankruptcy schedule of American Releasing Corp., represent advance payments on a sharing arrangement and against which deliveries were made to the various buyers, it being the custom in such instances to retain any advance payments from the first rents collected, so the foreign buyers will undoubtedly recoup their advance payments and suffer no losses, but the producers of the pictures delivered will lose their proportionate share of any advance payments paid to the American Releasing Corp.

"The Selznick Distributing Corp., who are now distributors of the American product in the foreign market also have made an adjustment in the Australian situation which preserves the $10,000 advance payment for the producers of pictures delivered in that market, and are at present working on other adjustments in the producer's interest.

"It will probably be of interest to producers generally to know that under our newly created policy of guarantee trust funds, no producer who is dealing with us or will deal with us in the future, ever faces the situation which confronts the producers whose product was handled by the American Releasing Corp. Our guarantee trust fund not only protects them insofar as American revenues are concerned but also safeguards them against any loss from money through the release of their product by us in the foreign market.

Doubt Over Educat's

General has held that even though the license were revoked by the conviction, that the Commission had power, upon proper application being made and upon payment of the fee required by statute, to issue another license.

The total receipts of the Commission since its organization amount to $476,233.06, and the amount expended by the State in carrying on the work of the Commission, $200,288.28, showing a net profit to the State of $275,944.78 to Jan. 1, 1924.

The number of films approved without eliminations totaled 2,257; those from which eliminations were made totaled 586; features condemned entirely, 29.

FAIR PLAY

By DANNY

Several exhibitor organizations have gone on record banning Mabel Normand's pictures; this evidently to the record sensational newspaper reports of her happening in Hollywood in which Miss Normand was participant.

When a wild-eyed ism-chaser, a professional reformer, or a politician casts one eye to the windward, starts bawling picture because of any real-whatsoever, people in this business as a rule don't take such matters seriously. But when an exhibitor organization takes such an attitude time to stop, look and think.

No brief is held for Miss Normand none is intended to be filed. But what has Miss Normand done to highbrow exhibitors with such inspirations feel impelled to join ism-chasers? She was at a party which developed into a mess. So far nothing has developed to prove anything more than this. But because she witted a shooting her pictures are to be banned.

How high-faulting, how high-brow, how wonderfully ethical these exhibitor organizations are getting to be!

What happens to Miss Normand is a matter that concerns her. But what happens to be an organization of other unusually fine men who are distributing her latest feature. If the picture isn't good, it should not be advertised. Not because of ethics or high-brow ideas, but simply as a business proposition. Otherwise any such action as mentioned makes one speculate as to when the first batch of second-hand angels wings will be distributed to exhibitor organizations.

Two More To Go

And Then Mae Murray Completes Metro Contract—Company Silent on Renewal

Mae Murray has two more pictures to make for Metro release in order to complete her present contract. One of these will be "Mademoiselle Midnight," on which she is now at work and the other probably a story that Vicente Blasco Ibanez is writing for her.

"Fashion Row" is the latest Murray release which is down on the Metro schedule for Dec. 3. It has been released rather generally throughout the country but starts in New York next week at the Capitol. W. E. Atkinson at Metro yesterday

John Cecil Graham, in charge for Famous Players in Great Britain, yesterday declared the reports circulated in London to the effect that he intended leaving Famous "were absurd."

Mr. Graham expects to leave for London either the end of the week or early next week.

New Deals Under Way

Hodkinson Dickering With Terwilliger, E. H. Griffith and E. L. Hollywood for Pictures

Continued activity is under way in the Hodkinson organization, looking toward the acquisition of new product for the current season. It is understood that deals are being considered whereby at least three additional directors will be identified with the company's producing forces. They are George Terwilliger, E. H. Griffith and Edwin L. Hollywood.

If the plans carry out, these directors would make their pictures in the East. An official of the company admitted yesterday the directors named above did figure in present negotiations.

Reinhardt Starts in Summer

Max Reinhardt leaves for Germany in a few days. He is expected back in a few months to start work on his first Marion Davies picture for Cosmopolitan. Miss Davies will next make "Janice Meredith," production of which will take several months. Her picture following that will be the one Reinhardt will direct.

Float Stock Issue

Warner Bros. on Curb Today—Expect to Apply for Listing on "Big Board"

Warner Bros. have made arrangements to sell a block of 150,000 shares of stock to the public and for that purpose, the issue will be traded in this morning on the New York Curb, probably at an opening price of $12 a share.

It was declared yesterday that in the near future, an application will be made to list the stock on the New York Stock Exchange. In a statement made in this connection, the assets of the company are placed at $5,000,000 and while no definite figures were issued, it was said that the earnings for 1923, computed on a nine months' basis, were approximately ten per cent of the assets, or about $500,000. Based on the present production plans, officials of the company state they expect the earnings during 1924 to reach fully 40 per cent of the company's assets.

"Extra Girl" Breaks Record

Associated Exhibitors declared yesterday that the opening day of "The Extra Girl" established a one day record at the Central. While no figures were available, it is understood the gross for the day was about $3,800.

Chaney Here for Vacation

Lon Chaney arrived in town yesterday for a two week's vacation. He is at the Commodore.

Dwan Signs

New Contract With Famous for One Year—Plans Five Consecutive Swansons

Allan Dwan has signed a new contract with Famous Players for a year, under the terms of which he will direct Gloria Swanson in five consecutive pictures. The next is in doubt for the moment but will probably be "Manhandled."

The director has just completed "She Laughs Last," with Miss Swanson in what approximates a record number of shooting days at the Paramount Eastern studio. A trifle over three weeks was needed to make the picture.

It was reported yesterday that Dwan had completed his contract with Famous and had signed with Hodkinson to make several pictures but this was denied by him personally when he was reached at the studio.

Sid Franklin Quits Warners'

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Sidney Franklin has left the Warner organization and, it is understood, will again direct Norma Talmadge in "The House of Youth." Alfred E. Green is expected to direct Constance in her next picture.

At the Schenck office yesterday, the Franklin report was doubted. It is probable that Frank Borzage will direct and also play one of the leads in "The House of Youth." Eugene O'Brien will be in the cast.

Coast Producers Meet Today

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—The first meeting of the Ass'n of M. P. Producers, Inc., incorporated last week by 15 producing companies here will be held today at which time it is expected officers will be elected. Will H. Hays says of the association:

"This association is the California instrumentality to carry out the purposes in which the national association is engaged."

"S. R. O." Stuff

Howard Frankle, the manager of Columbus Majestic is the proud possessor of two suburban theaters in Columbus, Ohio. Frankle says business is fine if you go after it. Stood them out to the curb last week with his novelty night. Gives away a half dozen dolls all shapes and sizes, pocketbooks, tea sets, mouth-organs, etc. Lucky numbers win prizes: coupon stunt attached to admission ticket. Great neighborhood gag stuff results in crowds standing out to curb. Has a specialty every night in the week.

- Monday ..... Novelty Night
- Tuesday ..... Jazz Band Night
- Wednesday ..... Amateur's Night
- Thursday ..... Novelty Night
- Friday ..... Country store. Gave away live pig last week.
- Saturday ..... Jazz Band
- Sunday ..... Straight pictures; big picture

Says that film don't mean anything in his suburban houses the word amusement means more than motion pictures. Analyzes "amusement," ala Webster to mean "diversion."

Has a set price of week day features and doesn't care what picture it is. Claims the added attractions get the dough. Claims he has tried out big pictures on many occasions; spent big money for them only to break even or lose. Buys cheaper pictures now and spends the difference in extras as above and is packing them in.

Court Halts Stock Sale

The activities of Al Gilbert in selling stock of the Rising Sun Prod, which he represented, who intended to produce a film, "Five Years in Hell," have been curbed by the Supreme Court when Justice Burr signed an injunction restraining Gilbert and the corporation from selling any more stock.

England Upset

Conditions Bad Because of Exhibitors Combining On Prices and American Distributors Cutting Them

Harry Rowson of Ideal Films, one of the leading producing and distributing concerns of England, who arrived here yesterday, brings word of difficult conditions existing in England.

What between American distributors' concerns offering pictures at cut prices; and English exhibitors getting together and holding down prices it indeed trying for the British distributor and exhibitor," said Rowson. The exhibitors in the smaller cities and towns get together and arrange between themselves as to product they will use. Then they offer prices accordingly and that is the end of the matter. It is not a question of what distributor demands for his product; it is what they will pay. This does not apply to the first run houses in large cities, but particularly to those in smaller cities.

Mae Tinee, Chicago Tribune: "There is no question as to the value of 'The Courtship of Myles Standish.' Charles Ray has the 'spark' of genius in him." This great production is distributed by Associated Exhibitors.—Advt.

Fewer Adverse Bills

Legislative Situation Throughout Country Better Than This Time Last Year

Reports from various sections of the country indicate that there is now less adverse legislation leveled at the motion picture business than at this time last year.

Executives of the larger companies have been advised to expect a certain number of bills aimed at exchanges and at admissions because of the extensive road building campaigns planned in a number of states. Censorship may crop out here and there, but it is believed that there is no real danger in that direction.

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Jackson, Miss.—An effort will be made to introduce censorship in Mississippi. A bill has been drafted and will be introduced shortly providing for a censorship commission of five, each to get a salary of from $2,500 to $3,000 per year.

T. O. C. C. Ball Tomorrow

The annual ball of the T. O. C. C. will be held tomorrow night at the Astor. The popularity contest conducted by the N. Y. American terminated yesterday with Marion Davies and Rudolph Valentino leading the list. They will be crowned king and queen.

Selznick Directors Meeting

The directors of Selznick Distributing are holding a session that is expected to run through the week.

Cabanne Engaged by Garsson

It was reported last night that Christy Cabanne would direct a picture for Murray W. Garsson.

Joins Famous

Alan Crosland Will Make "Sinners in Heaven" and Several Others to Follow

Despite the original plan of Alan Crosland to make two pictures starring Betty Compson for Hodkinson, it is understood he will make only one and then join Famous Players for whom he will first direct "Sinners in Heaven." Later, he is expected to make several more for Paramount.

Betty Compson arrived in town yesterday from the coast. Crosland expects to start for Miami in a few days to get his Hodkinson picture under way.

Convention In May

M. P. T. O. Has Not Selected City As Yet—Another Meeting of Committee Soon

The 1924 convention of the M. P. T. O. will be held in May in a city as yet undetermined by the committee which has this matter in charge. Another meeting, however, will be held shortly.

A suggestion has been made that the National M. P. Day this year be extended to cover a week with the first day's receipts going toward the national treasury and the remainder for the direct benefit of the individual theater owner.

Sydney S. Cohen yesterday issued a lengthy report covering the recent directors' meeting in New York. He said that the question of objectionable advertising matter would be taken up with the Hays office and likewise, the non-theatrical problem.

"Song of Love" At Rivoli

Norma Talmadge's new picture, "The Song of Love," will probably play the Rivoli the week of Feb. 24. Tomorrow, Joseph M. Schenck will address the A. M. P. A. and in the evening the Schencks leave for Florida on a vacation.

Changes In Canada

H. M. Thomas Rejoins Famous Players—Robson Handling Eastern Theaters

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Toronto—There have been some important changes in the personnel of the Famous Players Canadian Corp., Ltd. H. M. Thomas, former general director of theaters, is back with the corporation. He went to Iowa about a year ago to resume the direction of the Blank theaters. Thomas will now have charge of all Famous theaters in Western Canada from Port Arthur to Vancouver.

Clarence Robson, manager of the Hippodrome, has been appointed manager of theaters for Eastern Canada and will supervise houses east of Port Arthur, covering Ontario and Quebec.

Ben Cronk has been appointed manager of the Tivoli, Toronto. He Boston—Charles G. Branham, who recently resigned from Famous Players Canadian Corp., is now with the Gordon circuit.

Settlement Pending

I. L. M. Club and Long Island Exhibitor May End Squabble over Arbitration

Last night, a settlement was pending between the F. I. L. M. Club of New York and Charles W. Jackson who operates a theater bearing his name at Hampton Bay, L. I.

According to Louis Phillips, executive secretary of the board and an attorney as well, Jackson contracted for a number of pictures with Comstock and then refused to either show or pay for them. The matter, in the usual manner, was presented to the joint arbitration board and

Newspaper Opinions

"The Extra Girl"—Asso. Exhibitors Central

AMERICAN—I might say she out-Mertons "Merton of the Movies" and gives "Hollywood" an awful run for first place among the pictures laid in the Hollywood studios.

EVENING WORLD—Whatever else may be said about Mabel Normand she is still, in the opinion of the writer, far and away the premiere comedienne of the screen. * * * countless thousands of disappointed fans were turned away from the Central on the first day of the picture.

"The Extra Girl," is just what was expected, only more so.

MAIL—* * * a wishy-washy comedy of the Hollywood type. In our opinion it is below his standard of slap-stick. * * * It seems that Sennett ran short of slapstick ideas for the picture. It is more the weepy melodrama than the farce one would expect from this producer.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—The situations, if they had been treated in a humorous manner, might have overcome the underlying gloom of the showman story. Even those scenes which Mr. Sennett had obviously designed to be played in a comedy vein somehow just don't seem to register.

Mabel Normand, who used to be able to put life into any story, missed many opportunities in this picture.

SUN—There were many delightful comedy moments in the picture, but it seemed that interest weakened when Mr. Sennett applied the sentimentality a little too strongly. There is a plot, to be sure, though rather banal.

TELEGRAM—There is a characteristic Mack Sennett chase in the early part of the film and an exciting scene with an escaped lion in the Hollywood episode. The piece moves along at a lively rate, attended by equally lively laughter from the audience.

Miss Normand gives an amusing burlesque

TIMES—* * * a Mack Sennett comedy poking fun at the much-discussed idea of lone girls going to Hollywood. * * * All the time the lion is on the screen there is plenty to laugh at.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—Incidentally, "The Extra Girl," is a rather fair picture. It is interesting and at times has a couple of thrills. Had it come along before the advent of "Hollywood," or "Souls for Sale," this one would have been a knockout. It is old-fashioned comedy-melodrama that has been hoaxed up with a flock of studio incident. It will get to most audiences, and they will enjoy it—only the question remains whether or not they will accept Normand, although there isn't any reason why they shouldn't.

TRIBUNE—* * * although she still is one of the most captivating comediennes on the screen and her humor is always subtle and refreshing, her latest comedy is pretty poor material. Or perhaps it isn't either. Ever and anon we forget that we admitted we wouldn't know a good slap-stick if one hit us in the face. * * * Mabel Normand is so much better actress than most people that we should like to know why she can't be fitted with a good story.

WORLD—Mabel Normand is the funniest girl in pictures. * * * we enjoyed every minute of "The Extra Girl," yesterday. It seems that Miss Normand simply can't help being funny.

"The Lullaby"—F. B. O. Cameo

AMERICAN—Lillian Ducey is the author of the story and Chester Bennett is responsible for the direction, which is far above the average. On the whole, for this type of film, "The Lullaby" is well done. Personally, we prefer stories with a more cheerful trend, but we know many folks who adore being miserable, and for them "The Lullaby" will meet every requirement.

TO SUB-LET

EVENING WORLD—Mother-love has been so fearfully maltreated and kicked around in so many movies that it is a wonder any producer had nerve enough to give it another try, but Chester Bennett did, and with right good results. It ought to be advertised as "glorifying the American sob," for if you have tears to shed prepare to shed them during the unwinding of "The Lullaby."

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * good motion picture entertainment. It abounds in "human interest," is fairly well acted, and tells a story which is highly dramatic. Such is the stuff of which entertaining pictures are made.

There is nothing very original in the story * * * this is good stuff for the average motion picture-going public and will doubtless be popular.

SUN—The story emphasizes once more the truism that it is folly for a man to introduce his best masculine friend to his bride.

TELEGRAM—Perhaps no better portrayal of real, untiring mother love has been given on the screen hereabouts than was presented in * * * "The Lullaby."

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—It's all dramatic hokum, and pretty forced at that. Photography and settings excellent.

WORLD—* * * displays a versatility and promise which should develop decidedly with good direction. Her company is moderately accomplished. Sincerity rather than excitement is the keynote of the narrative.

Real Sufferer in a Film Scandal.

The only person deserving of sympathy in one of these so-called "Hollywood scandals" is the producer. If there ever was an innocent bystander shot by a stray bullet it is the man who, having put up his money and expended his energies in the making of a picture, finds it all thrown into the scrap heap because the conduct of some man or woman has incurred the disfavor of that noisy element of our community which has taken upon itself the safeguarding of our morals.

The situation is a harsh one and the punishment inflicted upon an innocent party unjust, but there seems no way of remedying it. A producer plans a picture, lays out his money, has his casting department and director select the players, with the object of giving the plot the best delineation possible. The work has progressed sometime to completion. There is every prospect of adequate financial return when suddenly on some night something is done or something is made known that shows a violation of the moral law by one of the players in the company. If the individual be of sufficient consequence very promptly the censorious packs gather and begin their yapping. And the peculiar part of it is that they do not ask that the person concerned be punished directly; they do not press for imprisonment or exile, but their sole cry is "bar the film." Thereupon there arises all over the country individual exhibitors who evince a desire for publicity to announce that never shall any picture in which the offending person appears be presented at his theatre. Of course, they do not mean it, but they have got their names in the paper, and that is what was wanted.

No one is saying that persons who openly and notoriously live evil lives should escape censure and punishment. It does not matter whether they are of the stage or screen or law or medicine or the church, for that matter, the offender should be made to pay. But why hit the producer, who innocently and honestly engaged in a legitimate enterprise? Why fine him so heavily for something he was dragged into by mischance?

That is one phase of the hullabaloo method of reform which should be considered.

FRIDAY— JANUARY 11, 1924

Something to Think About

By Bruno Lessing

Morality and Hypocrisy.

THE moral vultures were quick to pounce upon the California screen actress who happened to be present at a drinking party when a man was shot. In various States, immaculate boards of censors barred her films from theatres because they had the power to do so and because they believed that the exercise of this power would meet with popular approval.

Perhaps they were right. Perhaps not. But all fair-minded people will agree that they were rather indecent in taking such harsh action upon the mere ground of newspaper reports. They might, at least, have waited until the trial was over and then consulted the authentic records of the court.

POPULAR opinion is a fickle jade, who changes her mind without rhyme or reason, and frequently regrets the damage she did. She always acts hastily because she is emotional and more or less ignorant. Those who always cater to her are, sooner or later, thrown into a ditch.

SUPPOSING this actress had really accepted some drinks from her host without inquiring whether he had bought them from a bootlegger or had owned them for five years. And then supposing some one, without her connivance or consent, had shot her host. What evil effect can her pictures have upon the public mind?

Oh, the hypocrisy of this whole censorship idea!

WHY not bar the music of Chopin? Were he living in Oklahoma today the Ku Klux Klan would drive him out of town for his immorality. Why not bar the writings of Edgar Allan Poe and Robert Burns? They were habitual drunkards.

If you were to make a study of the private lives of many of the world's greatest geniuses, painters, poets, musicians, philosophers, whose thoughts and creations are the greatest adornments of civilization, it would make every hair of your head stand on end. Yet, supposing some hypocritical censor had suppressed their work because they killed or stole or drank or had a dozen irregular households — what would the world have gained?

And why not suppress all their works today?

THE work of Benvenuto Cellini has for centuries been, and will for centuries be, an inspiration to all lovers of the beautiful. Yet, if there was a crime that Cellini did not commit, it was merely because he had overlooked it.

WHY not let the California actress alone? She has her living to make. She is not strong enough to cope either with boards of censors or with public opinion.

If her pictures are bad bar them. That would be doing the public a good turn. Bar all bad pictures—if you're sure they are bad. If they are good, go to see them. Above all—

“Let him who is without sin among you—”

Settlement Pending

Jackson was ordered to appear before that body. Phillips says he failed to do so and then the law was resorted to. An order was issued in the Supreme Court, recognizing the workings of the arbitration board and instructing Jackson to submit to its findings. Several exchange managers declared yesterday the ruling was important in that it served to impress on the exhibitor mind that the arbitration system was recognized in a court of law and that thereafter owners could not afford to sidestep the agreement made under the uniform contract to be governed by joint arbitration.

Jackson has been ordered to appear before the court today but last night it seemed likely that a settlement would be made.

Eastern Visit Held Up

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Louis B. Mayer, Fred Niblo and Enid Bennett expect to leave for New York today or tomorrow. The visit East has been held up because Mayer waited for the completion of the new Reginald Barker picture.

Paul Daniels, formerly with Shadowland Review, is now distributing the Mason Wadsworth product.

At Broadway Theaters

Cameo

The overture consists of (a) "Babes In The Woods;" (b) "Poor Butterfly" and (c) "The Glow Worm." This is followed by Pathe News and an Aesop Fable. Agnes Sweet next sings "The World is Waiting For the Sunrise." A Jimmy Aubrey comedy precedes the feature picture, "The Lullaby," featuring Jane Novak. John Priest closes with an organ selection.

Central

"The Extra Girl," with Mabel Normand, is the feature. Other numbers include an opening musical selection and "Picking Peaches," a Mack Sennett comedy.

Gaiety

"Abraham Lincoln," a Rockett production, is the feature.

Rialto

The opening musical unit is "Capriccio Italien," followed by Riesenfeld's Classical Jazz, "Man's Conquest of Time," a novelty offering; "Plastigrams," a film; the Rialto Magazine; Zane Grey's, "Heritage of the Desert," and Billy Sullivan in "The Kid From Madrid, Michigan."

Strand

The Strand program this week consists of excerpts from "Cavalleria Rusticana," played as the overture; a dance fantasy, "In A Shop Window," with the Strand Ballet Corps and Mlle. Klementowicz; the Topical News Review; a prologue to the feature, "The Eternal City," the feature; "The Rat's Revenge," an Aesop Fable, and an organ solo.

At Other Houses

"Under The Red Robe" has been held for a second week at the Capitol and likewise "The Humming Bird" at the Rivoli. Other hold-overs include: "The Ten Commandments," at the Cohan; "The Great White Way," at the Cosmopolitan; "The Covered Wagon," at the Criterion, and "The White Sister," at the Lyric.

Roth On Trip

Max Roth, who recently joined Preferred to take charge of special work on "The Virginian" and "Maytime," will leave today for a business trip through the Middle West. His itinerary will take him to Indianapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis, Omaha, Des Moines and Chicago.

the smaller towns. And as we all know it is the smaller cities that make up the bulk of the business. Their alibi is that they want the price of production to come down.

"As to the cut prices at which American distributors are offering pictures I do not see what the distributors are getting out of their investment. Certainly they are making it difficult for themselves for time to come."

Suit Over "Feet of Clay"

Laura D. Wilck yesterday instituted a suit for $2,500 in commission against Margarita Tuttle, author of "Feet of Clay." Miss Wilck contended that she was engaged to dispose of the picture rights and that she had made a tentative deal with the Warners' for $25,000. Having been advised by the author, she decided not to sell because two directors, friends of the writer's, had quarreled over the book. Miss Wilck then claims she discovered the rights had been sold to Famous Players at the same figure.

LINCOLN

By DANNY

ere came, unheralded, al-without any advance pubor exploitation, into the y—never before turned for picture showing—the ett's picturization of "Abra-Lincoln." It stole into the quietly. It was met with a of trumpets of acclaim. All one of the newspaper critics ed it as one of the biggest,
t pictures ever shown.
e was unstinted. It was ded.

When on the Coast several onths ago it was my luck to e this. Accompanied by Sid auman and Hugo Riesen-
d. All of us appreciated its portance, and value.

Every man knows his busiss best. The Rocketts know
y they are planning to run as a road show over the langer houses.

at that this is sure: if a trained e mind; an exploitation mind, been back of the opening,
ham Lincoln" would have had t similar to that of "The Coy-Wagon" with which it ranks in il ways. Properly exploited;
rly handled, "Abraham Lincoln"
l—and could—easily prove as ble a piece of property as "The ed Wagon." But what is need-hat it must have—is the spend-kind of publicity and exploita-that such a picture and such a ction warrant.

The ordinary exploitation, e kind that is sufficient for e theater, is insufficient, eak and almost worthless
r a motion picture. The otion picture audience is stly different in many ways an the theater clientele.
nd must be treated accordgly.

raham Lincoln" is a great pica fine picture; a splendid piece roperty. The Rocketts deserve congratulations. They have ed a long way out as producers.
Frances Marion again scores;
t's direction is often excellent.
icture could stand a bit of cut-here and there to advantage.
ge Billings is superb as Lincoln.

Los Angeles—Carl Laemmle brought from New York a number of interesting announcements relative to future Universal production
plans.

He has secured the rights to "The Butterfly" by Kathleen Norris, for the probable use of Virginia Valli and Norman Kerry. Stories approved for production include "Love Insurance," in which Reginald Denny will star;
"The Missourian," a Civil War novel for Denny; and "Damned," to be made with an all-star cast.

Divided Over Tax

House Committee Members Hold Various Ideas on What Should Be Repealed by Congress

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday began tentative consideration of rates in the revenue bill. A number of motions were made dealing with the portion of the bill relative to admissions, thus indicating a difference in opinion among the various committee members.

Among the motions made was one calling for the removal of the tax on admissions under twenty-five cents;
another, for the repeal on admissions of fifty cents and under; a third, eliminating the tax on admissions of one dollar and under and a fourth, regarding $1.50 admissions. Another provided for the repeal of all taxes.

Based on returns for the first six months of the fiscal year, the Government will receive about $90,000,- 000 during the current year in admission taxes.

Geraghty Leaves Famous

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Tom J. Geraghty, one of the supervising editors for Famous, has resigned and, according to report, will join Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford.

Geraghty has held a number of important posts at Famous. On several occasions, he has been in complete charge of Eastern production.

Expect 2,500 at Ball

About 2,500 people are expected at the T. O. C. ball at the Astor tonight. The entire choruses from
"The Follies" and "Kid Boots" will aid in the coronation of Rudolph Valentino as king and Marion Davies as queen.

Bowes Returns

Edward J. Bowes returned on the Aquitania yesterday from Europe.
His trip concerned the production of "Ben Hur" in Italy.

Sheehan Sails Saturday

Winfield R. Sheehan sails for Eu-

Newspaper Opinions

Abraham Lincoln"—Rockett Film Gaiety

AMERICAN—Here is the life of one of the great men told simply, naturally and without any attempt to force artificial incidents upon the obvious purpose of achieving dramatic effects. Here are charming dignity and a judicious choice of detail that impressed me as being the sort of film story to which Lincoln, himself, would have lent his warm approval.

EVENING JOURNAL—And from start to finish the end the historical blend leaves one breathless and wide-eyed and tense. * * * The story, written by Frances Marion, runs smoothly; there are beautiful backgrounds, stirring war scenes, excellent photography—an evidence, throughout the entire picture, of the sincerity of everyone connected with it.

EVENING WORLD—* * * the producers have turned out an historic epic which is bound to fill movie houses everywhere. The acting at least is not overdone, and, indeed, the repressed sadness of its story is its most compelling feature. * * * "Abraham Lincoln" is bound to have a long and successful run.

REPUBLIC—"The Dramatic Life of Abraham Lincoln," forms a document of great value on the screen, and opens up a new historical field which the movies may well exploit. As the first of its type it is naturally experimental—but that does not interfere with the fact that it is vitally stirring and impressive.

If you are a Lincoln lover (and if you are not you had better consult a specialist) you will see this picture.

MAIL—The main fault lay in the attempt to crowd into the film too much history. The directors might have been wiser to concentrate themselves to the incidents touched upon by John Drinkwater in his play.

Thus the producers have done one thing which they have animated the printed page of history. And this they have done well. To the film "The Dramatic Life of Abraham Lincoln" is misleading, for drama is not there. * * * The Messrs. Rockett deserve credit for their care and attention to detail and for their courage in bringing this subject to the screen.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—There is no doubt that the Brothers Rockett have produced an epochal picture. Mrs. Marion has succeeded in translating for the screen the inspiration which compelled them to do anything and to risk everything in order to do it. * * * One may easily predict that "Abraham Lincoln" will be remembered longer than many of its ambitious contemporaries have been forgotten.

POST—* * * It is one of the most thrilling and sympathetic stories ever told. * * * In fact, it is the production of artist-eries of paintings of historical exactitude and pictorial composition. Men in the mass are handled as one and, in more individual cases, the whole was never lost sight of. The cast was so excellently chosen and, most important, each part was so well played that it is impossible to speak of Anne Rutledge, General Grant, and so on, except that they contributed greatly to the perfect whole.

UN—After a very great man has been dead for many years his life becomes epic—a thing of moments. * * * If their moments can be revealed with a full comprehension of their part in the complete picture we have something very like great photography. And if they can be shown on the screen we have something very close to approaching a great motion picture.

In every respect fulfilled the requirements of the above somewhat didactic definition. * * * The Lincoln of the film is precisely the man as the stories of his life will let you be. If he sometimes makes unlikely remarks at unlikely times the fault is with his life. * * * There are other moments, important moments, when art almost as perfect is attained. There is a moment or two where the actor is not equal to the act—as there are moments or two in Lincoln's life, none of which the same may be said.

TELEGRAM—The vital point of the picture was, of course, the characterization of Abraham Lincoln. * * * It is said that there was two years in the making, and the most uninitiated in production could understand. * * * George A. Billing, as Lincoln, was a find, not only for his natural resemblance to the character but because of his rough, yet dignified appearance. The part was handled in a much lighter, more human way than it is usually done.

NEWS—There may be no sound or color in the historical film masterpiece, "The Dramatic Life of Abraham Lincoln," which was presented last night before an enthusiastic audience in the Gaiety theater, but nevertheless scene after scene of this inspiring picture will linger long in the memory of those who see it. Here is a production which will teach the young and refresh the minds of adults.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—Historically this screen version of the life of Lincoln is a thing of beauty, impressive to the nth degree.

But there is naught about the picture that is going to make any audience stand up in its seats and cheer. After all, it is just a motion picture.

TRIBUNE—* * * it seems to us a thrilling and beautiful production, with direction that is inspired. No wonder one calls loudly for imagination in pictures when so much of it has gone into this one. We think we know perfectly well why it is that "Abraham Lincoln" has something which few other pictures ever have had, but it would not be polite to write it in here. * * * Phil Rosen directed "Abraham Lincoln" and it is one of the finest pictures we ever saw. Do not miss it!

WORLD—* * * one of the most astonishing picture plays which the films have given us. In "The Dramatic Life of Abraham Lincoln," the Rockett brothers present a motion picture which is not only of commanding importance as a document of American ideals and patriotism, but which is also, largely by virtue of its soundness and honesty, a drama of inspiring and thrilling quality. * * * It is intense and unrelenting in its faithfulness to a glorious life, and still it is at those moments when sadness and sorrow spread their wings that one is brought most clearly to recognize the greatness which was Lincoln's.

Eastman in Theater Deal

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Rochester, N. Y.—George Eastman is now the sole owner of the Regent and Piccadilly theatres and the Gordon or the Star as it has been called and also a site on Clinton Ave., South, originally intended for a new theater. The consideration is said to have been $500,000. Eastman bought the Gordon outright from Mrs. Bessie Gordon of Boston, Hymen Gordon of Rochester, and Nathan Gordon of Boston. He also buys the interest which these people have had with him in the Regent and the Piccadilly.

Acquisition of theaters downtown was begun two or three years ago when Eastman bought out the interest of Marcus Loew in the Regent and the Piccadilly. Loew had previously acquired that interest from Thomas J. Swanton and George Simpson.

Take Over Fresno Theaters

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Fresno, Cal.—The West Coast Theaters, Inc. has assumed control of the Kinema and Liberty, following their purchase several weeks ago for $500,000. This gives the concern three Fresno theaters, the third being the Hippodrome. The purchase was from the Kehrlein Corp. Managers H. E. Purkett of the Liberty and A. Sharpe of the Kinema will be retained.

Cleveland Houses Cut Prices

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Cleveland—The Allen and State operated and controlled by Loew's Ohio Theaters, Inc., have reduced their admission prices from 65 cents in the evening to 50 cents and from 40 cents at matinees to 30 cents. Sundays and holidays the admission remains at 65 cents.

Putting it Over

Fitzmaurice Leaves for Coast
George Fitzmaurice left for the coast yesterday to produce "Cytherea" for Samuel Goldwyn. The picture was started here and about three weeks' work completed when it was decided to start all over again in Hollywood. The original script by Ouida Hoffmann will be replaced by one written by Frances Marion. Meridan Hall who will assist Fitzmaurice leaves today together with Bert Schable.

Two Houses For Chicago
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Chicago—The colored belt of Chicago will, within a year or so, have new theaters, to seat 3,500 and 2,500 respectively. This region now has about 12 theaters, of which two are stock and the rest film houses. The new ones, one is to be built by the Paul-Stone Amusement Co. at 10th and 35th, and will seat about 2,500. The other house, to be built at State and 33rd, will seat 2,800.

Lloyd and Party Coming East
Harold Lloyd and a party including W. R. Fraser, Joe Reddy, Tom Grey, and Gaylord Lloyd are due down from Hollywood tomorrow. Entertainment stuff.

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Los Angeles—Harold Lloyd's new picture just completed and formerly titled "The Girl Expert," has been renamed "Girl Shy."

Associated Gets Kennedy Film
Associated Exhibitors, Inc., will distribute the new Madge Kennedy picture, "Three Miles Out," which ran at the Rialto recently.

Miss Short Completes Role
Dorothy Short is completing her work in "The Enchanted Cottage," a picture directed by John S. Robertson.

Jackie Coogan Contest Staged

Kansas City—The management of the Pantages staged a Jackie Coogan contest as an exploitation stunt for "Long Live The King." The idea of the contest was to find the boy or girl in Kansas City that most closely resembled Jackie.

Eight prizes were offered to winners, ranging from a larger silver loving cup and a Jackie Coogan suit, to free passes to see the picture and a Jackie Coogan cap. Pictures were taken of all the contestants on the stage of the theater and from this film judges selected the winner. The picture was screened at each performance.

Large circulars were distributed announcing the rules, etc., of the contest, with a coupon attached. The papers gave the usual announcements.

German Marks As an Aid

Philadelphia—Realizing that the continued drop in valuation of German currency was a topic of public interest, the Strand management decided to tie up their exploitation of "Why Worry," with the mark. Enough of the German marks were purchased at a paltry price to serve as throwaways. At the left-hand side of the mark, where there is a space occupied only by an ornamental design, the theater placed an imprint, which read:

"Yes, this is real money—but don't try to spend it. 'Why Worry' with Harold Lloyd at the Strand will cost you 28 cents real American money."

Circus Angle For Coogan Film

Cleveland—The covered front of a circus wagon and a hundred myriad lights that glittered on, above and below the marquee were the outstanding features of the exploitation used for "Circus Days" at Loew's State.

Inside the entrance a compo board covering, painted to resemble the awning of the tent, marked the entrance. The box office, before and behind, was converted into a traveling circus car. The miniature menagerie was on hand to help out the display.

Charter Oak Exhibitor Dead
Charter Oak, Ia.—Louis King, of the Royal, has died.

Stages Newsie

Mobile, Ala.—When "Long Live the King" played the Crown, and what proved to be highly popular contest was effected by C. D. Haug, Metro exploitation representative.

Haug ran a "Who's the most popular newsboy in Mobile" contest in connection with the "News-Item." The News printed coupons, each counting ten votes, which were clipped, marked, and deposited in a box in front of the theater. A Jackie Coogan suit was given to the most popular newsie. To the second was given $10 in gold and to the third, five books of admission tickets.

Haug's coup, however, were day to day stories which appeared in boxes on the first page of the News-Item from the beginning to the end of the contest.

Ushers Dress Like "Connie"

Houston—Manager Al Lever of the Isis advertised Constance Talmadge as "The Dangerous Maid" when the attraction played that theater. When the play date arrived, however, he had four dangerous maids around his house instead of one. They were four ushers who were decorated in silk and satin riding costumes, a la the pos of Miss Talmadge's part.

Princess, Rainbeck, Ia., Burns
Rainbeck, Ia.—First has rendered the Princess theater a total loss.

Hearing In Dallas Operations of Theater Circuits Gone Into In Some Detail—L. L. Dent On Stand

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Dallas—The operations of the theater circuits were gone into rather fully by L. L. Dent, former Paramount sales supervisor in this district now an exhibitor, in testimony given before the Federal Trade Commission here.

Dent operates several houses in this section. He declared that he would not book houses in which he was not financially interested because he believed the principle wrong. Changes, however, have no right to (Continued on Page 2)

Fight On In Maryland

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Annapolis, Md.—Enemies of Sunday shows have launched their first official attack in a resolution sent to the State Senate. It was forwarded in anticipation of a move to have such entertainments legalized by the General Assembly.

The resolution was sent by the Baltimore District Union of Young People's Societies of the Methodist Protestant Church and urged Senators to disapprove such a bill. It was referred to the Committee on Judicial Proceedings.

New Selznick Release

"Daughters of Today" has been accepted by Selznick. William M. Selznick and C. R. Seelye acted for the producers.

Don Allen, Evening World: "Countless thousands were turned away from the Central on the first day of Mabel Normand in 'The Extra Girl.'" Associated Exhibitors is distributing this Mack Sennett hit.—Advt.

Vignola In Deal

About to Close With Important Distributor for Series of Three Pictures a Year

Robert G. Vignola, who directed "When Knighthood Was in Flower," for Cosmopolitan, is about to close a deal for a series of pictures with an important distributor. The plan calls for three pictures a year, with production headquarters probably to be located in the East.

Vignola has been organizing his own unit for several months. It is understood that a well-known book is now being sought as the first vehicle. The deal on distribution will be closed momentarily.

Stebbins On His Own

Arthur Stebbins, who for many years has been associated with Reuben Samuels, Inc., insurance brokers, and who has a very wide acquaintanceship among moving picture and theatrical folk, will, on Feb. 1, leave the Samuels organization and start on his own under the firm style of Arthur Stebbins & Co., Inc., with offices in the State Theater Bldg.

Stebbins' departure from the Samuels organization has caused much surprise in the industry. For the past five or six years he has been so prominently identified that he was regarded as a fixture in the Samuels organization.

On the coast Stebbins has many friends who will be interested in this move.

Values

Group of important producers chatting. Discussing the various angles of productions. Here and there agreeing. Generally disagreeing. Why a picture did this; or that; flopped or succeeded. And why. Which led an important financier present to say: "I wonder if you realize that what makes the picture business just what it is is this difference of opinion? One of you see in certain pictures, certain stories, that which no one else does. Each of you finds something else of value. It is this which makes for success. If every one of you only saw things one way what a rut you would be in."

He was right.

THAT DISCUSSION

Took in almost everything; as to what made "The Covered Wagon" a great picture; whether or not "The Ten Commandments" will gross as much as the "Wagon"—and by the way, that's one of the most interesting topics wherever film folk meet; what a cast properly selected means to the success of a picture; Ingram and how he will handle "The World's Illusion"; and—like all other discussions between film folk—the growth of Los Angeles and Hollywood.

Whether "The Covered Wagon" or "The Ten Commandments" will gross the more is a most interesting topic. This is (Continued on Page 11)

3 Grauman Houses

Planned For Los Angeles—One In Downtown District—Each to Cost About $1,000,000

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Sid Grauman plans the construction of three theaters here, each to cost about $1,000,000. One will be devoted to pictures, another to stock while the third will be located in Long Beach.

The local theaters will be within ten minutes of the downtown business section.

Reinforce Film With Steel

The J. J. Dilks Co. of Philadelphia has developed a process of film reinforcement, using steel to make the sprocket holes stronger. The company claims the film is made unbreakable while running through the projection machine. In case of fire, the steel does not burn but continues the film through its regular course in the machine. It is stated that the process increases the life of prints about five hundred per cent. Hearing In Dallas refuse to negotiate with legitimately owned chains, he said, although the buyer may be in the position to dictate prices. Dent said he thought circuit ownership as a general thing was hard on the distributor and said circuits wielded considerable power for either good or bad, dependent upon the ideals of the owners. At the same time, strong competition between exhibitors lays them open to attacks from exchanges. Dent said combinations of distributors, however, were more dangerous than combinations of exhibitors and declared the practice of block bookings was bad for the industry, in that it encouraged bad pictures.

Going back to 1919-1920, Dent testified that he was visited by E. V. Richards and Herschel Stuart who wanted to buy the Paramount product for the Saenger chain and the Hulsey group jointly and that he refused to enter upon the deal. He said Richards did not get Paramount product until after the Hulsey-Lynch combine. The situation in the first-run towns was found to be a serious one and for that reason, Dent arranged for the purchase of a secondary house in Dallas.

The activities of Famous in the theater field were entered upon. Dent said the famous Paramount "wrecking crew" did not get into all of the towns desired but despite that Southern Enterprises, Inc., did not build any theaters. He was asked about J. C. Boss of McAlester, Okla. who charged Famous with unfair methods and testified that Boss was protected in all ways possible. For example, he was sold without deposits, his dates were changed and occasionally pictures were given to him gratis. Despite all this, the counsel for Famous drew out of Dent, Boss was an unsatisfactory account and very unreliable.

The situation in Corsicana then came up and testimony was given to shown that W. M. Peck erected the create competition there by building a theater after the Musselman interests had entered that field. It was shown that W. M. Peck, erected the Palace at Corsicana and leased it to Famous before the Musselman's had made any plans.

Joseph E. Luckett, United Artists manager here, testified that there existed a worse monopoly in this territory before Southern Enterprises entered the field. He said sales of his product had not been affected or interfered with in any manner, that his dealings with Southern Enterprises had always been satisfactory and that he was thoroughly satisfied with their treatment of him. Luckett declared that, in some instances, he knew of the company supplying opposition houses with pictures in order to raise the standards of exhibition and improve general business tactics. It will be recalled that the Government drew up a list of pictures which witnesses declared were worthy of first runs but which were denied them. Luckett took exception to many in that group. He denounced block booking as entirely bad for everyone concerned. Luckett said he would stay out of closed towns rather than go in and receive arbitrary treatment at the hands of exhibitors.

The hearing was marked by a row between Examiner Alvord and Robert T. Swain when the latter argued for what he termed fair rulings and treatment. Alvord characterized Swain's remarks as unethical and discourteous and added that, although his authority was limited, he held the right to remove the defendant's attorney if there was a repetition of such charges.

W. L. Lytle said Paramount's prices advanced about sixty per cent during 1919-1920 and that the aim of the Hulsey group of theaters was to buy pictures at cheaper prices. He said he favored block booking because it meant salvation to the small exhibitor who would otherwise lose all of the important product to the larger buying power.

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

New Orleans—A number of local theater managers were called in by counsel for Famous Players at the Federal Trade hearing here. They testified as to the quality of the Paramount product. G. T. Dureau, booking manager for the Saenger circuit declared that the same quality pictures were shown here at fifty cents that draw two and three times that amount in New York. The hearing went from here to Dallas.

"The Acquittal"—Universal
Rivoli, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—* * * a dynamic story with sweeping and powerful dramatic suspense. * * * Throughout the entire story the audience is kept in complete enthralment.

STAR—It abounds in sensations, and the unraveling of the plot is attended by novelty.

TIMES—The fault of the picture is that the hero turns out the villain, and the villain the hero. * * * The trial scene is excellent. Certainly there is plenty of suspense.

"Anna Christie"—1st Nat'l
Capitol, Detroit

FREE PRESS—An exceedingly fine picture and so far above the average that it is one of the outstanding pictures of recent years.

NEWS—A great motion picture that radiates careful advance planning and sincere endeavor on the part of every important contributing factor.

Royal, Kansas City

POST—You'll be wanting to see this film * * * Blanche Sweet prettier and photographing remarkably well. * * * should be well attended.

Grand Central-West End Lyric
St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—* * * Blanche Sweet once more becomes one of the screen's greatest actresses. It has been a long time since she has played a role of dramatic consequence and her effectiveness proves that the producers have been asleep. She dominates everything—even O'Neill's wonderful story and character studies.

POST-DISPATCH—* * * a worthy picture of Eugene O'Neill's famous stage play. In dramatic content and interpretation by the leading actors, it has not been surpassed by any screen offering of the current season.

STAR—It is a worthy presentation, this movie, a grippingly human document.

TIMES—A good story, a good cast, and an intelligent director have combined to produce an interesting photoplay, of life, and love and hate, and tragedy and pathos.

"Black Oxen"—First Nat'l
Allen, Cleveland

NEWS—Little doubt that those who have read this story will find much of interest in the film version.

PLAIN DEALER—Extraordinary well-appointed and put together in fine building style.

TIMES—Is at great variance with the novel in detail and incident * * * ridiculous ending detracts from the screen version.

Capitol, Montreal

STAR—Although the transformation is somewhat exaggerated for purposes of contrast it makes a highly entertaining photoplay and provides opportunity for some excellent acting.

Stanley, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—Falls considerably short of being a satisfying interpretation. Corinne Griffith * * * pretty, charming but somebody took terrible liberties with the script and she is cast to poor advantage.

INQUIRER—It is a pity that unnecessary cuts and changes had to be made * * * Corinne Griffith too young for the part.

NORTH AMERICAN—Corinne Griffith well-cast and looks decidedly beautiful.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—Remarkably well done. Intensely interesting and seems oddly enough far more convincing than the book.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—There have been few picturizations of best sellers in which the story has been followed so faithfully and with such high entertainment value.

RECORD—Not nearly so repellent on the screen as it is between covers * * * Corinne Griffith was an impressive figure.

"The Courtship of Myles Standish"—
Asso. Exhib.—Woods, Chicago

HERALD-EXAMINER—It isn't what we call inspired chiefly because it is deficient in narrative value.

NEWS—Ray's ambitious attempt to emulate Griffith * * * is a laudable effort to do "something big" * * * Charles is not meant for the heroic.

POST—One of the most pretentious historical dramas of the screen * * * here is another great epic.

Ohio, Indianapolis

NEWS—Ray set out to do a very fine thing and accomplished his aim to a great extent * * * film has been lavishly produced.

STAR—Rarely has the screen seen the duplicates of the fine marine scenes. * * * Sullivan the director, has handled most of the picture in a magnificent way.

"The Covered Wagon"—F. P.-L.
Forrest, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—Though it hardly lives up to advance notices, it is a good picture—in large measure what hundred of "westerns" spectacularly have not been.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—Is truly a great film.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—A film masterpiece without the overpaid features of so many "masterpiece" productions.

DEMOCRAT-CHRONICLE—Raises our opinion of her ability as an actress at least ten points on the movie critics curb market.

HERALD—Mac Murray reveals all her familiar skill in dancing * * * and in the later episode she is called upon for acting of genuine emotional grip such as she has seldom presented.

JOURNAL—Mae Murray rises to emotional heights as Russian immigrant girl.

"Flaming Barriers"—F. P.-L.
McVicker's, Chicago

HERALD-EXAMINER—Since melodrama is built to thrill, "Flaming Barriers," should be judged on that basis. As far as I'm concerned the thrills were there in good measure. In fact, if the comedy had been as efficient as the thrill "Flaming Barriers" could be advertised as a perfect melodrama.

JOURNAL—For those who like the flames and would watch them without the distracting twitches of pity "Flaming Barriers," is recommended. Here are forest fires de luxe.

"The Heritage of the Desert"—

Metropolitan, Los Angeles

(Week ending Jan. 19)

EXAMINER—* * * some real old blood and thunder melodrama. * * *

Irvin Willat, who directed the production, was obviously afraid to stop the action of his piece even for a moment.

EXPRESS—This transcription of Zane Grey's well-known novel, which purports to be a faithful delineation of "God's country," runs true to form. * * *

HERALD—* * * it is filled with the breath of the great wastes of sand, sagebrush and rock. It is pleasingly lacking in superficialities.

RECORD—It goes almost without saying that there is lots of action, thrilling horseback rides, and a perfect fusillade of shots. * * *

TIMES—There is some photography that is very beautiful, * * * and last but not least there are Bebe Daniels, Ernest Torrence, Noah Beery and Lloyd Hughes, a cast worth seeing in almost anything.

"Jealous Husbands"—1st Nat'l

ENQUIRER—Besides being preachy, has a tendency towards exaggerated sentimentality.

POST—Fine direction, excellent cast and splendid action make for what the story lacks in novelty.

"A Lady of Quality"—Universal

EXAMINER—Ernest Lubitsch gives us tangled matrimony with a laugh in every knot. * * * a triumph of subtlety. * * * has brought light comedy and delicate satire to its highest celluloid point. * * * The picture is a triumph for Lubitsch both in its story and in the delicacy with which it has been transcribed to the screen.

TIMES—Gay, glittering, frivolous, merry, clever, smart—but stop! I'll run out of adjectives. And you'll be able, I'm sure, to find plenty of your own to describe this amazing entertaining and bright picture * * * There is in "The Marriage Circle," however, no hokum and not prehistoric allegories. # Theaters Not Affected By Radio inquiries made in various sections of the country relative to the radio indicate that business at the box office has not been seriously hit by the radio craze. Government tax figures at Washington show that theater receipts are increasing rather than decreasing. Important exhibitors, almost unanimously, believe that the radio craze is negligible so far as influencing their receipts is concerned.

Harold B. Franklin, director of theaters for Famous Players is definite in his conviction about the radio. He believes wherever possible he encourages Paramount theaters to make such adjustments because he feels it helps rather than hurts business.

The McVicker's in Chicago, the Grand in Atlanta and the Missouri in St. Louis broadcast their programs but there has been no noticeable drop in business. As a matter of fact, it is expected to bring a new class of patron to the theater, in that a desire is created to personally hear the orchestra as the radio enthusiast gets through the air.

It is also important to remember that the theater serves as a sort of community house where the neighborhood meet and exchange greetings. Mrs. Jones still wants to get out to the theater and the radio does not seem to bring about those meetings. William Brandt, president of the P. T. O. of New York State sees no danger and an opportunity in the radio. He thinks there is no doubt that the radio is here to stay. In its present form," says Brandt, "it has already proven to be a direct and convincing opposition to motion pictures, and I believe that it has scratched the surface as yet compared to its possibilities.

On Monday night, the coldest yet of the winter, with the thermometer approximating zero. I slipped down into my big arm chair at home, in a nice cozy apartment, and listened to the following program:

Edie Cantor and Fannie Brice, the Harmonic Orchestra, with some of the leading soloists of the world, the Lopez Orchestra and innumerable other entertaining features. Finally, at ten o'clock in the evening, I settled down to listen to a two-part discourse by William Jennings Bryan on the political issues of 1924.

It was as though all of these things had been enacted for my own personal benefit and enjoyment. All the time the wind was howling down the streets and the thermometer had finally touched zero. I gave a thought to my theaters, at which I was showing 'Rosita,' 'The Spanish Dancer,' 'Ponjola' and 'His Children's Children,' all first class attractions, and wondered how many of my patrons who should have been look-

Federal Tax Figures Show Theater Business Holds Up, Despite Radio

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—The assertion that the radio craze is cutting into the film industry has no foundation in fact. A study of the situation from the Washington angle shows that, while attendance in some particular communities may be reduced as a result of radio, that condition by no means holds true with regard to the country at large. And in those communities where theatrical attendance has fallen off, it might be well for the exhibitors affected to delve into the situation with a view to ascertaining whether the falling-off in patronage is not, in some part at least, due to the fact that they are not offering their patrons the films they like.

There are no figures on file in Washington showing the number of radio sets in use in this country. The annual reports of the various radio manufacturers show that they did a business last year valued at several billion dollars, and estimates place the number of sets in use as high as 5,000,000 which, allowing an average of two listeners to each set, would show that 10,000,000 people are interested in radio.

Probably on stormy nights radio is far more popular than the theater. Most of the people who listen to radio on such nights would not brave the weather to attend a picture show anyway. At all other times the relative popularity of the radio and the moving picture is determined by individual preference. The two entertainments appeal to two entirely different senses and they are, in the final analysis, no more competitive than are grand opera and moving pictures.

There is one thing which appears to have been overlooked by exhibitors, and also by phonograph dealers, who are also complaining steadily of radio competition. That is the fact that the radio enthusiast is far more restricted in the variety of entertainment than is generally supposed. The only thing that can be broadcast is the human voice and instrumental music. The field of broadcast entertainment, therefore, is limited to vocal or instrumental selections, readings, speeches, or opera. The same music is popular all over the country, so ing at these big pictures were sitting at home in the same manner in which I was, enjoying the warmth and comfort of home and being entertained in regal fashion by the world's best, without having to leave the fireside.

"I found my answer upon receiving my box office reports which showed that we had one of the worst night's business in a long time.

The radio is a serious competitor of the motion picture theater and will which are broadcasting dances, say, that in listening to different stations the radio listener hears the same pieces played over and over. The same applies to vocal selections.

While figures regarding the number of radio sets in the country are unavailable, there are very complete figures regarding theatrical attendance throughout the United States. These figures show that theatrical attendance has increased steadily over a period of months, and is now of greater proportions than it has been for approximately two years, and is steadily increasing. The figures referred to are those compiled by the Bureau of Internal Revenue from the tax returns of admissions made by every theater in the country. They show that during September, as indicated by tax returns made in October, the admission tax collected totaled nearly $7,000,000, an increase of more than $1,500,000 over the corresponding month of 1922. Statistics tell the story, and these figures refute any assertions that radio is cutting into the theatrical business. Furthermore, this business is done under the handicap of the admission tax, and most exhibitors believe that the repeal of that tax will greatly stimulate attendance, an assertion that they will probably be given an opportunity to verify within a few months.

There is available a very simple means for any exhibitor to check up regarding the effect of radio and other conditions upon his business. That is by securing from the Collector of Internal Revenue for the district in which he is domiciled figures showing the admission taxes collected in his section for the preceding month as compared with the corresponding month of the previous year. These figures, while they will not show the cause for any increase or reduction, will show just how business has moved within a period of twelve months, and will give an exhibitor, if he does not already know, definite information as to just what is happening in his particular section of the country. For the country at large, it is the opinion here, radio is not affecting the picture industry, a statement verified by the tax figures collected by the Treasury Department.

prove more menacing each day as the radio itself improves. At the present time there are thousands of very small ineffective sets with head phones, which will be later replaced by better sets with loud speakers, and prove more alluring. There were more radio sets sold this Christmas for gifts than ever before, and it is nothing uncommon for a radio party to number twenty or thirty people or oftentimes more.

"With high class programs brought directly to the home, with no admission nor war tax to pay, it is no wonder that people prefer the radio to the motion picture when the weather is inclement.

"The phonograph industry has taken cognizance of the serious inroads made by the radio upon their business, and already the Sonora Company has announced that they will combine the radio with the phonograph and sell the two as one unit. It is also known that the Brunswick and Victor Companies are busily engaged in perfecting their machines by adding radio attachments to them.

"What about the motion picture theater in this connection? Taking a peak into the future, it seems to me that we ought to get busy now and take a leaf out of the book of the precedent established by the phonograph manufacturers, and see if we can not combine the radio with our theaters in some manner.

"It is not a wild dream to imagine that a method can be found to establish a central station with a sixty piece symphony orchestra playing the pictures perfectly synchronized with the projection in several hundred theaters in any given territory, thereby giving the audiences in the small theaters as fine music as in the largest theaters in the country.

"The programs in these theaters could be co-ordinated, and timed accurately so that in a given territory they are synchronized perfectly with the radio. Perhaps this sounds a little far fetched, but it can be easily worked out. It is also possible, under the same conditions, to have soloists and other attractions in the smaller theaters. It is just a question of working the thing out properly, and I have been assured by several of the leading radio engineers in the country, with whom I have discussed the question, that far from being an impossibility, it will be the only way in the future.

"Certainly the motion picture industry should awaken to this new competition and lay plans to ward off the opposition, or else meet with it and absorb it."

Riesensfeld Sees No Danger

Hugo Riesensfeld, managing director of the Rialto, Rivoli and Criterion declares that while he has no definite way of determining accurately whether the radio has affected attendance in his theaters, his guess is that it has not. He says:

"I doubt that broadcasting the program is of as much benefit as has been claimed; but on the other hand, I fail to see anything in the assertion of some calamity howlers that broadcasting is deliberately playing into the hands of the opposition.

"When a poor picture is shown, it is just possible that a good many people decide that perhaps it is better to tune in on WJZ and get the latest weather reports from Nebraska; but when Gloria Swanson appears in 'The Humming Bird,' somehow or other they find they can do without the Bedtime Story. And I don't think that hearing the music program of the show on their radio set completely satisfies them, either. They decide there is too much static in the air, and they storm the Rivoli.

"I would say that poor entertainments in the theater are really beneficial to home life, inasmuch as they keep the family at home, and make the husband devoted to his wife; whereas an attractive program lures the family from the fireside and the hearth to the motion picture theaters, where it is driven home to the husband that there are other attractive women in the world besides his wife."

Pacific N. W. Undisturbed

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Seattle—There are 20,000 radio sets within a 100 mile radius of Seattle. Nevertheless, local exhibitors seem to feel no cause for alarm. All frankly admit that about a year ago there was grave concern. The radio was considered one of the biggest problems the exhibitor had to face. The novelty is wearing off.

Robert W. Bender, manager, Columbia Theater, says:

"While I realize that there are a great many radio sets in use in our territory, and they undoubtedly have some effect, business continues to be very satisfactory. The radio has become more of a household necessity. The novelty has worn off to a great extent. The majority of people like both kinds of entertainment. After the newness of the radio wears off, there is a certain monotony about it. There is no feeling of antagonism between exhibitors and the radio people. The broadcasting stations here have been more than kind about broadcasting our announcements and special musical numbers from time to time."

John Hanrick, Blue Mouse theaters, Seattle, Tacoma, Portland and Astoria, says:

"The radio did hurt us in the beginning, and is still hurting to some extent. But its influence is on the decline rather than the increase. The radio provides more the atmosphere of 'canned music.' The public likes the proper atmosphere and setting for their entertainment. The surroundings of the theater, with the variety of entertainment it provides, in addition to music and speeches, furnishes that atmosphere. It is only the real radio 'bug,' with the fine instrument and the knowledge of all its possibilities, who gets sufficient wave length to hear the more distant radio programs, with any degree of certainty or regularity. In this particular territory, we have not sufficient to offer in the way of unusual attractions to satisfy permanently."

Frank Edwards of the Winter Garden, says:

"The visual appeal of the movies, outweighs, in the long run, any detrimental influence the radio might have. We do not feel any such adverse influence on our steady patronage here. As soon as the novelty of the thing wore off, the danger to the exhibitor lessened, the patron returned to the movies. In many instances in the case of smaller and less expensive sets, his own Victrola would furnish more satisfactory musical entertainment and he had no static to overcome."

LeRoy V. Johnson, manager Liberty theater, says:

"The danger of the radio as an alarming competitor of the moving picture, seems to me to be a negligible quantity. The thrill of listening in from your own fireside soon wears off. The novelty is not lasting. On the start, the radio undeniably hurt the picture business. Time has already lessened the degree of this influence. People now take the radio as a matter of course, listen in occasionally, and enjoy it. But it does not keep them away from the theater. They crave variety and it is our job to provide it."

From all indications the exhibitor in the Pacific Northwest no longer considers the radio an element of danger. The three local broadcasting stations have not available the number nor variety of high class attractions with which Eastern radio fans may entertain themselves. There is still much progress to be made with the radio, before the amateur can be sure of reliable results. Inquiries seem to show that to many amateurs it isn't worth the trouble it costs them, and is frequently set aside in a short time.

Cleveland Not Hit

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Cleveland—There are four broadcasting stations here. WJAX, The Union Trust Co., broadcasting Tuesdays and Thursdays; WHK, the Radio Vox Corp., broadcasting Sundays and Fridays and TAM, Willard Storage Battery Co., broadcasting Wednesdays and Saturdays. The Westinghouse Corp., KDPM has a license but does not broadcast.

With this line-up of either entertainment, and the fact that radio broadcasting struck Cleveland by storm over a year ago, many of the neighborhood theaters installed receiving sets and advertised this fact. The result on the theater patron and the picture theater is negligible, so far as actually noticeable.

Many of the first run theaters, in order to secure publicity, often contribute a jazz band or some other musical number to the various broadcasting stations.

With all the receiving instruments in Cleveland and the three active broadcasting stations, working every day in the week, there has been no harm done to the theater or its patrons.

The Allen theater recently broadcasted their Jazz Week program and received replies from nearly every state in the Union as well as many provinces in Canada. And the theater enjoyed a most healthy week during the presentation of this program.

The number of receiving instruments in the City of Cleveland is approximately 60,000. In Greater Cleveland, about 80,000.

Novelty Gone, Phila. Believes

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Philadelphia—There are no figures available as to the number of sets in use in Philadelphia and vicinity. Telephone inquiries to the radio departments of the newspapers in this city elicit the information that there are about 50,000 sets in Philadelphia. This figure they base on a census which the Chamber of Commerce took of the United States recently which revealed the fact that there was approximately one set for every fifty families. The census showed there were 2,000,000 sets in the United States, but as Philadelphia is so thickly populated they arrived at the figure given above.

The effect of radio on the box office is a difficult question to answer. There is no doubt but what the radio and the automobile are the two great enemies of the box office, not alone because they keep people from the theater, but also because they take the dimes and quarters that formerly used to pass through the ticket window.

There is one noticeable effect that the radio has had on the picture business and that is its disastrous effect in inclement weather. It has not snowed here since the radio was invented, but rainy nights cut much more deeply into receipts than they used to. The impression prevailing among the exhibitors is that the radio is gradually losing its sting as a competitor of pictures, that the people are wearying of the repetition of the concerts and lectures and are returning to their first love with increasing frequency.

Some of the theaters are broadcasting their musical programs through the several stations in this city.

No Alarm in 'Frisco

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

San Francisco—This territory is served with broadcasting by Station KPO here and Stations KLX and KGO in Oakland. There is no lack of entertainment from this source.

The latter two stations are new and with their coming, the sale of receiving instruments has increased, according to reports from various dealers. It is estimated that there are in this immediate vicinity 100,000 sets—that is, the vicinity including the immediate bay district, San Francisco, Oakland and adjacent towns. Some say this is a low estimate.

The average set serves from one to six persons, so that about 500,000 persons are enabled to tune in every night on some of the best broadcasting in the entire country. There does not seem to be any dropping off of attendance at the theaters, other than the falling off noticeable all over the country for lack of first-rate pictures.

Radio experts here declare that radio will never take the place of the theaters.

A Stimulus to St. Louis

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

St. Louis—A careful survey of the St. Louis field would indicate that radio has been a stimulus rather than a drawback to the picture business, despite the fact that 50,000 is a conservative estimate of the number of radio sets in operation in the city and its suburbs.

The Post-Dispatch operates one of the most powerful broadcasting stations in the United States. Exhibitors here do not look upon Station KSD as a competitor. In fact, the largest houses, the Missouri and New Grand Central, have their musical features broadcast by this station direct from the theater once a week. The Missouri's record week thus far was the one in which it tied up with the Post-Dispatch for a "radio week" which kept the house packed.

Managers of the two big houses say the broadcasting of their programs, one on Saturday night and one on Monday night, is a great advertisement. Many radio listeners hear the music and then go to see the performers and the picture. The incidental music for a picture as broadcast over the radio often draws them in.

Exhibitors call attention to another point that sounds logical. In almost every family the real radio bug is father. While he is listening to the radio he must not be disturbed by the children. And the easiest way to get rid of the children is to send them to the neighborhood picture show. Father may not go to the show as often as he formerly did, but the children go much oftener. Then again, father occasionally gets fed up on radio and he goes on a "picture spree." He uses his eyes instead of his ears for a while, and so the thing evens up.

Pittsburgh Amusements Booming

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Pittsburgh—Recognized today as one of the leading radio centers of the United States, with approximately 60,000 radio sets in Allegheny County, comprising Pittsburgh and its surrounding boroughs and communities, this city having undergone during the last three or four years the so-styled

"radio craze" has now apparently tled down to a systematic treatment of the invention.

According to Burt McMurtie of Press, the effect of radio upon forms of amusement would appear to be of little import, with local managers and producers pronouncing last year a banner year as to box office returns. Pittsburgh picture houses remain entirely untouched far as radio entertainment affecting their business is concerned. The year saw a greater number of pictures shown, more theaters added, the local number and bigger box office receipts, than previous years showed.

The local managers tell McMurtie that they are little worried over the influx of radio. They demonstrate this by the fact that the majority of larger picture houses in the city broadcast their musical programs in the entirety, especially the houses where organ recitals and elaborate musical programs are a feature.

During the year 1923 an increase of approximately fifty per cent was experienced in the local radio field. Two of the largest broadcasting stations in the eastern states static here, WCAE, the Pittsburgh Post station, and KDKA, the Pittsburgh Post-Westinghouse station, interest is kept at a top pace continually.

Radio displays in the windows of local department stores, enlarged radio departments and the advertising afforded radio through the enterprise of the Westinghouse Electric Co., have all given an added impetus to the wireless form of entertainment, with the result that radio today is important a form of amusement as the theater, the film, and the concert.

Further interesting material on the radio situation will appear in Monday's issue.

"The Heritage of the Desert"

Paramount

As a Whole ..... LIVELY ZANE GREY WESTERN GIVEN VIVID PRESENTATION AND UNUSUALLY FINE PRODUCTION. STORY VERY WELL HANDLED AND SPLENDIDLY ACTED.

Star ..... Ernest Torrence once again a terror in characteristic role. Bebe Daniels not given much prominence although she fulfills requirements easily. Noah Beery in his usual villainous self and James Mason also in a role with a wicked trend. Lloyd Hughes in a meagre hero role.

Type of Story... A real old fashioned western, Indians and all. Motion pictures in their pioneer days gained considerable popularity through westerns which thrilled and satisfied patrons everywhere. Continuous repetition both of atmosphere and plot apparently weakened the drawing power of this class of entertainment, generally speaking, but every once in a while they gain new strength in popularity and evidently secure box office results. This is especially so of the picturizations of the Zane Grey novels,—virile, thrilling tales of the old west. "The Heritage of the Desert" is among the best of his works. Irvin Willat has given a most satisfying production. The locations are ideal, the action exciting though properly conservative and sufficiently probable. The photography is excellent, especially the sequence sepia tinted. Further there is an appropriate cast, all well selected types and capable players. "The Heritage of the Desert" above all else is a well made picture.

Box Office Angle ..... Good entertainment for the average audience. Should please them thoroughly and affords you good opportunity to get profitable box office returns.

Exploitation ..... Your big points consist of Zane Grey's name, the fact that "The Heritage of the Desert" is one of his best works, that Ernest Torrence appears in the film, also Bebe Daniels, plus a fine production. Mention "To the Last Man," a recent Paramount picture of a Zane Grey story, if you happened to have played it and promise an equally thrilling offering in this one. A book store tie-up should be especially effective in advertising the picture. There is a special photoplay edition of "Heritage of the Desert". Many people prefer to read the story before they see the picture. Use a trailer showing the attack and the fight between Torrence and his men and Beery and his band. Use stills and posters liberally.

Direction ..... Irvin Willat; provided excellent presentation; an all round good picture.
Author ..... Zane Grey
Scenario ..... Albert Shelby Le Vino
Cameraman ..... C. Edgar Schoenbaum
Photography ..... Excellent
Sale ..... The West
Length ..... 5,785 feet.

Reginald Denny in "Sporting Youth"

Universal-Jewel

As a Whole ..... WHIRL-WIND AUTO RACE FURNISHES FINE THRILLS AND SPILLS. STORY SLIGHT BUT ACTION WILL MAKE IT GOOD ENTERTAINMENT FOR MOST AUDIENCES.

Star ..... Has one of those glorifying hero roles where he meets all obstacles fearlessly and with certain victory. Denny's personality right for role and the hero worshippers will be delighted with him. Good looking and all that.

Cast ..... Laura LaPlante figures rather prominently in the plot and arranges things conveniently for Denny inasmuch as she's out to win him for a husband. Hallam Cooley a mild sort of villain. Others not of much consequence in the story include Lucille Ward, Malcolm Denny, Leo White, Frederick Vroom, Henry Barrows.

Type of Story .... Auto racing story. Not much plot to it and really not an important enough theme for a special but racing sequence and its thrills will undoubtedly get it over very nicely. Has to do with a chauffeur mistaken for famous racer. How he assumes the identity and wins the race, as well as his employer's daughter, brings it to the usual conclusion. Director Pollard has apparently concentrated most of his efforts on supplying an exciting race. And this he has done splendidly. It runs a bit long but there is genuine enthusiasm injected into it and furnishes great action for those who want it. The camera work, incidentally, in connection with the race, is very good and there are any number of fine shots of the speeding cars as well as some dangerous spills that certainly look like the real thing. In view of the very slight material it would have given the picture a better sustained interest if they had kept it within six reels at least.

Box Office Angle .... Should bring results especially if you know they are attracted by promises of thrills. Race a good talking point and affords good exploitation.

Exploitation .... You can advertise this appropriately and with very good results by a street stunt consisting of a racing auto going about town flying banners reading: "Sporting Youth". An auto parade might be arranged through cooperation with local dealers who will be glad to advertise their own product and at the same time help you get the picture over. Universal's campaign book is especially complete with stunt suggestions. Use Denny's name with his previous releases. Be sure to use a trailer showing some of the racing shots.

Author ..... Byron Morgan
Scenario ..... Harvey Thew
Cameraman ..... Clyde De Vinna
Photography ..... Good
Locale ..... California
Length ..... 6,712 feet.

Mabel Normand in "The Extra Girl"

Associated Exhibitors

As a Whole .... ANOTHER PICTURE BASED ON STUDIO LIFE WITH A CORKING THRILL IN IT. HAS SOME FIRST RATE COMEDY SITUATIONS BUT AT TIMES SUFFERS FROM PADDING.

Star ..... Same Mabel Normand, always dependable for her own work. Gets away with a lot of good stuff and puts over her part very well. Is unusually funny in the sequence where she leads a real lion through the studio thinking it a dressed up dog.

Type of Story .... Comedy-drama. There have been several previous offerings dealing with Hollywood so that "The Extra Girl" has little claim to originality in its story of a small town kid who gets the "movie" craze, wins a prize contest and goes to Hollywood only to get a job in the wardrobe department, the prize having been won by someone's playing a trick on her and sending a photograph other than her own. There are the usual studio shots and general atmosphere of the place, plus a fine thrill in which Mabel, thinking she has a dog disguised in a lion skin, leads a real lion about complacently until she discovers her mistake. Then there's a helter skelter chase that's exciting and comical in turn. "The Extra Girl" suffers from an absence of strong comedy situations. There isn't enough actual work for the star to do so they make up for the deficiency with close-ups, unimportant detail and bits of business that slow it up.

Box Office Angle .... You may have to figure on a recent Hollywood sensation with regard to this but there is no reason why this should influence you seriously, because the picture is very good in many ways; the star gives a good, clean performance, and if your crowd liked the other pictures which showed studio life, such as "Souls for Sale," etc., there is no reason why this should not prove enjoyable.

Exploitation... Use Mabel Normand's name. Tell them she plays straight comedy. Use a trailer showing the lion chase through the studio. This should interest them. You might arrange an attractive street stunt by having a girl dressed to represent the star as she appears in the picture. She might distribute throwaways consisting of photos of the star with information regarding the film.

Direction ..... F. Richard Jones; should have tightened up story to make it hold.

Author ..... Mack Sennett
Scenario ..... Mack Sennett
Cameraman ..... Homer Scott
Art Director ..... S. D. Barns
Photography ..... All right
Locale ..... Hollywood
Length ..... 6,426 feet.

"Abraham Lincoln"

Producers: Al and Ray Rockett

As a Whole.... A REALLY GREAT PICTURE. SINCERELY AND FINELY DONE, THIS SHOULD PROVE OF TREMENDOUS VALUE FOR YEARS TO COME. ANOTHER EPIC OF ALMOST THE SAME IMPORT AS "THE COVERED WAGON."

Players... Practically no names of consequence to the average box office excepting that of Louise Fazenda, who has a clever bit. But Ruth Clifford is photographed beautifully and is very sweet and appealing. George Billings, an unknown, gives a performance of Lincoln which stands out as one of the finest characterizations of the screen. He not only looks, but seems to live the part. A splendid performance.

Type of Story... A motion picture biography of the outstanding figure of American history. Not a motion picture in the accepted sense of the word; rather a truly great story which will have its appeal wherever Lincoln's name is known. And where does it not stand out? From the cradle to the assassination this breathes not only the life, but the very spirit of Lincoln. A fine and worthy addition to the honor roll of great American films.

Much of the credit of this fine picture is due to Frances Marion. The scenario was prepared after exhaustive study of the life of the martyred President and Miss Marion was present during much of the shooting, practically supervising the production.

Box Office Angle... Universal. It may be that in the Southern States it will not be welcomed so cheerfully; but elsewhere it should prove of tremendous strength at the box office. Inasmuch as it is now planned to use it as a road show it may be some time getting to the picture houses. But when it comes grab it. There is so much of the real depth of American spirit in this that to assume to suggest its value at the box office seems silly.

Exploitation... The most essential part of this production. Properly put over it means a clean-up. In addition to all of the things you know you can do with a film of this type, make sure that you get after the Lincoln Societies, the schools, the school teachers, and the people who, as a rule, do not get to your house regularly. This should be a fine picture to start them coming.

Direction... Philip Rosen; at times excellent. Opening shot dedicating picture to veterans of the Great War incongruous and out of place.

Author ..... Frances Marion
Scenario by ..... Frances Marion
Cameramen ..... Robert Kurlle and Lyman Broening.
Photography... Good; at times excellent.
Locale... The backwoods, Washington and battlegrounds.
Length ..... 11,700 feet

"Let Not Man Put Asunder"

Vitagraph

As a Whole... STORY OF MATRIMONIAL DIFFICULTIES AND DEFICIENCIES MAKES DRAGGY PICTURE.

Cast.... Pauline Frederick and Lou Tellegen should be well able to handle the roles allotted to them in the picturization of Basil King's novel and you might be forgiven for wondering if their own personal matrimonial adventures are not being capitalized upon by their joint appearance in a theme that coincides with their careers to such an extent. Miss Frederick's acting is very good, also Mr. Tellegen, each of them being accorded far too much footage for posing and close-ups.

Type of Story... Drama that develops into a marriage muddle. So many divorces and marriages have seldom been crammed into one film. "Let Not Man Put Asunder," even outdoes Rupert Hughes' "Reno," another of this type. The story is a rambling one dealing with the loves of three couples chiefly, with a few minor affairs on the side. These three people swap husbands, divorce themselves at intervals, marry again, divorce again, and remarry their former husbands (or wives) without mercy for the spectator, that is if his patience will hold out that long. There's a moral to it all even though it's pretty well buried in a story that is episodic, draggy and given to so many talking sub-titles, all of which say much and mean little;—the moral; you can only have one love—your first wife.

Box Office Angle.... You'll likely find that the names of the featured players will bring in a good many whose curiosity will immediately be aroused by a title such as this and with the names of these players whose personal matrimonial careers have given them no little publicity. Whether or not you want to capitalize on it also depends upon the sort of theater you run and the people you cater to. As straight entertainment the picture is lacking.

Exploitation... It will be easy to attract them where you want to get them in. Use the title prominently with the names of Lou Tellegen and Pauline Frederick. Mention that the picture is an adaptation of Basil King's novel. You might also use J. Stuart Blackton's name. Catchlines might read: "Do you believe in divorce? There are some interesting angles offered in 'Let Not Man Put Asunder,' a J. Stuart Blackton production showing at the blank theater."

Direction... J. Stuart Blackton; fails to keep story moving; picture far too long.

Author..... Basil King
Scenario..... Chas. L. Gaskill
Cameraman.... Nicholas Musuraca
Photography.... Usually all right
Art Director.... Jack Pringle
Locale..... Europe and America
Length..... About 8,000 feet

"Cause for Divorce"

Producer: Hugh Dierker

Distribution: Selznick

As a Whole..... ANOTHER DIVORCE DRAMA BUT AN IMPROVEMENT OVER SOME OTHERS INASMUCH AS ITS MORAL IS MORE POINTED AND THERE IS A LOGICAL TREATMENT.

Cast.... Fritzi Brunette and David Butler good as a typical average married pair whose difference cause a temporary breach. Both do good work. Pat O'Malley and Helen Lynch another couple who go adrift through lack of understanding. Others Charles Clary, Peter Burke.

Type of Story.... Domestic drama. In most stories in which divorce is present the spectator often feels the urge to whisper a word of advice to the quarreling pair which will cause them to make up and forget the past but the divorcee business steps in and the complications pile on. Here there's a different treatment and it's refreshing to say the least. "Cause For Divorce" has real sensible people who look before they leap, and so Laura Weston realizes that she must be willing to sacrifice her preference for city life in order that her husband will have an opportunity to make good at his profession: farm management. Then Laura is the means of reuniting another couple also headed for the courts. The difficulties of the second couple provide the picture with some typical audience business such as cabaret scenes, garden fetes, rich settings, a bit of meller and other box office requisites. The story has a well sustained interest and given a good production.

Box Office Angle.... Good audience picture that will please many. They're all more or less interested in situations such as those offered in "Cause for Divorce." It has good exploitation angles that you will do well to take advantage of.

Exploitation... Here's a good title for catchline advertising. Distribute throw-aways with the line: "If you are contemplating a divorce go to the blank theater and you'll change your mind. If you're not contemplating a divorce go to the blank theater and you never will consider one. There's a fine lesson to be learned from 'Cause for Divorce.'" Use your mailing list addressing the message to "Mr. and Mrs. Blank" and mark it "personal." There are attractive stills for lobby display and ad posters that will attract. There are no names in the cast especially prominent but the players do very good work and deserve mention.

Direction.. Hugh Dierker; very good.

Author..... Thelma Lanier
Scenario..... Not credited
Cameraman..... Not credited
Photography..... Good
Locale..... California
Length..... 7,132 feet.

Snowy Baker in

"The White Panther"

Phil Goldstone—State Rights

As a Whole... SOME FIGHTING IN CLIMAX AND HEROICS OF STAR ABOUT THE ONLY THING TO BE RECOMMENDED IN STATE RIGHTS FEATURE THAT'S WEAK ON ENTERTAINMENT.

Star.... Strives through various acrobatic feats and daring stunts to please. So far as his own work is concerned is successful but story proves too much of a handicap.

Cast.... Lois Scott pretty but short-lived as a native girl and Gladys McConnell pleasing lead. Peter Burke a good looking soldier who admits he's a "rotter" but dies like a soldier.

Type of Story..... One of those Arabian intrigue plots in which a native ruler abducts the British consul's daughter in revenge for an insult to his own daughter by a soldier. How hero Snowy, disguised as a bandit, fights a whole army of Arabs, rescues the girl and is rewarded by her love, completes a rather hackneyed and uninteresting story. The development is slow and the situations so lacking in originality that there is little or no bid for suspense. There is no doubt but that hero will rescue the girl from the Arab's tent and restore her to her father. The climax is the only commendable sequence and offers fairly good thrills in the battle between hero and the natives with the soldiers finally coming to the rescue. The director has repeated his action stunts too often. He stages the fight in a chasm and the constant "popping off" of a victim and his subsequent slide down the mountain side becomes funny after it continues very long.

Box Office Angle..... Hasn't very bright prospects because there is so little for you to talk about and story is so slow moving.

Exploitation.... This may fit in well enough on a double feature program providing the other attraction is a good entertainment. There is not much in "The White Panther" to satisfy them unless it is the climax which offers some rather good action. This is not enough to put the picture over, however. You might see the picture if in doubt and should you consider it worth exploiting, a man garbed in a white Arab costume and riding a white horse would readily arouse considerable curiosity. Follow this with the title: "The White Panther".

Direction.... Alvin J. Neitz; some good comedy touches but otherwise poor.

Author..... John Natteford
Scenario..... John Natteford
Cameraman..... Not credited
Photography..... All right
Locale..... Orient
Length..... 5,000 feet.

"The Net"

Fox

As a Whole... FEEBLE ATTEMPT AT ENTERTAINMENT. TERRIBLE STORY THAT IS IMPROVED UPON IN DIRECTION. NOR IS THE CAST GOOD ENOUGH TO PULL THROUGH.

Cast.... Barbara Castleton tries desperately to put over the role of a faithful wife and mother. Raymond Bloomer convincing enough as an unworthy husband and Albert Finck fair in a role that's as improbable as it is improbable. No others of importance.

Type of Story..... Labeled a "J+ melodrama," but if those to come are to follow the example of "The Net" there doesn't seem to be much hope for picture entertainment the way of melodramas for the rest of this year. "The Net" is an unusually poor picture not only a story but from a production standpoint as well. It requires a very exceptional and liberal imagination to accept the situation upon which the theme is built.

A certain man named Norman kills his cousin. A stranger afflicted with sudden aphasia happens upon the scene. Norman charms coats with the stranger thereby switching identities. Norman's wife, also present, agrees to keep the secret, not because she loves her faithless husband but to protect her son's name.

How such a thing could possibly transpire is inconceivable. There is no indication of any effort to definitely prove that the man is actually Norman nor, and conveniently so, is there any clue to the aphasia victim. The wife's father, who first evinces much interest in his daughter's marriage to Norman, just disappears from the picture. The plot is without logic and far from interesting.

Box Office Angle.... Not favorable. Unless your folks are mighty easily satisfied you won't be able to get this one over. It's far below the standard of entertainment they expect.

Exploitation.... Hardly worthy of any extended effort even though you decide to show it. There is little or nothing for you to talk about either in situations, production or cast. The title is a rather good one and may bring them in, but be careful about what you say for the picture.

Direction.... J. Gordon Edwards; is not improved on a very poor story; injected a fair suspense but development is so illogical that it is not likely they'll be very much enthused over the outcome. This picture run far too long, largely through unnecessary detail and too many close-ups.

Author..... Maraverne Thompson
Scenario..... Olga Linek Sell
Cameraman.... Geo. Lane, Ben McGens.
Photography.....
Locale..... Any
Length..... Over 6,000 feet

Values

re: "The Ten Commandments" will have a world audience; and here are some places where "The Covered Wagon" will naturally not have the appeal it has in England and America. The gross of each will be up in the millions, that's certain. How much no living man can say. Not even Famous executives. Not one of them.

TAKING THE LOSS

There aren't many producers who take a loss in production. Most of them let the picture come out. Even if it isn't what they hoped for. And let it go at that. There are a few exceptions. Col Lesser made a Coogan feature of "Peck's Bad Boy" and then re-made it from start to finish. There have been other instances. The latest, however, is Sam Goldwyn. Who is now re-making "Cytherea." And pockets a loss of close to $80,000 for three weeks' work. Did not like it and threw it aside. That takes nerve. And lots of it.

NITA HAS A SISTER

Yes; Nita Naldi. And she is out on the Coast. And thus disturbs to a reporter:

"No one ever heard of me before. Nita wouldn't let them. But here I am, 17 years old and ready for the movies. I want to be hysterical, temperamental, poetic, willowy, glamorous, a Florantine tornado of passion and drama."

Al Woods please note.

THE LONG RUN RECORD

Not, says Charles Urban, "The Covered Wagon." And reminds that in London, during 1911-12 his natural color production of "The Coronation Durbar and Royal Visit to India" ran 65 consecutive weeks at the Scala Theater.

Which means the Wagon must do over 20 more consecutive weeks at the Criterion to match this record. And Harold Franklyn of Famous says "That's a cinch."

HIGH-LOW

Ace Berry has a new son. Name not yet reached the East. From Indianapolis. Perhaps he will be called Deuce.

ALL HEPPEP UP

Selznick's roaring. Have booked "Woman to Woman" for 43 first runs. Including the Rivoli, New York.

Incidentally the best picture Betty Compson has appeared in since "The Miracle Man."

A SUGGESTION

Speaking to the Southern California Editorial Assn. Will says said:

"When a free press is attacked, we make common cause with the publishers, recognizing in them the necessary commercial factor in literature. On the same basis you should give the producer of pictures a hand when he is being beset by forces which must find a new devil in every decade. The more you help, the better pictures will become."

Practical—every word of it.

SHAW AND GOLDWYN

Mrs. Florence Strauss of First National told this one on Sam Goldwyn to the AMPA: Goldwyn was trying to convince Bernard Shaw to write a scenario for him. "I assure you," said Goldwyn, "we will make a very artistic production." To which Shaw replied: "You don't seem to realize, Mr. Goldwyn, that I am only an artist—and you are a business man."

NOT TAKING PROFITS

Producers on the Coast. Who "farm out" stars under contract. Will not make a profit from other producers hereafter. That is, generally speaking. That is one of the plans decided upon. To co-operate. Mighty good move.

Joe Schenck elected president of the new organization. Looks like the producers mean to get somewhere.

FRANKLE'S STUFF

Probably you noticed early in the week how Howard Frankle stimulates business. Out in Columbus, Ohio. By having a special night every night except Sunday—when he plays a big, important picture. Has all kinds of novelty nights—and don't care what picture he puts on. Which means he pays as little as possible. Depending on the novelty ideas to put it over.

A DAY OR SO BEHIND

Jake Wilk postcards from the Riviera—in Southern France: "They are going fast here. The original production of 'The Cheat' with Fannie Ward, is playing here now. Also Victor Moore comedies. Possibly they will see 'The White Sister' here in 1933."

THOSE CENSORS

Out in Ohio the Chief Censor banned the latest Normand picture and also those in which Edna Purviance appears. What part of the Ohio censor law gives him such power might easily be open to legal attack. But regardless of the law—just what does this sort of thing mean?

These are the acts which in time will kill censorship wherever it exists. That such narrow minded Puritanism exists—remember this is 1924—seems almost incredible.

DAMON AND PYTHIAS

Commenting on Joe Schenck's remark that while he always desired artistry in a production he was always more anxious to furnish entertainment, Dr. A. H. Giannini of the Commercial Trust Co. told the AMPA that there were two sides to Schenck; the Damon which admired Schenck for his artistry and the Pythias which admired his commercialism.

HELP! HELP!

Mail robbers rifled two pouches in the Sullivan, Indiana, post-office, going after Hays' mail. Wonder what they expected to find in it?

MORE LOVING

From the humble and ever modest Reichenbach comes this: Seeing that Pete Smith has come to the defense of the P. A. by his opinion of the critic—may I add mine in support of Pete.

I love the critic because:

He looks like he took all the coal out of the tub—then decided not to take that bath.

Because he wears nice light clothes to match his dandruff.

He tells you your stuff is the only stuff fit to run that is sent him—then confirms it by running the other fellow's.

He swears you will have the biggest picture in the lay-out then writes his alibi before the paper goes to press.

He is in favor of prohibition and substantiates his opinion by trying to dry up—your supply.

He is indifferent to the public—but afraid of his wife.

He eats at the Algonquin Hotel where the Intelligensia eats each noon—and where wit flows like Ivory Soap—and just as pure.

He is having a hard time deciding on the ten best pictures and sympathizes with the public which has to wait intensely until he finally decides.

And later we find his best ten—the worst grossers.

He never creates—merely records—and depends on these facts coming from the press agent—without whom he would have not a department.

They are human under the skin—but they have hides like elephants.

DANNY.

you get about 100 per cent more merriment out of the title which Montague Glass, * * * wrote especially * * *

EXPRESS—A pure unadulterated amusement, artfully compounded of gay and kindly humor, delicate pathos, a touch of burlesque to a large share of character delineation of rare quality and a bit of thrilling drama. * * *

HERALD—* * * the picture makes really a multiple reel situation comedy of the better—very much better—class, with just a dash of pepper toward the end in the shape of some foul play, hand-to-hand struggles, and dashing policemen. There is just enough of the heavy stuff to relieve the generous helping of bon mots in the ingrowing English of the New York cloak and suit trade.

RECORD—All thanks to the author, the adaptor, the director and the actor for as human a comedy-drama as could be screened. I'd walk a couple of miles to see another like it.

TIMES—For "Potash and Perlmutter" is just bound to coin money. Such a darb of a comedy—so human, amusing, snappy and thrilling all at once—we haven't seen in a long, long time.

"Rosita"—United Artists
Stanton, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—Every whit of her appeal as potent as ever and maybe a bit stronger.

ENQUIRER—Mary has grown up but just as much to be admired.

NORTH AMERICAN—Mary is undoubtedly a great actress but it is difficult to feel that she is not a kid masquerading as a mature young woman whose emotions are taxed to the breaking point.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—Thanks to Lubitsch "Rosita" is an unusually colorful and romantic picture. Mary does some truly fine acting.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—It is the most satisfactory production imaginable. If there were faults, they passed unnoticed.

RECORD—There are opportunities for emotional acting and moments which approach the tragic. A striking feature the excellence of the photography.

"Scaramouche"—Metro
Criterion, Los Angeles

(Run beginning Jan. 17)

EXAMINER—In his handling of this famous Sabatini story, * * * Rex Ingram has essayed a new medium of film expression and he has done it brilliantly and well. He has successfully avoided opportunities for great mass play along which lines he won fame, and concerns himself rather with the beautiful detail of the story.

EXPRESS—What is without doubt the greatest effort, technically speaking, of that remarkable young director's career to date * * * Mr. Ingram's version * * * does not in any way disappoint. For in it he has combined the sweep and thrill of that great epoch in the world's history, and at the same time emphasized a delightfully idealistic romance.

HERALD—Colorful, eloquent and executed on a gigantic scale, "Scaramouche" takes a place with great pictures of screen history.

It is a tremendous spectacle. It tells a story warm with human interest and it has a dignity and repression seldom achieved in a historical film. The cast is large and the mob scenes are gigantic and moving.

RECORD—It is beautifully pictured, dramatically related, admirably portrayed. Especially in the part of Scaramouche, which Ramon Novarro plays with intelligence and vigor. * * * Ingram carries his story along with such spirit that one forgets it is some 10,000 feet in unreeling and is astonished to find it so soon coming to an end.

Pictorially the artist in Ingram has been given full play.

TIMES—It is Rex Ingram's most pretentious contribution to adult entertainment, and its beauty will live long in the land. * * *

Veritably, this film is the art gallery of the screen. It marks some of the greatest advancements along the lines of lighting composition, settings and makeup and costumes that have yet been revealed.

"Song of Love"—First Nat'l
Capitol—Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—Not apt to make a very profound impression on those who are looking for artistic drama.

POST—Not Norma's best photoplay * * * it staggers and collapses even with such sturdy props as Norma, Shildkraut and Arthur Edmund Carew.

Circle, Indianapolis

NEWS—Will add nothing to Miss Talmadge's laurels but will add much to the laurels of Arthur Edmund Carew.

STAR—The outstanding performance of the film is that of Arthur Edmund Carew.

"This Freedom"—Fox
Broadway, Los Angeles

(Week ending Jan. 19)

EXAMINER—It's really a high-class piece of work. * * *

The production as a whole is well handled. There is fine evenness to the tempo, the cutting is good and the sweep is embracing.

EXPRESS—It is an excellent cast. * * * Setting aside the sophistry of the original the story is a decidedly interesting one, presented in even clearer fashion than the author has done in his novel.

HERALD—* * * strikes a happy medium; being a photoplay without conscious effort at sermonizing but with a moral for all that. All in all, "This Freedom" is above the average of the usual program picture, and should be enjoyed by all.

RECORD—* * * while not measuring up to "If Winter Comes," stands as the best product of a British producer yet brought to the screen.

TIMES—In certain aspects "This Freedom" cannot avoid being rather preachy in character. * * * The acting is what most appeals—that and the personalities, Miss Compson is really lovely, * * *

Imperial, San Francisco

(Week ending Jan. 19)

CALL—* * * the vital spirit of the author's story has been intelligently transferred to the screen.

Whether you agree with Hutchings or not, you will be entertained and thrilled * * * The photoplay seems to be perfect in every detail and includes some unusually fine photography.

DAILY NEWS—Fay Compton is one of the best of English actresses and her work on the screen is a genuine pleasure to witness, * * * full of restraint, poignantly emotional, dignified in the English manner. The picture is so far the best we have seen that was made in England, allowing, of course, for the excellencies in "If Winter Comes."

HERALD—* * * It is all told dramatically and convincingly.

"Twenty-One"—! it Nat'l
The Chicago, Chicago

NEWS—It is Barthelmess back in his own kind of picture.

POST—This is a new type of role for Barthelmess—but there is no doubt in my mind that you are going to like him very much indeed. * * * "Twenty-One" is a simple little tale that relies on the star to put it over. And he does with the very able help of Dorothy Mackaill.

TRIBUNE—You're going to be keen for the work of four people in "Twenty-One" * * * the supporting cast is a good one, scenery, sets, photography fine. Mr. Robertson is a capable director.

HERALD—Not until I saw Richard Barthelmess in "Twenty-One," was I sure that he stood first in my list of eighteen great screen stars. * * * what a Romeo he would be.

Warfield, San Francisco

(Week ending Jan. 19)

BULLETIN—* * * There is no doubt in the minds of the audience that they like this favorite actor (Barthelmess) in present-day stories to a much greater degree than in the characters of ancient times. * * * There are no end of dramatic situations * * *

CHRONICLE—Barthelmess is quite delightful as Julian, his manly bearing and good looks—not prettiness, thank heaven—helping immensely.

EXAMINER—* * * a particularly good photoplay at Loew's Warfield theater this week. * * * Supported by * * * Dorothy Mackaill, who lends a delicate enchantment to the romantic tenor of the picture, Barthelmess responds to the soporific requirement with splendid finesse.

HERALD—This picture was not heralded as a world-beater, or anything sensational; but it proved to be exceptionally fine entertainment. Regardless of your age don't miss "Twenty-One."

DANGER!

By DANNY

Bert Adler sends this: "Will Hays has done much. To most the credit of the fillum industry. By eradicating certain evils within the industry. But how about those danger spots. For the industry. That lie outside?"

"You say, explain. Well, there are the fake schools. That use the popularity of the motion picture. To take the savings of years. Away from the kid movie fans. Who get their movie ambitions through patronizing theaters. And whom these schools promise to put into the movies. (Oh, the promises that are made the name of the movies!)"

"In Chicago last week. A fake school selling school and studio was closed. After neighbors complained of the immoral scenes witnessed within the school. Girl 'pupils in screen acting' robbed of meagre savings. And more serious—their virtue. In the name of the movies."

"The fame of the movies! The stories of beautiful aspirants. Broke in Hollywood. Unable to find work. Shamed to go home. The result of such publicity. Has been to bring a horde. Of rich parasites. To Los Angeles. Here they hang on the studio outskirts. Seeking the acquaintance. Of the poor devil of a pretty 'extra.' Who is treated as respectfully in a radio. As she would be in her own home. But the out-of-industry parasite. Is the danger spot again."

"His money. Home. Food. Drink. He ever extended SO hospitably! The luckless studio applicant. These men are known on the Coast. And one of these days. One of these men. Is going to smash into the others. With a 'latest movie scandal' story. Involving some fair 'Down Outer of the Studios.' That will make the 'scandal' yarn involving a movie star look like a sweet little piece out of the Sunday School Times. 'Go after it, Danny. And I think it Walloping Will. Who has often in the past agreed with you. readjustments within the industry. Will agree with you. On the need of attention. To these danger spots. OUTSIDE."

Answering Bert

"You're right. This movie school is a danger. A terrible one. But it is to be fought outside. And there is an organization better qualified to do so than the Vigilance Committee of..."

Radio vs. Films

Additional Reports Show Exhibitors Are Not Worried About Their Box-Offices

Further reports from widely separated portions of the country show that the radio craze has not made any serious inroads into business at the box-office. Special reports received Saturday include the following:

Los Angeles—Important exhibitors here declare that the radio has had little or no effect on the box office.

Sol Lesser, whose West Coast Theaters chain covers many Southern California towns, says:

"The radio is like a game or a party. If folks desire to stay home and play games or have a party, they do so. The radio is just the same. If people desire to sit down after dinner and listen to the radio, they do so, but nothing will stop them if they wish to attend the theater."

Sanity In Booking

An Important Development in England, Says John C. Graham Before Sailing

John C. Graham, managing director of the Famous Players Film Co. Ltd., sailed for England on the Aquitania Saturday, following conferences with E. E. Shauer. Before his departure, he said the standardization of the British releasing schedule within a period of from three to six months, from trade show to release was the most striking development in recent months in England.

"The English exhibitor has definitely passed through the period of excessive booking which existed for several years after the close of the war," said Graham. "As a result, he is booking his product on a true basis of his capacity to absorb the pictures and give them the proper presentation. This is a sane state of affairs"

Busy On Zukor Plan

Jury To Handle $10,000 Award For Best Picture To Be Named Shortly—Rules Drawn

A meeting is scheduled to be held, probably tomorrow, between George Barr Baker and Eric Schuler of the Authors' League, Inc., and Charles E. McCarthy of Famous Players to discuss the permanent adoption of the jury and the rules to cover the $10,000 cash prize award which Adolph Zukor will give to the best picture, produced and publicly exhibited between Sept. 1, 1923 and Sept. 1, 1924.

It will be recalled that Zukor made the offer last year and then, with the co-operation of the League, called an Authors' Congress at the Waldorf-Astoria at which an interesting discussion was held by important figures in current literature relative to ways and means of improving the standards in production.

The award will be made to the picture selected by the jury, the personnel of which will probably be announced in the near future. There are no restrictions as to distributor or producer, so long as it fulfills the conditions set down by the governing jury.

Garsson Series for Asso. Exhib.

Murray Garsson will make a series of pictures for Associated Exhibitors, the first to be "Plaster Saints." William Christy Cabanne will direct the first which will be made in the East with a cast including Robert Warwick, Elliott Dexter, Lowell Sherman and Pauline Garon.

Newspaper Opinions

"April Showers"—Preferred Broadway, Los Angeles

(Week ending Jan. 19)

EXAMINER—Colleen is really more charming than usual—if you can imagine such a thing—and Kenneth Harlan is more human than in any film in which we've seen him. * * * There is fairly even, though slow tempoed, story telling. And there's enough kick to the climax to cap it all off.

EXPRESS—Given a cast of experienced troupers such as the aggregation Tom Forman recruited for this production, plus his own ability in projecting a warm, human quality into the pictures he directs, and the result is a film that "lives" regardless of how farcical its plot may be fashioned.

HERALD—* * * may not be the best photoplay of the year, but it is one that will win the average theatergoer. Kenneth Harlan makes a handsome hero, while Colleen Moore has done better things.

RECORD—While the play is not "heavy," one gets enjoyment from it at every stage. The story is one which causes the spectators to give their entire interest.

TIMES—"April Showers" probably did not set out to be anything more than a program picture, but with the twists the producer, the author and the director have given it, it turns out something very fine for its class.

"The Call of the Canyon"—F. P.-L. Strand, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—It almost appears as though the author wrote out cards bearing the thirty-six dramatic situations, shuffled them and then drew out seven or eight at random and from these developed the plot.

POST—Probably the picture will make money, there being more box office value than art in its 6,993 feet.

"The Common Law"—Selznick State, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—It possesses, too, the all-important requisite of an up-to-the minute social drama—a scene in a cabaret.

"The Fighting Blade"—First Nat'l Olympia, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—Great deal of action and plenty of plotting of a routine sort * * * never so much pictorial beauty as to detract interest from sheer narrative.

"Gentle Julia"—Fox Liberty, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—* * * it is Julia herself who will captivate you. You'll laugh with her and you'll also cry, or, at least, the tears will be close to the surface—but you'll enjoy her.

STAR—Booth Tarkington's stories, it seems, always film well. "Gentle Julia," at the Fox-Liberty, prompts this observation.

TIMES—Here is a film which really fits the rubber stamp, "good for the entire family." It is a genuine story, of genuine people and genuine situations.

"The Governor's Lady"—Fox Washington, Detroit

FREE PRESS—Reeks with dramatic incidents that serve to hold the spectators in interest throughout.

NEWS—Millarde again glorifies "Ma." * * * situations bring a lump into one's throat.

"Held to Answer"—Metro Delmonte-Capitol, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—Reaching unusual dramatic heights, "Held to Answer," ends with a fine climax that makes it one of House Peters' best efforts.

POST-DISPATCH—House Peters and a capable cast, * * * give the best possible account of themselves in "Held to Answer," a highly melodramatic film on view at the Delmonte.

STAR—Peters' convincing work almost makes one believe this flimsy story.

TIMES—"Held to Answer," is a dramatic story, but not out of the ordinary.

"Her Temporary Husband"—1st Nat'l Madison, Detroit

NEWS—Slap-stick par excellence * * * the excitement keeps pace with the comedy.

"His Children's Children"—F. P.-L. Metropolitan, Baltimore

EVENING SUN—It isn't exactly a film to which you should take the youngsters but for those who have cut their wisdom teeth it should certainly prove attractive * * * we like it immensely.

SUN—Well acted and makes for genuinely interesting entertainment despite numerous unnecessary sub-titles.

Eastman, Rochester

HERALD—Dramatic treatment of that part of modern story which exemplifies the old saying "it is only three generations from shirt sleeves to shirt sleeves."

DEMOCRAT-CHRONICLE—That the production has regrettable technical deficiencies will not offset to any extent, we think, the success in terms of box office receipts.

JOURNAL—Well constructed story with a very marked central theme.

"The Humming Bird"—F. P.-L. Century, Baltimore

SUN—If war stories are not too passe, this picture should prove popular * * * Swanson performs quite creditably.

Adams, Detroit

FREE PRESS—Swanson's devoted followers will like her.

NEWS—Gloria the clothesrack now Gloria the actress. * * * the best all-around performance of her career.

Missouri, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—* * * is by far the finest Gloria Swanson picture that we can recall. Miss Swanson's great work in handling the dual role in the picture is a rare treat, and she certainly deserves a place in the dramatic artists' hall of fame as a reward for her perfect performance.

POST-DISPATCH—* * * she (Gloria Swanson) disports herself in a manner so different that it is hard to recognize her as the real Swanson. * * * The scenario has many striking scenes * * *

STAR—Gloria Swanson is better * * * than in any other picture she has appeared in in St. Louis for some time.

TIMES—The plot * * * is made the excuse for exploiting genuine scenes of the World War. Perhaps they were necessary toward the development of the plot. * * * Otherwise, the story is swift moving, and interesting from beginning to end.

Columbia, Washington

STAR—Admirers of Gloria will enjoy the impudent, vivacious, Apache hoyden.

"Judgment of the Storm"—F. B. O. Mission, Los Angeles

EXAMINER—* * * has been filmed nicely, with clever young actors. Wholesome drama, some rural comedy of light nuisances, and a story of grief, misunderstanding and self-sacrifice, mark the dramatic moments * * *

EXPRESS—True, it is not strikingly original and it is frankly melodrama, but it is beautifully handled, smooth and logical in its development. * * * This storm is quite the best the local screen has ever seen, in realism and dramatic thrill.

Chief charm of the picture lies in its unforced development, the unusual strength of the cast and the remarkable camera work.

HERALD—If you like melodrama of high power and effectiveness, see "Judgment of the Storm." * * * Let it be said that it's an appealing and interesting tale well told.

TIMES—The plot is inclined to be formula, and some of the situations that result are unnatural and forced, but there is no doubt that its pictorial vigor and also in its more human heart throbs the film works up to a very striking finish. Nothing better, in fact, photographically than the storm sequence has been shown on the screen in a long time. * * *

Strand, San Francisco

(Week ending Jan. 19)

CHRONICLE—The picture has a well thought-out story, not particularly new, but with new angles and much human nature. There is genuine emotion in some of the scenes, put there by the scenarist as well as the actors.

"The Man That Life Passed By"—Butterfly, Milwaukee

NEWS—The plot is a bit hectic, situations are rather impossible, action a bit hurried and jumpy in parts but for all that the story is highly entertaining.

"Maytime"—Preferred Alamo, Louisville

TIMES—As fresh, appealing and wholesome as its name.

"Monna Vanna"—Fox The Fox, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—It does little to excite the popular imagination and clearly demonstrates the superiority of American directing and artistry.

ENQUIRER—The producers have turned out a picture that is thoroughly unconvincing. The cast is poor and at times most humorously silly.

NORTH AMERICAN—Combines much fighting and loving.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—Stupendous production which for massiveness of settings, masterful handling of great crowds, excellent photography compares with the best pictures of its kind.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—Charging mobs * * * sets massive and lavish * * * outstanding figure Paul Wegener.

RECORD—Produced in a manner quite in keeping with the unrefined and very energetic passions of the Italian Renaissance—By that is meant bigness, mob action, long embraces, duels, brawls and intrigue.

"North of Hudson Bay"—Fox Apollo, Indianapolis

NEWS—Only of average interest * * * Mix seems out of place in the story.

STAR—Tom Mix in the the best Fox tradition * * * contains many thrills.

"Our Hospitality"—Metro Lyric, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—It has many laughs and nearly as many thrills as that other comedy classic of the screen—"Why Worry."

POST—We are going to ask you to do yourself a favor by seeing "Our Hospitality," it's a peach of a comedy.

Colonial, Indianapolis

NEWS—The writer is inclined to believe that Keaton ranks first in his estimation among the comics * * * Buster uproariously funny.

STAR—Three generations of Keatons participate in the joyous fun-making.

"Three O'Clock in the Morning"—Burr—S. R. Colonial, Detroit

NEWS—Has the usual run of gay cabaret parties with Constance Binney starring.

"Thundering Dawn"—Universal Palace, Washington

STAR—Before "finis" is flashed on the screen the audience has enjoyed almost every thrill in the repertoire of the movies from vampires to monsoons.

"Tiger Rose"—Warners' Regent, Rochester

DEMOCRAT-CHRONICLE—Miss Ulric does some remarkably expressive acting with her eyes and mouth.

HERALD—The fire and magnetism which marked her (Lenore Ulric) performance during the Broadway run of the stage play duplicated on the screen.

"To the Ladies"—F. P.-L. State, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—Played well. Film directed.

"Under the Red Robe"—Gold.-Cosmo Rialto, Washington

STAR—Elaborate in its settings * * * little fault can be found with any phase of production.

The radio, however, has come to be a play-toy. It is powerful and is daily increasing in its use. It has become as necessary as the telegraph and electricity. Without it, the present day progress would receive a severe blow.

But as far as being of ill effect to theaters, it cannot. The theater is an institution. The radio another. People will always attend the theater in preference of any other form of amusement. The proof of this is in the fact that during the past few years, while radio has been rapidly increasing, the theater, too, has increased higher. Hundreds of new theaters are constantly being erected. Millions are being spent on pictures and stage presentations. No theater has not nor will it suffer from the radio."

W. L. Harper of the M. P. T. O. of Southern California, says:

"There is no competition between pictures and radio and from my knowledge the radio has not affected attendance to the slightest degree."

Fred Miller of the California theaters says:

"The radio popularity has not affected our business in the least."

Portland, Me., Sees No Menace

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Portland, Me.—The approximate number of radio sets in Portland is about 5,000.

At Pine Point, a little fishing resort and summer place, there are 70 families living this winter. Out of 70, 34 have radio sets. Whether proportion prevails in all the smaller towns is hard to ascertain.

During the winter, of course, there is a great deal of interest in radio. Enthusiasts everywhere tell about the remarkable results they have. On the other hand, there are a great many in the city who are not particularly enthusiastic because their experiences have not been so satisfactory.

It seems to be the opinion that radio will become very popular in the suburbs and the country away from cities because in the cities the results are not nearly so good as they are in sections away from the many influences and other disturbing influences.

Points no more than five or ten miles out of Portland radio is much more of a success than it is in the city proper. It would seem, therefore, that the greatest development of radio will be away from the cities and, therefore, it should not prove a particularly dangerous menace to motion picture attendance.

Des Moines Uses 1,000 Sets
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Des Moines, Ia.—There are about

1,000 radio receiving sets in use in Des Moines and immediate vicinity. At present, no broadcasting station is in operation here. The Register and Tribune conducted a station here last winter but they have discontinued it.

The Des Moines theater, the largest house here, which maintains an excellent orchestra, did some broadcasting last winter through co-operation with a radio company. It is possible that they may arrange to do so again.

The Bankers' Life Assn., just completing a fine new office building here, is installing a broadcasting station, and expects to begin operating it about February 1st.

The State Agricultural College at Ames, about thirty miles away, has a good station, while the station at Davenport, the Palmer School of Chiropractic, broadcasts splendid concerts that most of the local fans get clearly.

Kansas City Not Worried
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Kansas City—There are approximately 50,000 radio sets in use in Kansas City, and at least that many more in the trade territory covered out of Kansas City. This is a careful estimate. It is not believed, however, that the radio is having a great deal of effect in keeping people from attending theaters. There is no denying that the radio did, at first, put a considerable dent in this business, but just like a new toy or fad, the liking for the radio has more or less worn away.

Exhibitors are not complaining of the loss of business on this account, and it is held here that the exhibitor need not fear radio as serious competition if he will continue to give such attractions at his theater, at least two or three times a week, that are and have more than the usual story merit and drawing power.

May Hurt Virginia Towns
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Richmond, Va.—There are from 2,500 to 3,000 radio receiving sets in Richmond. There is no way of ascertaining how many there are in the State, but they are increasing rapidly.

The manager of one of the largest theaters here does not think it affects the business in Richmond theaters at all, but that there is a possibility that the smaller localities may be more or less affected by it.

The opinion is offered that radio will not affect theaters if the pictures are good.

People in touch with radio activities seem to feel that if there is a good feature at the theaters there will be a good audience. They state that the shorter features will not draw people from other entertainment.

Evansville Treats Radio Lightly

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Evansville, Ind.—Local theater managers do not take the radio craze seriously and none of them has complained about radio attracting patrons. The recent address of former President Wilson received here by radio was laughable. It started with "My fellow countrymen"—and ended with a correct imitation of a buzz saw tearing through a rusty nail.

Topeka Feels No Effects

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Topeka, Kan.—The use of the radio here and in the surrounding territory is growing. It is impossible to secure information concerning the exact number of sets, but the number is estimated at about 400 or 500. Neither of the big dailies here features the radio extensively, with the exception of the News service recently started, which gives programs scheduled from a number of the big stations all over the country.

Reports from the exhibitors in this town are that radio has not hurt their shows materially.

Iowa House Uses Radio

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Omaha—The only theater in Iowa or Nebraska using a radio with each showing is the Cozy at Villisca, Ia., operated by Dr. F. M. Childs. He is very enthusiastic about it, and a strong booster.

Several others have tried it out but without much success. The majority seem to think that the radio detracts too much from the picture.

Jacksonville Displays Interest

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Jacksonville, Fla.—There is quite an interest evidenced here in the radio. Both daily newspapers conduct radio columns and one maintains its own broadcasting station daily. It is estimated, however, that there are only 500 sets in use here and Jacksonville has a population of 100,000. Business at the theaters is reported good.

TURNING

By DANNY

Going 'round the corner. Doing it differently so to speak. In "Manhandled." Comedies Famous. You know the story. The minute the sales department tells a producer the story is too good, that's the minute the producer wants to do it. There are some sales organizations which would have rejected "The Covered Wagon." Getting back to "Manhandled." Who do you think really developed it? Kent. Sales director for Famous.

Kent had the idea; developed it, turned it over to Arthur Stringer who wrote the story; and Gloria Swanson will appear in the production. And if the boys slip on this; and it don't go over big. Well; you'll hear a thing or two.

Which is an inspiration. Or should be. To the other directors of the industry. Al Lichtman knows a lot of stories. Maybe he can get Universal to make one of them. Jack Warner had a lot. But he's too busy turning the Normand picture over to another with being an author. Jimmy Hanger couldn't suggest a story unless it dealt with Rockaway Beach resorts—but those bathing girl stories sort of flat—and so our literary talent among sales managers seems somewhat limited.

Getting Action

"Danger" — yesterday's issue — started something. Developed that Hays organization has really gotten going with the Vigilance Committee of the Asso. Advertising Clubs, and the Better Business Bureaus all over the country. So the fake stock trading schemes; the promoters of worthless schools of acting and such ought well keep their eyes open. Otherwise trouble. And that's a good thing. These are the people that use lots of trouble. Quicker they are killed off the better. For all concerned.

As usual the Hays organization keeps mum about what is going on. Until it feels it must talk. That's why the Hays organization is getting along. Doesn't talk until it has to — and then says little beyond what's absolutely necessary.

Smallwood, In Open Letter, Makes Suggestions To Aid Independent Producers

Arthur N. Smallwood, president of Pyramid Pictures, is out with an open letter, addressed to "independent motion picture producers," in which he makes some suggestions relative to changing the existing state of affairs with distributors of independent productions.

After voicing the belief that, in his opinion, the "life or death of independent motion picture operation is dependent upon the success or failure of the newly formed M. P. Producers and Dist. Asso.," he says:

"Hundreds of independent producers have entered the field within the past five or six years, only to drop tens of millions of dollars in making pictures. Where are they today?"

"Most of our biggest directors, now working for salaries, have, during the

December Returns Top October and November—Best in 30 Months

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—Admission tax collections during December, as reported by the Treasury Department, totaled $7,047,876, against $6,825,249 in the corresponding month of 1922, an increase for 1923 of $222,627. This was also an increase of $198,664 over collections for the preceding month, which totaled $6,849,212.

It is interesting to note that the October figures which totaled $6,999,867, were the highest on record since June, 1921, when the returns were $7,362,487. The December total exceeds the October total by $48,009 and the November figure by $198,464, and indicates the best business in exactly thirty months.

Again Sues Hays

S. E. Samuelson, Jersey Exhibitor Charges Monopoly—Similar Suit Filed In February, 1923

Sidney E. Samuelson, owner of the Park theater, Newton, N. J., yesterday filed a suit for $450,000 damages in the U. S. District Court against Will H. Hays, as president of the M. P. Prod. and Dist. Ass'n Inc., the individual members comprising that association, Charles B. Hoy and Louis Phillips, as active heads of the Hoy Reporting Service, and the F. I. L. M. Club.

The action is similar to one filed by Samuelson in February, 1923 in the County Clerk's office, with the exception that those papers sought to recover $150,000 in damages instead of the $450,000 named in the present proceedings.

The plaintiff alleges that Hays and the other defendants, including Famous Players, Fox, Associated First National, Goldwyn and Metro, had

Crane Back

Frank H. Crane, who has been directing in England for over three years, returned on Saturday and is stopping at the Green Room Club.

Talking of producing abroad Crane said that atmospheric and other conditions made producing difficult in England, inasmuch as a director could work for only about six months a year. He also said that the English people liked American pictures more than British-made product, and did not hesitate to prove this at the box office.

"But it is delightful over there," said Crane. "The scenery is beautiful and the people hospitable."

Paramount Gets "Aren't We All?"

"Aren't We All?" which ran nearly a year at the Gaiety, has been purchased by Famous and will be put into production for release next Fall. "The Coast of Folly," by Coningsby Dawson, and "Roles," by Elizabeth Alexander, have also been secured.

Bill Would Remove Levy From Exhibitors' Shoulders—Hearing Sought In Washington

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—Representative Newton (Rep.) of Minnesota has introduced a bill in the House designed to amend the copyright laws that the incidental use of copyright music will not subject the user to the so-called music tax imposed by the publishers' association.

In a statement, Newton declared that it was not the intention of Congress to provide any such protection for the composers, authors and publishers as has been assumed by them. He points out that the use of music in the theaters is merely incidental to the showing of a picture.

A similar bill was introduced in the House nearly three years ago but no action was taken by the Committee on Patents to advance it. It died a natural death. Newton proposes to push his bill and will ask an early hearing thereon before the Patents Committee.

Dear Mr. Seelye:

We have recently played your picture "DAUGHTERS OF TODAY" and I am very glad to inform you that the results were most satisfactory.

We put the picture on in a dignified and refined manner with very little advertising-- nothing of a sensational nature, and in spite of the fact that strong attractions were playing against it all the week, we did a record business and the production was well liked by the people. I believe now, that we could have played it another week to a profitable business.

With kindest regards, and wishing you success, I am

Very truly yours,

 attempted to ruin and destroy his business. Samuelson joins in his suit with Hoy and Phillips, and alleges that through the instrumentality of the F. I. L. M. Club, exhibitors have been blacklisted at the whim of producers and distributors.

Through this process, the complainant says, exhibitors have been prevented from receiving the proper supply of films to carry on their business in the plaintiff's particular case and forced him to close his theater for long periods of time.

The suit also attacks the uniform contract put into force by Hays and contends that arbitration is a misnomer for the means used. Samuelson alleges that producers and distributors simply dictate to the exhibitor what he is to do and cut off film supply if he refuses to accept their conditions.

The plaintiff specifically charges that Hays participated in and dictated the actions of the defendants in their "attempts to monopolize the motion-picture industry throughout the United States" and challenges the right of any industry to appoint a czar and attempt thereby "to centralize control of that industry." The Hays association commented on the suit as follows:

Neither Mr. Hays personally, nor president of the M. P. Producers and Distributors' Ass'n, or the association itself, is in any way involved in the alleged actions leading to the Samuelson suit. The inclusion, therefore, of Mr. Hays, or his association, has been resorted to by the plaintiff, in our opinion, solely for publicity purposes."

Sam Wood has started work on "Buff," in which Agnes Ayres and Antonio Moreno are co-starred.

More Cuts Possible

 subject of a direct request, the Committee has also agreed to the repeal of the seating capacity tax which for many years has been a burden on the theaters.

Within the next ten days the Committee proposes to take account of finances and see if it will be possible to go still further up the line in the matter of exempting admissions from the present tax. When the Committee finished its work on the special taxes, eliminating many and curtailing others, it found that it had leeway to the extent of $17,000,000, coupled with a desire to do something for the legitimate houses.

It must be borne in mind that the tax cuts above referred to will go into effect upon the signing of the bill by the President. It is anticipated that the bill will be brought out of Committee on Feb. 11, although it may be many weeks before it is finally passed by the House and sent to the Senate.

Distribution

past five years, had their fling at heading their own producing companies, only to find their ambitions crushed by inability to get adequate returns from distribution of good, honest product.

"Was anything wrong with the quality of these productions? Not as a rule. The fault lay—and still lies—in unsatisfactory distribution. * * *

"Column after column could be filled with recitals of similar stories, and of charges made against productions, about pictures played for which no payments were ever reported. There are a great number of common practices and malpractices in this business which need remedying. Consider the independent production which is consigned to a distributor who has financial interest in other product in his distribution, and who, in order to obtain high prices for the product in which he is interested wantonly slashes the prices on a number of truly independent productions which are combined in a 'group booking' with his (the distributor's) picture. Consider too the unfair competition which arises from the peddling at bargain prices of the product of the small independent producer.

"It may be said that the producer can protect himself by providing for, and insisting upon his right to reject unfavorable exhibitor contracts—but what is one to do if the pictures are played over the producer's rejection? The answer is that the producer can pull out his picture if the distributor does not live up to his contract—but what is he going to do with a picture that has been out several months, with prints half worn, and all the advertising matter either owned or controlled by the distributor? There is naught to do but yell like hell and leave the picture where it is and get whatever one can. That is to say, that this is all that may be done now, but reforms can be effected by organization.

Would Analyze Distribution

"Distribution should be studied if these reforms are to be effected. The producer should know what percentage of theater coverage the distributor's organization is going to give him. He may serenely visualize the seven or eight thousand theaters that represent the maximum he may get on his production. He should know that it is going to cost the distributor less to sell the first thousand than the second. More for the third than the second thousand. More for the fourth than for the third thousand, and so on. He should know that the cost of inspecting and shipping a five reel picture often actually costs the distributor sixty cents or more per reel, and that if the exhibitor buys a show for $7.50, with a 20% salesman's cost to the distributor, representing a total overhead on the sale of $4.50, or 60%, he is not going to get many of these high-cost bookings if he is paying the distributor 30% or 35%.

"He should know that as it costs the distributor less to cover only the high spots, the distributor is going to give him coverage only to the extent that it is profitable for him to do so. And there is the crux of the situation. * * *

"O. P. M."

"Most independent producers are gambling on O. P. M. (meaning, other people's money) and therefore haven't the nerve to uncover the conditions governing the distribution of their product (if they know them) for fear that it will drive capital away from their enterprises but they hope against hope that the OO will show up on the roulette wheel of independent production and by some miracle enable them to make a killing.

"Independent production for national distribution today demands a continuous flow of 'new money' to keep the wheels turning. Millions upon millions of dollars of this new capital have flowed into independent production from year to year only to be lost because of faulty distribution. This condition, if it continues, is sure to bring about a monopoly in motion picture production and distribution and eventually in the exhibition of motion pictures in this country. * * *

"The whole trouble has been that the supply of good independent pictures from season to season has always been more or less of an unknown quantity causing the exhibitor in his anxiety to assure himself of sufficient product to run his theater, to buy in advance in block from the largest sources of sure supply at top prices. If he buys twenty or thirty pictures from one or two of the largest producer-distributors to insure himself from getting left at the post and pays the maximum figure for them, as he usually does, he seeks way of averaging down on his film costs, with the result that the independent producer with a product that excels in value the twenty or thirty bought (with the exception of a few star specials included in the group) is offered only a fraction of the amount paid for each of the large group with 'a take it or leave it' attitude.

"It is therefore the exhibitor himself who yells like the devil against the tactics of the largest producer-distributors who is using his own best efforts to freeze out the independent producer and create a monopoly against himself, by offering low prices to the independent in order that he may 'average down' his higher priced product.

Hearst Modest

Tells Exhibitors He Wants To "Learn" From Them—Other Speakers

William R. Hearst of Cosmopolitan Prod. was the chief speaker yesterday at the open meeting of the T. O. C. C. He declared that he had come to the meeting to "learn," adding, that in his belief the exhibitor was closer to the public than anyone else. For this reason he appreciated the exhibitor's comments on pictures appearing in the trade press far more than the newspaper critic's ideas of pictures. He added that he did not believe in merely an artistic picture, but "what I want to do, as a lot of other producers desire, is to make pictures with a popular appeal." He believed that producers should have closer contact with exhibitors, adding there should be somebody, some organization where the producer could get closer to the exhibitor. He also urged the press to do the utmost to repeal the censorship of pictures because of the selfish interest the press had in this matter.

"Billy" Brandt told of the way the Hearst papers supported pictures 15 years ago when all the other news-

Exhibitor Advisory Committee To Work With Censors There—An Innovation

Through the efforts of Michael J. O'Toole, chairman of the public service committee of the M. P. T. O. A., Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania has appointed an exhibitor advisory committee to co-operate with the Pennsylvania censorship board. It is said that this is the first time that such a move has been made in a state exercising a control of the picture business through censorship.

O'Toole, who is director of the Comerford Amusement Co., controlling 62 theaters, is chairman of the new committee while other members are Jerome Casper, general manager of the Rowland and Clark theaters and president of the M. P. T. O. of Western Pennsylvania and H. J. Schad of the Carr-Schad interests of Reading and likewise president of the M. P. T. O. of Eastern Pennsylvania. These three will co-operate with Harry Knapp, Henry Starr Richardson and a third member, who comprise the censor board. Meetings will be held regularly but just at what intervals has not been determined at present. It

For Uniform Contract

Smallwood Suggests That As Way Out Of Present Troublesome Spots In Distribution

In this, the final instalment of Arthur N. Smallwood's interesting article on distribution and its evils, the author declares a uniform contract between producer and distributor should be perfected as one way out. Smallwood says:

"Distribution at best might be characterized as a necessary evil in the motion picture industry. It eats up a big share of the money that the exhibitor pays the producer for his pictures, but it is of paramount importance to the independent producer and the independent exhibitor alike that the efficiency of this 'necessary evil' be increased and its cost correspondingly decreased.

"Neutralized distributing centers seem to me to be the solution of the problem with a universal ruling papers were slamming motion pictures, adding that this aid alone saved many exhibitors from being put out of business.

I. E. Chadwick of the newly organized Independent Producers body made a remarkably interesting address, in which he pointed out the need of the independent to the industry, declaring that when Hearst changed his distributing arrangements that it meant a lot to the independent. "When he was with his former distributor (he did not mention Famous Players by name) the power of that organization was so great, so awe, inspiring" he said, that when Hearst changed this he "rendered a great success to the entire business. It gave great encouragement to the independent producer."

"You will never again be at the mercy of any one company in this business," he added. "The great pictures of the day are not stock company efforts."

Courtland Smith, who spoke on behalf of Will Hays, urged the exhibitors to do all they could to bring about repeal of the New York censorship act, declaring that all censorship must be repealed. He pointed out that although news reels were practically not censored, that the producers of news reels paid the Censorship Commission four per cent of their income during the past year.

At the speakers table were Saul E. Rogers, of Fox Film, and Marcus Loew, who, though not a member of the T. O. C. C., was invited to attend the meeting.

For Uniform Contract

against block booking and contracting for exhibition of product before it is made.

"But, regardless of neutralized distribution, the cost of distribution should be segregated into two separate and distinct operations. First: Physical handling of film, including honest inspection after each showing, shipping and clerical help which should not cost more than fifty cents (50c) per reel for each shipment or three dollars ($3.00) for a six reel production. Second: Selling Cost. The physical handling charge would remain the same on all classes of production, but the selling cost should be graded, dependent upon whether the picture sold would be classified as Class A, Class B and Class C. Not only should the selling cost vary in accordance with the class to which the production belongs, but recognition should be taken of the fact that the distributor is entitled to a smaller percentage on a first run sold for five hundred dollars ($500) or more than on a seven dollar and fifty cent ($7.50) booking sold to a small town. The table below gives arbitrary figures and percentages as follows:

Bookings	Class A	Class B	Class C
$500 or over..	7½%	10%	12½%
$50 to $500...	10%	15%	17½%
Less than $50.	15%	20%	25%

"The higher percentages are placed on the lower priced bookings because of the greater effort to get them and as an incentive to the distributor to get maximum coverage for the producer.

"Under this plan, I would place only a limited number of productions, such as 'The Four Horsemen,' 'Robin Hood,' etc., in Class A. Class B would be made up of high grade first run product but the higher selling allowance, plus the physical distributing charge, would give the distributor an adequate margin to conduct his business and an incentive for intensive selling. The producer would profit by securing maximum theater coverage. As an example of how Class B productions would work out, the producer would only pay slightly in excess of 10% of his first run bookings, at which figure an exchange can profitably handle this business; he would pay 15% selling commission, plus $3.00 physical handling charge on a $50.00 booking giving the exchange slightly in excess of 20% on this business, but on lower priced bookings the 20% selling cost plus the physical handling charge would pay the distributor 27½% on $40.00 bookings, 35% on $20.00 bookings, 50% on $10.00 bookings and 60% on $7.50 bookings. These latter percentages would enable the distributor not only to give the producer maximum service but to also give the exhibitor maximum service in carefully inspecting every show before it was shipped and thereby eliminate a big fault which many small town exhibitors find today when they get their $7.50 show uninspected and in bad condition. The distributor cannot afford to send a salesman on the road, inspect a five or six reel show, handle the clerical work and ship it for 35% of $7.50. He is entitled to 60% and the independent producer cannot afford to operate without these $7.50 bookings because they may represent his only profit on a big investment. But on the other hand, the independent producer cannot afford a thirty-five or forty per cent selling cost on first run bookings which should be profitably handled by the exchange at 10%.

Favors A Uniform Contract

"Motion picture producers placing their product through national distributors should get together and pass upon a uniform producer-distributor contract citing the distributor as an agent of the producer, providing that all receipts from rental of the product be trust funds and making the distributor responsible as a trustee not only for so-called home office receipts but for every dollar paid to any branch office or to any salesman or employee of the distributor. Did you ever hear of any other business in the world where the producer turns product worth fortunes over to a distributor or jobber on consignment without adequate bond for the manufacturer's protection? Did you ever hear of any other business where the distributor refuses to be responsible for the action of his branch offices or branch employees? Did you ever hear of a bank repudiating responsibility for a deposit made or a collection handled by one of their branches?

"Did you ever hear of a manufacturer in any other line of business in the world giving his distributor or jobber the advertising appropriation to spend instead of spending it himself to enhance the value of his trade mark, rather than that of the jobber? Can you conceive of any other business where the distributor or agent dominates the trade paper to a greater extent than the manufacturer or producer who is paying the bills?

"Yes, boys, it's a great game. And no wonder a lot of people still insist on calling it the 'motion picture game' or the 'motion picture racket.'"

BUSINESS

By DANNY

Best quarter in five years" report of U. S. Steel Corporation. Of business during the few months of 1923. According to the tax returns the Treasury Department member was the record month amusement attendance in the last two and a half years. If you need a ton of bricks to get on you to convey the idea that business is good all right. Otherwise these facts should mean something to you.

They might mean this:
 To you, Mr. Exhibitor: to put on the best shows you can; to get your audience in the habit of keeping on coming.
 To you, Mr. Producer: to make better pictures—and keep on doing so.
 With business conditions remaining they are 1924 promises to make a record of 1921—when the world's record was established for amusement expenditures.

That Place
 William R. Hearst wants a place where producers and exhibitors can get closer together. Where producers can learn what the public wants. That is, Mr. Hearst, is the round table. Here representatives of a national exhibitor organization could meet the Hays folks and talk things over. The quicker that national exhibitor organization works that way the better for the whole industry—producers as well as others. Why in the name of all that's holy there is no Forum; no gathering place; no spot where mutual understanding can be reached on many important topics. And, oh: how this is needed!
 Sure slipped awhile ago. When, commenting on the cast of "Ponjola" said it was "unimportant." Here's where we eat crow: James Kirkwood was in that cast—so was Anna Q. Nilsson and Tully Marshall. Proprietors all. Good ones, too. So we're sorry—terribly sorry we have made that slip. Apologies to one and all.

New Loan Plan

H. R. Ebenstein Arranges Bonds For Producers To Guarantee Advances By Banks

The Herbert R. Ebenstein Co., which handles a considerable percentage of the insurance for members of the T. O. C. C. has developed a plan for the financing of producers that is decidedly interesting. For obvious reasons, the company will not name the bonding organization with which it has made its arrangements but the scheme operates in the following fashion:

Those producers who can secure a distribution contract from a national organization on the strength of story, cast and general repute as producing factors, can arrange to borrow money from banking institutions at the regular rates without resorting to financing units that charge exorbitant fees. Ebenstein points out that under the present order of things, producers experience trouble in arranging their loans because of the skeptical attitude of bankers on the risk. Through his arrangement, the bonding company will guarantee the loan to the banks in the event that the producer does not live up to his agreement. The entire plan will work

Cohen To Distribute

Expected To Deal In State Right Field When He Leaves M. P. T. O. Presidency

It was reported yesterday that when Sydney S. Cohen rounds out his present term as president of the M. P. T. O. he will not be a candidate for re-election but will enter the distributing field. He is expected to handle product that will be released through state right exchanges.

This, however, will not occur for about two months, or possibly later than that. Cohen refused to make any comment when reached yesterday on the telephone. Whether or not the fact that he is chairman of the board of directors of the Theater Owners' Distributing Corp. carries any special significance was not apparent yesterday.

20 In A Block

Being Sold By First National With Play Dates Specifically Asked With Each Contract

First National's selling plan for the first half of 1924 provides for the release of twenty pictures in a block. The sales force will endeavor to secure dates for each of the group at the time the contract is entered upon.

The change in selling plans has been made because First National executives feel that the company is entitled to consideration of that character in view of the calibre of recent releases such as "Ponjola," "Flaming Youth" and "Black Oxen." Beginning with Feb. 4 and continuing through to June 17, the company will maintain a weekly release. The pictures, in many instances, have already been completed with the remainder in the course of production.

E. A. Eschmann has left Los Angeles where he conferred with R. A. Rowland and Earl J. Hudson relative to production. He was in Portland yesterday and is due in Seattle today. It will be about six weeks before he returns to New York and by the time he does reach town, he will have explained the new sales plan to each company manager.

The releases as they now stand follow:

- "When a Man's a Man," with John Bowler and Marguerite de la Motte.
- "The Love Master," starring Strongheart.
- "Flowing Gold," a Richard Walton Tully Prod. with Milton Sills and Anna Q. Nilsson.
- "Galloping Fish," an Ince comedy.
- Norma Talmadge in "Secrets."
- "Torment," a Maurice Tourneur Prod.

"Pied Piper Malone"—F. P.-L. Rivoli

AMERICAN—Even Thomas Meighan, with fifty children surrounding him, could not save "Pied Piper Malone" from being a long, drawn out, tiresome picture.

The fault lies with the story.

DAILY NEWS—Mr. Tarkington ought to be able to do something better for Thomas Meighan, really. "Pied Piper Malone" is scarcely worth the nice Tom's efforts, and it is decidedly not worthy of the man whose name is tied to its writing.

EVENING JOURNAL—Thomas Meighan, * * * goes through the photoplay with a becoming navy uniform, a quizzical expression and a retinue of all the small children in town.

EVENING WORLD—There are numbers of people who like Thomas Meighan and Booth Tarkington at their worst, and in "Pied Piper Malone" * * * they will have ample opportunity to do their need of hero worshipping.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * here we have entertainment of a rare and satisfying order. Tarkington can be relied upon to produce a story which in its essentials is diverting and at the same time based upon a plausible human structure. * * *

Meighan will undoubtedly add to his popularity.

POST—But just because he is "honest-to-goodness" looking and sympathetic is no reason for putting him into the incredible, fairy-like tales with which he has been adorned lately.

SUN—* * * just about as charming a picture as we have seen since, well—"Sentimental Tommy." Fresh and original and quaint. * * * In the hands of any one except Booth Tarkington, perhaps, "Pied Piper Malone," would probably be what literary critics call "mush." But Tarkington is clever in this case as well as sentimental, and the combination, as authors know, is almost as effective as cleverness and cynicism.

TIMES—Long before the last fade-out we wondered how much Booth Tarkington had to do with this picture. * * * There are characteristic touches of Thomas J. Geraghty, * * * some sensible direction by Alfred E. Green, and the usual competent acting of Mr. Meighan, George Fawcett, Cyril Ring and others, but very little, if anything, that reminds one of the Indiana author. We were, therefore, disappointed, as this production is wearying, especially toward the end.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—The picture is well handled from direction and the story is interesting.

TRIBUNE—We enjoyed the picture at the Rivoli, but the theme bored us not a little. * * *

There is a very exciting storm at sea which held us spellbound even though we knew perfectly well that it was a miniature ship. * * *

WORLD—It is pretty thin stuff which Booth Tarkington has written for Thomas Meighan. In fact, it is incredibly poor stuff, as well. It is clean, yes and it is rather well titled.

"Flaming Barriers"—F. P.-L. Rialto

AMERICAN—George Melford need pin no medals on himself for "Flaming Barriers." Famous Players-Lasky has claimed responsibility for few films that are in the class of this one.

EVENING WORLD—* * * story of small town life, * * * shrives itself of utter banality with business which made Keystone Comedies funny.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * has a promising title, but little else. This picture produced by George Melford is not one of the high spots of the Paramount list. Even the forest fire which provides the climax to the picture and might have redeemed the dull sketches, is ineffectively handled.

POST—Here are some more good players given an impossible story to characterize. * * * its comedy is a tragic as its dramatic incidents are uninteresting. Is this tragedy or is it comedy?

SUN—We are sorry, but we can't work up very much enthusiasm over "Flaming Barriers." * * *

It is just another of the "business and love" comedies. * * *

TIMES—She (Jacqueline Logan) is vivacious and gives plenty of swing to this utterly improbable, yet thoroughly amusing story.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—It is a small town tale. * * *

The Will Rogers-Hal Roche comedy, "Two Wagons, Both Covered," was the real wallop of the show.

TRIBUNE—The picture is amusing and the three stars are excellent.

TELEGRAM—"Flaming Barriers" retains a strong flavor of the old days of the West, although it is a modern story with a gripping, fast-moving plot.

WORLD—Jacqueline Logan and Antonio Moreno play the piece with an appreciative lack of heaving and clutching which when misapplied can so easily disrupt a light comedy.

"Fashion Row"—Metro Capitol

AMERICAN—* * * is by far the best thing Miss Murray has done in many a day.

DAILY NEWS—* * * Mae Murray does her usual stuff. * * * Lotsa plot, and no empty loge chairs in the Capitol.

EVENING JOURNAL—As Zita, Miss Murray is unusually appealing, and there is enough difference in the manner the two parts are handled, to imagine them played by different actresses. There is an interesting story, with dramatic developments; * * *

HERALD—The story, * * * is considerably more effective than it sounds. They have built their climaxes with considerable skill, and have kept the interest well up. * * * There are few blank spots in the continuity. The acting, too, is good. * * *

Miss Murray herself is as scintillating as usual. * * *

MORNING TELEGRAPH—While this is an improbable picture, it will doubtless serve to satisfy that part of every audience which likes a colorful tale despite the fact that it doesn't mean very much.

POST—* * * The similarity of her heroine and her motion pictures is becoming a trifle tiresome. * * * Only fair entertainment. * * *

SUN—* * * we forget that the picture is decidedly worth seeing, if you know what you like and don't care about art.

TELEGRAM—Miss Murray lends her graceful self easily to this melodramatic story, * * * which gives her that much-coveted opportunity in filmdom of appearing in two roles widely differentiated in character.

TIMES—Original twists, interesting situations and clever double exposure photography make "Fashion Row," * * * one of the best productions in which Mae Murray has been featured. * * *

Although this picture has failings, both in the story and direction, the competent cast and its certain entertaining value hold the interest throughout.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—Splendidly produced with superb photography. * * * holds enough merit to pass muster.

A corking cast is in support of Miss Murray. * * *

TRIBUNE—As the little peasant sister she does the best work she ever has done. If you like Miss Murray's pictures you will be delighted with this. * * * It has all of the old-stuff. * * *

WORLD—Mae Murray's current composition for the cinema is seven parts gaudy melodrama to one part exotic clothes to two parts good acting.

"Painted People"—1st Nat'l Strand

AMERICAN—* * * Clarence Badger has done better things in the directorial line. But in summing up the whole matter we must say "Painted People" has its moments of furnishing good entertainment and will, we have an idea, please the Colleen Moore fans, who are growing more and more in number every day.

DAILY NEWS—They (the cast) all wasted their time, in my opinion. Miss Moore may have enjoyed her job, but I fancy the others were glad enough when the show was over.

EVENING JOURNAL—* * * a genuinely amusing, well-acted and well-directed entertainment. * * * It is a human little story, with enough interest and comedy and appeal to counteract even the badly-chosen title.

EVENING WORLD—Colleen Moore's delightful fooling makes "Painted People" * * * a picture you will probably enjoy if you're not one of those unfortunates who expect the movies to do "better and finer" things.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—Colleen Moore * * * simply steals the whole picture, story and all. You don't seem to mind what happens as long as Colleen is on the scene.

The story is rather hard to take. * * *

POST—Colleen has a very short time. Skipped up the ladder of film fame two rungs at a time and now she is securely perched on the not over-crowded top rung. Only Miss Moore * * * could possibly make one swallow "Painted People" * * * without protest.

SUN—* * * something to see because Colleen Moore is the leading spirit. * * *

"Painted People" is worth seeing, but don't let the title fool you on a cold night into thinking you are going to see something sizzling.

TELEGRAM—The leading role is admirably adapted to the winsomeness of Miss Moore. * * *

TIMES—The worst thing about "Painted People," * * * is the main title, as the production itself is an agreeable disappointment. It is neither rouged nor powdered, as the title might imply, but a frothy, amusing story quite well told.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—* * * will probably have to rely on the pulling power of the scheduled players and the star's previous "Youth" release to draw.

WORLD—The fact that she acts at the Strand a third rate part in a fourth rate movie is not going to be her undoing. * * *

All the stale comedy situations and soft titles and hackneyed business * * * aren't quite enough to keep Miss Moore from being cute and winsome. * * *

Out-of-Town

"The Unknown Purple"—Truart Randolph, Chicago

JOURNAL—Brings back Henry Walthall. He is the same artist he was in "The Birth of a Nation," with an added mellowness as an addition to his natural charm.

TRIBUNE—Despite the photography, which is at times poor, it registers as a fairly exciting program film. * * * I think "The Unknown Purple," would have been better if shorter.

California, San Francisco

(Week ending Jan. 19)

CALL—Probably the outstanding feature of the picture is the uncanny manner in which the producers have handled the purple ray of light. * * *

CHRONICLE—Its story is not very clearly told on the screen, the jumps and blank spaces have to be filled up with the imagination.

ES—Betty Compson is the dancer and the star of the story a dramatic vehicle. The excellent in spots, ordinary in others.

Fischer Lost Heavily In Films

Adelbert H. Fischer, who organized the A. H. Fischer Features, and also was a large stockholder of the Octagon Films, was a heavy loser in his enterprises, the appraisal of his estate shows. Fischer, who lived in New Rochelle, and had a studio there, died March 30, 1922. He left a gross estate of $359,370, but debts and other deductions reduced it to $23,379. The appraisal shows that 250 shares of Fischer Features and 250 shares of the Octagon Films, were of no value. The appraiser also found no value for the films, "Man and Woman," "The Amazing Lovers," and "Even as Eve." Personal property in his studio building was worth $7,702, and $500 was found to be the value of a book of short stories by Robert W. Chambers, acquired by him for film purposes, and which could not be disposed of to anyone else without the author's permission.

Miss Sagor Succeeds Roden

Fredericka Sagor has succeeded Robert F. Roden as Eastern scenario editor for Universal.

Helen Macks, who is in "Pied Piper Malone," is appearing in "Neighbors," a stage play.

At Broadway Theaters

Capitol

The orchestra opens up with Elgar's march: "Pomp and Circumstance," which is followed by the pianist, Julia Glass, who plays "Hungarian Fantasy." The Capitol Magazine comes next. The fifth unit is Divertissements: (a) "Whispering Flowers," (b) "Deep River," and (c) "Caprice Viennois, all musical-dance selections. Mae Murray in "Fashion Row" is the feature. The last unit is an organ solo.

Rialto

An organ solo starts the Rialto program. The Magazine Weekly, and Gallery of Living Portraits, by Ernest Torrence, in which he gives some character studies of his most famous roles. Sigismund Pilinzky, tenor, sings "Mattinata." George Melford's "Flaming Barriers" is the feature picture. Louise Rothacker, dansense, in "Little Bird," and Will Rogers' latest comedy, "Two Wagons-Both Covered," are the last two numbers on the bill.

Rivoli

"Southern Rhapsody," by the orchestra, opens a rather scanty bill at the Rivoli, due presumably to the length of the feature, Thomas Meighan in "Pied Piper Malone." The rest of the entertainment consists of the Pictorial News Weekly, a specially arranged number by Joseph Zuro, featuring the Rivoli Ensemble; and Buster Keaton in a comedy, called "The Love Nest."

Strand

The Strand program features excerpts from "Faust" as the overture; the Topical Review, "The Smoker's Dream," a dance fantasy; the Strand ballet corps in "By The Zuyder Zee"; Colleen Moore in "Painted People" and "Tire Trouble," a new Dippy-Doo-Dads comedy.

At Other Houses

"Her Temporary Husband" is playing a return engagement on Broadway, this time at the Cameo; "The Extra Girl" remains the attraction at the Central; so does "The Ten Commandments," at the Cohan, and "The Covered Wagon" at the Criterion. "The Great White Way" continues its indefinite run at the Cosmopolitan. "Abraham Lincoln" is in its second week at the Gaiety; The Lyric still houses "The White Sister."

Triangle Is No More

any, Once A Leader, Disposes Assets For $55,000 To Frank W. Severn, Not in Pictures

Triangle Film Corp., has passed out of existence. The assets of the corporation have been purchased by Frank W. Severn, of 1476 Broadway, for $55,000 in cash. Severn was represented by Arthur Butler Graham. The offer was approved and the necessary order secured from the court in bankruptcy in order to complete the sale. The assets principally consisted of a ninety-eight per cent interest in the following corporations, New York M. P. Corp., Reel M. P. Corp. and Keystone M. P. Corp.; the ownership of about 100,000 negatives and rights to a large number of stories, some of them once owned and others never actually produced.

The expense coincident with the effect of the sale will be deducted from the offer and with whatever is left of the $55,000, the creditors will be paid. The Kessels have a claim amounting $100,000 against the company.

Severn is not engaged in the picture business. An effort was made to obtain a statement from him as to the disposition he planned of the assets he had acquired, but he has not been reached.

Short Reels In Color

It is understood that E. H. Griffith and Claude Adams are discussing a plan to make a series of short subjects in natural colors. Miss Adams has been experimenting with a new process for some time.

Goldwyn Buys "Tarnish"

Samuel Goldwyn has purchased "Tarnish," now running at the Belasco theater. It will be George Burdick's next picture to follow "Tarnish."

Earn $685,780

In Nine Months, Warners' Record—Total Income For That Period $2,488,839

Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., has reported various subsidiary companies reported a total income of $2,488,839 for the nine months ending Dec. 31, 1923. After payment of all expenses and taxes for taxes, it is claimed a net profit of $685,780 which is equal to 17 per cent share, earned on the 500,000 shares of capital stock outstanding. The majority in the company's issue on hand has been brisk.

Accounting

Here is the new form of general balance sheet devised to clarify the various balance sheets and financial statements issued by picture concerns for use in banks, loans, etc.

This form was agreed upon by accountants and others of the larger companies, through the agency of the Hays organization. It is not a "standard form," nor is there any reason for any concern using this form to the exclusion of others. But accountants interested believe that it will materially simplify the existing complex balance sheets now used by various concerns.

This form appears as part of the article "Motion Pictures and the Banker" in the current issue of the Bankers Magazine, prepared by Richard W. Saunders, Comptroller of Famous Players. The article is quite in line with others of a like nature which have been written by Mr. Saunders.

Walker Seeks Repeal

Introduces Bill In Senate To Remove Censors—No Hitch There But Assembly Is Doubtful

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Albany—Senator James J. Walker yesterday introduced a bill in the Senate for the repeal of the censorship law. The measure was referred to the finance committee. It will be reported in a few days without a hearing. There is no doubt whatsoever but that the bill will pass the Senate.

Assemblyman Frederick L. Hackenburgh of New York has introduced a similar measure in the Assembly but it has not received much notice. Walker is sponsoring the Administration bill and it is this that will receive the real attention in the legislature. There may be some action on the Hackenburgh measure, but that is in doubt. Hackenburgh has made no effort to obtain any action on it and has made no request to the chairman of the committee to which the bill was referred for a hearing.

The stumbling block in the way of the passage of a repealer will be reached in the Assembly, which is composed of 87 Republicans and 63 Democrats. Last year the repealer received 71 votes, 76 being required to put it over.

Cliff Smith With Universal

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Cliff Smith, who directed Bill Hart in "Wild Bill Hickok" and Singer McKee," has been engaged by Universal to direct Jack Hoxie's next production, "Ridgeway of Montana."

About a month ago, it was reported from the coast that Hart and Jesse L. Lasky were having business difficulties that may reach the point where Hart would not make any more pictures for Famous Players. At the latter offices yesterday, no one professed to know anything about the matter. It is interesting to note, however, that in the list of Paramount releases beginning March 3 and running through to July, there is scheduled only one Hart picture, "Singer Jim McKee."

Binney Arrested

Walker Seeks Repeal

A keen observer has figured out 76 votes for the repeal bill in the following fashion: Monroe County has five members, all Republicans, two of which, Murphy and Griffiths, voted for repeal last year. The others, Adler, Lewis and Austin may consider the wishes of Eastman Kodak this year and support the bill they opposed last year. While the Republican leader of Monroe County has not pledged the votes of these three members, it is understood that he desires to please Eastman.

Counting on five from Monroe, five from New York and four from Westchester, the job would be accomplished. All of these are Republicans and with the 63 Democrats would make 77 possible votes

Arbitrators Not Defined

Anderson Standard Contract—Exhibitor Fails To See How Distributor Can Make It Binding

Theater owners standard contract as developed by Carl Anderson in "After The Ball," and other contracts to follow does not stipulate form of arbitration is to be used in actual carrying out of the agreement.

An expert who has been acting as an arbitration work for some time who has watched the development of the uniform agreement through the Hays office stated yesterday that he did not believe the Anderson contract could function properly.

Anderson declared yesterday that the arbitration was immaterial what arbitration was used; that it could be an arbitration body as well as not, just so long as both exhibitor and distributor equal representation. He said

A Need

A comedienne. And needed muchly. True there are a few cavorting about. But they aren't getting so far—or so fast—that there isn't a lot of room for a new one. Where is the successor to Louis Fazenda? Who is she? And what producer is developing her?

Connie Talmadge had the field of her own to herself until she failed to find material. Mabel Normand once had a tremendous vogue. Where is it today?

Colleen Moore looks a comer. But she has her own type of work—and is doing it very well indeed. Little Pauline Garon—if she was handled the right way—should find a place somewhere in that line. Mae Busch could do it—but then she can do almost anything. Why don't Metro give Viola Dana a chance in this direction?

The world wants to laugh. If you disagree look at Chaplin and Lloyd—and their records—and quit arguing. The world will laugh as much with a woman star if she is given the right material. Will someone please start something.

Plans For "Peter Pan"

Famous Has Scenario Ready—Production To Be Ready For Release Around Christmas

"Peter Pan," James M. Barrie's famous play, is to be produced this summer by Famous Players. While no announcement was forthcoming from the company, it was learned from an authoritative source Friday that the scenario has been completed and that it is planned to have the picture ready for release around Christmas.

Famous has owned the rights for several years, having acquired them with the rights of other Barrie works. There has been considerable speculation as to why the picture was not produced long ago, but it is understood that it was held off in the hope that Maude Adams, who created the title role and who scored her biggest success in it, would change her mind and return to the stage. Apparently, hope of getting Miss Adams back on the stage has been abandoned, and as "Peter Pan" cannot be conceived without her in the title role, arrangements for its production are being made.

Who will play the role of Peter Pan has not been decided upon, it is understood.

Reichenbach To Join Famous

Harry L. Reichenbach has resigned as director of publicity for Sam Goldwyn. He sails for Europe on Feb. 16 on a pleasure trip and upon his return is expected to join Famous Players. It is understood that he will be succeeded in his present post by Victor Shapiro who has been with Pathe for a number of years.

Distribution Ideas

Smallwood Suggests To American Express Co. To Take Over Physical Handling

Arthur N. Smallwood of Pyramid Pictures, is out with another open letter regarding distribution. This is addressed to the American Express Co.

Smallwood suggests that this company take over the physical distribution of pictures, doing away with the present system of exchanges, etc.

It will be recalled that several years ago this company had an idea of taking over the physical distribution of pictures, but that after many conferences in which the leading companies were interested the plan was abandoned.

After going over considerable of the ground which he covered in his recent open letter to the independent producers and distributors Smallwood says:

"One of the first reforms in the distribution of independent motion picture productions should be a division of distributing charges into two departments: the physical distribution covering inspection and shipping of film; and second, selling of the product. Your organization could readily equip itself to handle the physical distribution, the producer could maintain his own sales representation in each key center, sell through authorized territorial agents or through trade paper advertising and by mail if he so desired.

"Here in a nutshell is my suggestion for the entry of the American Railway Express Co. into the physical distribution of motion pictures:

"First: You would operate strictly as a service organization without any selling activity whatever on the part of your employees or agents.

"Second: You would maintain an office in the Film Block or Film Building of each key city of the United States, equipped with all necessary facilities, including a projection room and poster department.

"Third: You would offer equal office facilities to each producer's sales department, consisting of desk-room or private offices for which you would make a standard and equitable charge.

"Fourth: You would make a flat monthly service charge per reel on all prints held for producer to cover storage.

"Fifth: You would make a flat charge of, let us say, fifty cents a reel for inspection, packing and shipment of each show, which would include maintenance of your cashier and clerical department and your branch overhead.

"Sixth: You would make additional charge for projection room service.

"Seventh: You would make nominal charge for handling and remitting producer revenue to the home office.

"Eighth: You would handle the entire enterprise on a strictly cash basis; ship film only when contracts were duly approved by the owners of the picture and accept responsibility for collection and remittance of all film rentals.

"Ninth: You would receive a service fee on handling of posters and accessories consigned to you by producer to provide for the profitable maintenance of your poster department.

"Tenth: You would divert from the post-office department and other carriers a lot of express business you are not getting today.

"If only one hundred feature productions a year, out of a total of more than four hundred independently made features, found their way into your distribution each year, and they received only an average of 2,000 theater bookings apiece, there would result approximately 200,000 film shipments, averaging six reels apiece, affording an income of $600,000 from inspection and shipping alone, and not taking into consideration the other sources of revenue that would be opened up to you.

"You would not limit your facilities to independent producers but would extend a standing invitation to the existing national sales organizations to cut down their present high costs and increase their selling efficiency by handling their physical distribution through your organization. It might take time, but I believe one by one, they will fall into line, because it is a well recognized fact that the great duplication of physical distributing plants is a big factor in present costs of getting pictures from the studio to the theaters. Trade jealousies and mistrust would make it impossible for any existing organization in the industry to bring about this reform.

I believe that your entry into this business at this time would be a Godsend not only to the independent producer of motion pictures but to the motion picture exhibitors as well."

big drama and scenarios that spell entertainment first and second.

The critic of the Boston Transcript—and that is the high of all high brow newspapers—deplored that Anna Christie did not have the same popular appeal as "Flaming Youth." Perhaps he is right. But "Flaming Youth" reaches the masses picture lovers—the 16 and 17 year old girls—and satisfies them muchly. (See First National's booking chart on this one.)

THAT YOUTHFUL IDEA

And all the appeal that comes with it. Also in "Daughters Today." Just taken over by Selznick. Has a lot of the atmosphere of jazz—and all that goes with it. Not at all surprising that it is doing business at the box-office. Not a bit. And along comes Famous and buys "The Coast of Folly." Another of the same kind. And that's the way it goes.

CABLE NOTE

Such is fame. Gloria Swanson, Allan Dwan and Tom Terriss, busy making pictures in Havana. Invited to attend opening new Biltmore roof garden as special guests along with President Zayas.

Bet Gloria's costumes knocked those Cuban women dead. Tom Terriss in his London made—not mad—evening clothes a eye full.

A TRIUMPH FOR BETTY

Cables say Betty Blythe scored a triumph at the premier "Southern Love" in London. The latest Graham Wilcox release. Incidentally Al Woods is reported to have paid $250,000 for the American rights.

Know nothing, of this picture—haven't any idea of what it's about. But any time Al Woods is separated from much money for a picture it must be something. That's

EDITORIAL PUBLICITY

When a film star gets the sort of editorial note that Tommy Lohan received in the Jacksonville Journal it's time to sit up and take notice. Usually editorials have to do with the unsavory matters that occur with our boys and girls. But the Journal gave Tommy a three inch double column, double leaded editorial welcome; declaring he is not only the most popular star who is there, but that his popularity is "proof the people of this city are not inclined to decadent screen versions of life and they prefer plays that have romance and adventure and the common decencies of life in them."

Some twinkling stars—and others that aren't twinkling so much these days—might read this and reflect.

JUST PLAIN ORDINARY FAT

And because Harold Lloyd has accumulated some—there's something about home cooking will do even to a comedian—19 pounds and weight reducers called on him during one morning at the Biltmore. Being human, as well as a comedian, Lloyd yielded to all. The next day 57 different creams to be used in the morning arrived.

The simplest of all matters was untouched by suggestion—Mrs. Harold Lloyd stop feeding her hubby so well.

GOGGLES

Incidentally, during his visit Harold has had to borrow the goggles worn by Joe Reddy and Vic Shapiro on several occasions, to demonstrate that he wasn't Harold Lloyd. And then wasn't very successful.

BIRTH VS. DEATH RATE

Of stars. Benny Schulberg doing the calculating. Says during the past 10 years they have been killed off, and few born. Says today there are but 14 stars, seven men, six women and a child, who, through their box office value, are entitled to top billing. Excludes comedians of course. And then predicts that half of these will drop out of the star class within a year.

Then this hitherto unknown stock holder in Campbell's Funeral Parlors declares that nine out of the 10 so called stars are losing instead of gaining in popularity, and that not more than a dozen of the featured players of today are of genuine star calibre. And ends up by predicting that producers will go to the stage in search of potential screen stars.

Don't know how accurate his figures are, but do know this: that to the eternal shame of this business too little attention is being paid to the development of future stars.

THE LATEST BRUCE'S

Just saw the last four of the collection. Mighty good stuff in them. Great pity that they haven't just a little more footage, then they would be called features. As a matter of fact they are. For any program. Of any house. No matter how large or small.

ARBITRATION

Did the figures issued by the New York Joint Board mean anything to you? They should have. Because they show clearly how arbitration is settling many of the difficulties hitherto existing. Over 1,800 fewer cases handled than the year before. Which also means something.

When the Arbitration Boards throughout the country operate satisfactorily there will be little need of further organizations to correct the evils existing between the various branches of the business.

THAT SUIT

Of S. E. Samuelson against Hays and members of his organization. Similar to suit filed a year ago. Created some comment. Not much. But led to considerable speculating by a few. As to just what it was all about. And led to considerable further speculation—as to what part politics of the business had to do with it. Hays people think the suit was filed "for publicity purposes."

"EXHIBITOR" NOTES

Al Steffes entering a finance company in the Northwest—Sydney Cohen reported to go into distribution after his present term as President of the MPTOA expires—the Brandt's going into the radio supply business.

These are all exhibitors; every one of them.

A REAL LOSS

The MPTOA, and the exhibitors of this country generally, have suffered a real loss in the sudden death of Charley Whitehurst. He was one of the few exhibitors who looked at serious problems without heat and with patience. He had a clear vision, and a definite idea as to what an exhibitor organization should do and how it should function. The pity of it all is that he was taken away before he could see accomplished many of the things he fought for.

AN INVENTION

Big houses—where music plays an important part of the showing—should be interested in the invention of S. W. Lawson. Of the Keith-Moss houses. An electrical device develops complete synchronization. Between the projection booth. And the orchestra. It is said that the slightest change in speed; a break, and all the other difficulties, have been solved. Also signals to the musicians' rest room. Just before they should return to the stage. Or pit. Sounds interesting.

Arbiters Not Defined

the personnel was irrelevant; that it might have six exhibitors and six ex-changemen as well as three of each.

Sydney S. Cohen has advised the members of the M. P. T. O. A. that at the recent meeting of the board of directors the Anderson form was adopted. As Cohen explains in his circular letter, the new draft eliminates the following features which were objected to at the time the exhibitor conferences with the Hays association were broken off:

Cash deposits.

Does not compel theater owner to name producer or distributor in his paid newspaper advertising.

Gives him the ownership of advertising and accessory material.

Arranges a more satisfactory method of arbitration, eliminating cash penalty requirements as in other contracts in force.

Permits theater owner to cut out advertising or propaganda.

Cohen further states that copies of the Anderson contract are being sent to "all producers and distributors of motion pictures in the hope that they may adopt a similar form of contract." Inquiries developed the fact that the producers and distributors referred to were those operating in the independent field and not any of the companies which belonged to the Hays group. Charles B. Hoy of the Independent M. P. Prod. and Dist. Ass'n which now includes the more important operators in the state right field admitted yesterday that his members received the contract but added that nothing had been done about it as yet.

It was pointed out that the Hays uniform contract was largely predicated on the workings of the arbitration system which, as noted, provides for an equal representation of exhibitors and distributors to settle matters of dispute that may arise between both parties. The contract used by the Hays group stipulates under clause O:

"The parties hereto agree that before either of them shall resort to any court to determine, enforce or protect the legal rights of either hereunder, each will submit to the Board of Arbitration, established or constituted pursuant to rules and regulations now on file in the office of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., and identified by the signature of its President....."

Clause 17 of the Anderson contract is worded in the same manner except that it refers to a "a Board of Arbitration consisting of distributors and exhibitors." As pointed out above, Anderson says it makes no difference what the board is or how it is set up, so long as exhibitors and distributors are equally represented.

Anderson's physical distribution is handled through F. B. O. where it was learned yesterday that the theater owners standard contract is used in connection with the Anderson product only and not for any F. B. O. pictures. The latter company uses a contract of its own that permits of arbitration under the Hays system.

Sees Good Year in England

F. Wynne-Jones who went to London with Abe Berman about three years ago to establish Allied Artists there has left the organization and is back in New York. He declared Friday that he looked for a good year in England, especially in view of the fact that in June, the Dominion Exhibition will open and probably run through the rest of the year. There has been some over-selling there, he added, but not enough to make the situation in any way serious.

"No More Women"

Producer: Asso. Authors
Distributor: Allied Artists

As a Whole..... JUST GOOD ENTERTAINMENT: NOT A GREAT BIG PICTURE BUT AN AVERAGE CROWD WILL PROBABLY LIKE IT BECAUSE THE STORY IS A BIT OUT OF THE USUAL. LIGHT FARCE WELL HANDLED.

..... Some good names that should have a following. Little George Bellamy sweet to look at gives a nice performance as a flirtatious one who makes the girl hard for Matt Moore who is successful in his previous love life says "No more women," and Madge gets him proved diverting and amusing. Others unimpressive. Kathleen Clifford and Reeves-Smith; who has a good ending on the legitimate stage may be known to your patrons.

Type of Story .... Somewhat different from most picture material. Poor geologist, disappointed in love affair, comes under the eye of the heroine, the daughter of a man, who decides that she wants to marry him. She trails him to the mountains and has a variety of experiences, getting him to the end. The tempo of the story is of the light farce comedy and it goes along nicely from the very start.

Madge, by all sorts of cunning tricks, keeps her hero's interest and marries him at the finish, give your people a lot of quiet pleasures.

is the sort of love story that has a broad appeal. The usual tricks that make for pictures are missing; there are no thrills, no exciting diversions—just a good story well handled and well presented. Your young folks should like it a

Box Office Angle ..... This will attract them when you get them there isn't much doubt about it; but you will have to get behind it and attract their attention.

Exploitation .... You can do a lot with this one if you will only go to work. This isn't the sort of picture that will make money for a lazy exhibitor. He must work, and title offers unusual opportunities for gags and stunts. Go after them to the utmost. Use catchlines; get some of the popular songs to fit in with the idea; use sandmen—the poorer they look the more they will attract attention.

ou use "No More Women" prominently on the boards. Get the newspapers to interview well known local bachelors and start a discussion as to whether bachelors are happier than married men—and

"The Average Woman"

Producer: C. C. Burr

As a Whole..... SHOULD GET OVER MIGHTY WELL WHERE THEY LIKE "FLAMING YOUTH" TYPE OF MATERIAL. PAULINE GARON PUTS OVER A GOOD FLAPPER CHARACTERIZATION IN SOMEWHAT TRITE STORY.

Cast ..... Some good names for you to work with. Pauline Garon who again does excellent work as the flapper. Harrison Ford who has a somewhat boob part of a lover and David Powell who is the "mean willun." Others DeSacia Mooers, Burr McIntosh. Russell Griffin a smart kiddie.

Type of Story .... The kind where the flapper daughter who is up to date in every respect saves her daddy, the Judge, from a blackmailing bootlegger who runs a road house and who secures possession of the usual "poopers." But it's good audience stuff—where they like this kind of material—and has all the usual accessories, such as shots on the Fifth Ave. busses, where they show a flirtation and the road house trimmings, including a cabaret scene, with some novelities from a Broadway show. Nothing very new in the story, nor the treatment, but it holds interest and is well dressed and unusually good stuff for the independent field.

Of course the story lacks some of the daring incidents of other recent flapper stories, but heroine Pauline gets a dirty deal from the willun at the roadhouse and the raiding of the resort offers a thrill.

Box Office Angle .... If you know your folks like cabaret scenes and a cute love story this one may fill their needs nicely. You know how flapper stuff gets over with your people and Pauline Garon does it very well in this.

Exploitation .... You can tell them that this is based on a Saturday Evening Post story; that it has a good cast—mention the names—and that it is nicely produced. Get some stills of the cabaret scenes and the police raid—also of the flirtation on the Fifth Ave. bus. In small towns shots of the Avenue are always good.

This is another of the type of flapper stories that seem to be doing remarkably well at the box office and you can tell your people that it contains the usual elements of such stories. Catch lines can be used to advantage, and a contest can be developed among your women folk as to what is the average woman, with tickets for the house or a season's pass as the chief award.

As a Whole.... WILL UNDOUBTEDLY PLEASE THE MEIGHAN CONTINGENT AND BOOTH TARKINGTON ADMIRERS; GOOD JUVENILE ENTERTAINMENT BUT A BIT DRY FOR GROWN-UPS.

Star.... Should go bigger than ever with his youthful admirers. Gives a first rate performance. Long posing close-ups add greatly to the feature's length and aren't necessary.

Cast... Lila Lee pleasing heroine and George Fawcett good as the sea captain whose drinking gets hero into all kinds of trouble; others Emma Dunn, as the mother, Chas. Stevenson, Cyril Ring, Peaches Jackson and a number of kiddies.

Type of Story.... Drama of small town life. Hero Jack Malone had the confidence and affection of the children of Oldport even though he wasn't able to count on the support of the grown-ups following his return after his vessel sinks in the China Sea. Jack is blamed for the disaster along with the old captain who happened to be drunk the night of the wreck. When Jack is seen helping the captain home during one of his sprees, the town selectmen, thinking Jack has also been imbibing too freely, where in reality he staggers from the weight of the captain, order him to leave town. Of course they learn their mistake and hero's sweetheart reaches his departing ship in time to tell him she believes in him and will wait for his return.

Meighan's latest is decidedly a picture to entertain young people. It's a bit too much along fairy tale lines to appeal to adults but, of course, where the star has won their approval they are not likely to find fault.

Box Office Angle.... Especially good for family trade. You can readily invite parents and advise them to bring the children. Meighan caters particularly to them in "Pied Piper Malone."

Exploitation .... Of course you will give the star's name the usual prominence and use Booth Tarkington's name in connection with the title. "Pied Piper Malone" is a good title to put over through street stunt advertising. Have a man dressed to represent a piper as described in the story "Pied Piper of Hamelin" and by distributing small trinkets, or candies, that will attract children, there shouldn't be any difficulty in getting a troupe of them to follow him about after the fashion of the youngsters who follow Meighan in the picture.

Direction.... Alfred E. Green; good, on the whole, but lets picture run way too long for amount of story.
Author ..... Booth Tarkington
Scenario ..... Tom Geraghty
Cameraman ..... Ernest Haller
Photography ..... Good
Locale.... New England seaport town

Colleen Moore in
"Painted People"

First National

As a Whole.... NOT AS GOOD AS "FLAMING YOUTH" BUT A GOOD ENTERTAINMENT FOR MOST ANY AUDIENCE; DOESN'T HOLD TO THE STARTING PACE WHICH HAS PLENTY OF GOOD LAUGHS.

Star..... Proves to be a great little trouser and mighty capable of this particular type of characterization. Has fine expression. Needs to be careful about make-up, especially in close-ups.

Cast.. Ben Lyon a youthful and good looking hero. Joseph Striker good as the fortune hunter and Charlotte Merriam adequate as the society girl. Others Charles Murray, Russell Simpson, Mary Alden, Mary Carr, Sam de Grasse, June Elvidge, Anna Q. Nilsson, and Bull Montana. Strong line-up although none of them have a great deal to do.

Type of Story... Comedy-drama. The opening reels of "Painted People" are by far the more interesting of the entire feature. They consist of light comedy business, situations not especially strong in themselves, but thoroughly amusing. There's a continuation of laughable bits in which Colleen Moore establishes herself securely as one of the screen's best comediennes, if she need to give further assurance after her fine work in "Flaming Youth." As the ambitious daughter of an equally ambitious wash-woman she wiggles her way into social atmosphere thereby gaining her heart's desire—the chance to become an actress. Coincident with her career is that of Ben Lyon, son of a glass blower, but who wants a literary career. Up to the point where hero and heroine reach their respective goals the picture is wholly amusing. Thereafter it takes a dramatic turn and is inclined to slow up to the inevitable happy ending—marriage of the two successes.

Box Office Angle.... Your folks will like it real well. There's plenty to amuse them in "Painted People." It furnishes the sort of entertainment that usually pleases the masses.

Exploitation..... Should be worth while going after business with this one. Broadcast the title and the star's name, promising another excellent performance and recalling her splendid work in "Flaming Youth." Use a trailer showing her escapade with the clothes basket and her dip in the lily pond. Any of these comedy bits will bring them back. You might mention the story's original title: "The Swamp Angel." There's a long list of well known names in the supporting cast that can also be used. Stunt advertising isn't particularly applicable in this case.

Direction.... Clarence Badger; good; a little slow toward end.
Author ..... Richard Cornell
Scenario ..... Adelaid Heilbron
Cameraman ..... Rudolph Bergquist
Photography ..... Good
Locale ..... Small town
Length ..... 6,900 feet

"The Trail of the Law"

Producer: Oscar Apfel
Distribution: State Rights

As a Whole... MODERATELY INTERESTING PICTURE CONTAINING STORY THAT RUNS ALONG SMOOTHLY AND WITH FAIRLY WELL SUSTAINED INTEREST WITHOUT REACHING ANY HIGH LIGHTS.

Cast... Norma Shearer pretty heroine but quite awkward in masquerade as boy; Wilfred Lytell adequate in hero role and Richard Neill a mild sort of villain.

Type of Story... Drama with romance a prominent part of it. Man makes his home in the mountains and has his daughter masquerade as a boy in the day time to prevent her being annoyed by men. She falls in love with a camper and it doesn't take him long to "fall" also when he discovers his young companion is a girl. How her father comes face to face with the man who caused her mother's death and gives him what is coming to him, is followed by preparations for their return to civilization and the young couple's marriage.

"The Trail of the Law," is the sort of picture that creates little impression one way or the other so probably it belongs in the "average" class. The story isn't strong enough to be of particular interest nor poor enough to warrant its being classified as dull. It moves along smoothly, the interest is usually sustained and the development of the romance between hero and the girl who masquerades as a boy serves to make it hold well enough.

Box Office Angle... An average entertainment that you will probably be able to satisfy them with providing you balance your program with good short subjects or another good feature. Its strength depends upon the extent of your patron's critical analysis and whether or not they'll be satisfied with a feature offering chiefly a pretty romance but with little or no action or the usual box office pullers.

Exploitation... They may have seen Norma Shearer before. She's pretty. Stills in the lobby may bring them in. She really needs a role that keeps her in pretty frocks rather than one that calls for a boy's masquerade, however. Wilfred Lytell's name might also be used. The title with catchlines might read: "You can't get away from 'The Trail of the Law.' Sooner or later it will get you." You could post pictures of the villain as shown in the picture announcing a reward for the capture of the man, using the character name. Regulation announcements should take care of the showing sufficiently without extra advertising.

Direction... Oscar Apfel; fair; production rather ordinary; didn't spend much apparently.

Author... Marion Brooks
Scenario... Marion Brooks
Cameraman... Alfred Gondolf
Photography... Often poor
Locale... Mountains
Length... About 5,000 feet

William Desmond in

"The Breathless Moment"

Universal

As a Whole... COMMONPLACE STORY THAT COMBINES THE OVERDONE CROOK REGENERATION THEME WITH EQUALLY FAMILIAR SMALL TOWN HOKUM BUSINESS. NOT UP TO UNIVERSAL'S STANDARD.

Star... Poses about as reformed dude crook in small town, putting general store on paying basis and winning the proprietor's daughter. Does too much acting for the part.

Cast... Charlotte Merriam suitable buxom maid. Harry Van Meter an unnecessary villain who might easily have been omitted. Others Alfred Fisher, Robt. Homans, Lucille Hutton.

Type of Story... Comedy-drama, weak in both elements. "The Breathless Moment" claims two authors but between them they haven't thought up a single new situation. The plot is a combination of two already highly popularized ideas, the crook regeneration angle and the greatly overdone small town hokum. Nor has the director improved things much in his handling of them. The comedy business is terrible, especially in the sequence where they turn a church service into a Keystone comedy. It isn't clever to employ such means to afford laughs. One scene in which a parson joins a crowd of hicks who think they are looking at an old lady's limbs—in reality a pair of stocking display dummies—isn't good judgment on the part of the director. There's a lot of church folks that this will offend. The opening reels hold promise of a really good picture with an interesting crook story, starting right off with a first rate suspense, but it takes a big drop and settles into a lagging, not at all amusing, small town drama.

Box Office Angle... Not very favorable. They've seen so much of this crook regeneration and small town comedy that you will not be likely to satisfy them with this one,—it's neither original nor a good repetition.

Exploitation... They picked a fine title and one that will undoubtedly bring them in so you can use your own judgment regarding a booking. If that's all you have to do—bring them in—the title will do it but if your crowd is at all fussy you'll not be able to please them with it. William Desmond is hardly popular enough to get it over. Small town church going people may object to the church comedy so you may have to be a bit careful.

Direction... Robert Hill; poor.
Authors... Raymond L. Schrock and Harvey Gates

Scenario... Wm. E. Wing
Cameraman... Wm. Thornley
Photography... All right

John Gilbert in

"Just Off Broadway"

Fox

As a Whole... EFFECTIVE SUSPENSE IN CROOK STORY OF COUNTERFEITERS MAKES IT INTERESTING PICTURE THAT WILL PLEASE THE AVERAGE AUDIENCE.

Star... Handles hero role satisfactorily and is a suitable type for the part. Not greatly unlike a recent "Boston Blackie" story in which he appeared to such good advantage. An improvement in the vehicles they are selecting for him recently.

Cast... Marian Nixon a pleasing lead who gives a good performance as the innocent little dancer who finds herself mixed up with a band of counterfeiters. Trilby Clark handles a minor part suitably and Pierre Gendron an unsuspecting dancer-detective. Ben Hendricks, Jr., has a few comedy bits that he makes the most of.

Type of Story... Crook story; deals with the adventures of a counterfeiter and his friendship with a stranger who brings the news of the former's death to his sweetheart in America, only to fall in love with the little dancer who is forced to impersonate her by other counterfeiters. How the stranger develops to be a millionaire's son "in search of a thrill" and the dancer wins his love, completes the story. It is the effective suspense that Director Mortimer has injected which makes "Just Off Broadway" a rather good entertainment. You aren't able to tell in advance just what Gilbert's position is in the plot, whether he's a detective on the trail of the counterfeiters, or actually one of them. There is a fairly good surprise when it transpires that Florelle, the dancer, is a secret service man. The picture doesn't boast of thrills or the excitement that they may expect of a crook story, but there is a well sustained interest and a good cast to get it over.

Box Office Angle... Satisfactory one day showing feature that you can use nicely. Title is catchy and where star is popular it should get over.

Exploitation... Anything connected with Broadway in the way of a title will always attract them to a certain degree, so "Just Off Broadway" should get their attention. You might use catchlines such as those suggested: "The man thought she was a crook—the girl thought he was one—and both of them were mistaken in 'Just Off Broadway.'" Fox has prepared posters with pictures of Gilbert and Miss Nixon against a cabaret background with lines reading: "In the Whirlpool of New York and Paris Night Life." This should attract also.

Direction... Edmund Mortimer; satisfactory.

Scenario... The same
Cameraman... G. O. Post

"Flaming Barriers"

Paramount

As a Whole... PLOT FULL OF CONVENTIONAL HOKUM WITH VERY POPULAR FOREST FIRE CLIMAX RUNG FOR A FINISHING THRILL WILL SATISFY WHERE THEY AREN'T EDUCATED TO REQUIRE SOMETHING NEW.

Cast... Jacqueline Logan too pretty a heroine to run a fire truck or handle a fire hose even though she does it gracefully enough; Antonio Moreno a good looking hero who supplies the other half of the romantic element; Robert McKim once more takes his cigar in hand to do his usual "give me your daughter and we'll cancel the note" act. Walter Hiers doesn't command much attention in weak comic role, but Charles Ogle is fairly amusing, especially when they produce him to a golf suit.

Type of Story... Melodrama with nothing new in it except that heroine is required to play chauffeur to a fire truck. Byron Morgan has patterned his story after a screen plot already used so often that "Flaming Barriers" lays little claim to "an original story," chiefly a copy of several others. You have the rather slack business man, inventor of a modern fire truck and parent of a vivacious model daughter who's bound to folks interested in Dad's production. It's a logical enough start but hokum piles on with villain getting in his nasty business just because he isn't as popular with the girls he wants to be. So when many of the townspeople are trapped in a valley by a forest fire and she risks her life by piloting an airplane to go for help, he sneaks into the back seat, reaches safety and then tries to thwart her rescue work. Naturally it can't be successful with hero right in the firing line. The fire holds a good thrill for those who are not tired of floods, fires and the regular stock thrills.

Box Office Angle... Depends largely upon what your folks require in way of entertainment. "Flaming Barriers" has action and thrill if they don't mind their being a familiar variety.

Exploitation... Those who seek their picture diversion through titles and names will find something to interest them in "Flaming Barriers," a good title for the box office, and the names of Jacqueline Logan, Antonio Moreno and Walter Hiers. A trailer of the forest fire climax should also interest thrill seekers. If you care to go in for more extensive advertising you might arrange to have a girl drive a fire truck through town with announcements to the effect that they'll see Jacqueline Logan drive in "Flaming Barriers."

Direction... George Melford; suitable.

"Jealous Husbands"

Producer: M. C. Levee
Distributor: First National

As a Whole.... CONSIDERABLE HEART INTEREST IN STORY TAKES "JEALOUS HUSBANDS" RATHER PLEASING ENTERTAINMENT; HAS OCCASIONAL SLOW SPOTS THAT WOULD BE REMEDIED BY CUTTING.

....Ben Alexander gives another excellent performance as the kidnapped youngster who turns crook and then reforms; Don Marion also pleasing kid. Jane Novak appealing as the woman who suffers from her husband's refusal to believe in her. Earle Williams acceptable as her husband. Emily Fitzroy, George Siegmann, Bull Montana a first rate villainous band.

Type of Story....Drama. A series of complications that follow the refusal of a husband to believe in his wife. Her effort to help his sister causes him to doubt her and rather than expose the other woman she offers the loss of her husband's love and her child is kidnapped. The greater part of the film is concerned with the adventures of the boy who is taken by gypsies, reared in ignorance of his parentage and used as a tool in their crooked schemes. The boy's eventual rebellion and his final reunion with his parents is followed by the restoration of certain letters which prove the woman's innocence. The human inter-angle is the outstanding good feature of "Jealous Husbands." Ben Alexander is a capable youngster thoroughly able to make his work convincing so that when he appears in the scene and the plot begins to revolve about him, the story becomes absorbing and, for the most part, holds the attention splendidly all the way. There are a few slow spots due to Tourneur's evident delight in long drawn close-ups and occasional overdone detail. An effective suspense in the latter reels furnishes some good thrills.

Box Office Angle....A good picture that will probably make good wherever it is shown. Contains elements that usually make this type of entertainment a strong drawing card.

Exploitation....In case your folks have seen "Boy O' Mine," before this gets to you, be sure to mention Ben Alexander's name and talk about his performance in the previous picture with promises of more good work in this. You might advertise the film attractively by having a gypsy band riding about town offering to tell the fortunes of those who are willing. She, would include certain advice such as "not miss seeing 'Jealous Husbands' at the blank theater. A trailer and bills should be used extensively.

Direction....Maurice Tourneur; injected plenty of good audience appeal.

Cast.... Fred Kennedy Myton

Charles Jones in

"Not a Drum Was Heard"

Fox

As a Whole....GRAND SELF-SACRIFICE THEME THAT PROVIDES STAR WITH GREAT HERO ROLE. WILL GO NICELY WITH HIS FOLLOWING.

Star....He does his best to give his life for his friend but the sacrifice is too great so Jones isn't allowed to die. Star has more acting and less action in his latest.

Cast....William Scott has fairly important role as Jones' buddy and Betty Bouton a pleasing leading lady. Frank Campau a competent and tricky villain.

Type of Story....Drama; Jack and Bud are pals and both in love with the same girl. Jack concedes the victory to Bud and withdraws from the race, returning in time to find the first youngster named after him. Then Bud is framed into stealing some money from a bank, and to cover up the shortage Jack stages a hold-up, is caught and held for the murder of banker Rand. But it was Bud who fired the fatal shot and as a climax to the trial he admits his guilt and then dies, leaving Jack free to marry the girl he loved.

Ben Ames Williams has written much better stories than "Not a Drum Was Heard." This one is a more or less conventional hero tale with the ever popular self-sacrifice angle worked over time. Of course it serves to please a certain number of picture patrons who still favor elegant heroics such as those presented by Jones. He gives and gives until it hurts. But for the seasoned film patron it holds little suspense. A hero is seldom known to die in picture plots so you are quite confident that Jones' sacrifice will not be consummated.

Box Office Angle....Star's admirers and an average audience will probably be satisfied although they may be expecting a little more action than they get in "Not a Drum Was Heard."

Exploitation....Make the star's name conspicuous in your announcements and recall his last two features if you played them: "Cupid's Fireman" and "Big Dan." Tell them he has another hero role in which he prepares to sacrifice his life for his friend. You might make them curious by distributing throw-aways containing a picture of Jones masked, asking them to guess who the star is and running the title without quotes to help keep them guessing. It isn't a particularly pertinent one and doesn't lend itself readily to any special advertising or exploitation so you'll have to stick to the regulation announcements.

Direction....William Wellman; usually satisfactory.

Author....Ben Ames Williams
Scenario.... Doty Hobart
Cameraman.... Joe August
Photography.... All right
Locale....The West
Length.... 4,823 feet

"The Fool's Awakening"

Metro

As a Whole ... GOOD CAST AND DIRECTION MAKE UP CONSIDERABLY FOR STORY THAT ISN'T OVER STRONG IN SITUATIONS ALTHOUGH IT HAS ONE OR TWO REALLY GOOD DRAMATIC MOMENTS.

Cast.... Enid Bennett very pleasing and Harrison Ford good in his part though he's not always permitted to use common sense and in turn apt to make the audience lose patience with him. Mary Alden, Lionel Belmore, Arline Pretty and Alec Francis suitable in minor roles.

Type of Story.... Drama. The keynote of "The Fool's Awakening," or perhaps it is the moral which the story is intended to get over, is that you can seldom build your way to happiness with a lie as a foundation, so when hero John Briggs, under the name of Alexis Triona, writes a book which he purports to contain his actual experiences, he gains fame and wins Olivia Gale as a wife. Eventually the truth is discovered,—that he borrowed the "experiences" from the diary of a Russian soldier. He writes a confession and then an accident happens to him very conveniently, but unfortunately, leads his wife to believe that he has left her for good. Of course there's the inevitable ending with the girl contented with the name of Briggs.

"The Fool's Awakening" is interesting while it lasts but that, at best, is only during the unreeling of the picture. There is no lasting impression, except perhaps the presence of Enid Bennett who is pleasing and whom you don't often get a chance to look at. The plot is a far-fetched one with some illogical twists and but one or two good dramatic bits in its development.

Box Office Angle.... May satisfy the average audience and even though the story will probably not strike them as unusually strong, there is a good cast doing good work and the production is good.

Exploitation.... There isn't very much in connection with the theme or atmosphere which lends itself to exploitation that would be out of the ordinary so you'll have to stick to the regulation publicity. Use stills in the lobby, with pictures of Harrison Ford and Enid Bennett given prominent display. Catchlines might read: "Don't try to win happiness through a lie. It won't last. See 'The Fool's Awakening' and you'll know why." The title is a good one and should attract them if properly advertised.

Direction.... Harold Shaw; made most of what story had to offer.

Author.... William J. Locke
Scenario.... Thomas J. Hopkins
Cameraman.... Allan Siegler
Photography.... Good
Art Director.... J. J. Hughes

"The Shadow of the East"

Fox

As a Whole ..... ANOTHER "SHEIK" PICTURE WITH STORY BY AUTHOR OF THE ORIGINAL; SHOULD BE A GOOD NUMBER FOR WOMEN PATRONS.—THEY'LL "LOVE" THE LOVE SCENES.

Cast.... Very good, with Mildred Harris, Frank Mayo and Norman Kerry well suited to principal roles. Kerry isn't given very much opportunity for "sheiking" and Evelyn Brent might have been given more prominence as Mayo's native wife.

Type of Story.... Drama highly flavored with romance. E. M. Hull, author of "The Sheik," which placed Rudolph Valentino as first and foremost screen lover, comes forth with another similar story in "The Shadow of the East." The latest sheik story, however, is not likely to create any of the furore of the former. It makes a suitable screen vehicle and will, without doubt, find a strong following among women patrons. They're going to get some real thrills out of the love scenes between Mildred Harris and Frank Mayo. Possibly they'll be disappointed that the tent sequence in which Norman Kerry threatens to live up to his native tradition and overpower the heroine when she comes to his desert home, is cut short. There is the usual desert atmosphere and the production is quite satisfactory. The theme concerns the love of an Englishman for an English girl but of his inability to forget the native wife who died for love of him. How the shadow of the East hangs over him but eventually ceases with the death of a native who swore to hold the Englishman true to his dead wife, follows some rather exciting desert fighting.

Box Office Angle.... You know best what you can do with a sheik picture. "The Shadow of the East" is a good entertainment and will undoubtedly please many unless you happen to know that they have lost their taste for sheiks.

Exploitation.... Dress your lobby to represent the entrance to a tent, with the customary colored drapings. Have your attendants in costume and employ any other means of decorative schemes which may be appropriate. A street stunt, if possible, would consist of a man in sheik's garb parading about on a camel with signs reading: "See 'The Shadow of the East' at the blank theater, another story by the author of 'The Sheik.'" Use the names of Frank Mayo, Mildred Harris and Norman Kerry in all your announcements. A trailer of one of the love scenes will bring your women patrons back.

Direction.... George Archainbaud; handled story adequately.

Short Subjects

"Jean of Heceta Head"—Bruce Educational
Pathetic But Finely Handled
Type of production . . . 1 reel wilderness tale

Aside from the beautiful scenic shots of cliffs and sea, the pathetic story and the treatment, make this number of Robert Bruce's "Wilderness Tales" stand out as a thing of arresting sadness. The story deals with a young girl's sacrifice of her one chance of happiness—marriage to a coast guard who has been promised the post of keeper of the lighthouse at Heceta Head provided he marries. The girl cannot give up the idea of caring for her elderly family—very well chosen as to types—and so is forced to see her sweetheart happily married to another girl. Will undoubtedly strike a "different" note wherever shown.

"Big Business"—Our Gang—Pathe
Another Peach of a Comedy
Type of production . . . 2 reel kid comedy

Fast and furious is the fun in this Our Gang Comedy. The kids open a barber shop and their thirst for customers to shave knows no bounds. Everything from little boys' heads to Pomeranian dogs and roosters feathers get "shaved," and we mean this literally. Boys with luxurious heads of hair come out of the shop as smooth as billiard balls. Mickey Daniels is seen as the curly locked son of an ardent mother who dresses him in Little Lord Fauntleroy suits and long curls—which he hates as much as his father does. But alas for the curls and hurrah for Mickey. He is lured into the barber shop and emerges a regular boy. This is undoubtedly one of the most uproariously amusing numbers of this thoroughly amusing series.

Gallery of Living Portraits
Paramount

Ernest Torrence in Character
Type of production . . . 1 reel character sketch.

A thoroughly novel and especially interesting short subject, edited by Hugo Riesenfeld, and one of a series of character studies of well known screen players, is that showing Ernest Torrence in short bits from various pictures in which he has appeared. It is interesting to observe the distinction which Torrence gives his different characterizations. Those offered are "Singed Wings," "Ruggles of Red Gap," "The Covered Wagon," "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine."

"The Man Who Would Not Die"—Indian Frontier Series—Pathe
Interesting; Different

Type of production . . . 2 reel drama
This is the first of a series of six melodramas that Pathe is releasing under the main title of Indian Frontier Series, each of which deals with an actual experience of an Indian chief now living on government reserervations and authenticated by his signature. They should provide a different note for audiences who desire a change in their type of short reel entertainment and could be used where an entire short reel program is desired. In addition to the Indian actors, this number has a cast including Hedda Nova, Ed Brady, David Dunbar and Al Halleck. The story is simple—concerning an Indian warrior who pursuing his sweetheart who has been lured from her people by a white man, is shot several times but refuses to die. Paul Hurst's direction is, on the whole, good.

"Down in Jungle Town"—Universal
Mildly Amusing Comedy

Type of production . . . 1 reel comedy
Except for the fact that there are several animals who show some intelligence and do what they're told, there isn't much to this one reeler that stars Joe Martin, the monkey but the kiddies in your audiences will no doubt find it amusing. A bear that eats everything in sight is one of the attractions, as is a trained elephant and a lion whose untimely appearance sends a lot of folks into a lake for safety. The direction is good, but as a whole its only mildly amusing.

"Short Story Teller"—Ivan Abramson

New Idea, But Not Well Handled
Type of production . . . 1 reel novelty
This is the first of a new series of one reelers directed and produced by Ivan Abramson and released one a week, under the same main title. The idea in back of the reel is new. Instead of simply having anecdotes and jokes in title form as in the Literary Digest 'Fun from the Press' reel, the action is picturized in addition to the titles. But here the idea has not been made the most of because of poor casting, and poorly selected material. Nevertheless the series may go in some houses but not where the audiences are of the critical type.

"The Cowboy Sheik"—Will Rogers Pathe

Will Rogers, That's Enough
Type of production . . . 2 reel comedy
While not quite as uproarious as some of Roger's previous releases, "The Cowboy Sheik" should afford genuine amusement and plenty of laughs for almost any audience. Will is seen as a bashful cowpuncher—a role he can handle to perfection. Your folks will surely enjoy seeing him struggling into his mail-order suit and trying to look like the picture in the catalogue. Just a simple idea that has been done time and time again, but it's the way he does it. All the boys on the ranch are in love with the school teacher and are anxious to make a hit with her at the dance. Will suffers terribly from bashfulness and new shoes, but comes out strong at the finish. Good stuff.

"Hats Off"—Universal
Average Western

Type of production . . . 2 reel western
"Hats Off," starring Pete Morrison, succeeds in being only an average western despite all the efforts of the cast and director to make it otherwise. There is a good deal of persiflage at the opening at the expense of Morrison who appears all slicked up in city clothes in a western town where the girls dress in riding skirt and flannel shirts. Pete decides to marry her, whether or no, and thereafter it is mostly no, until he rounds up the villain who is taking advantage of the girl's brother, and then she finally does consent. It's all a trifle mixed-up, but there is some good riding at the finish.

"School Pals"—Fox
Antics of Apes Amusing

Type of production . . . 2 reel comedy
The really human antics of the trained Apes in "School Pals" are far more interesting than the comedy tricks they put over. The offering shows off the animals to wonderful advantage and for anyone that likes to marvel at the way they can be trained, there is plenty to marvel at in "School Pals." There are three apes who go through all kinds of stunts, from playing mischievous school kids to riding bicycles and doing most anything that a human being can do. The comedy business is rather slight but the tricks of the apes are sufficient to make the picture a first rate novelty number for any program.

"About Face"—Jack White
Educational

Entertaining Juvenile
Type of production . . . 2 reel kid comedy
With a juvenile cast headed by Johnny Fox, Jr., "About Face" proves to be very enjoyable comedy dealing with the troubles of a would-be boy scout, in camp and out of it. Many of the laughs are brought about by dealing with the tricks the boys play on a cross old gentleman—not very gentle tricks either, but human enough to amuse, through all of which Johnny Fox's freckled face beams and Johnny's dog romps as though he liked it. Exploitation by means of tie-ups with local boy scout organizations should be easy. Arvid Gillstrom directed. Good, wholesome entertainment.

IN HIS DARKER SELF

BASED ON THE ORIGINAL STORY, "MAMMY'S BOY," BY ARTHUR CAESAR HIS FIRST SUPER FEATURE COMEDY FOR HODKINSON RELEASE

MONARCH OF MIRTH IN A PICTURE MINGLING HUMOR AND HEART INTEREST

4 Pictures Reviewed In 15 Cities

"Anna Christie"—First Nat'l Olympia, Boston

SCRIPT—Of course it is possible to estimate the effect. "Anna Christie" probably will not be such a box-office success as "Flaming Youth" or "Black Ox" but its reception does seem to indicate a director who does his work honestly and on intelligent support.

"The Bad Man"—1st Nat'l Capitol, St. Louis

BE-DEMOCRAT—"The Bad Man" is a happy combination of melodramatic and comedy that makes for excellent entertainment.

T-DISPATCH—"The Bad Man" is a good picture for the moronic mind or grownups, mentally and physically.

picture show, nevertheless, "The Bad Man" is a good one, particularly for the benefit of its directorship. The picture has been made disgustingly melodramatic. Humor saves the situation.

R—it would be true but unjust to say that "The Bad Man" on the screen is what it was on the stage. * * * * * Well, there is plenty of exciting action and it will please * * * * * It certainly is the best thing to see and hear before the footlights.

ES—* * * pure fun. It is amusing in any way.

"Black Oxen"—First Nat'l Eastman, Rochester

OCROAT AND CHRONICLE—Much of its aesthetic appeal to the audience is due to the direction of Frank Lloyd who directed it. The picture is at times extraordinarily beautiful. * * * * * the cast exceptionally well suited.

ALD—Corinne Griffith seems completely inadequate to meet the demand of the Zittany * * * well worth seeing for the light of what it might be.

RNAL—A tremendously interesting picture, one with an engrossing story in which the suspense is kept up to the very end.

ES UNION—A distinct perversion of the novel, it gives a fairly interesting picture to which little exception can be taken.

State, Los Angeles

(Week Ending January 20)

AMINER—It's an intriguing theme. Mrs. Atherton proposed, and Lloyd's deft skill has translated it to the screen with subtle suggestion—and with beauty of sets and costumes.

LY NEWS—Adhering closely to the original, Lloyd has made but slight changes to the mind of this reviewer improves the unfolding of an interesting tale.

PRESS—In fact, "Black Oxen," in its original form, is a vital, gripping tale, direct and tersely told. In every frame of footage there is plainly evidenced a frugal economy in effort, but not of story—the plot—carries the interest along and is not without humor at times. * * * * * But I think it is rather a cold picture. Nowhere does it grip you. * * * * * The story is admirably transferred, but its drawbacks as screen material are not its freshness of theme, with its scenes skilfully interpreted; and the picture is very good, indeed.

ORD—"Black Oxen" is a fascinating picture. "Story" is advisable, for the story is the whole picture.

"Broadway Gold"—Truett Lyric, Cincinnati

ST—A flood of "Broadway" pictures is being dumped upon us. * * * * * The first of the new assortment is "Broadway Gold." * * * * *

"The Canyon"—F. P.-L. Karlon, Philadelphia

LETIN—Story of love and romance which is added the horrors of the World

NORTH AMERICAN—There are indeed some rare and beautiful camera studies. Lois Wilson is utterly wasted in the role of the social butterfly.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—Contains all the familiar ingredients of a Zane Grey story.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—Cast more than adequate * * * backgrounds advertising the wonders of Arizona are quite wonderful.

RECORD—So human, so simple, so genuine and is acted so splendidly that life is better for its exhibition.

"The Courtship of Myles Standish" Asso. Exhib. Pershing, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—Based on the greatest romance of American literature, the story of a heroic but gentle lover, "The Courtship of Myles Standish" is a picture of thrills and tender sentiment.

POST-DISPATCH—Longfellow is dead. Too bad! If he had lived longer he might have obtained a lot of pointers from Charlie Ray * * * Here are sea scenes, some good and some bad. * * * * *

The story makes Alden an unbeliever who is suddenly converted when he learns that Priscilla loves him. Many of the scenes after the landing are so artificial and manifestly built up that they lose much of their effectiveness.

STAR—It disappoints in so many respects that it is difficult to array the imperfections in order of importance.

TIMES—If fault there is, it is in beginning the love tale too far back. The romance of the courtship is not introduced until late in the story.

But it is an excellent presentation, sincere, authoritative and interesting from beginning to end.

"The Eagle's Feather"—Metro Colonial, Indianapolis

NEWS—Film is excellent not only from the point of view of plot but from the points of view of character development. One finds not only food for thought but excitement as well.

"The Eternal City"—First Nat'l State, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—Was made in Rome and has little of the greatness of its urban namesake but the film is pretty good entertainment.

Strand, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—We think it is the most beautiful thing pictorially that we have ever seen * * * excellent acting.

"Flaming Youth"—First Nat'l Piccadilly, Rochester

DEMOCRAT—Crowds attended every performance yesterday * * * production is another excuse for depicting numerous scenes wherein jazz and its various accompaniments are vividly portrayed.

HERALD—Without a doubt carries off the screen honors for the week. * * * For the first time the writer has seen a picture with a decided atmosphere and screen actors really living in their parts.

POST EXPRESS—Excellent entertainment * * * Colleen Moore the embodiment of youth with all its witchery, its joyousness * * * no question that this young person "has arrived."

TIMES-UNION—No one could fail to enjoy and be fascinated by Colleen Moore's impersonation of the flapper heroine * * * not a very wholesome picture.

"The Governor's Lady"—Fox Hippodrome, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—Could have been told much better in five reels than eight—a fine example of what careless padding will do to a photoplay * * * only spasmodically a good picture.

Monroe, Chicago

AMERICAN—The direction and work of the various members of the cast are responsible for awakening your interest in a story built along familiar lines.

DAILY NEWS—Not content with assigning the capable Mr. Millarde to direct "The Governor's Lady," Mr. Fox selected an unusual cast.

HERALD-EXAMINER—From practically every angle, "The Governor's Lady," is one of the best cinemas I have seen for quite a while.

TRIBUNE—If "The Governor's Lady" doesn't keep the ticket seller at the Monroe theater busy this week, I miss my guess. It seems to me that everybody who sees it ought to realize the sincerity of the acting of all the characters and, having been impressed, hasten to spread the news that there's a good movie on Monroe Street.

"The Heritage of the Desert" F. P.-L. Missouri, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—There is a sterling cast of artists, including Ernest Torrence, Bebe Daniels and Lloyd Hughes. The picture is packed with genuine drama, historical facts, romance and a lot of action and thrills.

POST-DISPATCH—* * * is superior in every respect to its two predecessors, "To the Last Man" and "The Call of the Canyon."

STAR—It is a bully good fight, * * * This is the third or fourth Zane Grey novel to be done into a movie under the personal supervision of the author. All these westerns have been good, and this one is especially so.

TIMES—A simple story * * * But it is majestic in moments, sweeping in its compass, * * * *

Palace, Washington

STAR—Zane Grey told a good story but it is not pictured so well * * * nothing more than an ordinary old-time western outfit.

"His Children's Children"—F. P.-L. Capitol, Montreal

GAZETTE—Unusually effective film drama * * * sedulous care taken to preserve the tone and atmosphere of the original story in the process of transferring it to the screen.

STAR—The modern craze for sensation * * * forms the basis of this story and * * * provides an entertaining picture for all sections of society.

Stanley, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—Four able actors rescue this photoplay. Dorothy MacKail, George Fawcett, Hale Hamilton and Mary Eaton.

INQUIRER—Will prove just as popular on the screen as it did in book form. The story has been left unchanged.

NORTH AMERICAN—Bebe Daniels as the heroine is both attractive and convincing. George Fawcett contributes another of his excellent character portraits.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—There are big scenes, strong moments and "His Children's Children" contains plenty of food for thought.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—There are many moments of real dramatic force in the study of three family generations * * * the director has tried his best to spoil the story by injecting a heap of superfluous detail.

RECORD—Picture won many praises from those who saw it.

"Hoodman Blind"—Fox Apollo, Indianapolis

NEWS—The action is so swift and the excitement so vivid that one forgets the details in his interest as to what is going to happen next * * * unusually entertaining.

STAR—Tosses plausibility to the winds without losing strength * * * holds interest and sustains suspense. * * * Employs Mr. Fox's pet formula for melodrama and manages to provide considerable excitement and thrills.

Liberty, St. Louis

STAR—The story is of the old-fashioned type in which the plot depends rather too much on the incredible. * * * The storm, shipwreck and rescue scenes really are exciting. The piece is not badly done anywhere, and is on the whole, entertaining.

TIMES—* * * a story of the old-fashioned cut and dried variety. * * * The story is sensational, there is plenty of action and thrills, and also touch of romance.

"The Humming Bird"—F. P.-L. Columbia, Washington

STAR—Gives Swanson a more virile and sincere part than any in which she has heretofore appeared. * * * enlivened by war pictures.

Mc Vicker's, Chicago

DAILY JOURNAL—Gloria Swanson in, and as, "The Humming Bird," is sure to supply entertainment not to be left under any circumstances. * * * *

That thing they call "atmosphere" is surprisingly commendable in this picture. There is something very genuine about the Paris scenes and people.

POST—You think we talk only of Gloria. Well, she so dominates this picture that even a very good supporting cast receives but slight attention.

TRIBUNE—It's not my idea of an especially good photo play—yet—it most decidedly has its moments. * * * *

It will go well though, for its middle name is action. Miss Swanson is supported by a cast that knows how and was directed by a man who did his best.

Capital, Cincinnati

POST—Gloria Swanson's best picture in a long time is "The Humming Bird," * * * *

To Sidney Olcott, who directed, is due a vote of thanks. He has turned out a fine photoplay.

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame" Universal Brandeis, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—A masterpiece * * * Lon Chaney, master of sinister make-up, dominates the production * * * Worsley, director, has done exceedingly well with the entire production.

"Judgment of the Storm"—F. B. O. Colonial, Detroit

NEWS—And it is not a bad picture, either. It is a very good one, displaying an original theme and most of the elements that make a picture appealing.

"A Lady of Quality"—Universal Imperial, San Francisco

(Week ending Jan. 26)

BULLETIN—* * * has been made into an entertaining screen attraction * * * As it tells a simple but powerful love story, tense with drama, "A Lady of Quality" has the additional charm of more or less historical quality * * * *

CHRONICLE—The picture is a finished product of the studios, one of the best of the period films * * * The story moves swiftly, is not padded with unnecessary atmosphere, is very lovely in outdoor scenes, * * * *

DAILY NEWS—* * * the story, albeit an historical one in 12 reels, is entertaining and more than usually well directed.

EXAMINER—* * * tells a simple but powerful story, tense with drama. * * * *

"The Marriage Circle"—Warners Rialto, Los Angeles

Additional criticisms on "The Marriage Circle" from Los Angeles newspapers follow:

HERALD—* * * one of those stand-outable receptions made brilliant by the presence of so many celebrities, is more than the comedy it purports to be. It is rare comedy and, judged from the artistic side, starts where most contemporaries and rivals begin. * * * You will go a long way before another equaling "The Marriage Circle" in sheer delight meets your gaze.

EXPRESS—True, it is typically continental in tone. Americans, save those who have acquired the cosmopolitan attitude through sojourning abroad, would not act in the manner these folk did. Yet the impulses were true to elemental, universal formulae. * * *

Sharing honors with the director were Paul Bern, the scenarist, and Charles Van Enger, the cameraman. The settings were simple, rich and most appropriate, and an analysis of the technique of the pictorial narration would disclose numerous delicious touches mostly emitting a slyly satirical humor that caught the audience frequently in its sweep last evening.

RECORD—Under Lubitsch's cunning hands a frothy Viennese farce of marital infidelity is shaped into a keen, terrifyingly true exposition of why many marriages go wrong. Its genius lies in detail and incident, in the picturing of which the director concentrates with a pleasant disregard of movie customs in the routing of long, medium shots and close-ups.

"Name the Man"—Gold-Cosmop. Century, Baltimore

SUN—Interest in the drama is well-sustained * * * Mae Busch gives an appealing characterization.

Broadway Strand, Detroit

NEWS—Again goes to prove that foreign directors when given an American cast and American cooperation in production can give the pick of the home talent a hard race for top honors.

TIMES—Tells a powerful dramatic story replete with action * * * Conrad Nagel's acting is the shining spot in this production.

California, Los Angeles

(Week Ending January 20)

EXAMINER—He has put drama psychology and genuine histrionism into the film. * * * All that Caine told with pages of language is brought out in tense remarkable action, * * *

EXPRESS—* * * a most unique and decidedly interesting combination of nationalities artistically. * * *

Directorially the Seastrom gift is best displayed, humanly speaking, in the gripping conflict between the brutal Collister and his downtrodden wife.

RECORD—The picture is forceful; it rushes along from one dramatic moment to another breathlessly and absorbingly. Its only really glaring error is the over-use of symbolism, one or two strong examples of which thereby lose their effectiveness.

TIMES—I am right when I say that "Name the Man" is gloomy. In fact, at times, it is rather wantonly depressing, but at the same time it is so exquisite in the quality of its photography, so deft and simple in the character of its treatment, and so generally fine in respect to the acting—that is, for the most part—that you can even forget the fact that it is based on a dull, heavy and soggy Hall Caine story.

"North of Hudson Bay"—Fox Fox, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—Perhaps the best photoplay of Tom Mix's career.

INQUIRER—Tom Mix provides a steady succession of hair-raising thrills.

NORTH AMERICAN—One of those thrilling, blood-stirring tales of the great Canadian northwoods * * * why allow Tom Mix who really is a specialist in his own particular field to buy his own personality and ability in something that does not suit him in any way.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The snow scenes are very effective and the long shots of the canoe gliding down the fast flowing stream are well-worth seeing.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—Thrill hundreds will find their goal with Tom Mix furnishing 'em man-size aplenty in his newest feature.

RECORD—Mix's bare-handed fight with a hungry wolf pack and the wild ride through turbulent rapids and a whirlpool leave nothing to be desired in the way of emotional stimulation.

"Painted People"—First Nat'l Rialto, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—Full of fun, romance and adventure * * * Colleen Moore and Ben Lyon do excellent work * * * Clarence Badger does well with the direction.

"Pied Piper Malone"—Madison, Detroit

FREE PRESS—Thomas Meighan is again the small town hero * * * may not be packed full of the so-called thrills * * * but it has heart interest in plenty.

NEWS—Very well acted and has many charming children in it. Meighan creates a true portrait.

TIMES—Here's a great picture for children * * * any picture in which Tom Meighan appears is entertaining.

"Restless Wives"—Burr—S. R. Cameo, San Francisco

(Week ending Jan. 26)

BULLETIN—* * * it is real and true to life. In "Restless Wives," life today is mirrored in all its actualities. The title gives one an idea of the theme. It is a very frank, well-handled photo-dramatization of a phase of the divorce problem.

CHRONICLE—There is a melodramatic finish to the picture * * *

DAILY NEWS—The story is conventional and trite enough, but interest is sustained, * * *

"Ruggles of Red Gap"—F. P.-L. New Baltimore

AMERICAN—There are those of us who think that Ruggles is quite good enough to become a classic * * * more than one of the celebrated James Cruze touches are to be seen from time to time * * * delightful entertainment.

"Richard the Lion Hearted"—Allied Artists Regent, Rochester

DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE—Many beautiful settings * * * an excellent supporting cast including that recent precious "find" of filmdom, Margaret De La Motte.

HERALD—This production * * * is in reality a burlesque. One wonders if it really is a serious work or if it was intended to poke fun.

JOURNAL—What impresses one in a picture of this kind is the infinite pains to which someone has been to achieve accuracy of detail * * * well-worth seeing.

TIMES-UNION—A sequel to "Robin Hood" * * * will furnish good entertainment though it never becomes wildly exciting.

"Six Cylinder Love"—Fox Ohio, Indianapolis

NEWS—Sure-fire hit. * * * As amusing as the stage play * * * Truex's gift for pantomime finds ample opportunities.

STAR—Fox has made a very diverting film. * * * Elmer Clifton has done an uncommonly good job.

"The Song of Love"—1st Nat'l Rivoli, Baltimore

NEWS—Norma Talmadge the star * * * Joseph Schildkraut has the leading male role.

SUN—After seeing Norma as an Arabian dancing girl we feel that we know her lots better than we ever did before * * * versatility thy name is Talmadge.

Allen, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—Norma arrives several seasons late with a sheik drama. * * * Were it not for the fact I consider Norma has prostituted her fine dramatic ability I would laugh myself. I am sick about it anyhow.

PRESS—Never for a moment could we imagine that Norma Talmadge was an Algerian Arab.

TIMES—Story is the conventional one of a Mohammedan plot against a French ruler. * * * well directed and the emotional acting is interesting. It is not the best role Norma Talmadge has played.

State, Minneapolis

TRIBUNE—Perhaps the most impressive bit as Miss Talmadge's portrayal of the native dance * * * Edmund Carewe gives a masterful portrayal of the chieftain.

Warfield, San Francisco

(Week ending Jan. 26)

BULLETIN—It is not her best picture, but there are many spectacular scenes with a highly dramatic climax which appeal to those who like the spectacular melodrama.

CHRONICLE—The glorious Miss Talmadge, however, makes up for the confusion of plot, although the role she plays is a passive one, * * *

DAILY NEWS—It is Norma Talmadge's staunch devotees who will best like "The Song of Love," * * * About the most made of it is a conventional sheiky romance as Oriental as the average tearoom.

EXAMINER—Norma Talmadge more nearly approaches her superb work of "Smilin' Through" in "The Song of Love" than in any other of her recent photoplays.

"Thundergate"—1st Nat'l Strand, Cincinnati

POST—Romance finds a pretty setting in "Thundergate," the interesting melodrama. * * *

"Tiger Rose"—Warners' Metropolitan, Los Angeles

(Week Ending January 26)

EXAMINER—Comparison of Miss Ulric in the stage version and in her screen role are inevitable. Here arises the disappointment of the picture. For once the screen has lost through lacking words, * * *

Photography and settings are of the highest order. It is doubtful if the supporting roles could be better fitted * * *

DAILY NEWS—Although "Tiger Rose" is not unusual as far as story and plot go, it is different from the conformity of the average * * *

"Tiger Rose" is recommended as excellent entertainment.

EXPRESS—* * * an uncommonly entertaining film is being shown. The picture is notable in many ways, chief of which is that it is a tale of the overworked north-west police that is not ludicrously melodramatic and overdrawn.

TIMES—is notable for only one thing; it introduces Lenore Ulric to the screen. And while Miss Ulric is a charming and gay little heroine, she gives us nothing that several other plays already established on the screen cannot.

"Twenty-One"—First Nat'l Circle, Indianapolis

NEWS—Good picture with a fine cast * * * fans it is to be expected will enjoy every moment of it not only because Barthelmess is invariably interesting but because the story is light, smooth running and full of fun as well as drama.

STAR—There is more comedy in this picture than in Barthelmess' usual productions * * * seven entertaining reels.

Grand Central—West End Lyric, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—It is a corking tale, punctuated with flaming bits of romance, intense dramatic action and thrills.

POST-DISPATCH—* * * a rather lightly woven story * * * The story alternates thrilliness with stillness.

STAR—* * * demonstrates that Richard Barthelmess is the leading juvenile in motion pictures today. * * * "Twenty-one" does not offer possibilities that were offered in "Tol'able David," for example. It has a plot that is not new, but it is handled in an original manner and makes a first-class picture, thanks to good direction and the work of the star.

TIMES—The plot is well worked out except towards the close, where the conclusion, although desirable, is clumsily brought about.

"The Wanters"—First Nat'l Metropolitan, Washington

STAR—Pretty Marie Prevost pouts and looks worried throughout the picture.

"Wild Bill Hickock"—F. P.-L. Metropolitan Baltimore

AMERICAN—All Hart and a yard wide * * * Hart enthusiasts adored it. They ate it alive as the fellows say. They wanted gun play and they got it.

NEWS—Story of riotous days of the west following Civil War.

SUN—Hart has staged a lively comeback * * * will bring cheer to the hearts of Mr. Hart's fans.

"Woman to Woman"—Selznick Capitol, Detroit

FREE PRESS—Produced in lavish style. There are scenes of gay parties and others showing the dancer (Betty Compson) in her most revealing costumes cavorting on the screen. * * * Story is an impossible misty * * * though handicapped by the trite situations have been handled very sincerely much tender sentiment is introduced. Compson's best performance since "The Cle Man."

TIMES—We have never seen Betty Compson in a more suitable role. * * *

"You Can't Get Away With It"—Fox Washington, Detroit

FREE PRESS—As hardened as you have become from seeing so many pictures you will hardly be able to suppress your emotions while watching this picture and it is so pathetic, so human.

NEWS—Story interestingly unfolded in an attractive setting. Percy Marmont is a fine actor compared with his emotional Mark in "If Winter Comes."

TIMES—Percy Marmont does much to put the winning touch to the film.

June Mathis Anxious To Get Started On "Ben Hur"—Discusses General Production Problems

After long delay at the Culver City Goldwyn studios engaged in cutting and titling von Stroheim's "Greed," June Mathis has reached New York en route to Italy to engage in the production of "Ben Hur." Miss Mathis sails on the Paris, Wednesday and anticipates that actual production will start early in March.

Those familiar with Miss Mathis know her tremendous enthusiasm for the making of this production which it is frankly admitted is expected by Goldwyn to be their biggest production for the season of 1924-25. She has had a most active part in the selection of the principals and intends to work in close harmony with Charles Brabin, the director of the production, when she reaches Italy. During her few days here she will be in constant touch with A. L. Erlanger the producer of the stage version and Edward J. Bowes of Goldwyn who is devoting a great part of his time to this production.

While no one knows definitely

Two Knotty Problems

Hays' Emissary May Take Up Home
Production in Australia And Censorship There

Bernon T. Woodle, an assistant in the Hays organization is en route to Australia on what his office describes as a mission of importance to the industry. No other details were made public.

Inquiries made on Saturday reveal that there are two problems of immediate importance pending in Australia. One member of Parliament has made several speeches against the importation of American-made pictures, asking why Australia should not turn the £4,000,000 paid annually to American producers to home production. The move has been more or less widely discussed and has the backing of a group of former soldiers, said to be anti-American in sentiment.

The other problem concerns censorship, and is growing more serious. There are at present restrictive measures in the Commonwealth, but the Australian authorities have a particular aversion to situations that treat marriage lightly and it is along

Halt In Hearing

Neither Date Nor Place Selected For Resumption Of Government Investigation Into Famous

With the completion of the testimony brought forth by various witnesses as part of Famous Players' defense in Jacksonville, New Orleans and Dallas, the Government investigation into Famous and other respondents has temporarily come to a halt.

No decision has been made regarding the next seat of the hearing. Famous and the other respondents are now engaged in putting in their defense and for that reason the decision is believed to rest with them. Before the Jacksonville season it was stated that Atlanta and New York would again be visited before the actual gathering of evidence had been completed.

Lester Scott to Produce

Lester Scott, former sales manager for Charles C. Burr, will produce a series of pictures on the coast. The first will be a western. Ernest Haller, Tom Meighan's former cameraman left yesterday for Hollywood to shoot the picture.

Rowland Returns

Richard A. Rowland arrived in New York from Los Angeles on Saturday, but did not appear at his office.

Chaney Leaves

Lon Chaney left for the coast yesterday, following a brief vacation here.

Taylor Here

John H. Taylor of London, is in town.

Unison On Coast

Charles Christie Says Producers Are Working Together As Result of Hays' Visit There

Charles H. Christie is at the Biltmore on his regular winter business trip. He said on Saturday that, since Will H. Hays visited the coast, the important producing companies have evidenced a real co-operative spirit. He expressed the opinion that considerably more good is going to be accomplished there with the new M. P. Prod. Ass'n than through any previous body of that kind.

Christie has several deals under way to engage his attention while here. One provides for the production of two features for Hodkinson release. There has been no contract signed however.

when the picture will be completed Miss Mathis' ambition is to have it ready for release on Christmas Day, 1924.

Regarding production plans generally, Miss Mathis said on Saturday that producers on the coast, through their new organization and with a better understanding having developed are in a position to work along much better lines than heretofore, that economies in production should naturally result from this and that there seems to be a general belief that production generally should not run into the extensive costs of the past year.

"The producers are working on so many different lines to bring this economy about," she said, "that it is difficult to say just in which direction this economy will appear most significantly."

Operates His Belief in Production Closer to the Executive Offices

A. Rowland of First National, has just returned from the coast, said yesterday that he was more than ever convinced of the need of productions being made in the "close to the executive offices, close to the theaters and the story book—which is New York."

It is quite all right for individual producers like Ince and Joe Schenck, to make a few pictures a year, to work on the Coast. But the producer who has headquarters in New York, it is all wrong. He cannot make your product 3,500 miles away from the home office that degree of efficiency and economy necessary to success, as

Shoot 'Em In

Pneumonia, Nevada

Dear Sir, Film Daily:

Maybe you will be glad to hear that I am going to take a foreign trip abroad. Well, I am. Mrs. Deneker and I leave on the Tuscania, February 16, for a trip over the Mediterranean, or rather a trip abroad, and I was wondering if you wanted a few letters from me on the foreign situation.

We will visit all the important places you have read about—if you read—and know about if you studied history; and I am sure they have picture temples in these towns and places.

I lost so much money lately playing foreign pictures that I closed my theaters for eight weeks so that I could make up my losses and thought I'd get even by going abroad and writing the truth about the films over there so my brother exhibitors won't get stuck next season.

Let me know how many letters you want and if I can roast foreign films?

Sincerely yours,

CLEM DENEKER,

Manager, Deneker Circuit of High Class Picture Theaters, Inc.

Four For Delivery

And Then Ince Completes First National Contract—Three Completed Now

Colvin Brown, general Eastern representative for Thomas H. Ince, returned from the coast on Sunday, following a five weeks' stay in Hollywood where he discussed future plans with Ince.

Ince has four more pictures to deliver under his present agreement with Associated First National. Three of them are in various stages of production: "Galloping Fish," "Love Island" (formerly titled "Against The Rules") and "Those Who Dance." The fourth subject is undetermined. It may be "The Last Frontier," the Western which Ince intends making on a large scale. That is problematical, however in view of the fact that the continuity has not yet been written.

The Edison Luncheon

There are indications that the luncheon to be tendered by important film folk to Thomas E. Edison on Feb. 15, at the Ritz-Carlton, in honor of his birthday, will be a notable affair. It is hoped to have Will H. Hays serve as toastmaster, and the speakers, while few in number, will be important. Charles M. Schwab expects to be on hand, as well as Arthur Brisbane. It is expected that many of the pioneers of the industry will be on hand as well as those who acted (?) in the first pictures made. Several important stars now in the East are expected to be present, and the affair promises to be unusually interesting.

Planned By Members—May Be All-Embracing for Industry—Bond Issue Discussed

The T. O. C. C. is considering the erection of its own clubhouse in the film district. A committee has been appointed to look into the question of sites and building costs.

One of the matters that has to be decided concerns the scope of the clubhouse. An impression exists that it should include the entire New York industry, not only the members of the T. O. C. C., but the arbitration board, the F. I. L. M. Club and a general restaurant for producers, exchange-men, visitors and exhibitors. The proposition will be a costly one, especially so in view of the fact that the building is to be located in the Times Square district. Property values are extremely high and actual construction as well.

A bond issue will probably be floated to finance the project. Members are expected to take up most of the issue but it is quite likely that a block of bonds will be made available to the general public.

Services For Wilson

M. P. T. O. Arranging for the Rialto—American Legion to Co-operate Throughout State

Billy Brandt is endeavoring to arrange with Hugo Riesenfeld to hold memorial services in honor of former President Wilson at the Rialto the morning of the funeral. The plan is similar to that arranged when President Harding died in August.

Throughout the state, the American Legion will co-operate with members of the state exhibitor unit and use the theaters for services. It is not expected that the Hays office will act further in the matter. Hays issued a general statement to the newspapers, lauding Wilson.

Sydney S. Cohen expects several of his national directors in town and will then hold a meeting to decide on fitting measures for observance by members of the M. P. T. O. A.

Special News Reels Issued

International News has prepared an interesting reel devoted to the activities of Woodrow Wilson from his first inauguration in 1913 to a scene taken shortly before his death. It is called "A Film Memorial of Woodrow Wilson" and is released as International News No. 13.

Pathe is also releasing a Wilson Memorial reel, which was shown at Loew's New York at 11:55 A. M. on Sunday and shortly thereafter at Broadway houses.

1.65 TOP

By DANNY

Carl Laemmle introduced an innovation. And suggested that exhibitors would "The Hunchback" at $1.65. Thus giving the money to the exhibitor instead of letting it play in the legitimate house. Like the other big houses were doing. We weren't optimistic about the idea. And I. All of which proved Laemmle had a lot more insight than yours truly. Because the idea is working out splendidly.

Did you notice the long list of important theaters that are scheduled to run "The Hunchback" this month—and those that ran it in January—at "advanced prices"? Well, it's interesting.

All of which proves that her precedent has been established. Which, incidentally, is another step forward.

Whether these houses are all getting the $1.65 top which was the idea with Universal is important. They are getting higher prices than usual. And this has a cold and hard the idea of allowing this big money-getter. Exhibitors have complained against the show idea for a long time. There is much to be said in their favor. This innovation by Universal spread through the industry. It deserves a lot of consideration. Other distributors and producers. This may be the way out. It will allow a producer to put a money in a picture, and yet let the exhibitor "clean up" on it. It is fresh and new.

For all the doubts we had in this idea was developed. Sorry. Sincerely so. Hoping for an ostrich isn't the cards. And anyone who isn't convinced of the value of the idea had better read that long list of names, big and little, in large and small. From the Stillman in Cleveland to the Strand in Porchester, N. J. Ever hear of it—or even own it? Which only proves that a worth while idea will come somewhere.

Boston Evening Transcript: "In 'The Yankee Consul' we have humorous plot and capable acting. Douglas MacLean is eminently satisfactory." Associated Exhibitors.—Advt.

Lincoln Two-Reeler

Made by Lee DeForest With Voice Synchronization—Gettysburg Address The Highlight

Dr. Lee DeForest, prominent scientist who has perfected what he terms the "Phonofilm," for synchronization of voice and action on the screen has made a two reeler which he calls "Abraham Lincoln." It was directed by J. Searle Dawley.

The picture will be shown at the Rivoli next week as part of the program. There will be no music played in connection with it, but through the course of the picture, the action and the words emanating from the lips of the characters will synchronize.

Atlanta Next Seat of Hearing

The next session of the Federal Trade Hearing will be held in Atlanta toward the end of the month. Bruce Bromley of Cravath, Henderson, Leffingwell and De Gersdorff representing Famous is now preparing the company's defense.

Hunter Returns

T. Hayes Hunter, who directed "The Recoil" in Europe for Goldwyn, is back in New York.

England Hopeful

Labor Party There Favors Tax Removal—Part Relief Looked For Anyway

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

London—A partial reduction in the irksome admission tax for which the British film industry has been fighting for some time past is apparently in sight with the Labor Government in office. The trade feels optimistic over the possibilities.

The Labor party is committed to the entire abolition of admission taxes, but it is seriously doubted if such a radical program can be carried through. The new budget will be drawn and presented to Parliament in May.

Second "Potash" Release Unsettled

It is understood that distribution plans for the next "Potash and Perlmutter" have not been settled. The first went through First National. Samuel Goldwyn leaves for the Coast the end of the week to watch the making of "Cytherea" and the next "Potash" production.

"Scaramouche" at Capitol Sunday

"Scaramouche" goes into the Capitol Sunday.

J. M. Quinn Dead

"G. M." of Vitagraph Suffers Attack of Heart Failure—Went West to Confer With A. E. Smith

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—John M. Quinn, general manager of Vitagraph, died here suddenly late Monday night from heart failure. His remains will be sent to Chicago for interment.

J. M. Quinn has been general manager of Vitagraph since 1918. He went to the Coast about 10 days ago to confer with Albert E. Smith as to production plans generally, and especially with regard to the making of "Captain Blood."

Prior to joining Vitagraph, Quinn was West Coast manager for Triangle, and previously was with the Western Newspaper Union, and had also handled some special publicity during the campaign which resulted in Woodrow Wilson being elected President.

He leaves a widow and two children.

Wells Invading Far South?

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Atlanta—It is reported here that Jake Wells plans a theater invasion of the South. The report is circulating primarily because of his purchase of the Pack at Asheville and talk of houses in Greenville, S. C. Wells and his associates some years ago controlled a string of theaters in this territory but disposed of them until only those theaters in Norfolk and Richmond remained.

Christie Features For Hodkinson

The deal pending between the Christies and Hodkinson has been closed. At least two features are involved. Their production will in no way interfere with the two-reelers which Educational is handling.

4,000 Bookings

For British National Film Weeks Which Started in England on Monday

(Special Cable to THE FILM DAILY)

London—British National Film Weeks, sponsored by the British National Film League are under way. Approximately 4,000 bookings for English pictures have been made.

The campaign started on Monday. The purpose is to arouse the interest of the British public in English pictures. The Prince of Wales is officially endorsing the movement. It will be recalled he was the guest of honor at a recent luncheon at which the entire trade was present.

Famous has again reversed its decision relative to "North of 36," the Emerson Hough story which James Cruze was scheduled to make on a scale similar to "The Covered Wagon." Yesterday, Jesse L. Lasky announced its production before leaving Hollywood for New York. Irvin Willat will direct with Jack Holt in the lead. Other pictures for early production include "Feet of Clay," to be made by Cecil De Mille; with Leatrice Joy and Rod La Rocque featured; "The Enemy Sex" with James Cruze directing and Betty Compson featured; a William de Mille story written by Clara Beranger; Pola Negri in another directed by Dimitri Buchowetzki; "Roles" directed by Sam Wood with Agnes Ayres starred; Leatrice Joy starred in "Worldly Goods"; directed by Joseph Henabery; and "The Mountebank" directed by Victor Fleming. With the exception of the latter, all will be made on the coast.

Schnitzer Returns from L. A.

Joseph I. Schnitzer of F. B. O. returned yesterday from the coast. He said the studio was working full blast with Emory Johnson busy on "Swords and Ploughshares" and Mal St. Clair on "The Telephone Girl" series. Four independent producers are engaged on pictures. George O'Hara is to start a new picture soon while Chester Bennett is preparing for another Jane Novak picture.

In Honor Of Wilson

Universal yesterday decided to keep all of its electric signs dark tonight in memory of Woodrow Wilson. The T. O. C. C. passed resolutions of condolence and decided to keep its theaters closed for 15 minutes during the funeral services in Washington.

Cameo

"Schubert's Serenade" is the overture, followed by Pathe News, an Aesop Fable, a remarkable short reel, titled "The Ant," from the microscopic process perfected by Louis H. Tollhurst; Miss Ethel Sweet singing "Giannina Mia," "Over The Fence," a comedy, and the feature, "When A Man's A Man."

Capitol

"Rienzi" is played as the overture. Next comes a Bray scenic, "The Raven." The third unit is Divertissements: (a) "Sunset," a musical number; (b) Mlle. Gambarelli, danseuse presented in "The Swan," assisted by Yasha Bunchuk, solo cellist and Carl Cheutze, harpist, also the Capitol Orchestra; (c) "Marche Lorraine," by the Capitol Dancers. The News Magazine precedes an elaborate prologue to the feature, "Name The Man!" An organ, as usual, closes the performance.

Rivoli

"The Sweetest Story Ever Told," symphonized home tune, is played immediately after "Phedre," the overture. In the former number Miriam Lax, soprano, and Thomas McGranahan, tenor, sing. The Rivoli Pictorial and "Plastigrams," a film novelty, follow in order. The Helen Moeller Dancers are presented just before "The Stranger," the feature, is screened. One of Max Fleischer's, "Out-of-the-Inkwell" comedies is last.

Strand

The program: (1) Overture; "Merry Wives Of Windsor." (2) A serenade; "Marcheta," sung by Luigi Guiffrida, tenor. (3) A dance fantasy; "Play Cards," by Mlle. Klementowicz and M. Daks. (4) The Strand Topical Review. (5) A prologue to "The Marriage Circle," the feature. (6) The feature. (7) Odds and Ends, a compilation of interesting short subjects. (8) An organ solo by Percy Starnes.

At Other Houses

COMEDIES

By DANNY

Rare as they are; difficult indeed to produce, and always wanted at the box office, when an exceptional one comes along it is heralded with trumpets. This was again proven when the new York newspaper critics loved and splashed encomiums and praise over the latest Lubitsch production, "The Marriage Circle," showing at the Strand. They dug like gold diggers and piled adjectives like a paid press agent. Up at Warner's if they still have their heads at normal size it's remarkable. Never has a Warner picture received such praise since the days of "My Four Years in Germany."

All that the critics said is so—and some of them said a lot. To make it more certain that the picture is really worth while one of the most severe critics of the lot went to see it a second time AND PAID HIS WAY IN. Nothing could more conclusively prove the value of the picture.

That the Warner's were astute and clever in signing up Lubitsch is a matter of record. That Lubitsch, in his first modern picture to be shown here, has demonstrated that he is usually at home in either comedy or tragedy, drama or whatnot, is also proven. For he has made a picture which for deftness, touches, originality, and cleverness of handling, is easily the equal of anything of its kind ever produced here; and in any way far outstrips most of the others. It is rich in humor, delightful in treatment.

Famous had Lubitsch under contract. And let him get away. He will produce for Mary and the Warner's. All his boyish spirit; all his charm, his personality, will go into his work because he has another motive in addition to his desire to make good, worth while pictures. A natural one, as can be easily understood.

Meanwhile, the Warner's will cash in on his work. His first for them is a triumph—a real picture.

Outside Films Gone

Practically All First National Exchanges Have Turned over Independent Releases to Others

With few exceptions, all of the First National exchanges throughout the country have rid themselves of the state right product acquired by them for distribution in addition to the regular company releases.

In the beginning, the state right films were secured in order to reduce the overhead of exchange operation, inasmuch as the sales force that sold First National pictures also sold the other. It was later decided that the exchanges were to concentrate their effort on the organization's own releases. The process of separating the two kinds of releases has taken some time. The First National home office has helped the franchise holders in every manner possible. In some

No Equity Deal

Complete Organization of Coast Producers' Unit Important in Development of Agreement

Contrary to published reports, no contract has been negotiated between the Actors' Equity Ass'n and the Hays organization covering the activities of actors and actresses at the studios. It was reported that Frank Gillmore made his recent coast trip for that purpose.

It is understood that the matter is in temporary abeyance but that the meetings will continue. Dependent upon the progress of the discussions is the further development of the Association of M. P. Producers, Inc. which was formed on the coast when Will H. Hays was there. It is understood that if the contract is closed, it will be through the coast unit on behalf of the producing interests in the business.

14 Houses Building

West Coast Theaters Start Extensive Construction Program—Buy Tally's Broadway

Irving M. Lesser has been advised from the coast that West Coast Theaters, Inc.—the Lesser-Gore Bros.—Ramish theater chain, has entered upon an extensive building program and that no less than fourteen houses have been placed in construction. The chain now actually operates 154 theaters on the Pacific Slope, in towns located in the extreme Southern portion of California and ranging up through San Francisco and points north.

Four houses are planned for Los Angeles: one at Washington Blvd. and Vermont Ave.; one at Crescent Heights, one at 10th and Webster and one at Pasadena and Ave. 59. The others will be located in Orange, Long Beach, Beverly Hills, Santa Anna, Culver City, Inglewood, Sacramento, Glendale, Ocean Park and Huntington Park. Orange is in the heart of the orange belt and the Whittier oil fields. West Coast now operates the Liberty, an 871 seat house in Long Beach but the new one will seat 3,000. The house for Beverly Hills will be the first in that exclusive section. Special presentations will be a feature. In Sacramento, the circuit operates the T. and D., seating 1,100 but the new project will accommodate 4,000. The Ocean Park house will replace the Dome, recently destroyed by fire with a loss of $140,000, unprotected by insurance. The new theater will cost $400,000 and seat 2,500. West Coast has two houses in Glendale but only one, the T. D. and L., a 1,000 seater is kept open. The new theater will seat 2,000. A house, seating about 800 is conducted in Huntington Park but the one to be built will seat 1,800.

It is quite likely that Sid Grauman's new ventures will be linked up with the West Coast chain in which Joseph M. Schenck, incidentally, is a director.

It was learned yesterday that the company had taken over Tally's Broadway on Broadway between 8th

Deplore Loose Talk

Move Under Way to Eliminate Exaggerated Figures in Connection With Salaries and Costs

A move launched on the coast some time ago to eliminate exaggerated references to the salaries of players and productions is to be encouraged generally throughout the industry, according to present indications.

The plan has the unofficial sanction, at least, of the Hays organization. It is felt that loose talk of millions has a dangerous effect on legislators in Washington who are usually well-informed on developments in the picture business. The point is made that arguments used to bring about legislative relief are injured by the more or less careless use of figures on the part of zealous publicity men.

As an instance, the Griffith offices stated yesterday that published reports credit the director with spending about $200,000 in retakes for "America" when, as a matter of strict truth the basis for the report was the fact that during one scene, Griffith ordered a retake because one costume was not of the Revolutionary period.

One Contract Form

I. M. P. P. D. A. Plans Single Form for Producers and Distributors to Work Under

The special meeting of the I. M. P. P. D. A. committee at the Astor Tuesday night broke up about midnight. The discussions centered around the advisability of creating only one form of contract for the use of producers and distributors, in order to eliminate confusion.

The original intention was to have one contract for deals made by producers with distributors and a second for deals made by distributors with state right buyers. This will probably be eliminated in favor of the one agreement. A proviso for percentage deals will be part of the revised contract.

The association will hold a meeting today at the Astor at which Dr. A. H. Giannini of the Commercial Trust and William A. Johnston of the M. P. News will deliver addresses.

Newspaper Opinions

"The Marriage Circle"—Warner's Strand

AMERICAN—* * * He has given a most unusual and satisfactory treatment of a theme that might have been very mediocre under a less skilled director.

DAILY NEWS—Ernst Lubitsch has done in "The Marriage Circle" a subtle and delightful thing. * * * Very quietly Mr. Lubitsch handles all the situations, many of which might have been utterly ridiculous in a film less subtly turned.

EVENING JOURNAL—* * * brings about the most enjoyable subtleties ever provoked by Ernst Lubitsch and the quiver of an eyelid. * * * the scenes precipitated by the comedy are light-operatically scintillating * * *

HERALD—Like "A Woman of Paris," "The Marriage Circle," places a tremendous strain on the imagination; it concedes something to the intelligence. * * * a great credit to Ernst Lubitsch, and, incidentally to the far sighted Warner Brothers who gave him the chance to do it. * * *

MORNING TELEGRAPH—With material in itself slight he has developed, without once breaking continuity, a comedy which is genuinely amusing.

SUN—It also shows that no amount of "great direction" can make an interesting photoplay out of an inane, futile and weak-in-the-knees farce. * * * The story disappears in thin air before the picture is done. * * * All that beautiful direction wasted on such a story!

POST—This is really a delightful play. It has not an unusual story, but things are worked out in an unusual way. Adolphe Menjou is the lifted eyebrow, the tongue in the cheek of the movie world. With him as one of the cast the film is assured of a good amount of subtlety and of a worldly humor. Monte Blue is excellent. * * *

TELEGRAM—* * * again proved himself a creative master in the second motion picture he has made in these United States.

It is "The Marriage Circle." * * *

TIMES—It is unalloyed bliss to watch "The Marriage Circle" * * * filled with surprises and moves along with a hitherto unknown rapidity of action. In direction it is not unlike Chaplin's "A Woman of Paris," but the story * * * is far more amusing.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—There isn't a single film that has been released that compares with it for the delineation of straight farce played legitimately for laughs and getting them without resorting to hokum. In that much the feature is a work of art, but don't overlook the performance that Marie Prevost gives.

TRIBUNE—"The Marriage Circle" left speechless. * * * We warn you not to miss this picture of Ernst Lubitsch's. It's beauty and its joyousness cannot be described. It is one of the most delightfully whimsical things we have ever encountered on the screen.

WORLD—It is a smart and funny comedy. It is proof enough that this Ernst Lubitsch from Germany is every inch the fine director they have called him.

"Name The Man!"—Gold.-Cosmop. Capitol

AMERICAN—Victor Seastrom has not only duplicated his Swedish successes in "Name The Man," at the Capitol this week, but has gone one better by taking advantage of all that America has to offer in improved technical equipment. * * * we want to repeat that Victor Seastrom has made a great picture * * *

EVENING JOURNAL—Victor Seastrom, with a rare, delicate touch, made * * * a striking picturization of the Hall Caine novel. The direction is remarkable, the photography is beautiful and the restraint appreciable. And the story, melodramatic throughout, is saved from itself by the extraordinarily effective acting of Mae Busch.

EVENING WORLD—* * * the one best bet of this week's cinema offerings; but it doesn't stand out so terribly far, at that. * * * a corking bit of directorial work and puts Seastrom up along with Griffith and Chaplin. And that's about all that can be said about it now.

HERALD—"Name the Man," is considerably better than either of the other masterpieces from the same pen. In story it is probably just as bad as the others, but it is extremely fortunate in its direction. Victor Seastrom, * * * has endowed this ancient and worn out theme with new vigor and has given it the semblance of life.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—Despite the note of exaggeration and unreality which is characteristic of Hall Caine's work. Victor Seastrom has hit the bull's eye * * *

But it is the little touches and contrasts in which Seastrom brings a welcome note to the screen * * *

SUN—one of the most absorbing motion pictures this city has seen in some years.

As for Seastrom, it will undoubtedly establish him as a great photoplay director in this country

TELEGRAM—The story is not old. A night madness. Its results along time-honored lines. * * *

The drama as filmed touches in a vital way on home environment.

TIMES—* * * the producers of this picture have obviously insisted on a production that would be a strong box-office attraction, both in the title and the theme. It does not seem to us that this director saw eye to eye with his story in certain incidents, and occasionally where he had an original idea he has dwelt on it at such length that the effect is frequently diminished and occasionally spoiled. * * *

Aside from Conrad Nagel, the others in the cast are good characterizations, * * *

There are some remarkable exteriors faithfully constructed, and the crowd scenes have been handled creditably.

TRIBUNE—The cast is excellent. * * * The screen adaptation is by Paul Bern, and we should say that it is an excellent adaptation of an unpleasant story.

WORLD—"Name The Man!" is melodrama running a temperature of anywhere from 104 to 105. Now and then it grows just a little bit delirious. The trouble with the poor film is that it has been fed a little out of every cold can in the hokum store. Most of this is not even warmed over. * * * It is difficult to understand, then, how he (Seastrom) chose for his first exhibit so unworthy, ungainly and hackneyed a story as this one * * *

Goldwyn Meetings

Scheduled for Boston, Cleveland and Chicago—Company Leases the Park, Boston

A series of four territorial sales meetings will be held by Goldwyn-Metropolitan sales executives on Friday and Sunday. They will be arranged that each manager will pack in his own city by Monday morning.

Plans for three March releases: "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak," "The Great White Way" and "Three Weeks" will be made. James Grainger will address the New York group. Present will be George F. Dembow, district manager of the branch managers from Boston, New Haven, Albany and New York. Pat Garyn will handle the Cleveland meeting at which will be present J. A. Koerpel, district manager and managers from Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati and Buffalo. In Chicago, W. F. Rodgers of the home office will preside at the conference which will embrace George A. Hickey, W. E. Hanford, district manager and the managers from Chicago, Milwaukee, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Des Moines and Omaha. Felix Eckman will meet in Washington, D. C. Felix Mendelssohn, district manager and Washington, Charlotte, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Atlanta managers.

Goldwyn has leased the Park theater in Boston until Sept. 1, thus assuring itself a first-run in New England. "Little Old New York" is playing there. It has reached its eighth week and business is holding well, that it will probably remain there for four weeks longer. "The Great White Way" will follow the first film, then "Under the Red Cloud" and "Three Weeks."

W. Starrett has been transferred from Atlanta to Detroit, succeeding by Lorch, who has joined Goldwyn at Chicago. W. J. Clark, territory manager has taken over Starrett's position while Rudolph Lorch will be sent from New York to take over Clark's post in Charlotte. The company has just completed a two weeks' sales campaign which is rated extremely satisfactory. Ed-Bonns, special sales representative is back in town from a months' tour through the Middle West.

"Shutdown Temporary"—Schulberg

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Los Angeles—B. P. Schulberg, by telegraph, has let out his studio staff, including Gasnier.

Schulberg, who is now in New York, stated yesterday that he intended remaining here for several weeks longer and that the move was merely an economical one to reduce overhead at the studio. He added that he had advised Gasnier to direct an outside picture pending the start of "The Breath of Scandal," in about a month.

Censor Fight On

Gov. Smith's Meeting With Republican Leaders Fails to Develop Any Compromises

(By Long Distance Phone)

Albany—The fight for the repeal of the censorship law is under way. Governor Smith held a conference with Republican leaders Wednesday night and running into Thursday morning in an effort to agree on certain compromise measures in the Governor's program. Censorship came up, among other things, but nothing developed.

The situation as it now stands is this: If the Republican members of the Assembly vote along strictly party lines, the repeal measure will die in the Assembly. However, there is some doubt concerning the method to be followed. It is not believed that all of the Republicans will vote as party men.

The night conference was attended by Speaker H. Edmund Macboid, J. A. McGinnies, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, Simon L. Adler, Republican leader in the Assembly, Senator James J. Walker, sponsor of the Administration repeal bill in the Senate and Barney Downing, chairman of the finance committee for the Democrats.

Financial Problems

Note Swapping and 30 Per Cent Bonus Operators Hurt the Business, Gianrini Says

Several practices relative to the financial end of the business were severely condemned by Dr. A. H. Gianrini of the Commercial Trust Co., yesterday at the luncheon of the Ind. M. P. Prod. & Dist. Ass'n. One of these referred to the swapping of notes by individuals, when these notes did not reflect an actual business transaction, but were tendered purely for accommodation purposes.

"This is all wrong," said the Doctor, "and should be stopped. The looseness which exists regarding the offering of trade acceptances is also deplorable. Louis Auerbach just told me a funny one. He said that notes should read 'I promise to renew' instead of 'I promise to pay.' The continuance of such practices not only places a black mark against the individual, but also hurts the business as a whole. Bankers can loan money only upon bankable propositions. No matter how much I am inclined personally to do things, my associates, my directors, my superiors, demand certain consideration, and I have put in many sleepless nights and had many unhappy hours over some happenings.

"Look out for the individual connected with a bank who whispers to you that for a little bonus he thinks something can be done for you. A small bonus may be legitimate for some one outside of a bank to make, when the loan is for a hazardous business like picture making. But when these bonuses run to 30 per cent of the profits no concern can exist and operate for any length of time."

Wm. A. Johnson of the Motion Picture News, dwelt on the original purposes of the independents, and urged them to stick to these pointers regardless of the other matters which might be brought to their attention. "The establishing of, and the control of credits is vastly important," he said, "If you do this satisfactory you will have accomplished a great deal."

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Reginald Barker's next picture will be "The Great Divide," produced in 1915 by Lubin with Ethel Clayton and House Peters in the lead and Edgar Lewis directing.

Louis B. Mayer and Fred Niblo are en route to the coast, following a short visit here to arrange for the run of "Thy Name Is Woman," at the Astor, beginning Feb. 25. Niblo's next picture will be "Judgment." John Stahl will shortly start work on "The Waning Sex," to be followed by "The Dangerous Age of Woman," a companion picture to "The Dangerous Age."

Big Plans For "36"

The original production plans for "North of 36" will probably be carried out by Famous. Irvin Willat, as noted, will direct instead of James Cruze, but the picture will be made on a scale similar to that of "The Covered Wagon." It will be one of the highlights of the Paramount release schedule of 1924-25.

Alan Crosland will direct "Argentine Love," for the company. Jesse L. Lasky is expected in from the coast Sunday.

The new regime at Hodkinson has been functioning about four weeks. In that time, the company has gone through a period of intense activity. Alan Crosland has been signed for one picture, with more to come when he completes his agreement with Famous. Betty Compson will appear in the Crosland feature and in another to be directed by E. H. Griffith. The company also exercises an option on her future services. A deal for a series of Priscilla Dean pictures has been closed: "His Darker Self," Lloyd Hamilton's first feature has been taken over; contracts have been signed for a Harry Carey series, two Christie features and "Try and Get It," a Grand-Asher release. Three other deals are now in various stages of negotiations.

Paul C. Mooney, vice-president leaves for a country-wide trip Sunday. He will be away from six to eight weeks and will hold a series of sales meetings in different key cities. The first will be held in Cleveland on Monday and Tuesday. It will be attended by Cecil Maberry, Central division manager, H. H. Hurn of Cincinnati, R. E. Peckham of Detroit, W. H. Wagner of Buffalo, S. S. Webster of Cleveland, and G. R. Ainsworth of Pittsburgh.

Mr. C. R. Seelye,
c/o SELZNICK DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION Buffalo, N. Y., 729 Seventh Avenue, Feb. 1, 1924
New York City.

Dear Sir:

You have asked me for a letter of recommendation on your picture "DAUGHTERS OF TODAY" and the unique experience I had with the run of this picture at the Strand Theatre, Syracuse. I seldom allow my name to be used in such a connection as my experience has been that letters of this kind are usually bought very cheaply and used for the purpose of extracting from fellow exhibitors a rental price far in excess of the box office value of the productions.

To be honest with you, my judgment was against booking "DAUGHTERS OF TODAY", but, skilled in salesmanship as you are, you prevailed upon me to give you a positive contract for four days; and if the picture did a stipulated amount of business by the end of the third day, I agreed to hold it a week; and believe me, I put that figure so high that I immediately set in another picture for the last three days of the week.

You agreed to personally superintend the exploitation work and expend a few hundred dollars over our regular appropriation in the papers, which was to be deducted from your rental.

- You were so good at this work and so plausible that you refused to accept a contract from me. You said to me, "Play the picture first and after the run pay me what you think it is worth." That sounded good to me and I fell for it.

I took a run down to Syracuse for the opening of your picture. I wanted to justify my advance opinion of "DAUGHTERS OF TODAY" through expressions of approval or disapproval of our patrons. For the first time I learned what a rotten judge of pictures I was.

Mr. Seelye, who has long been recognized as one of the best showmen in the industry, has prepared an exploitation campaign that will make records for you too.

Only a big man will admit it when he guesses wrong.

DAUGHTERS OF TODAY

Year's Biggest Box Office

-2-

Feb. 1, 1924

The public was unanimously against me. I questioned dozens of people in the hope of finding at least one that agreed with me. Surely in that vast crowd, there must have been one solitary human being that would console me, but if so, I missed him.

We opened up big and we played to capacity all week. That week "DAUGHTERS OF TODAY" was the reigning topic of conversation in Syracuse. The gross receipts were bigger than any week for over a year. After the run I settled with you Mr. Seelye, and willingly too, for at least fifty percent. more than I could have bought the picture for in advance.

This picture should make a lot of money for everybody, you the owner, the Selznick organization as distributors, and exhibitors fortunate enough to play it.

With congratulations, I am

Sincerely yours,

Walter Hays

President,
SYRACUSE STRAND THEATRE CO., Inc.

W.H. H.

The opinion of the great majority is the highest tribunal—when record breaking thousands, fathers with their daughters, mothers with their sons, stand in line to praise a picture—that picture is great.

Walter Hays is Director of New York Strand, Brooklyn Strand, Syracuse Strand, prominent member of Associated First National and other important enterprises, and is known as one of America's leading showmen.

Syracuse regards Harold Lloyd as a home town boy—his "Why Worry" held the record until the Strand played "Daughters of Today."

Among recent big pictures played in the Strand were: "Flaming Youth," "Eternal City," "Why Worry," "Black Oxen," "Common Law" and "Rosita."

Newspaper Opinions

'The Stranger'—F. P.-L. Rivoli

RICAN—* * * is really good picture ment. The results would have been after if some one had snipped 2,000 more out of the film. * * * painstaking effort to get in a lot of unnecessary tails, Joseph Henabery, the director, has let the film wander on and on, just destroying the effects of his really good directing.

Y NEWS—I'm afraid "The Stranger" is the sort of picture you forget. Why this is I can't say. * * * The picture is startling, but undoubtedly reasonable and everybody's happy. I wasn't excited over it, but you may be.

NING WORLD—As far as we are concerned "The Stranger" can only be a acquaintance.

NING TELEGRAPH—This photograph is highly dramatic, and has been done most part, with a sense of judgment and unity.

—It really is too bad that a good picture like "The Stranger," should be buried with such a poor set of sub-titles. * * * Although the picture preaches a bit, it is so good with a capable cast it is an excellent screen material. Joseph Henabery has used the story effectively, and most part it is well directed, but it has been even better if the settings were like London.

UNE—Joseph Henabery has taken the story's "The First and the Last" and made a very good picture. * * *

S SQUARE DAILY—It amounts to a underworld picture possessing a touch which is well "sold" by a competent RICAN—Believe it or not, a Harold Lloyd story has made a very entertaining picture. * * * A few more of these and we shall be converted to silent West tales.

Y NEWS—I'm not sure I know, but the instruction, just when a man's a man is not a clotheshorse, but I enjoyed it in spite of that.

NING JOURNAL—The settings and photography of the photoplay are unusually good. There is a great deal of action; a dramatic circus, two sets of romances, a singing, and, what is known in novels as a great West—two fisted fighting.

NING TELEGRAPH—If you like a good story, you will find "When a Man" a good hour's entertainment. It has some lovely natural backgrounds, and the photography is good.

—The film will surely appeal to all who enjoy stories of the West, and for this production it is good entertainment. It is a wholesome story with plenty of action, and a cast that could not be

S—This is a mediocre type of entertainment, with some good shots of the high-riding and a marvelous bridge. It has interesting moments but is full of dozens of other productions.

Censorship Test

Of Canadian Laws Planned—Distributors' Ass'n Behind Quebec Exhibitor in "Flaming Youth" Case

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Toronto—The Canadian M. P. Dist. Ass'n, which includes practically all of the releasing companies functioning in Canada is taking up the cudgels on behalf of the Empire theater, Quebec which was fined a nominal amount of $5 for showing "Flaming Youth."

The principle involved, however, is more far reaching than appears on the surface. The picture was passed by the Quebec censor board and shown at the Capitol, Montreal. It then opened in Quebec and was seized on a court order. Judge Lachance in Quebec held that, despite the censor's approval it was proper for any citizen to bring charges under the Criminal Code.

In Canada, the Criminal Code is Federal and hence takes precedence over censorship laws which are Provincial. If the practice of superseding the censorship regulations is to become general, the whole operation of censorship in Canada is upset. The C. M. P. D. A., has entered an appeal against the Quebec decision. The case will be tried in the criminal court in that city in April.

18 for the Year

Ed-Asher Make New Plans—
New Features for Nat'l Release, Others for State Rights

Ed-Asher intends producing 18 pictures this year. Some of them will be distributed through national organizations and others are designed to be state righted. No set number in each category has been determined.

Some of the important pictures will be "Rose of the Ghetto," which R. Sam Neill will direct. Neill is scheduled to make four all told. The first will be "Back of the Beyond," "The First Violin," "The Way of All Flesh" and "The Furnace of Life." Grand before leaving the coast for a series of four I. W. Ir-Prod. Charles Swickard will direct four more, the first to be "San Francisco." There will also be a series of 12 two-reel comedies starring Richardson.

Henry Banks, Sid Smith and Joe each made 13 comedies for the year.

"The Yankee Counsel," Douglas MacLean's hit of hits, opens its Broadway run at the Central Theater today. Associated Exhibitors—Advt.

The "Gimme's"

This comes from one of the oldest exhibitors in the business:

"The 'gimme' crowd don't think any more of giving themselves a million or two million dollars for a picture than I would think of asking you for a cigarette. Exhibitors have earned through bitter experience that there is no such an animal.

"The exhibitor end of this game is approaching a crisis and it will come to a head during 1924."

COMING TO A HEAD

What does this exhibitor mean? That exhibitors will not pay for product on the basis of a million or more valuation? It would seem so. But he might bear in mind that the distributing end of the business learned its lesson this season with such valuations. The "gimme" boys in that end of the business stumped a toe or two with that process—and some of them still are doing it.

The picture that will make money next season—and for many seasons to come—will be the picture that cost somewhere about $150,000 or $175,000 to make; that has exploitation possibilities galore; that can reach the average big time exhibitor on an exhibition value of not over $400,000 or $500,000; and which has a cast with a few people of known value in it. That type of picture will make money for all concerned.

GOOD BUSINESS

Reports generally, from throughout the country, indicate that business was rarely, if ever, better. Some few spots off color,

Wants 48 Hour Week

For The 3,000 Principals Engaged in Studios—What Gillmore Seeks for the Equity

A 48 hour week is sought for actors and actresses engaged in picture work by the Actor's Equity Ass'n which has started negotiations looking for a union contract with producers. Other important points sought include compensation for time spent on "location" and arbitration of all differences between directors and members of the casts.

In Friday's Tribune, Frank Gillmore of the Equity explained the organization's aims. He said the main object was to standardize the conditions in the studios and eliminate some of the abuses which have crept into the relations between the actors and the producing companies. He

A Napoleonic Cycle

Planned by Abel Gance—Six Parts, Each in Feature Form—Has Govt' Co-operation

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Paris—Abel Gance, producer of "I Accuse," intends making a series of Napoleonic pictures. He says the subject is such a large one that it will be impossible to produce any one picture covering it. Therefore, he will make six, each to be of feature length but so constructed that each can be shown independently of the other.

The pictures will be "Arcole," "18 Brumaire," "Austerlitz," "The Retreat from Russia," "Waterloo" and "St. Helena." Gance is promised the use of the Palais National, French troops for the reconstruction of the battle scenes and the navy for the battles of Aboukir and Trafalgar.

Tuesday, Feb. 12 being Lincoln's Birthday and a legal holiday, there will be no issue of THE FILM DAILY published.

Trouble Over "Wagon"

Birmingham (Eng.) Exhibitors Aroused Because Pictures Goes Into Music Hall

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

London—Exhibitors in Birmingham are upset over the booking of "The Covered Wagon," into a music hall here, without offering it to the trade first. It is certain that the matter will come up before the C. E. A. branch.

Individual exhibitors in Birmingham declare that they favor a boycott of Paramount pictures but such action is frowned upon by the C. E. A. there. Famous will probably show the picture in five large English cities and then sell it to picture houses.

The Film Renter, in commenting on the situation says:

"The question of the showing of films in legitimate theaters has always been a sore one with exhibitors, and one can readily understand their feeling in the matter.

"The whole question of films not being offered to kinemas is a very big one, and requires tackling immediately. Unfortunately exhibitors right up and down the country, immediately they are faced with this situation, turn to the stupid suggestion of a boycott. This has happened on innumerable occasions, and has failed, as it always will fail. The threat of a boycott is so ludicrous that there never can be a chance of it being enforced. Members of the C. E. A. have made themselves look particularly silly on many occasions, the last being at Plymouth, where the attempt to boycott a renter's productions lamentably failed. It is incredible that in these days there is not something more original tried, because to talk of boycotts is merely a waste of time and frightens no one.

"In the particular case in point it would behoove Midland exhibitors if they first made careful inquiries as to whether Lasky's are responsible for the booking to this theater, and, above all, to steer clear of silly and senseless suggestions of boycotts, which achieve nothing."

Innovation In Credit Lines

Rather than consume time in flashing credit titles for "The Ten Commandments" on the screen, Hugo Riesenfeld has gotten around this by stenciling them on two pillars at the sides of the stage at the Cohan theater where the audience may read who's who during the ten minutes that intervene between the raising of the curtain and the starting of the film.

Start "Beaucaire" Monday

Preparations have been completed for the start of Rudolph Valentino's new picture, "Monsieur Beaucaire." Everything is ready for the opening shot on Monday, when a luncheon will be tendered by Famous at the studio.

but broadly speaking everybody's happy. Good pictures have done it—plus the mildest winter experienced for some time. The "open" winter has helped a lot. But the good pictures have more than done their share.

Never has the motion picture public had such entertainment offered. And there are many indications that for the coming season entertainment values will be bigger and better. Just look what's in sight.

A BRIEF FORECAST

Valentino comes back to the screen after a long absence. In the right kind of pictures he will prove a clean-up. Let's hope they give them to him. It means millions in the box office. "The Covered Wagon" goes out to the usual exhibitor and ceases to be a road show. This should help exhibitors a lot. Sabatini's wonderfully colorful "The Sea Hawk" will arrive; Henry King's "Romola" and Lillian Gish and Barthelmess in "Romeo and Juliet." Oh! the woods are just full of expectancies. So many you are bound to overlook a lot. Universal steps up to the bat with a promise of 30 specials. If they turn out only a half dozen money makers like "The Hunchback" and "Merry-Go-Round" they can forget the rest. Of course the great big ones—like Griffith's "America" and Doug's "Thief of Bagdad" will likely be road-shown. Ingram's "World's Illusion" will be worth-while. It's a tremendous theme. Goldwyn will have "Ben Hur" for next season. Here's hoping it's all they hope it will be. It better had. Otherwise June Mathis will jump in the Tiber. And what a dirty muddy river that is!

So it goes. One could ramble on for columns. So if this season had many great, fine pictures, just think of next season and smile. Every succeeding season makes you feel happier to be in this business.

(For all the big—or even—little pictures overlooked in the above, don't growl; you who will have them. Lot's of time to talk about them before they get going.)

VALUES

Understand Al Woods and his associates are holding "The Miracle"—brought from Germany about eight years ago—at a valuation of $300,000. What's a valuation between friends in this picture business? No picture made in Germany eight years ago—one is almost inclined to say all of them—isn't worth that much. All that the film has is the story value. You'd probably have to burn the negative anyway. Whatever the story value is is the value of the picture. No more. Not a penny.

THE BALLYHOO

"Rudy" starts work for Famous at Long Island City Monday. Prodigal Son stuff being pulled. Big party—lots of special guests, and all that sort of thing. Perhaps a delegation from Radio Owners Social No. 1 plus Filing Clerks Union No. 7. To see "Rudy"—"ain't he grand!—prancing before the camera. It's a great and glorious event.

Candy makers and chewing gum devotees will be in line next season. Waiting for Rudy's first re-appearance. Hooray, hooray!

THE FAIR HAired BOY

Incidentally his locks are raven. One C. R. Seelye. Who hasn't made much noise of late. But who is doing a special revival these days. Putting over "Daughters of To-day." They do say it's one of those jazz pictures that are "in" these halycon days. When flappers flap and cuddle all over the screen.

GETTING READY

Understand Joe Plunkett has bought 36 pair of steel supports for the lobby doors of the Strand. Anticipating the crush for "The Hunchback" showing.

Incidentally understand Moe Mark is being called "tough" regarding second week run over's. When the contract calls for so much business to be done by Wednesday to allow for run over that he won't consider bad weather, cyclones or anything else. Out she goes unless the figure is met. An popularity (?) he is developing! Boy! oh boy!

THE COMING AUTHOR

Seems to be having a hard time of it. For instance, Goldwyn's scenario department rejected 4,000 manuscripts during last week without finding one idea worth screening.

Probabilities are that Goldwyn—like many other big companies—only wants scripts that are based on popular plays or books. That ready made market sure is insurance for the producer. That is—for the usual, average picture. For the exceptionals it makes little difference.

But it's tough going for a lot of scenario writers. Lost up showing tired author starving, and half buried under returned mss. Fade out on brother author's placing lilies in his cold hands.

MAKING "DOUG" HAPPY

Reports in foreign trade papers say that a canvas made in China proves that "Doug" is the most popular screen star here. Well! well! well!

SHOWMEN

Marc Lachmann, who went to England on "The Hunchback" has an interesting article in "Kine" comparing English and American showmen. In which he says, in part:

"There is every facility for modern exploitation in London and there is just as much co-operation waiting there for American exploiters as there is in New York or Oshkosh in America. The Britisher welcomes live-wire stunts, and is just as affable and willing to help put them over as the American, if not more so. This may have just entered into the activities of the British exhibitor, producer and exchange man, but it is there to-day standing out in bold-face type with a welcome hand outstretched for any exploitation stunt, American or otherwise, as long as it complies with the British regulations."

Something worth remembering. May help George B. Brown. Who sails shortly to put the same picture over on the Continent. Sorry to see George go. One less duffer for the Springfield tournament.

BILL HART'S PONY

A brief book. But what an entertaining one. Tells all about Bill's Pinto pony. Who is as well remembered by Hart fans. As Bill himself. Just as wonderful as Tom Mix's pony. And the pony tells all about himself. Like the famous old story "Black Beauty." You'll weep a bit here and there—and the youngsters—well, they'll just eat it up. Fine stuff. Incidentally great publicity.

ANOTHER OPEN LETTER

From Arthur Smallwood. Same subject as the other—distribution perplexities and a possible solution. Interesting big subject. Which some day must come in for a truer understanding. With changes inevitable. From existing conditions. And which will result in a better state of affairs all concerned.

THANKS

For all the fine compliments; for all the wires and letters forwarded, telling how good "The Film Year Book, 1924," was a big job to undertake; a better one to complete. All of us all feel as good about it as you do.

Tom Mix in
"Ladies To Board"
Fox

Whole ..... FIRST RATE ENTERTAINMENT IN MIX'S BEST. FINE COMBINATION OF COMEDY AND THRILLS IN STORY THAT'S DIFFERENT FROM ANY AT STAR USUALLY HAS. ....Furnishes plenty of excitement and will certainly please admirers with this one. Even off his gloves and wears the trick clothes that offer the styles in cowboy attire. .... Very good; Pee Wee gets a great many laughs in his comedy business. They're going to look for him in more Mix pictures. Gertrude Olmsted a very lead and Dolores Rousse attractive model. Philo McCulloch good in typical characterization and Gertrude Claire the appealing little mother.
Type of Story ..... "Ladies to Board" is by far the best of all recent pictures. It is not rather original but well backed with comedy thrills that make it a thoroughly good entertainment. Perhaps some of Mix's bits, such as the auto rescue and the stopping of a runaway, are not new to his admirers but he makes them exciting enough for you to forget that you saw them done before. He goes in for a bit of Harold Lloyd comedy in the bit where he sneezes about on a new build-structure, high up above the street. The idea of Mix as proprietor of an old ladies' home suggests the humor that the situation affords. And director tone has made good use of story's opportunities. One of the funniest bits is where Mix, trying to please the old ladies, adores their proprietor, supply with a hand made sweater, and mittens and to please the Mix wears the outfit despite weather although he admits he needs is a blizzard to enter. The titles are funny.
Box Office Angle .... Should prove good drawing card and you can count on it pleasing your folks. If you enjoy a good laugh do your best to get them in. They'll go delighted.
Exploitation ..... Plenty of stunts available providing you want to get an extra boost. The human stunt, indicative of Mix's climb in the picture, should attract crowds. Arrange store tie-ups, especially with gent's furnishing houses—a sign in the window reading: "The latest style are the latest. So are Tom Mix's in 'Ladies to Board.'" Let them know Mix is proprietor of old ladies' home in his latest picture. That should promise plenty of fun.
Cast ..... Jack Blystone; Very good. .... Wm. Dudley Pelley good. .... Don Lee good. .... Dan Clark good. .... Arizona-Vermont good. .... 6,112 feet.

"When a Man's a Man"
Producer: Principal Pictures
Distributor: First National

As a Whole .... ONE OF THOSE "OPEN SPACES" STORIES WITH HERO'S ROLE CONSISTING OF JUST ONE ROUND OF HARD KNOCKS AND SACRIFICES; AN AVERAGE ENTERTAINMENT.
Cast .... John Bowers a noble young man who goes West to become a real man in order to win the girl he loves, but doesn't get the reward he expects. Marguerite De La Motte the girl in the case. Robert Frazer good as Bowers' cowboy pal and June Marlowe suitable as the latter's sweetheart. Others George Hackathorne, Arthur Hoyt, Charles Mailles, Fred Stanton, Edward Hearne.
Type of Story ..... Western drama. Harold Bell Wright's "When a Man's a Man," is another of those grand hero tales with the courageous one performing all sorts of near-miracles, taking the blame and forfeiting the credit, in true hero fashion. Its atmosphere is more of that popular "wide open spaces" variety in connection with which the title writer gets in the usual philosophy, just as the picture's title suggests. The plot itself is a rather farfetched one, interesting in spite of itself chiefly because the director has succeeded in keeping the development from being obvious. You can't really figure whether hero will be rewarded for his fine deeds by an eventual reunion with the girl he loves or whether he'll marry another girl. You certainly don't expect him to ride out of the picture alone but here's where they brave a non-clinch ending. Edward Hearn, the superfluous husband, doesn't appear in any scene toward the close of the picture but evidently he wasn't far enough removed to provide a happy ending, since it is his wife that hero loves.
Box Office Angle .... Title seems to promise a much more virile story than you get but at that the average crowd will be satisfied with "When a Man's a Man."
Exploitation .... Play up the title and the author's name and arrange a tie-up with bookstores to put copies of the book on display. You might use catchlines such as: "Those who contend that girls marry for money will find their theories upset in 'When a Man's a Man.' Hero had plenty of money but that wasn't enough for the girl he loved. So he went West. See what happened then in First National's picturization of Harold Bell Wright's novel." A cowboy on horseback is a conventional but appropriate street stunt to advertise the showing.
Direction .... Edward F. Cline; very good.
Author ..... Harold Bell Wright
Scenario .... Walter Anthony, Harry Carr
Cameramen ..... Ned Van Buren, Harold Janes
Photography ..... Splendid
Locale ..... Arizona
Length ..... 6,910 feet

"The Stranger"
Paramount

As a Whole .... INTERESTING PRODUCTION, GOOD CAST AND SKILFUL DIRECTION HELP MAKE GALSWORTHY STORY RATHER GOOD ENTERTAINMENT. HAS EFFECTIVE DRAMATIC MOMENTS.
Cast ..... Betty Compson pleasing and sincere and Richard Dix a good though somewhat weak hero. Lewis Stone fairly unimportant and Tully Marshall handles character bit splendidly. Others Robert Schable, Mary Jane Irving, Frank Nelson, Marion Skinner.
Type of Story .... Drama topped off with romance and a murder trial for a climax. A plot that starts off by promising a most interesting love story and with each step in the development bringing about, or threatening a breach, until finally the obstacles are cleared and it's time for the clinch—that is "The Stranger," a John Galsworthy story that doesn't reach any special height for originality, but which, through careful handling and good acting serves as good screen entertainment with enough box office value to make it interesting to exhibitors. You know, as sure as fate, that Betty Compson and Richard Dix will sail out to a happy matrimonial sea with "The End" but you're perfectly content to wait through the intervening reels and see how they get there.
And director Henabery, together with the players, makes it worth your while. There is a good climax into which Henabery has injected an effective suspense. It looks as though hero's conscience will force him to confess and save the life of the man who is giving up his own life that hero and the girl may be happy. The conclusion is wholly unexpected inasmuch as the old man dies before they can hang him and so hero remains silent.
Box Office Angle .... Pretty good prospects with this one. It isn't a big one nor probably won't cause any commotion but it should do a satisfactory business for you.
Exploitation ..... The title suggests a good teaser campaign that should get them interested. Distribute throwaways consisting of plain cards bearing the lines "Meet me at (give only the address of your theater) on (showing date), signed 'The Stranger.'" Billboard posters might read: "'The Stranger' Is Coming To Town." Later follow with posters announcing the showing date of the picture and the principals in the cast. Mention Betty Compson, particularly if you have previously shown "Woman to Woman" in which she appears. Also use the author's name.
Direction ..... Joseph Henabery; usually good though could have expedited story at times.
Author ..... John Galsworthy
Scenario ..... Edfrid Bingham
Cameraman ..... Faxon Dean and L. Guy Wilky
Photography ..... Good
Locale ..... England

"The Marriage Circle"
Producer: Ernst Lubitsch
Distributor: Warner Brothers

As a Whole .... ONE OF THE FINEST COMEDIES EVER PRESENTED FILLED WITH THE NEWEST IDEAS OF DIRECTION. A CHARMING CONTRIBUTION WHICH WILL HOLD ITS PLACE EASILY AMONG THE VERY BEST OF THE YEAR.
Cast ..... Excellently put together. Monte Blue natural and delightful, with a true Viennese atmosphere. Florence Vidor a delightful and most naturally sweet wife; Marie Prevost as the vamping wife at times out of spirit, but usually excellent, and Creighton Hale delightful. Adolphe Menjou gives another performance, almost equalling his work in "A Woman of Paris" but lacks opportunities. Others unimportant.
Type of Story ..... Based on the complications ensuing when a disillusioned wife starts to flirt with the husband of her best friend, and when he tries to avoid her. This, plus the fact that the husband's business associate is in love with his partner's wife brings on one situation more delightful than another. A thread of a story but so skilfully handled; so full of unusual treatment, that it brings satisfaction with every frame of film. The handling of the production is the all important matter. Lubitsch shows a school of direction which may well be considered by important American directors. His touches, his ideas, the lack of heavy backgrounds; the atmosphere plan are all done with a master's hand. The simplicity of production is equalled only by Chaplin's "A Woman of Paris." The titling might have been improved, although the titles are scarce. That is why they might have been better.
Box Office Angle ..... Should get over nicely. Perhaps in its subtleness a bit over the heads of the average fans; it will be welcomed enthusiastically by those who want something different in their screen entertainment.
Exploitation .... Get them in. The rest will be easy. Tell them this is a real step forward in picture making, and a delightful comedy as well. Use Lubitsch's name; remind them he made Mary's latest, and that in this modern society comedy he shows ability as demonstrated in "Rosita" and "Passion." Use the names of the players. They will be remembered for other Warner successes.
Direction ..... Ernst Lubitsch splendid. All that was expected of him, and more.
Author ..... Lothar Schmidt
Scenario ... Paul Bern and Lubitsch
Cameraman .... Charles Van Eager
Photography ..... Excellent

Herbert Rawlinson in
"Jack O'Clubs"
Universal

As a Whole ..... SOMEWHAT BETTER VEHICLE THAN USUAL BUT RAWLINSON FAILS TO IMPROVE WITH IT. MAY SATISFY WHERE THEY CAN STAND FOR STAR'S OVERACTING.

Star ..... Just can't seem to act natural. The most unimportant incidents, and bits that don't require any particular effort, are all overdone by Rawlinson either in physical motion or facial expression.

Cast .... Ruth Dwyer gives promise of stepping into Gladys Walton's shoes in her particular style of playing and characterization. Eddie Gribbon a first rate "tough guy." Others Edith Ralston, Florence Lee, Johnny Fox, Jr.

Type of Story .... Romance in the language of the lower East Side. There is some good comedy of a typically lower class neighborhood variety, with the titles just as tough as the people are supposed to be. The continual reference to "skirts," "coppers," "guys," and the like, plus a genuinely low brow atmosphere, almost tends to make the spectator feel like talking out of the side of his mouth and swagger along in Bowery fashion after viewing "Jack O'Clubs." So much for the realism that director Hill injects.

The story has to do with patrolman Foley who incurs the wrath of Spike Kennedy, gang leader and fight promoter, when he pays too much attention to Spike's girl, Tillie Miller. During a fight in the cabaret where Tillie works, she is injured and Foley accused. She recovers and falls in love with Foley, who, meantime has been losing his nerve because of the accusation. It leads to a ring fight between Foley and Spike with Foley an easy victor, both ways.

Box Office Angle ..... Good for downtown trade and there isn't anything in the picture to offend a better class audience if you think you can amuse them with a comedy of the East Side. If the star has a following, it will probably go well enough. It's a better story than some they have been giving him even though he doesn't take advantage of it.

Exploitation ..... The title is good and should be easy to put over. Use large ad sheets consisting of a playing card, jack of clubs. This might be used in teaser fashion at first and later follow it with announcements of the play date. Distribute throwaways in the form of playing cards and allow those receiving the "Jack O'Clubs" to use them as admission tickets.

Direction ..... Robert F. Hill
Author ..... Gerald Beaumont
Scenario ..... Rex Taylor
Cameraman ..... William Thornley
Locale ..... New York City
Photography ..... All right

"The Stranger From the North"

Maritime Prod.—State Rights
As a Whole ..... LUMBER CAMP STORY RATHER SLIGHT IN SUBSTANCE BUT MANAGES TO HOLD THE INTEREST SATISFACTORILY; COULD HAVE HAD MORE PICTORIAL APPEAL.

Cast....Richard Travers one of those he-man heroes who goes into a lumber camp and fights a whole band of disgruntled workers into submission. Gives a suitable performance and Ruth Dwyer a pleasing but poorly dressed heroine. As the daughter of a wealthy timber dealer she might be expected to dress much better. Charles E. Graham over exercises as the stubborn father. Does too much gesticulating in his acting. Others James McDuff, P. C. Hartigan, Louis Dean, DeSacia Moores.

Type of Story.....Lumber camp drama of a familiar order for the most part. The owner of a large timberland is threatened with ruin by a syndicate. Besides the worry of this, he finds that the boss of his men is attentive to his daughter in spite of his order that none of the men were to speak to her. Hero arrives in camp and for no apparent reason is subject to harsh treatment on all sides. The foreman calls all the men off the job, making ruin for the owner almost certain. At the same time he plans to elope with his employer's daughter. But hero, true to tradition, gets busy at the crucial moment, supplies men to rush the work through, wins the esteem of the owner, gives villain his due and returns with the girl who admits she loved him all the time. In spite of a cut-and-dried plot the director has succeeded in sustaining the interest effectively and there are occasional action bits to help it along. Inasmuch as the picture was apparently filmed in Nova Scotia, the Land of Evangeline, it to be regretted that there are not more pretty shots of this country.

Box Office Angle.....Will do adequately for one time showing and might be bolstered up with good short reel subjects, a scenic picture in particular showing views of the Land of Evangeline, the locale of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's celebrated poem.

Exploitation....Play up the story as a drama of the lumber camps and since the locale is something of a change from the usual run of pictures, you might let them know that the action is laid in Nova Scotia. For your women folks mention the romance of the girl who read "Evangeline" and imagined every man she met was patterned after the lover in Longfellow's poem.

Direction .... John W. Noble; adequate on the whole.
Author ..... John W. Noble
Scenario ..... Not credited
Cameramen ..... Ned Van Buren
Photography ..... Poor in interiors
Locale ..... Nova Scotia
Length ..... 5,700 feet

"Marry in Haste"

Phil Goldstone—State Rights
As a Whole...CONVENTIONAL DOMESTIC RELATIONS, THEME; FAIRLY DULL STORY ALTHOUGH SINCERITY OF PLAYERS HELPS RELIEVE THE MONOTONY TO NO LITTLE DEGREE.

Cast....Dorothy Revier and William Fairbanks struggle bravely with rather commonplace roles and strike a pretty high average at that. Gladden James a not over precocious villain. No others important in the story.

Type of Story...Drama. "Marry In Haste" contains a very trite plot, one of those ever popular and overdone marital dramas of the "love in a cottage" variety. It has no suspense and consequently a poorly sustained interest. In fact there is little to recommend the offering except perhaps the rather sincere efforts of William Fairbanks and Dorothy Revier to convince you of the earnestness of their plight. But you know from the start that when the girl leaves New York and her artist friends for the ranch home of her supposedly rich husband that there's bound to be trouble. It arrives in the form of his father's refusal to accept his son's wife. Subsequently they make their home in a rude hut with ensuing hardships as a result of the husband's sudden row with his father and lack of funds. Enter a villain who casually suggests the usual remedy—to flee with him. How the wife decides to stick to her husband when she learns he entered a boxing contest and was injured trying to earn money to send her on a vacation, complete the yarn.

Box Office Angle....Not a decided bet but you may be able to satisfy an average audience. There is an angle of the picture that might make it a good number providing you cater to transient trade consisting chiefly of male patronage, and that is the fight sequence Exploitation....Here's not a bad title for you to work on, which is all the more unfortunate since you will probably not find the picture worthy of the exploitation other than the ordinary routine. Use the old adage "Marry In Haste" and repent at leisure is an old but true saying. So look before you leap by seeing the picture at the blank theater." There are no names in connection with the picture that will mean anything to your patrons so resort to stills, etc. A trailer of the fight might serve to interest your men patrons.

Direction....Duke Horne; ordinary; injects no suspense; certainly didn't waste any money.

Author ..... Jean Duvane

Cameraman ..... Not credited
Photography ..... All right
Locale ....New York and western ranch.
Length ..... About 5,000 feet

"Week End Husbands"

Producer: Daniel Carson Goodman
Distributor: Equity—State Rights

As a Whole.....FOLLOWS IN THE FOOTSTEPS OF PREVIOUS JAZZ PICTURES AND USES THE ALWAYS POPULAR MARITAL DIFFICULTIES OF A MOST FAMILIAR FORMULA.

Cast.....Contains Alma Rubens, Maurice Costello, H. E. Herbert. Charles Byers and Sally Crute; all work terribly hard to satisfy the director who apparently had them going at a great pace. Hard for anyone to make much of an impression in such a poor picture.

Type of Story....A most conventional, frivolous concoction with situations that are intended to develop into a moral which, according to a title, is to the effect that those who think marriage the end of romance, should consider the plight of the heroine, Betty, and then realize that marriage is only the beautiful beginning. That they'll believe it, or be convinced by what transpires in "Week End Husbands" is very doubtful. Where the recent influx of jazz pictures has been cordially greeted it is possible that another picture with the same atmosphere will not be amiss, but where they require good solid, sensible entertainment they will hardly be satisfied with the silly business of "Week End Husbands." The husband supplies the wife with the luxuries which she requires but doesn't tell her that his bootlegging business is the means, nor that this is the reason for his extended absences from home. Meantime she amuses herself in typical modern fashion. The break comes. She goes to Paris. He is arrested. She attempts suicide but recovers in time for a reunion with the husband who uses his last cent to clear his name. They continue "happy though broke."

Box Office Angle....Depends upon the people you cater to. If you think the jazz angle of it will appeal, you should know how to go after the business. Certainly the title caters to a definite class of patronage and will readily attract those to whom it will suggest something a bit spicy.

Exploitation....Shouldn't be hard at all if you really want to bring them in. The title will catch the eyes of many. Equity has prepared a campaign book that is replete with suggestions for advertising and exploitation. Get one and make use of it. Use the name of Alma Rubens in your announcements and recall her work in "Under the Red Robe" if you plan it.

Direction.....E. H. Griffith; fair to poor.

Short Subjects

"Plastigrams"—Ives-Leventhal
Some New Thrills

Type of production... 1 reel novelty

One of the latest screen novelties is "Plastigrams," a form of stereopticon film which requires special colored glasses to view them properly. The effect is, at first, startling and then amusing. The object of "Plastigrams" is apparently to afford thrills for the audience. You look through the glasses and the objects on the screen appear to jump out at you. For instance, pictures of a crawling turtle, after being viewed for a moment, take the form of actuality and the turtle appears to be right up to your nose. Objects selected are, of course, of a nature to provide thrills such as, a hose pointed toward you, traffic jams in which you fear an impact at any moment, etc. A first rate novelty and wholly amusing.

"Keep Going"—Century—Universal
Good Number of Its Type

Type of production 2 reel comedy

This is a more than usually entertaining Century comedy, featuring Jack Earle and Harry McCoy, and a cute little girl whose name is not mentioned. Jack Earle is the very tall man on the Century lot and in this comedy his job is that of a traffic cop. He is the favored suitor of the girl who is also loved by Harry McCoy. There isn't much to the action, but the gags are funny, and the finish with the girl falling into the lake and the boys afraid to rescue her is lively. A particularly amusing bit is the sequence in which the cross-eyed taxi driver figures. His name isn't mentioned either, but it should be.

"Over the Fence"—Educational
Much Good Kid Play

Type of production... 2-reel comedy

This Juvenile Comedy, Educational release, starts out to be a film on the order of the "Our Gang" comedies, with a group of youngsters holding club quarters "Over the Fence." They have a glorious time of it rejecting undesirable members and for the time the offering promises to give forth a goodly share of laughs. But it lapses into slapstick with one of the youngsters taken into the home of a rich aunt. His rough-neck pals make a mess of the place and it ends in typical pie-throwing fashion. Will amuse youngsters, of course.

"Quit Kidding"—Century—Universal
Pleasingly Fast Action

Type of production... 2 reel comedy

Pirates, mysterious crooks, hidden treasure, and the ever-present "map" figure largely in this Buddy Messenger comedy, in which Buddy is a messenger boy that gets mixed up in a lot of trouble while delivering a telegram notifying a pirate's grandson that there is treasure hidden in this home. The action is fast enough to keep them from thinking about the helter-skelter plot and there is plenty of the sliding panel-trap-door stuff to please those who enjoy it. On-the-whole a satisfactory offering.

"Rockbound Brittany"—Fox
Interesting Views

Type of production... 1 reel educational

This latest Fox Educational contains many interesting views of Brittany, which, despite modern civilization, apparently prefers to retain the old methods and fashions. Its people, towns, industries, etc. make a quaintly picturesque and interesting educational reel, valuable because of the variety which it gives to your program and because it depicts "how the other half lives." Good short subject number.

"Easy Work"—Universal
Neither Funny Nor High Class

Type of production... 1 reel comedy

Slim Summerville and Bobby Dunn are the featured players in this one-reeler, in which the comedy is wholly of the slap-stick variety, and not very funny at that. Slim tries to beat Bobby to a chauffeur's job, by knocking him down but when he arrives to apply for the position, Bobby is already driving the car. Later both are married to rich women but finding themselves broke, they plot to steal Bobby's wife's necklace of pearls. The inference in this sequence borders on the risqué, when the pearls are seen to slip down the décolleté corsage of the lady's gown and Slim is later chased from the house by Bobby's pistol after handing him the necklace. The audience is, however, aware that the pearls fell to the floor where Slim found them.

"Old Friends"—Sing Them Again
Series—Educ'l
A Fine Number

Type of production... 1 reel novelty

This is another of the "Sing Them Again" series. In this issue, the old songs that are picturized and brought back to memory are "She Was Bred in Old Kentucky," "Two Little Girls in Blue" and last, but decidedly not least, a stirring picturization of "The Star Spangled Banner." This might well be used on any program. There are some exceedingly good war shots picturizing this last song. Incidentally, the titles throughout are excellent, as is the photography.

Leo Garner Has an Idea or Two on the Way Pictures Are Advertised from New York Showings
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Leo G. Garner, manager of the Columbia, Bristol, Tenn., writes:

"Picking up a recent issue of THE FILM DAILY I notice a full page ad elaborating on what a certain picture did at the Strand last Sunday. This is great copy, and should be the means of pulling heavier rentals from the boys in the small towns.

"If every picture was as good as it is advertised we would all get rich. The trouble with the industry today lies in the quality of productions. Every picture is advertised as a knock-out and a clean-up, but none of the flivvers ever get notice, or, perhaps there are no flivvers in New York. Maybe they don't flivver until they get down to the small towns.

"One of these days a producer with a conscience is going to run an ad something like the following:

(Blue) MONDAY
At The IGNATZ

At THREE O'CLOCK before supper they couldn't sell any tickets because nobody asked for 'em.

At FIVE bells nobody showed up. At SIX something (Central time) a man bought a ticket explaining that his wife was looking for him and he was sure she wouldn't come to the IGNATZ.

There were four ushers, three film salesmen and two policemen in the house (all gratis customers). At SEVEN ELEVEN the police reserves passed by (they were going to a bootleggers ball). At EIGHT FOUR, or SIX (we forget the exact time), the absentees were still absent. At NINE SIXTY, one or two people came in out of the storm—the lobby was empty—5000 seats also empty. At TEN TWO & SEVEN EIGHTHS the fire department came in. (They never pay) and one disappointed exhibitor left the theater—he couldn't hold out 'till the finish.

Al Lichtman Disposes of His Share in Preferred—Was a Third Partner

Al Lichtman on Friday disposed of his interest in Preferred. When he stepped out of the company last Fall, he took with him a one-third interest in the organization. His partners were B. P. Schulberg and J. G. Bachmann.

Although no longer actively concerned with Preferred's management, Lichtman's financial interest continued while he was busy at Universal as general manager of exchanges. The terms of the settlement were not announced.

Schulberg expects to leave for the coast in about a week.

Shipman Explains

Ernest Shipman, in commenting on the dissolution of Ernest Shipman Attractions in Albany writes:

"Ernest Shipman Attractions was incorporated by myself in 1903 and was one of my old theatrical companies. We have recently desired to change the name of the S. R. T. Pictures, Inc., another company I am interested in, to Ernest Shipman Prod., Inc., but could not do so while the old name was on file at Albany, they both being quite similar. It was necessary, therefore, for my attorneys to dissolve the Ernest Shipman Attractions, and the new name of Ernest Shipman Prod., Inc., is now clear for my use."

Los Angeles—Grand-Asher will distribute a series of "Laugh-O-Graphs," described as joke pictures portrayed by living actors. George H. Kern, formerly with Christie comedies will produce them. Work starts shortly.

Foreign Films Here

The newly-formed Russian Art Film Co., which will handle foreign films in this market will represent the Deutsch-Amerikanische Film Union (Dafu) of Berlin, as well as "Proletkino" of Moscow. The German films include, "Nosferatu," said to be a weird film like "Caligari," a costume production, "Queen Caroline of England," a one reel airplane trip over the Alps and a surgical film. The Russian subjects include Tolstoy's "Polikushka," a two reel comedy, "The Miracle of the Soldier Ivan," and an assortment of short historical subjects from 1917 to 1923.

Change Minds Toward Normand

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Indianapolis—In retracting the statements made several weeks ago regarding the pictures of Mabel Normand, the Indiana Indorsers of Photoplays have sent to Floyd Lewis, of Associated Exhibitors, Inc., a letter stating a change of attitude apparently due to the fact that the indorsers viewed a private screening of "The Extra Girl."

Sunset Plans Four Units

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Sunset Prod. has started work on another Kenneth McDonald feature, "After a Million." Jack Nelson is directing. In addition to the J. B. Warner and McDonald series Anthony Xydias is planning two additional units. Ernest Van Pelt has been engaged as supervising director.

Emil Ascher Dead

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—Emil Ascher, father of Ascher Bros., is dead at the age of 72.

In The Courts

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—Charles Erbstein, attorney, has filed suit against Jones, Linick & Schaefer and Ralph T. Kettering, publicity manager, for $25,000. The suit is based on a story appearing in newspapers to the effect that Erbstein, with his staff from his broadcasting station WTAS, Elgin, would appear on the stage in the Rialto in conjunction with L. Wolfe Gilbert, headliner on the program.

Chadwick Release Monthly

Chadwick Pictures intend state righting a feature monthly. There will be four producing units all told. Hunt Stromberg will head one; John Gorman, another; Ivan Abramson, a third and Edmund Lawrence, a fourth. Stromberg's first is "The Fire Patrol." Abramson and Lawrence will work jointly on the first picture, "Meddling Women," for which Lionel Barrymore has been engaged. Later, they will produce individually. Stories purchased for production include "The Romance of an Actress," "Driven from Home," "The Shamrock and The Rose," "The Coast Guard" and "Sunshine of Paradise Alley." Roger Ferri has been engaged to handle publicity and advertising.

Chicago Premiere Monday

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—Hugo Riesefeld is here to supervise the premiere of "The Ten Commandments," at the Woods, on Monday.

said the stars are shown a certain deference because of their position, but that a group of about 3,000 principal playing important parts and regularly are not always so justly dealt with. About 2,000 of these principals are members of the Equity, according to the union's figures.

"Most of the producers are fair and in many instances are not aware of the treatment accorded members of their casts," said Gillmore. "Very often some subordinate is responsible for what he thinks is a clever stroke of business which works out to the disadvantage of the actor or actress. We want to systematize conditions and set a standard which all producers will have to live up to, including those who may enter the field in the future."

Governor At Edison Lunch

Governor Smith will attend the luncheon to be given in honor of Thomas A. Edison at the Ritz Carlton next Friday. Theodor Roosevelt will be one of the speakers and Senators Watson of Indiana and Edwards of New Jersey will attend. The tickets are being sold rapidly. Those interested can purchase them through George Kleine 'phone Bryant 8977.

Artclass Has New Release

Artclass Pictures will release "The Fall of Jerusalem," on the state right market. The picture is in six reels.

"Anna Christie"—1st Nat'l Warfield, San Francisco

(Week ending Feb. 2)

BULLETIN—In a word the picture is destined to occupy the same place on the screen that the play does on the stage. Blanche Sweet essays the title role in the picture and her work is finished and satisfactory in every respect.

CALL—Blanche Sweet has the role of Anna, and gives to it what may well be called the outstanding portrayal of her career. ** It has been rated one of the stage's greatest plays and will no doubt find a like place in the annals of the screen.

CHRONICLE—** a triumph for Ince, John Griffith Wray, who directed its making, and for Blanche Sweet. **

DAILY NEWS—O'Neill's drama was drawn with a fine delineation of characters that has been excellently interpreted by the powerful screen cast presented by Ince.

EXAMINER—** worthy enough entertainment. Eugene O'Neill's finely etched dialogue, his character drawing as developed through the speeches of his three principal characters ** are sadly lacking in the Thomas Ince film translation. ** Nevertheless, Blanche Sweet gives her finest cinema interpretation.

"Big Brother"—F. P.-L. Colonial, Indianapolis

NEWS—A new star and an amazingly good one ** Mickey Bennett ** who gives a remarkable performance of the alley youngster as Jackie Coogan did in "The Kid." He "runs away" with the picture ** one of the better productions of the current season. STAR—Allan Dwan has succeeded in building up a story of unusual appeal ** Tom Moore is fine as the gangster.

Karlton, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—Sticky with maudlin sentimentality yet fairly interesting ** It is no sort of thing that has been done over and over again in books, stories, sermons, plays and the movies.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The director has packed some strong dramatic punches in it and blended his humor and pathos well but it virtually remains the usual melodramatic version of the underworld where crook comes out clean with a little child lead him.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—The only objection that one might find with it is that sometimes there is too much sentimentality—a little too much sob stuff.

RECORD—A sentimental and dramatic story of a gang leader who tries to go straight after becoming the "Big Brother" of a boy he wanted to grow up like his leader. ** Edith Roberts winsome and charming.

NORTH AMERICAN—The producers checked an excellent team in Tom Moore and Mickey Bennett. The director, Allan Dwan, serves credit for a number of realistic touches.

The Call of the Canyon"—F. P.-L. Eastman, Rochester

HERALD—It is difficult to imagine why such a thing is screened. ** It drags in everything from the world war to horseback riding, sand storms, modern jazz and a typical hand to hand fight between "redblooded" men. ** they used to sell these stories on the street for ten cents.

POST EXPRESS—Sounds like a typical western picture but it isn't. ** There are some daring gowns and society crap games.

TIMES-UNION—The play is worth seeing for the shots of Arizona scenery alone, many of which have a breath-taking beauty.

"Daddies"—Warners' Metropolitan, Baltimore

NEWS—Mae Marsh has chief role in play about a bachelors' club.

EVENING SUN—This Warner Bros. picture is a scream ** story ** funny ** fine cast ** the whole picture is a light, bubbling comedy remarkably well acted and just as well directed.

"Don't Call It Love"—F. P.-L. New Lyric, Minneapolis

STAR—As diverting a film as anyone is likely to encounter on any program ** ** Roque easily deserves especial mention.

"The Eternal City"—1st Nat'l Grauman's, Los Angeles

(Week ending Feb. 2)

EXPRESS—Personally I can see no reason for this "modernization" of classics. ** Accepting this the modernized story is a good one. It is smoothly joined and contains many sizeable thrills. ** Particularly fine and significant were the mob assemblies. ** The interior shots are rarely lovely, in composition and lighting.

RECORD—Trying to forget the propaganda and considering "The Eternal City," simply as a motion picture, one is swept emotionally by the appeal of pictorial beauty. ** The actors themselves are excellent.

HERALD—The picture comprised a touching creation of cinematic art bearing on the internal struggles of Italy. ** The picture has been directed very beautifully by Mr. Fitzmaurice.

TIMES—** Outside of the exquisite qualities of setting and the interest that you may find in the people, it is pretty much home-made movie.

EXAMINER—Fitzmaurice has directed the film to the end that beauty is uppermost throughout. Italian landscape and urban settings have been caught with an intensity that is almost suffocating in beauty. ** He has kept his story well in mind. **

DAILY NEWS—"The Eternal City" is recommended as a remarkable production which you mustn't miss.

Capitol, Montreal

STAR—The story is well told, coherently, dramatically, directly, and with an absence of circumlocution and intricacy as welcome as it is rare. The cast is one of quite unusual capacity and skill, and the leading roles are interpreted with authority. **

"The Extra Girl"—Asso. Exhibitors Ohio, Indianapolis

NEWS—Picture is notable only because Mabel Normand is in it. Mack Sennett apparently kept only one eye open for humorous situations for there are few laughs except during those moments when Miss Normand gets up a little impromptu fun.

STAR—One of the finest and incidentally cleanest comedies Mabel Normand has appeared in for a long time. "The Extra Girl" is a sister to "Merton of the Movies."

"Fair Week"—F. P.-L. Missouri, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—** Walter Hiers, who is cast admirably and plays his part superbly. ** Throughout the picture the tempo never lags and there is genuine comedy, realistic interpretation of the rural characterizations and thrills galore.

POST-DISPATCH—It is a comedy drama, clean, full of laughs and with enough thrills to satisfy anyone.

TIMES—An excellent burlesque ** No labels are needed for the characters. They are standard types, tried and true. And the situations develop in a perfectly patent way, to an obvious conclusion.

"Flaming Passion"—Warners' Regent, Rochester

HERALD—Some of the photography is startlingly fine or perhaps it isn't the photography but the direction. At any rate, many of the individual pictures show a remarkably fine artistic conception and compositional scene. ** The picture contains several genuine physical thrills.

POST EXPRESS—A gorgeously staged forest fire that would make the most blasé and sceptical spectator sit up and hold his breath ** the picture is acted excellently.

TIMES UNION—High pressure melodrama packed with manufactured thrills and with dramatic climaxes of the very obvious sort. It abounds also in inaccuracies. ** with all its faults it will amuse you if you go prepared for melodrama of the old school and leave your critical faculties at home.

"Going Up"—Asso. Exhibitors Merrill, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—It is one laugh from start to finish, the story contributing quite as much to the merriment as the star **

"Half-A-Dollar Bill"—Metro Delmonte, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—"Half a Dollar Bill" is a mystery melodrama film which holds the onlookers spellbound almost every minute of its seven reels and introduces a child actor new to the screen fans, who promises to become a star in short order. He is little Frankie Darro, ** The interior shots are rarely lovely, in composition and lighting.

POST DISPATCH—Here are combined heart throbs, rare touches of comedy, beautiful sea views and a remarkably fine performance by a boy actor, Frankie Darro.

TIMES—There are excellent sea scenes, including a storm, and some good character acting by Anna Q. Nilsson **

"In the Palace of the King"—Gold-Cosmop. Roosevelt, Chicago

JOURNAL—Another of those highly decorative pictures of court intrigue ** the players are always exquisite so consider the spectacle as an optional treat and let it go at that.

NEWS—June Mathis who did the scenario gets more credit from this picture than anybody. None of the acting is inspired. The scenery and the photography are perhaps too big to allow the actors to flame.

POST—A picture you will thoroughly enjoy for the producer have not allowed lavish settings to overshadow the real story in any way and the romantic love theme dominates everything.

"Judgment of the Storm"—F. B. O. Modern-Beacon—Boston

TRANSCRIPT—As the settings and incidents are stereotyped so too are the personages of the plot ** a number of capable actors lend their presumable best to "Judgment of the Storm" ** it will not add to their reputation to mention them by name in this present instance.

Apollo, Indianapolis

NEWS—A bit too melodramatic in spots perhaps, it nevertheless has the appeal of all "good theater." ** you may be able to guess the outcome but you will be interested in all the details just the same.

STAR—Mrs. Middleton (the authoress) has composed a story out of the elements of the more successful "audiences" pictures that have gone before.

Fays, Rochester

HERALD—It has plenty of sentiment but it moves too rapidly to let it get sticky ** The acting is generally admirable.

POST EXPRESS—A rather highly colored drama in which a young man voluntarily enters a state of virtual bondage, prompted by an unusual sense of honor.

"The Lone Star Ranger"—Fox Granada, San Francisco

(Week ending Feb. 2)

BULLETIN—The best Western photoplay brought to the screen for a long time. **

CALL—** Tom Mix ** comes into his own and gives a flawless interpretation which stamps him an actor of unlimited resources.

DAILY NEWS—Plenty of hard riding, a sufficiency of gun fights, and a typical Zane Grey plot will make "The Lone Star Ranger" acceptable to most Tom Mix devotees. **

"The Man From Brodney's"—Vita. Cameo, San Francisco

(Week ending Feb. 2)

BULLETIN—** Is a colorful story of romance and adventure. ** A beautiful love theme runs through the story.

CHRONICLE—The story hurries along in true movie fashion with exaggerated suspense, but a great deal of interest for the spectator, and some pretty good acting by the cast.

"Name the Man"—Gold-Cosmop. Allen, Cleveland

(Week ending Feb. 2)

NEWS—Shows he (Seastrom) is a master of photodramatic art ** There is a wealth of vigorous action which entertains ** ideally cast.

PLAIN DEALER—It will go more than halfway toward making Seastrom a household name. ** Mae Busch gives one of the finest performances in her career. ** great moments and mightily handled.

PRESS—Whatever else is to be seen in the picture one finds in it an intelligently sceptical viewpoint which may be ascribed to Seastrom.

Imperial, San Francisco

BULLETIN—The theme of the story is bold, yet in the screen version the facts are definitely established without any resemblance to vulgarity. Seastrom, if in no other manner, has demonstrated his ability to handle a delicate subject. **

CALL—** Seastrom has not been found wanting in this his first American trial. He has made of "The Master of Man" a photodrama of great emotional intensity. ** he has made of it photographically an artistic masterpiece.

CHRONICLE—Seastrom has the eye of an artist and he uses it, and also a good head which he puts to a good purpose in his direction. ** Many moments of emotional stress that have the ring of genuineness are to be found in the picture, and there is much good acting. **

COMING SOON

AL CHRISTIE
SPECIAL FEATURES
FOR
HODKINSON RELEASE
FIRST RUN PICTURES

DAILY NEWS—Victor Seastrom's picture is as fine as Hall Caine's novel was bad. In fact, it is one of the best pictures in several seasons. Lovers of photodrama will appreciate the freshness of the Swedish director's technique. * * *

EXAMINER—* * * in point of dramatic power and interest, ranks among the very best of the current releases. * * * well reflects the genius of this European director, * * *

Grand Central-West End Lyric Capitol, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—It is a masterpiece of straightforward story telling and splendid acting. Generally known as Caine's most outspoken and sensational novel, "The Master of Man" is entertaining and constantly builds towards one dynamic situation that makes a great "punch" in the picture.

POST-DISPATCH—Old-fashioned sentimental drama * * * There are some impressive mob scenes * * * but the rabble is dispersed with ridiculous ease * * *

STAR—* * * makes fairly good entertainment but suffers with most other works in the tendency of most directors to wield too liberal a brush. * * * Much of the drama is kept in the film play, however, and the picture, all in all, is gripping.

TIMES—Thus, "Name the Man" may have made exciting reading as a novel, but somehow, on the screen, appears melodramatic, although this strong story has many fine moments, and is well acted.

"Napoleon and Josephine"—S. R. Columbia, Washington

DAILY NEWS—Especially thrilling was the Battle of Waterloo and the charge of the Cuirassiers into the famous sunken road. * * * It is a picture to see, especially if you are a student of history or a worshipper of Napoleon.

HERALD—A tremendous screen study of the romance and career of Napoleon * * * a superb dramatic-historical spectacle * * * The producer has given us some of the mightiest spectacles in the whole Napoleonic career. Among these spectacles is a re-enactment of the battle of Waterloo that, for magnitude and dramatic force, is probably unequalled in screen history.

POST—* * * the attempt to make a connected story of Napoleon's career * * * very nearly thwarts the effectiveness of the theme. But Napoleon triumphs over the scenario writers as he did over his martial enemies, and the last half of the picture is as moving and artistic an historical production as Washington has witnessed for some time. The word artistic should be especially stressed, for across the screen there flash at frequent intervals pictures of such beauty and imagination that the director's inspiration must surely have been some masterpiece in the Louvre or Luxembourg.

STAR—* * * the photoplay is practically so much history filmed on a screen instead of printed between the pages of a book—allowing for fictional touches of "heart interest" * * *

The retreat from Moscow, the burning city and the endless plains of snow give a tremendously realistic sense of what the genuine thing must have been * * *

The portrayal of Napoleon, by Gwylm Evans, unites a curious resemblance of face and figure to the painting of the emperor, * * * Gertrude McCoy makes an excellent Josephine and the seemingly countless members of the cast represented a vitally real whole.

TIMES—Europe * * * has thrown a challenge at the feet of American photoplay producers. * * * Gwylm Evans gives a splendid interpretation of the character of Napoleon and Gertrude Mc Coy deserves only praise in the tragic role of Empress Josephine. Real artistry is displayed in the scenic effects—some of which would challenge the old masters.

"The Old Fool"—Hodkinson Broadway, Los Angeles

(Week ending Feb. 2)

EXAMINER—* * * Venturini directed and, all in all, did a creditable job of it. Some of the exterior shots are particularly notable; good composition, good lighting.

EXPRESS—While the story is of a somewhat patent nature and its episodes abound in hokum, there is a human quality in many of its scenes that saves the day.

RECORD—* * * Some good actors in the cast and some who seem to be "graduates" of film acting schools; some interesting moments in the story and a lot of dragged out unessentials; some exquisite photography and a great deal of very ordinary photography.

HERALD—A western film of the cleaner sort is "The Old Fool."

"Pied Piper Malone"—F. P.-L. Palace, Washington

HERALD—No photoplay of the winter offers more elements of delight and appeal than "Pied Piper Malone" * * * Mr. Tarkington has written few stories more gripping in suspense and romantic force * * *

POST—* * * a good moving picture. Considering those responsible for it, it couldn't very well be otherwise. How could a director go wrong who is given a story by Booth Tarkington, a leading man like Thomas Meighan, and such stars as pretty Lois Wilson and the venerable George Fawcett for the supporting role?

STAR—* * * it is unfortunate that good vehicles are not found for him always. In the offering at the Palace this week Tommy makes the most of a weak role, but "Pied Piper Malone" is too namby-pamby for such an artist * * *

TIMES—If you like Tom, you will like him better as "Uncle Jack" in his new picture, for it is the most human we have seen in some time, not ordinary, but just genuinely human, * * * "Pied Piper Malone" is just chuck full of those little things you do every day * * *

"Roulette"—Selznick Central, Washington

DAILY NEWS—The story is old enough, with everything from fixed cards to a gamble with human life.

HERALD—* * * melodramatic story of the gambling tables * * *

POST—* * * an interesting drama * * * The production is abnormally one, that adheres to a standard of artistic excellence quite commensurate with the brilliance of the cast.

STAR—* * * it is, of course, melodramatic, and its photography is good, better, perhaps, than the lesson of the story.

TIMES—* * * Acted by a cast of actors, each of whom is a star in his own right, the picture should prove one of unusual merits, but for some reason, the interest required to put a picture over, is lacking.

"The Song of Love"—1st Nat'l Palace, Montreal

STAR—* * * a stirring melodrama * * * The photography is good, and in one particular, at any rate, this film is notable, * * *

"Sporting Youth"—Universal The Boston, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—They will thrill to the rapidity of plot, the dramatic thrust, the taut strung suspense, the melodramatic climax which characterize the film. Few serials of the older cinema could touch "Sporting Youth."

"The Stranger"—F. P.-L. Metropolitan, L. A.

(Week ending Feb. 2)

DAILY NEWS—* * * Offers Tully Marshall an opportunity to do the best work of his stage and screen career. Richard Dix is adequate in the role which doesn't seem to fit his particular personality. Lewis Stone, as always, is gracious and dignified. Betty Compson is capable and alluring, but not in this cinema offering.

TIMES—The picture has atmosphere, to be sure; at times it is even earnest and convincing. * * * The surroundings are sordid and the action lacks vigor and reality, and consequently somehow the picture is minus the bigger elements of a truly human struggle and remains just drab.

EXAMINER—* * * Henabery directed the production and preserved the deep tone and the heavy drama of the original story. Betty Compson shows up better than she has in a long time.

EXPRESS—* * * It is commendable that so sterling a quartet of actors was chosen for so important a task. None of the poignancy of "The Stranger's" dilemma is lost in the vivid portrayal by Tully Marshall. * * *

RECORD—* * * The most notable product of the Lasky film works has turned out in months. It was made with surprising economy of hokum, it's story told with fine dramatic craftsmanship. And another surprise is the excellence of the acting, especially that of Betty Compson.

HERALD—Director Henabery's faithfulness to this realism gives each and every member of the cast a chance. * * * It would seem that the director might be a bit at fault in failing to take advantage of some of the finer points in the original John Galsworthy story.

"Through the Dark"—Gold.-Cosmop. New, Baltimore

AMERICAN—* * * as thrilling a thriller as the screen has so far known, * * * a wov of a picture, as they say in the quaint patois of the Great White Way. George Hill, the director, has turned out one of the liveliest melodramas I have ever seen.

Park-Mall, Cleveland

NEWS—The picture is "preachy" through its subtitles and presents no new mode in this type of screen story.

PLAIN DEALER—Nine out of ten picture-goers greet a good crook story with open arms and we think this is good enough to deserve that kind of a reception. It is essentially an action picture.

PRESS—A fast picture full of action. The plot is better than the average and the cast is excellent with the exception of Colleen Moore.

Metropolitan, Wash.

DAILY NEWS—This Colleen (Moore) can act. "Through the Dark" is a fine crook melodrama. It has more good old-fashioned thrills to the reel than anything we've seen these many months.

POST—If you like action—go to it. There is but one flaw in the story. That is a lack of characterization. It is all plot. It is a gripping, thrilling story with plenty of punch and action.

STAR—It has all the elements of cheap melodrama, with enough thrills, high spots and climaxes to provide material for three pictures. There is reason, therefore, to be thankful that this was not done.

TIMES—Cosmopolitan has a winner * * * It contains everything that makes for good cinema entertainment. The plot is fascinating in its complications and the manner in which they work out toward the logical conclusion * * *

"Tribly"—1st Nat'l Alhambra, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—* * * Andree Lafayette, * * * is the most refreshingly natural actress the camera has registered in many a day. May no American director spoil her, we pray!

"Twenty-One"—1st Nat'l Stanley, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—Delightful and completely absorbing picture. It is a relief after the surfeit of sex stuff and two fisted he-man absurdities. * * * Barthlemess stands now more than any of our stars for the clean, fresh humorous and romantic in pictures.

NORTH AMERICAN—The picture is decidedly unworthy of the talents and personality of its star. From beginning to end it is artificial melodrama which could be done by any sort of actor or actors.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—Vastly superior to the general run of pictures * * * if insignificant as to story is a thoroughly high-class production. * * * has all the hall-marks of a John Robertson production.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—Barthlemess endears himself anew to his long list of admirers of both sexes in "Twenty-One"

RECORD—The principal role is enacted by that always pleasing and ever resourceful screen actor Richard Barthlemess.

"Unseeing Eyes"—Gold.-Cosmop. Randolph, Chicago

AMERICAN—Rapid fire action along with the ruggedly beautiful scenery lavish production and expensive cast gives assurance that lovers of melodrama and the outdoors will be pleased down to the ground.

HERALD—The best thriller of the season * * * admirably plotted for the sole and delightful emotion of excitement * * * is a melodrama * * * but what a melodrama! * * * snow shots most spectacularly beautiful.

POST—All the excitement you want in this picture. It starts right in the beginning and never lets up until the end—and by that time you are ready to admit you can't stand any more thrills.

"West of the Water Tower" F. P.-L. State, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—Like too many pictures it has its great moments and like too many it disagrees with the original text in some of the main points, destroying all imagination but making what the producers hope will be a "great audience picture."

NEWS—As meaty and interesting a tale as has reached the screen in many a day * * * Glenn Hunter has never given a more finished screen performance.

PRESS—Very human and appealing story. But it would be a far stronger and more effective picture * * * if it had followed the novel more closely.

TIMES—A powerful, realistic picture until the last few scenes when everything is made to come out happy by improbably but not impossible ending.

Adams, Detroit

FREE PRESS—Dignified, very human and true to the life of a small middle western town as its own citizens know it.

NEWS—Beautifully acted, but it has been constructed in such a manner that its moments of dramatic value are few and far between. * * * Hunter does much to help the story along.

TIMES—One of those wishy-washy sex dramas that is better not told on the screen. * * * it's plainly seen that every effort was made to keep from the screen version the suggestion of the sex drama.

Strand, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—The individual's reaction * * * will be governed by whether or not he has read Homer Croy's amazingly frank story in book form. If not, he will find it a good picture of small town life, with typical main street atmosphere and a mighty fine cast * * *

State, Minneapolis

STAR—With the exception of the changes wrought in the plot the main intent is still there. The narrow minded people who live in small town are damned for their biography and youth conquers all with love.

"Woman to Woman"—Selznick California, 'Frisco (Week ending Feb. 2)

BULLETIN—A good motion picture, well told and enhanced by judicious spectacular details.

CALL—* * * The final scene * * * is glorious in its dramatic quality—the death dance of Deloryse, in which Miss Compson rises to heights she has seldom, if ever, approached.

CHRONICLE—* * * Bring Betty Compson back looking prettier than ever and certainly exhibiting improvement in her acting. She does really fine bits here and there, through the picture. * * *

DAILY NEWS—The picture is entertaining and generally good, even if the other players, Clive Brook, the leading man, for one, are a little stolid.

EXAMINER—A fascinating picture, not strickingly original in plot nor adventurous in theme, but pleasantly occupying the thoughts of beholders. * * *

CREDIT

By DANNY

"He who steals my purse," said Willie Shakespeare, a few years ago, "steals trash. But he who robs me of my good name makes me poor indeed."

The trouble is that Willie never heard of motion picture folk. And, according to what Dr. Giannini told the independent producers, that was a great pity. Because Willie might have told them a few things in addition. And made them realize the value of credit.

A business without credit is not a business. Back in the days of the "flu" when times were tough—golly, how tough they were—we all tried to make a loan at a big bank. And showed assets of over five to one. But the bank was rough. "Not if you had ten to one," said the president, "motion picture people have no standing in here."

Times have changed since then. But that was the state of mind in many banks only a very few years ago. Giannini of the Commercial Trust; Cooper of the Guaranty Trust; Davidson of the Central Union, and one or two more, have helped a lot to bring confidence to bankers for financing this business. And when Giannini appeals for clean, decent business methods he should be heeded. Not only for the concern involved, but for the business as a whole.

Some Statistics

The Film Year Book, 1924, indicates that during the last season somewhere in the neighborhood of 550 features were released; as against over 850 during the preceding year. That's fewer pictures by a lot. And much better ones to a degree.

There are still too many pictures being made; far too many. But the trend seems in the right direction. Good, fine, pictures, deserve longer runs and more attention. The way that some of these better pictures slide away from public notice and go crowding in the treadmill of the exchange, is something frightful. And all wrong.

There's a fortune for someone who will devise a plan to keep these better grade pictures in stronger circulation. The quicker it's done, the better.

"The Extra Girl" is an honest comedy, scorning any resort to slapstick—the best film of the month," says McElliot in the Daily News, New York. Mabel Normand's best. Associated Exhibitors.—Advt.

Heavy Bookings

Understood in for "The White Sister" Which Promises to Establish a Record—Some Comment

It is understood that the bookings so far made by Metro with "The White Sister," promise to establish a record. Reports have it that where the picture is being shown that the business builds continuously, and that without unusual special exploitation this building of interest promises to carry the gross intake much higher than was expected.

While officials of Metro refuse to divulge figures, or to say anything except that the picture is doing very well, it is understood that on the basis of business written so far, and based on percentage playing, the picture will reach a very high figure.

Commenting on this a well known film man said on Saturday that he believed "The White Sister," was the turning point in the long career of Lillian Gish, who, although a splendid actress, had never proven a great box office asset. It was his belief that this picture would place her where she belongs among the big drawing cards.

Canada Not Hit

By Radio Craze—22,669 Sets in All Dominion—Few Installations in Theaters

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Toronto—The radio craze as opposition to theater business does not appear to have impressed Canadian exhibitors to any marked degree. They are not inclined to believe that the radio seriously affects business in any way. Letters from exhibitors which occasionally speak of poor business make no mention of radio.

The Toronto General Electric, who is handling radio sets throughout Canada, stated that there is little theater installation. The demand comes from the rural districts, the Canadian West proving the best market at present. Sales are slow because of the imperfections still prevailing; but it is the opinion that when radio sets become perfected they would become as popular as the graphophone.

On December 31, there were 22,669 private receiving licenses issued, divided as follows: Nova Scotia, 557; New Brunswick, 297; Prince Edward Island, 42; Quebec, 7,133; Ontario, 8,043; Manitoba, 1,269; Saskatchewan, 1,917; Alberta, 1,365; British Columbia, 2,042; Yukon and Northwest territory, 3.

Plan Coast Unit

Chadwick To Go to Coast to Organize Independents There—May Foster Exchanges

J. E. Chadwick, president of the Independent M. P. Prod. and Dist. Ass'n, Inc., will probably go to the coast shortly to organize a Western branch of the association. The work is at present being handled in Hollywood by Harry Cohn of C. B. C. and Ben Wilson.

There is a move under way in the local body to foster exchanges in several cities throughout the country such as Spokane, Wash., so that state righters can have an adequate outlet for their product. The plan provides an apportionment of the expense necessary to maintain such offices.

The name of the uniform contract adopted by the I. M. P. D. A. will probably be the Standard Equitable Leasing Agreement. One of the inter-

Many Acceptances For Edison Lunch

The following organizations have made table reservations for the Edison lunch on Friday: The F. I. L. M. Club, Universal, Metro, Goldwyn, First National, Fox, T. O. C. C., M. P. T. O. of N. Y. and M. P. Operator's Union. Tickets are going rapidly for this affair, which in every way will be a notable one.

McCabe Stories in Films

Motion Picture Arts, Inc., has acquired the Shorty McCabe stories, written by Sewell Ford. They will be produced as two reels. John L. McCutcheon will direct.

Ingram Back in March

Rex Ingram has advised Metro, that he will be back in New York in March with "The Arab." He is now completing interiors in Paris.

Fox on Coast

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—William Fox is here from New York.

It is reported he has negotiated a new contract with Shirley Mason.

Tuesday, Feb. 12 being Lincoln's Birthday and a legal holiday, there will be no issue of THE FILM DAILY published.

Existing developments now under way concerns the establishment of a properly functioning arbitration system. A plan already drawn would allow for one arbitrator representing the distributor, another representing the territorial distributors and a third drawn from the ranks of the Arbitration Society of America. This will take care of those cases in New York, while disputes concerning out-of-town matters can be handled through the appointment of an arbitrator in New York. Attorneys for the various members will meet in a few days to expound their ideas and later, a prominent, disinterested lawyer will be engaged to draw up the agreed system in adequate phraseology and pass on its legal aspects.

Exhibition and otherwise. Which leads Harry Reichenbach to comment. After reading "Coming to a Head" in your issue:

I just finished reading "Coming to a Head" in your column and wonder if you know where you utter.

Have you ever learned what portion of a film's exhibition value is ever earned. List' then I'll enlighten thee.

If a picture has an exhibition value of say, $400,000 and it costs $175,000 to make, the result will be as follows.

New York Strand will pay in rent $2940
Chicago, Chicago will pay in rent $4410
Detroit, Capitol will pay in rent $1800

Potential gross at each of these houses:

nd	$40,000	Expenses	$14,000
ago	50,000	Expenses	25,000
total	27,000	Expenses	15,000

Now. If picture cost $175,000
Prints 25,000
Distribution 100,000
Advertising 7,500

$307,000

picture ever grosses more than 65 percent of its ordained exhibition value—hence, at the suggested rate you make—the average producer would end up this season with his losses reckoned by the number of films he releases.

What's the matter with the thought that the theater first pays its overhead. The picture takes its cost and the exhibitor's overhead cost of theater and production be split. Certainly no hazard if any, is on the side of the producer.

eat either way—but for the exhibitor's sake let's get somewhere.

Getting Somewhere!

ardly. Not until percentage exhibition in fact takes its place in business. This to apply, of course, not after the second run. If applicable to first and second runs. Then if the big first runs do not pay more than 10 to 15 per cent of their gross for really good pictures they may have trouble getting them. Not until the business is readjusted at a point where the small exhibitor is less of the big burdens will the exhibition be sufficiently equitable to stand on an even keel.

Agree on Audit

Consolidated Bankruptcy Up in Indianapolis—Liabilities $4,300,000

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Indianapolis—A complete audit of the books of the Consolidated Realty and Theater Co. will be conducted as the result of a meeting of about 200 bondholders, noteholders and general creditors of the company. Fred A. Sims, receiver, was authorized to petition the court for the right to issue receiver's certificates to pay for the audit, and in addition certificates not to exceed $50,000 in amount, to be used in meeting current obligations.

A statement of liabilities shows that total liabilities now amount $4,300,000. The assets consist largely of leases on various business properties in Indiana. The current liabilities, as described in the report of Sims, consisting of creditors' accounts payable, trade creditors' notes payable, rents in default, delinquent taxes, accrued salaries and expenses, amounted to $122,556.52. The secured indebtedness was set at $571,681.65, and the capital indebtedness, consisting of gold bonds issued and outstanding and gold notes issued and outstanding, amounted to $3,698,647.56.

A list of the assets shows that Consolidated at the time the receiver was appointed, owned or controlled the

Seek Federal Control

Canon W. S. Chase Sponsors Bill for Governmental Supervision of Entire Industry

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—Censorship is given a new dress in a bill introduced in the House of Representatives by Representative Upshaw (Dem.), of Georgia. According to Upshaw, this bill is not a censorship measure, but is friendly, constructive legislation. Quoting from a prepared statement issued by him, this bill "does for the motion picture business what the Federal Trade Commission has done for ordinary lines of commerce, but has not been able to accomplish for the film industry. It does for the movies what the Interstate Commerce Commission has done for the railroads of the country, and what the Federal Reserve Board has done for the banks. The great fear of disaster from centralization and interference with private business which opposed those measures has since changed to admitted necessity and universal praise. The bill rescues the trade from the despotic control of a few persons and establishes liberty among all branches of the trade, setting free the exhibitors, producers, directors, actors and authors, so that there must be fair play and cooperation among all factors in the industry." This bill was drawn up by Rev. Wm. Sheafe Chase.

This bill would create a Federal commission consisting of the Commissioner of Education and six Commissioners to be appointed without regard to party affiliation by the Secretary of the Interior, to be under that department, whose annual salaries shall be $9,000 the chairman receiving $10,000. They would hold office "during good behavior." This commission would have supervision and control with the power to fix prices over all branches of the industry, similar to that over the meat and poultry business in the Packer-Control Act.

Upshaw contends that the bill does not provide for censorship, nor for compulsory investigation before films are permitted to go into interstate commerce. He provides that a film may go into interstate commerce without inspection by the commission with a permit granted by the commission upon written description and a duly attested statement that it contains nothing contrary to the law, and has never been condemned by any court or motion picture commission. Any film which has been inspected would receive a license from the Commission and a seal to be displayed whenever it is exhibited. The Commission would have the power to revoke the permit. A fee of $10 per reel for the first film and $5 for each copy would be charged. Scientific, educational, religious and non-standard films would be exempt from the charge.

All that the commission will have to do in the way of handling funds would be to collect enough to pay its own expenses plus $1,000,000 per year for the work of the United States Bureau of Education in visual instruction.

Albany—The hearing on the Miller bill, designed to permit children at theaters unaccompanied by parents but segregated in care of a matron, scheduled for yesterday has been postponed indefinitely. Several officials of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to children were before the committee yesterday, apparently unaware of the postponement. They, of course, opposed the bill while Sam Berman spoke for it. The committee, however, will not consider these arguments.

An Open Letter to National Distributors of Motion Pictures

By ARTHUR N. SMALLWOOD
President, Pyramid Pictures, Inc.
150 West Thirty-fourth Street, New York

February 9th, 1924.

Gentlemen:

The time has arrived to remove the air of mystery with which many of you have surrounded the operation of motion picture distribution, and to throw the searchlight of publicity on a system of selling which is detrimental not only to the best interests of the motion picture producer but of the exhibitor as well.

It has been customary for a lot of people to say "but the motion picture business is different from other businesses." That's a lot of bunk! I will grant that the selling price of motion pictures cannot be standardized like the selling price of soap—but the same merchandising principles prevail.

A producer in any other line of manufacture who turns out a satisfactory product under ideal manufacturing conditions, using the very best quality ingredients purchased advantageously and prepared for the market by skilled workmen, operating with a minimum of overhead costs, could reasonably be expected to find a profitable market for his wares—but not if that producer happens to be an independent producer of motion pictures. His competitor, the producer-distributor, oftentimes laboring under much higher costs, operating extravagantly, with waste on every side, and staggering under tremendous overhead, can produce a picture of the same quality as that made by the independent producer at a fifty per cent higher cost than the independent producer, and make money in spite of it, while the independent takes a loss.

If the so-called independent national distributors of motion pictures were in a combine with the larger producer-distributors for the express purpose of ruining and killing off all independent production of motion pictures, they could not accomplish it in a better way than they are doing today, by giving the independent producer faulty, inefficient and high-cost distribution for his product.

The amount of money lost to producers who have released their production thru independent national distributors exceeds many times the amount of profit that has been made by producers thru the same distributions, and it is my opinion that if every production you have released during the past two years had been guaranteed even its production cost, there wouldn't be a single independent national distributor in the business outside of bankruptcy courts. But with all the money your inefficient and faulty distribution has cost producers—it has not made any corresponding profit for you.

Don't you think it is about time your system was changed?

Lay Your Cards on The Table

Come out into the open! Lay your cards on the table! Admit that the present method of handling the producer's product is wrong. Wasteful—yes almost criminal—and try to evolve a new system of selling that will eliminate the old system which was designed to fit the cheap short length program pictures which were in vogue when the motion picture business was "still in its infancy."

I am thoroly convinced that a flat selling charge covering both distribution and selling is wrong. I am just as thoroly convinced that a physical distributing charge based upon a percentage of collections is wrong. Those of you who sell physical distribution for a flat fee of 15% are getting a whole lot more than your service calls for when you pull down a fee of $300. on a $2,000. booking when the work entailed costs you not more than $3.00. But, on the other hand, it is suicidal for you to handle the physical distribution on a picture sold to a small town for $10. for a 15% fee, amounting to $1.50, because it costs you more than that to honestly inspect the print and pack it for shipment.

So it is plain to be seen that the good picture which is worthy of first runs and extensive exploitation is penalized in carrying an unjust share of distributing costs, with the result that the producer cannot afford to give it the exploitation it deserves. I say to you—and you know it—that it costs more to handle the inspection and packing of a $7.50 shipment than it does to handle a $2,000. booking with a brand new print; and you are not entitled to a larger fee for shipping the $2,000. booking than for the lower priced one. There is only one answer to this discussion—physical distribution must be based on a fit service charge, regardless of the priced booking it covers. And furthermore—physical distributing and selling charges MUST be segregated!

You want and call out aloud to producers to give you real box-office pictures to distribute. You agree that they will be sold separately and apart from all of your other products, and then you do the same thing you complain of with your producer-distributor competitors—you blackjack the exhibitor and make him buy other pictures to get the good one—and the producer who owns the good one hasn't any interest in the others. Alright, Home Offices, deny it if you want to, but you know your managers and salesmen in the field do this every day.

(To be continued tomorrow)

Sporting Youth

No. 372—Straight from the President of the U

Imagine a picture of today's younger generation without a single whiskey flask, without even one drunken flapper, without even one disgusting lounge lizard!

It can't be done? Let's see!

The popular conception of today's younger set includes all the above things. It includes young girls, drunk and drooling. It includes young fellows lizarding and lounging—and the whole younger world going right smack to hell.

Is it true?

I don't know. Neither do you. But I do know—and so do you—that there are still millions of clean youngsters in this well advertised world. There are still girls and boys of sufficient character and sufficient cleanliness of soul to keep the old world on the right track for a few more years to come.

Well, Harry Pollard has taken the clean type of young manhood and young womanhood as the types to play the leading roles in "Sporting Youth." And he has hit the bullseye of entertainment so plumb in the center that you couldn't find a variation with a pair of calipers.

Reginald Denny and Laura LaPlante! There's the beginning and there's a whale of a beginning! Add to these two a whole cast of clever, clean people—then mix

Without a Flask!

Talks by Carl Laemmle, Universal Pictures Corporation

in a story that will make your old heart jump—then shove in a race that will make your pulse do a hop, skip and jump all over your wrist—and you have “Sporting Youth.”

I am so delighted with this picture, from the first foot to the last inch, that I hope you will play it for all you are worth. Take my word for it, you won't be able to find one person dissatisfied in your whole audience. You'll send them home WITH A CLEAN TASTE IN THE MOUTH and you'll hear nothing but favorable comments.

If every picture Universal makes could be as thoroughly satisfying as “Sporting Youth” I'd yell for joy and so would you. And if I were in your place, when I got hold of a picture like this, I would advertise it so hard that I'd have the whole town crazy to see it. No matter how hard you pound away, nothing you can say in your ads will overstate the case.

You all know what an outstanding success “Merry Go Round” has been all over the country. Well, sir, keep your eye on “Sporting Youth” and see if it doesn't shatter even some of those amazing records established by “Merry Go Round.”

Newspaper Opinions

"Blow Your Horn"—F. B. O. Colonial, Detroit

NEWS—Queer story made interesting by humor and thrills. * * * the action is all impossible in real life but this does not detract a bit from interest in the rapid fire series of events.

"Boy of Mine"—1st Nat'l Capitol, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—One of the best films built around the character of a child that we have ever seen * * * to miss this is to miss one of the best of the screen offerings.

TIMES-STAR—"Boy of Mine" will long be remembered by those who see it as one of the significant achievements of the screen.

"The Day of Faith"—Gold.-Cosmop. Regent, Philadelphia

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—Has a strong heart appeal, a worthy moral and a story which rings true but at times is a little too melodramatic to be classed as very good. It tries to cover too much ground for one thing.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—ditto.

"Eyes of the Forest"—Fox Liberty, St. Louis

POST-DISPATCH—There are fine Western scenic settings and the story moves swiftly.

STAR—* * * rather good one. * * * All the other devices are time-tried sure-fire hokum guaranteed to have the audience a-quiver 90 per cent of the time.

TIMES—Tom Mix followers will like his latest, * * * There are thrills galore.

"The Heritage of the Desert"—F. P.-L. Fenway, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—The one bright spot in the film was the photography which was really excellent * * * it is the picture as a whole that is depressing because of its melodrama—de-meloized—and for that reason just doesn't go.

Strand, Cincinnati

TIMES-STAR—Thrilling pursuits, masterly feats of horsemanship, picturesque mountain and desert scenery and a round-up of wild horses are interesting features of the film.

"Hook and Ladder"—Universal Rivoli, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—There's plenty of thrills and entertainment * * * Indeed, there's as much action in this picture as any dozen that has been shown this season.

TIMES—It is good entertainment throughout, including a spectacular fire scene.

"Let's Go"—Truart Victoria, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—Richard Talmadge certainly earned his stipend. Did stunts which were hazardous, foolhardy and dangerous * * * picture exciting in action, story inane and the acting excellent.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING) Fairly interesting * * * every thrill is an honest to goodness thrill.

"Long Live The King"—Metro Crecent, New Orleans

ITEM—Gives plenty of excitement, thrills and entertainment. Jackie was never more loveable than in his latest play.

"Our Hospitality"—Metro Washington, Detroit

FREE PRESS—Beyond a doubt it is the most laugh-provoking production of the year * * * Buster's ride on the first steam train furnishes one of the rarest comedy scenes ever made.

NEWS—The longest stretch of fun in the picture is derived from Buster's humorous development of an epoch in American transportation * * * this train is an unforgettable sight.

"Painted People"—1st Nat'l Capitol, Detroit

FREE PRESS—One of the most delightful comedy romances that has been released for many moons * * * we are ready to predict that "Painted People" will take its place among the best comedies of the year.

NEWS—While it is not as rich in acting opportunities as "Flaming Youth" it affords some light and rather interesting entertainment. * * * Mary Alden and Mary Carr play minor maternal roles which is a fair indication that films picturing the struggles and sufferings of parents are no longer great box-office assets.

TIMES—Another very excellent picture * * * Michigan certainly should feel proud of Colleen Moore * * * really fine comedy and acting.

"Rupert of Hentzau"—Selznick State, Boston

TRANSCRIPT—At times the interest does flag and in some respects the story is confusing * * * actors have little to do but register determination, tenderness or suspense * * * all of which they imply quite capably.

"Scaramouche"—Metro English's Indianapolis

STAR—For sheer beauty of photography, brilliance of direction and splendor of settings "Scaramouche" takes very high rank. We found it entertaining as "The Four Horsemen" and other super-films which created a profound impression. If it had preceded them, enthusiasm might have been without bounds.

"Her Temporary Husband"—1st Nat'l Walnut, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL-TRIBUNE—Most delightful * * * full of fun, enough to compensate for the excitement when kidnapping and murder are both attempted.

TIMES-STAR—* * * a speedy and hilarious farce comedy. And if amusement without much mental effort is what you are after, "Her Temporary Husband" will hand you a healthy bunch of laughs.

Circle, Indianapolis

STAR—Sidney Chaplin fills a lesser part so deftly that his work outshines that of Owen Moore and Sylvia Breamer, the featured players.

"The White Sister"—Metro Stillman, Cleveland

NEWS—The production registers the extreme heights in pathos and suspense in photoplay production * * * a real artistic triumph for Lillian Gish.

PLAIN DEALER—Lillian Gish has made the picture of her life time. * * * Cutting very lightly would make "The White Sister" a fine picture, possibly one of the best. * * * Ronald Coleman makes an impetuous lover.

PRESS—There is much nose-blowing at those times when she (Lillian Gish) suffers most * * * many like their movies wet.

TIMES—Miss Gish transcends all former efforts of emotional acting in this * * * in * * * parts a spiritual quality to the role that puts the undeniable stamp of genius on her work.

"Wild Oranges"—Gold.-Cosmop. Kings, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—A story abounding in thrills and suspense, and carrying through it a study of fear and its control of the human mind. * * *

POST-DISPATCH—It is a rather light romantic story with most of the thrills in the closing episodes turning about the defeat of the villain and the rescue of the girl.

TIMES—There are touches of horror rivaling Poe. There are bits of melodrama which seemed unnecessary. On the whole, it is an entertaining story, although clumsy in direction in spots.

"You Can't Get Away With It"—Fox Fox, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—Marmont as pleasing as he was in "If Winter Comes." Story of universal appeal if for no other reason because it presents conditions liable to invade any strata of society in these times no matter how high or low.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The director, Rowland Lee deserves credit for his excellent handling of this story which might easily have become sentimental and maudlin.

NORTH AMERICAN—As the picture slowly and somewhat tediously unfolded the spectator completely failed to see just what the heroine couldn't get away with. * * *

Rarely, if ever, better. All along the line. Which means that exhibitors are really doing well at the box office. A prominent exhibitor declares that not even in 1920 were exhibitors doing a better business generally. The reason: Good pictures. Nothing helps so much. Which is as it should be. Even in the small houses good pictures accelerate business a lot. One trouble still bothers exhibitors: pictures too long. Exhibitors cannot turn them over. That's the real trouble. You cannot get the money in the box office. And then, too, the program diversity is killed.

The big first run houses aren't paying as much as they should. That is, if what Reichenbach says is borne out by facts. Brings up the old story once again: that the small exhibitor "pays the freight" where the big one gets off easy. Which is not difficult to understand where a controlled territory is involved. But all of which should not be. What of next season? What will be the prevailing type of picture? Will it be the flapper sort; such as "aming Youth"? Or will there be a new order of things? Advance schedules show a variety—far too many different types to be able to determine. But this is only February. In a few weeks we will have a better idea. But if the novelists continue to write this sort of stuff chances are the producers will continue to make them. This ready audience from book readers cannot be passed by.

Scheduled to talk a bit Saturday. And figure out for the National Board of Review something or the other about "The Public and Pictures." So we're going out and buy a thinking cap. Or maybe steal a minute with Hays. And get an idea or two.

By the way, don't overlook that Edison lunch at the Ritz tomorrow. If you haven't secured your seat do so. It promises to be the best event of its kind of the season.

George Mitchell in Judge: "The Extra Girl," is a film you'll enjoy. Nobody else in the movies is in Mabel Normand's class." Produced by Mack Sennett, distributed by Associated Exhibitors.—Advt.

Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan Leases Strand There for Two Years—After First-Runs

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

San Francisco—Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan has closed with D. Markowitz for a two year lease on the Strand, effective Feb. 23, when "The Great White Way," opens there. The Strand is on Market St., nearly opposite the Granada, one of the Rothchild houses.

The first-run situation here is somewhat peculiar. The Granada, Imperial and Portola, owned by Rothchild, show Paramount exclusively. West Coast Theaters, Inc., which operate Loew's Warfield split First National and Metro to the exclusion of all other product. West Coast shows the Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan output one hundred per cent in its Southern California theaters by virtue of a deal closed in New York last July between James R. Grainger and Dave Bershon, but at the same time, the circuit owns a fifty per cent interest in the Imperial here. The Rothchild theaters until now have shown the Goldwyn product, but some trouble developed over terms and the deal for the Strand resulted.

Hughes Denies

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Credence is placed in the report that Rupert Hughes has left Goldwyn to produce for First National.

Rupert Hughes who is at the Biltmore declared yesterday that the coast report was entirely erroneous. He said he has four more pictures to make for Goldwyn under his present contract and that there has been no word mentioned of a possible deal with First National.

Industry Attacked

By Church Conference in Washington—Bowlby Promises Crusade Against Sunday Shows

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—The annual attack on motion pictures and the business in general was launched yesterday at the opening session of the National Conference of Churches on Federal Control of Motion Pictures at the Raleigh.

F. P. Turner, secretary of the Conference on Foreign Missions declared that the pictures turned out today are seriously hampering the work of missionaries abroad, because of the manner in which they depict American customs. Canon Chase of Brooklyn opened the conference with a heated tirade on the present status of affairs in the business. He said that Will H. Hays' promise to reform the producers had miscarried the "trust" would not permit him to carry out his program. Chase charged that a small group of men in the business controlled it and evaded in every manner possible any moves that would tend to elevate its standards.

Los Angeles—Phil Rosen who directed "Abraham Lincoln," has signed a year's contract with Max Graf. An original deal provided for one.

Unger Resigns

Joseph J. Unger has resigned as manager of First National's New York exchange.

Unger will first take a rest and then announce his plans; Harry H. Buxbaum will assume charge of the exchange temporarily.

Six from Ince

Under Reorganization Plan—John G. Wray in Active Charge at the Studio

Thomas H. Ince, under a reorganization plan at his studio intends making six pictures for the 1924-25 schedule. The first will be "The Last Frontier."

As noted, Ince has four more pictures to deliver under his First National contract. Of this number, three are either completed or near completion. The reorganized studio force places John Griffith Wray in the post of production manager. In addition to those duties, he will direct two of the six pictures planned for next season. He will have considerable

Speakers at Edison Lunch to Include Maxim, Mills, Roosevelt, Rupert Hughes and Governor Smith

About three hundred will attend the testimonial luncheon to Thomas A. Edison at the Ritz Carlton tomorrow. Preparations have been concluded for the function which will perhaps draw the most brilliant group of public men that has ever gathered to attend an occasion purely concerned with motion pictures.

The important speeches will be broadcasted by the Radio Corp. of America from Station WJZ. Last night the speakers' list included the following: Terry Ramsaye, who will talk on "The History of the Motion Picture"; Michael J. O'Toole, of the M. P. T. O. whose topic will be public service; Hudson Maxim, Ogden Mills, Rupert Hughes, Senators Owen of Oklahoma, Edwards of New Jersey, Watson of Indiana and Cope-land of New York; Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Governor Smith, Will H. Hays and possibly, ex-President Taft. Mr. Hays will be the toastmaster.

All of the important executives in the business will be present. The arrangements have been in the hands of George Kleine.

It is safe to assume that "Bagdad" will have its usual number of pre-release runs, as is customary with all of the Fairbanks pictures and will then be turned over to Hiram Abrams for general distribution.

Maurice Cleary, who has been doing special work for both Fairbanks and Miss Pickford has been elected treasurer of United Artists, succeeding Max E. Prager, resigned.

Abrams Visiting Exchanges

Hiram Abrams is due in New York about Feb. 21, from the coast. He is visiting United Artists exchanges en route East.

Newspaper Opinions

"Daddies"—Warners' Strand

AMERICAN—* * * a nice, little drama, moving along in smooth channels, with a nice ending. There are no jarring notes, no glaring faults in production, no deflections in directions and no acting that is conspicuously poor.

On the other hand, "Daddies" will never qualify as a great picture.

EVENING JOURNAL—The comedy is lightly handled, very well acted, and amusing.

EVENING WORLD—Mae Marsh had precious little work to do in "Daddies," * * * But in the little * * * she was the same old heart-string puller. * * * There is comedy in this picture, but the thing is not well fabricated. It gives the impression that the director was forced to reach for the humor. But it's bound to be a success in the sticks, * * *

HERALD—A more generally appealing and amusing comedy than this has not been seen on Broadway during the present season.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * is as entertaining as the original stage version * * * To begin with, the situations are frankly farcical and the screen does full justice to them.

SUN—The scenes in which the children participate contain adult humor. The last half of the picture, however, is played almost exclusively by grown-up movie actors and it is decidedly infantile. * * * "Daddies" is amusing for one-half of the evening; the rest of the time it is tame and slightly dull.

TELEGRAM—It is even better in "the movies" than it was in the speakies. And that is high praise.

TIMES—Although the theme * * * cannot be said to possess the spark of originality, the story is so well worked out that it succeeds in being quite amusing.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—* * * proved to be but an ordinary program feature. Laughable in spots, fairly well played, but lacking that necessity to make a picture a decided box office asset.

TRIBUNE—"Daddies," is as good as stage play, which wasn't anything to get excited over.

WORLD—Still, it really is not that Miss Marsh fails to measure up to her part in "Daddies." The part simply isn't there. The fact of the matter is that not very much of anything is there.

A Scramble
For
"Volume"

You advertise and exert yourself to get new product weekly, and give it an honest selling effort for a month or two only, after which you sell it in block with other pictures at whatever price the exhibitor is willing to pay. Of course, you have taken the cream off—and new productions are coming in every week or two that must be sold. And furthermore, with a limited number of salesmen in the field who must keep up their gross weekly business, and with your Home Office jazzing up the branch manager to increase his weekly collections or suffer the feel of the axe on his neck, it is most natural that every one is going to work along the lines of least resistance. If a branch manager must increase his collections a few thousand dollars a week at a low cost to enable his branch to make a favorable showing, he can't be expected to do it by fighting for fair prices on pictures that are six months old. He must get his volume by working on the new stuff or by selling the older pictures in block at sacrifice prices to build up his collections. And remember, he is usually operating his territory with a minimum number of salesmen. One of the big faults of the distribution you offer is that even good box-office attractions are "just pictures" after they have been out a few months and you sell them in block, or I might even say, virtually by weight, in association with other "junk" just to get volume business. And the exhibitor who makes a practice of inspecting your "junk heap" finds a lot of jewels that he buys at his own price. They "average down" the cost of other product which he must buy at fair prices, and have paid for many an exhibitor's Cadillac car.

You are fully aware of the fact that the majority of the pictures you accept for distribution are going to show a loss to the producers who made them—and still with all of your records pointing clearly to the almost inevitable outcome you encourage production of new pictures. You would probably be insulted if this practice was termed dishonest—or "trimming producers"—but it is my opinion that it does not amount to anything else if the distribution, knowing by past experience just what is ahead, encourages a producer to make pictures for him without an absolute guarantee of production cost.

"It's a Good
Graft While
It Lasts"

I will say that this is a hell of a fine moral tone for any business to have, and it is no wonder if the high principles involved seep thru to the branch managers and the salesmen. Is it any wonder that so many branch managers and film salesmen accept the attitude that "it's a good graft while it lasts," instead of showing enthusiasm and loyalty and working hard and co-operating to their fullest ability with the foreknowledge that they will be promoted from the ranks and receive a life-long connection with surety of a competence for their old age if they make good?

The superabundance of relatives, Home Office politics, and the general moral fabric of the whole game combine to kill the ambitions and retard the managers and film salesmen in the field against doing their best work. The incentive for maximum effort does not exist for the sales departments of our present national distributions under the present system of selling. The branch managers do not know from week to week when their heads are going to be "chopped off." The salesman never knows what ruling from the Home Office may result in the loss of his job. The salesman getting fifty or sixty dollars a week knows that under ordinary conditions he can hold it if he produces six or seven hundred dollars worth of business a week. It has not been unknown for film salesmen securing more business in a week than the minimum which they believed necessary to hold their jobs, to hold out part of it for the following week and take a vacation. And I don't blame them a bit under the existing conditions. They are just playing the game as some of their bosses play it!

A Fund
For Proper
Advertising

There must be a revolutionary change in the method of distributing independent motion pictures if the motion picture industry is to thrive and prosper. Again I say to you independent distributors—lay your cards on the table! Discuss your problems with the independent producer and let us arrive at a basis of selling producer's product to theatres that will be equitable in every respect. If you are handling distribution on a thirty-five or forty per cent basis, you are not getting enough to cover physical distribution and selling costs on pictures sold for small prices, especially is this true if your contract provides that the pictures shall be sold alone and not in block with other pictures—and you observe the contract. On the other hand there is no basis on which you can justify a thirty-five per cent fee for selling and shipping a $2,000. booking. Ten per cent for selling plus a flat fee for physical distribution on bookings of $1,000. or more would be more equitable. And if the producer who makes a picture entitling it to first run bookings at prices exceeding $1,000. secured this first run distribution at a selling cost of ten per cent, which should be profitable to you, he would have a fund to advertise generously in the trade-papers and exploit his product properly in the key cities affording the first run.

I have worked out a table of percentages to cover what I believe should be the maximum selling charge made against the producer for the sale of his product. Physical distribution should be sold at a flat rate per reel for inspecting and packing for shipment, regardless of whether it covered a $2,000. booking or one for $7.50.

Each Picture Taking Its Rightful Place

These percentages would apply against all productions of all grades including the super-special costing more than a million dollars to make and the little program pictures that may have been ground out at a cost of fifteen thousand dollars. Each class of picture would automatically take its rightful place in the scheme of things.

Following is the table of sales commissions to be allowed national distributors:

Bookings	Commissions
$1,000. or over	10%
900. to $1,000.	11 "

MOSES AND THE TEN COMMANDMENTS

Is the greatest “clean-up” this business has ever known.
It has broken every exchange record in every territory sold.
It has created new box-office records in every theatre played.
It has caused more favorable comment by exchangemen, exhibitors and public than has ever been accorded a picture.
It can't miss. It is sure-fire.

EXCHANGEMEN—

This is the greatest opportunity you have ever had. What are you going to do about it? “After Six Days” put into a road show in your territory and capably handled will make a fortune for you. Its possibilities are unlimited and what is true this year will prove to be true every year. It will live forever. “It's a clean-up.”

EXHIBITORS—

When the opportunity is presented for you to book this attraction, don't think twice—if you do it might prove another opportunity lost. Book it for twice and three times your regular run and after the first smash you will re-book it for an early return date. It's a “clean-up.”

Famous Decides Not to Build Large House on English Hotel Site, Indianapolis

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Indianapolis—Famous Players has decided not to build a theater and five story office building on the west half of the English Hotel block, as originally planned. Rubush and Hunter, architects together with a group of business men of which Robert Lieber is understood to be one, have purchased the capital stock in the 99 year lease on the property held by the Market Circle Realty Co., a holding company for Famous Players. The new owners plan to remodel the building for office and store uses. The transfer of the ownership of the capital stock of the realty company also involved the transfer of the ownership of the lease, William E. English retaining the title in fee simple to the property. The realty company is capitalized at $900,000, of which $600,000 is in an authorized preferred stock issue, and $300,000 in authorized common stock.

None of the preferred stock had been sold by the bond department of the City Trust Co., which contracted to handle the issue, although the realty company had started tearing down parts of the building, following its vacation by tenants in August. Famous represented in the Market Circle Realty Co., obtained the 99 year lease from English in 1919.

Albany—The salesmen of Albany are planning to form an organization, which will be affiliated with similar organizations in other cities. There are 25 film salesmen here.

In The Courts

An injunction suit against the sale of the German film, "Der Galileer," or "The Passion Play of Jesus Christ," has been filed in the Supreme Court, with an application for an accounting of any profits obtained from the sale of the film. The suit is brought by Erwin Ostermaier who has been vice-president and foreign manager of the Astoria Production, against Theodore Kreiner who has been president of Astoria, Richard S. Schwartz, Charles Reinking, the Central Film Organization of Berlin, Bernhard Gotthart and Adolph Fassnacht.

In a suit by the Gotham National Bank against Edward L. Whitmeyer and the Sept. Cinema Camera Distributors Inc., on a note of the corporation endorsed by Whitmeyer, a default judgement for $15,232 has been filed against Whitmeyer.

The Appellate Term dismissed an appeal by Rothstein & Nelson from the dismissal of a suit against the Fox Film for a balance of $2,500 due for 100 film-mending machines valued at $5,000, delivered by the Film-Mending Machine Co., which assigned its claim to the plaintiff.

The Appellate Term has affirmed a judgment in a suit by Arthur M. Brilant against Mack Sennett Comedies in which Brilant sued for salary as director of exploitation at $175 a week. He got a judgment for $993 but the Appellate Term reversed it and ordered a new trial, and the second verdict was for only $77. The difference was that Brilant devoted only part of his time to the plaintiff, and was also employed by Robert Vignola, whose interests were adverse to the Sennett interests, and that he did Vignola's work at the Sennett offices.

Theater for Jackson Heights

A theater is now under construction at 25th St. and Baxter Ave., Jackson Heights, by M. J. Kramer, the builder of the United States, Reo, Majestic, Valentine and Gotham theaters.

The new theater will be 75 by 161 feet in dimensions and have a seating capacity of 1,800. The G. K. Amusement Corp., will operate it.

Pathe's Serial Plans

The next Pathe serial, "The Fortieth Door," is now in production on the coast. Plans for the two to follow are now under way. One will be "Ten Scars Make a Man," an original and the other probably, "Black Caesar's Clan," by Albert Payson Terhune.

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Rochester, N. Y.—Letters were forwarded to all important producing companies in the business yesterday by the Eastman Kodak Co., informing them of a reduction in prices of film effective March 1, as follows:

Eastman positive film standard width, nitro-cellulose base, in black and white and tinted base, perforated 1.5 cents per foot.

Eastman news stock, standard width, nitro-cellulose base, in black and white and tinted base in three colors, perforated 1.3 cents per foot.

It is understood that the above reduction in prices represents a cut of 25 per cent, the largest individual slash in prices ever made by the Eastman company.

Loew Causes Worry

His Theater Activities in Westchester County Cause Exhibitors There Some Concern

Exhibitors operating in Westchester County are somewhat concerned over the theater activities of Marcus Loew in that field. Additions are being made to the Loew string which at present includes successful theaters in Yonkers and New Rochelle. The Lynn in White Plains was taken over earlier in the week and is designed to open in a few days.

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Trenton, N. J.—The Assembly Judiciary Committee has rejected the Carty measure, giving municipalities authority to choose Sunday amusements.

Abe Warner Back

Abe Warner is back from a short business trip to London.

Vita's New Staff

John C. Rock Appointed General Manager—A. Victor Smith to Be His Assistant

Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph Co. of America, yesterday announced the following:

John C. Rock, son of William T. Rock, one of the founders of the Vitagraph Co., to be general manager, succeeding the late John M. Quinn.

A. Victor Smith, a brother of the president, to be Rock's chief assistant.

Both of these executives will assume their duties today.

Rock was formerly with Vitagraph from 1906 to 1916 as general sales representative of the company in Chicago and since 1916 has not been identified with the motion picture industry.

A. Victor Smith was general sales manager of the Vitagraph Company in New York from 1906 to 1916 when he moved to California and engaged in business. He went overseas during the war and upon his return became assistant to the President of Vitagraph and production manager, which duties he held until 1922 when again he returned to California.

Old timers in the business recalled yesterday that with Commodore Blackton again with Vitagraph and with John C. Rock with the company it reminded them of the days long ago when the Smith-Blackton-Rock combination operated this old and well-known organization.

Logan Plans More Pictures

W. Ward Damon, secretary and treasurer of the Logan M. P. Prod. of Syracuse is in town. He said yesterday the company had Dorothy Dalton under contract and that plans for further production were under way.

George Walsh Here

George Walsh arrived in town from the Coast yesterday.

Tribute to Edison

The motion picture industry will pay tribute to Thomas A. Edison today at the Ritz-Carlton when a luncheon will be given in his honor. Many leaders in public life will be present. Close on to three hundred guests will attend.

Vernon. Together with this group, mention is usually made of the Burnside, a large theater on Grand Concourse in the Bronx which opened last week. Those familiar with the concentration placed on the development of new theater fields by the Loew organization seem to think that it will only be a question of time before Westchester will be an important factor in that company's prestige.

A Correction

James R. Grainger denied yesterday that Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan had leased the Strand, San Francisco for two years, as reported. He said arrangements had been made to show his company's product in the house for two years but that no lease was involved.

Newspaper Opinions

"The Yankee Consul"—Asso. Exhib. Central

AMERICAN—* * * we must say young Douglas MacLean gives a very creditable performance * * * the seasick scenes * * * nearly spoiled the picture for us * * * it is above the average, and those who enjoy a mixture of comedy and melodrama can be assured of getting their money's worth.

EVENING WORLD—As for the picture, Douglas MacLean gave rather an enjoyable performance in the title role. * * * All in all, the film version gives promise of being a respectable successor to the stage hit.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—Technically in every department, direction, continuity, sets and photography, it leaves much to be desired, but it corrals the high comedy points, mainly through the work of the star.

Two more pictures like this from the MacLean studios, and Harold Lloyd will have to look to his laurels.

TELEGRAM—Douglas MacLean was the much harassed "Dudley Ainsworth." His idea of a comedy character is distinctly his own. We like him. And we don't stand alone. The doors were stormed last night * * * An amusing picture.

TIMES—* * * is one of the funniest films it has been our pleasure to see in some time. * * * Those who want a good hearty laugh will find their sides aching after they have seen "The Yankee Consul."

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—It is a whale of a laugh producer and Douglas MacLean is as funny in this picture as in "The Hotentot."

TRIBUNE—It seems as if the play had been one half as entertaining as the picture we should have remembered it. * * * Mr. MacLean is charming, * * *

WORLD—The story is too ancient to retell, but it takes on a lively pace in the realism of photography, and Mr. MacLean carried his role with an excellent sense of humor. * * * As in almost all film comedy, "The Yankee Consul," was marred by the drawing out of funny scenes to the breaking point.

"The Next Corner"—F. P.-L. Rivoli

DAILY NEWS—" * * * rather an exquisitely handled story of its kind. * * *"

EVENING WORLD—" * * * is one of those things. Some old faces going through the same old formula, the denouement proving to be just what was expected all the time.

HERALD—The accepted formula is followed closely. * * * Miss Mackaill is moderately interesting at times, and excessively negative at others.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—A valiant effort to give a picture version of Kate Jordan's play, "The Next Corner." Miss Jordan has not supplied her puppets with much consistency of character * * * Dorothy Mackaill * * * is appealing even in this theatrical role, and looks glorious when she removes the make-up.

SUN—" * * * is going to give the censors in Kansas and Pennsylvania the best time they've had since they saw "Sapho," "The Sheik," and "Black Oxen." They are going to cut and cut. * * * The last half was terrible trash.

TELEGRAM—The cast, though exceptional, is only in keeping with the greatness of the production. * * *

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—" * * * has all of fine taste and scenic production, but the effort is all wasted on a weak story.

TRIBUNE—It is a terrible picture and a terrible bore.

Check these percentages over against the plan of physical distribution suggested for execution by the American Railway Express Company, which I covered in letter sent out last week and you will find what the independent motion picture producer wants, should have and WILL have. This same table of commissions should apply to the sale of foreign rights.

FURTHERMORE, if you do not accept this plan with a definite responsibility to the producer, as his agent for the honest handling of his product and his money, including all monies collected by your managers and salesmen, instead of limiting your responsibilities to "Home Office receipts," some one else will enter the distributing field, and by giving the producer what he wants, put every so-called independent motion picture distribution operating under the present faulty system entirely out of business.

And because I believe that the motion picture producing business can be made a good business and a profitable business for the independent operator if these reforms are inaugurated, I will furnish the financing for this new producers' distribution myself if a sufficient number of independent producers want it and the American Railway Express Company will undertake the physical distribution of the product. I have proven my ability to secure motion picture financing and I will secure whatever financing may be necessary for a REAL producers' distributing organization.

The Boys In the Field

But a reform covering a change in distribution as set forth herewith does not go far enough. It should extend to the sales department thru-out the field. Your system of remuneration for your managers, salesmen and bookers should be based upon a percentage of the business they do and every incentive should be offered these men to be loyal, ambitious and real go-getters.

The sales organizations in the field are entitled to, and should get not less than sixty per cent of the commission allowed the Home Office for sale of product. They are the boys who have made it possible for "rocking-horse generals" and "swivel-chair admirals" to exist, and it is high time that they were coming into their own.

If I had anything to do with a national distribution (and maybe I will) sixty per cent of the Home Office selling commissions would go to the men who made the sales. Following is the schedule of Home Office Commissions I would pay them:

Salesmen—40%.

Assistant Manager and Booker—5% on total office commissions.

Manager—10% over-riding on business done by other salesmen working out of branch. 50% on personal accounts.

District Manager—5% over-riding commission on his territory.

Each salesman would be allotted a certain territory and would receive protection on all of the accounts in this territory.

I would allow an additional 10% selling expense to offices such as Seattle, Minneapolis, Kansas City, etc., where the "wide open spaces" are general and the selling toughest.

Nothing To Count
But Results I would proclaim the fact from the rooftops that I didn't have a living relative in the world—brother, uncle, cousin or grandfather who was ambitious to be a "fillum" salesman or branch manager, and let every man in the field know that nothing counted but

RESULTS and that there was plenty of room on top and nothing standing in the way of his getting there if he was "on the level" and "delivered the goods." And I'd sell rings around every distribution now in the business with any kind of a decent break on the quality of my product. And I'd get the best managers and salesmen from each of your branches because they are REAL FELLOWS and will go to hell for any man who gives them a square deal and a chance to advance and improve their positions without a lot of bootlicking and cheap politics; and I'd have a bigger selling organization in the field than any national distribution at the present time. The producer would get every dollar his picture was worth; the distribution would be profitable; and the managers and salesmen on the firing line would make more money than they have ever made before in their lives—but they would work for it and be entitled to it.

Now here's another thing that is worrying me and that I want to get off my chest. We are in the show business, and the value of the product we sell is dependent upon the number of SEATS it will sell for the exhibitor, which brings us to the subject of advertising and exploitation. Altho ten per cent of the negative cost is too much to spend for advertising and exploitation on poor program pictures, one hundred per cent of its negative cost is not too much to spend on good pictures, if it will sell a proportionate number of seats for the exhibitor.

This Would Be Real Exploitation

But what are you doing about it? And how are you doing it? You probably have one or two or three men in your department who are writing the press books, laying out the lithographs, preparing trade-paper copy, writing stories for the press to satisfy the boss' vanity, preparing newspaper ads, preparing accessories and what not. And you throw two or more subjects at their heads every week and think you are running an advertising department. What happens? You print a lot of press books without any study of your subject matter, containing a lot of impossible and threadbare exploitation stunts. You turn your stills over to an artist for lithograph layouts, and pass on them without caring a hang whether they have selling value or not. You hurriedly pass upon trade-paper advertising layouts, have the plates made and print them at a cost of more than $100. a page to the producer, without analyzing their sales force. Some of your copy is so non-convincing that if the subject was baked beans and your readers hadn't eaten in twenty-four hours, you wouldn't be able to sustain his interest.

The producer should handle his own advertising appropriation thru a real advertising service agency which would make a careful study of the selling angles on each production, pay particular attention to preparation of lithographs, press books and other advertising, all on a flat service charge. Successful producers must be showmen and must learn to know showman values. Under the percentage cost of selling set forth in this letter, the producers of quality product would have an incentive to have each effort excel the one preceding it. He could afford to use the trade-papers liberally, he could afford to buy newspaper space in a national way to help the exhibitor put over the show. He could afford to carry on like a real showman instead of imitating the poor fish that he is today.

LET'S TAKE THE BUNK AND THE AIR OF MYSTERY OUT OF FILM DISTRIBUTION.

Yours truly,
(Signed A. N. SMALLWOOD.)

Several New Units To Start—Ambitious Program Under Way—Two Features Included

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Culver City, Cal.—Hal Roach has just announced his plans for the coming season. The program will include, in addition to many series of short subjects, two special features. Roach is starting a new two reel comedy unit replacing the series starring Stan Laurel. James Finlayson appearing with Laurel will have a prominent part in these and other comedians under contract will be used, including Charles Puffy, the 350 pound funster recently arrived from Europe. George Jeske will direct.

Will Rogers, with Bob Wagner directing has just finished a political satire and is starting another of his series. The Little Rascals of "Our Gang" company are continuing on schedule of two reels under the direction of Bob McGowan. The Pat Family with Frank Butler and Laura Roessing still fighting with Ray Howe directing. The Charles Chase one reels have Ralph Ceder directing and Fred Guiol is directing the Earl Mohan and Billy Engle series of one reel fight pictures.

"Doug" and Mary Arrive

Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford arrived from the coast Friday and registered at the Ambassador.

Meighan In "The Alaskan"

Tom Meighan's next picture will be "The Alaskan" by James Oliver Curwood.

Remember This

Unable to make a speech Thomas A. Edison sent this message to film folk at the luncheon tendered him yesterday at the Ritz:

"Remember that you are the servants of the public and never let a desire for money or power prevent you from giving the public the best work of which you are capable. It is not the quantity of pictures that counts. It is the quality that produces happiness where that is possible."

Remember this. Frame it. Let it prove your inspiration. And your guide.

Inspirational

There was held at the Ritz yesterday a luncheon in honor of the 77th anniversary of the birth of Thomas A. Edison. About 350 film folk attended. Never has there been a function which created such a spirit. The only regret—that there were present less than 3,000. It would have benefitted every man and woman in this industry to have been present. They would have been inspired—proud of their connection with this business.

Lack of space prevents any extended report. But the remarks of Senator Owen; the message given to them by Edison; the satirical thrusts of Rupert Hughes towards censors and censorship; the messages forwarded by President Coolidge; Lloyd George, and 100 more, including 17 United States Senators, were something to be long remembered. And the climax was capped when Mary Pickford so feelingly spoke of Edison's great gifts to humanity.

It was an inspiring afternoon; an occasion long to be remembered.

Dominick Off Board

"Pressure of Other Interests" Compels Him to Retire from Famous Players' Directorate

Gayer G. Dominick of Dominick and Dominick, prominent Wall Street brokers has retired from the board of directors of Famous Players because of "pressure of other interests."

This occurred at the directors' meeting earlier in the week but only became publicly known on Friday. Dominick has been on the board for some time. His company handled the floating of several stock issues for Paramount.

R. W. Saunders, comptroller of Famous declared on Friday that no successor to Dominick had been appointed and that the post would probably remain vacant for the present.

Broadway Ideas

With Some Suggestions for Using Certain Types of Short Subjects with Features

The managers of the big Broadway houses have earned for their theaters the reputation of always presenting well-rounded and harmonious programs. To this end there must be as much care devoted to the selection of the short subjects as is given the feature, and a constant search maintained for the novel—the different.

The success of this effort is noticeable in the reception accorded a novel reel by the audience. For example, it will be recalled that when "Roxy" showed Lyman Howe's "Ride on a Runaway Train," he found that it went over so well that it was necessary to repeat the showing a second week. Here was an instance where the camera was perched, through the use of a special contrivance, on the pilot of a locomotive and the engine

Exhibitors have been demanding for the last two years that the length of feature pictures be very considerably reduced, and having just returned from a brief trip in the country and having discussed this very matter with several of them, I find they are greatly pleased with the concerted action that seems to be shaping toward the shorter feature film.

I may add that we have been using all our influence with our producers not to let a feature run over six reels, if it can possibly be avoided, for many months.

We, as distributors of short length films, probably hear an exhibitor's complaint about the too long feature film more frequently than any other, because we do find that the average exhibitor finds it very desirable to arrange his program with as much versatility as the length of the various subjects thereon will permit, and anybody knows that a nine or ten reel feature does not permit of the addition of very much diversification if the exhibitor is going to try to get in two shows during an evening.

It is our opinion that unless feature producers voluntarily and immediately reduce the length of their features, they are going to find that instead of enjoying from five to six thousand runs per subject in the United States, they will come out with three or four thousand runs instead—the exhibitor's business being very much damaged by lack of diversification in the program and necessity will compel him to lay off the long feature, and from what I can learn, there are a great many exhibitors in the United States who are doing just that now, hence the reduction of the feature length is by no means an altruistic movement on the part of the producer, but is one of necessity for his own well being.

New York

"My Man"—Vitagraph
Rialto

AMERICAN—If one has a sentimental streak, he will enjoy the picture in spite of these obvious touches. David Smith, who directed the picture, has undoubtedly made a good box office attraction.

DAILY NEWS—Patsy Ruth Miller registers emotions all over the place; Mr. Farnum is broad and noble in tight fitting clothes; * * * The film might be described briefly as one in which the hero tells the heroine in every other subtitle that he is the man for her and no one else shall have her.

EVENING WORLD—It is the usual Chester tale of high finance interspersed, of course, with romance, and is rather good entertainment.

HERALD—* * * is a dull, uninteresting, overlong, badly made picture.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * strikingly lacking in originality. Director David Smith has struggled valiantly to inject a modicum of suspense into the picture with indifferent success; however, he did all that was possible for a director to do, with a poor working foundation.

TELEGRAM—* * * admirable material for a good screen play.

TIMES—* * * only interesting because of the singular methods employed by the director in attempting to make some situations laughable and others effective. * * * We can't say where such a production would find favor, except possibly at either of the Poles or Lhasa, where the throngs might not mean big box office results.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—The picture is as kickless as a man in legions. * * * It is melodramatic apple sauce and not particularly well done.

TRIBUNE—Patsy Ruth Miller is the sweet and attractive heroine, and a very good actress she is, too.

WORLD—George Randolph Chester has gone back into politics and written the accustomed fairy tale for the eighty-five cent seat holders.

Out-of-Town

"The Acquittal"—Universal
Stanley, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—* * * gains much in effectiveness by filming. The entire trial has been well handled by the producer in such a way as to give the utmost in continuity of action. All but the actual murder of Andrew Prentice, portrayed to perfection by Charles Wellesley, is seen by the audience.

INQUIRER—Followers of detective stories and mystery plays will be well pleased with "The Acquittal," the feature at the Stanley this week. Although little else may be said for it, it is successful as a mystery picture.

NORTH AMERICAN—* * * a thrilling mystery play * * * There are many pieces of evidence pro and con and the final denouncement is surprising, to say the least.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—"The Acquittal" is noteworthy for its splendid courtroom scenes. Too frequently the film version of murder trials is all out of focus. The director, Clarence Brown, has made judicious use of a plot that is not exactly fresh and has made it fairly ingenious by the use of flashbacks.

Palace, Montreal

STAR—Those who enjoy a tale of human frailty, in which the stern eye of the law searches hidden places without avail, but in which the truth is ultimately laid bare in a manner both dramatic and sensational, will find in "The Acquittal" a picture very much to their liking.

Large Circuit Favors Shorts

By Harold B. Franklin

Director of Theaters, Famous Players-Lasky Corp.

In establishing the policies of a number of theaters in a large circuit doing business in different parts of the country, it is impossible to operate after a given pattern. Each theater presents a different problem and requires the personal touch of the manager who is on the ground and who by study and observation familiarizes himself with the requirements for his theater.

It is therefore obvious that in booking features or short subjects for such a circuit, consideration must be given to the local situation. There are certain fundamentals however that exist in all theaters playing to the better grade people. We all know that every audience, no matter what the location, greatly enjoy a good comedy and are all interested in seeing a good news weekly. Therefore we have a definite rule that each program in our Class A houses must make room for comedy and the news weekly. The only exception to this rule is made when an unusual super-feature is presented.

As to those short subjects referred to as scenics, there are certain theaters that do not play these. Yet in theaters that cater to a discriminating patronage, some of these "scenics" are often a great help in balancing the program, particularly when a theater is able to give a proper musical setting. An exquisite touch of color—a picture poem of nature's treasures—they hold a great appeal to all who appreciate beautiful things. We like these "scenics" short—not too long, with as few titles as possible. It is a case where good things come in small packages.

Then there are novelty reels showing the unusual—for example, we are now playing through our theaters a reel called "Plastigrams." This reel gives the illusion of depth—the third dimension—and must be viewed with what resemble paper spectacles. Though the reel is only three hundred feet in length, its showing has naturally caused a great deal of favorable comment. Reels of such a character fascinate anyone.

A short dramatic subject is good to play with a comedy feature as contrast. Recently at the Rialto we showed "Bill," a short dramatic subject, brought from abroad by Hugo Riesenfeld. This featurette caused more good comment than the feature shown on the program. Of course, such situations are rare.

Cartoons are interesting and amusing but we do not as a rule play cartoons when a comedy is provided for a program, as we find that a comedy and cartoon have much in common.

In order to keep a clear record of what subjects are required, each theater has a policy card, as to what its film requirements are. These are entered on a buying record, and in that way only such subjects as are played by a particular theater are provided.

"Anna Christie"—1st Nat'l
Metropolitan, Wash.

POST—Although the motion picture would not win a Pulitzer prize it should be well received by the public. The stage play enjoyed a long run in New York and was recently presented in Washington, acclaimed by critics throughout the country. While something has been gained by transferring the play from the stage to the screen, there is a loss, too.

STAR—Realism at times almost crass, but sparkling with vividness, stalks through the play, gripping attention and interest. Sordidness of tragedy is beautified by the tremendous successful struggle of womanhood to rise above the clutches of horrible circumstance.

"Chastity"—1st Nat'l
Adams, Detroit

NEWS—The theme is slow in getting under way and there is a tremendous amount of conversation. It is a picture that will add nothing to the star's reputation.

TIMES—The picture gives Miss MacDonald plenty of scope to show her ability as an "emotional actress," and she does herself full justice. * * * Beauty is only skin deep and that is about as far as Katherine's goes. We're judging her solely as an artist.

"The Covered Wagon"—F. P.-L.
English's, Indianapolis

STAR—The great enthusiasm with which the film was greeted at the opening performance is evidence enough that its first run here was not half long enough. * * * If everyone were limited to one film in a life time "The Covered Wagon" could very well fill the requirements of most Americans.

Davidson, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—* * * a big picture, as big as they make them, for it tells a big story in a big way. It is a eulogy to those courageous and visionary men and women of '48, who with the true spirit of empire builders left sheltered homes in the east to make the hazardous journey to the homestead district of Oregon.

"Don't Call It Love"—F. P.-L.
Capitol, Cincinnati

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—It is a pleasing series of love affairs of a beautiful young woman, whose career as a great singer is all but ruined by her many heart episodes.

TIMES-STAR—It is merely a rehashing of one of the most artificial and overworked plots in dramatic literature, and Mr. de Mille's elaboration of it does not endow it with any additional interest.

"Don't Marry For Money"—S. R.
Garden, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—* * * high colored melodrama with a too romantic wife, a husband whom she regards as a checkbook, the inevitable triangle and a murder. It is strictly modern in motif, * * *

"Going Up"—Asso. Exhib.
The Chicago, Chicago

POST—The audience didn't laugh at this picture—they simply screamed—and there were times when everyone in the Chicago theater was almost in hysterics. And intermingled in the laughter were staccato screams of horror as a blimp and two planes played tag with each other and every few minutes it looked as if all three were trying to occupy the same space at the same time.

Palace, Washington

POST—* * * light, joyous, full of freshness, charm and spontaneity—a wonderful play of love and thrills and airplanes. It is a laugh from start to finish and the clever subtitles drew enthusiastic response * * *

STAR—Mr. MacLean offers many novel bits of acting in his picture. At the dramatic climax one could have heard a pin drop, so intense was the attention of the audience. Margery Daw is pretty as the girl and the other members of the cast also are good. The photography is excellent.

"The Governor's Lady"—Fox
Liberty, St. Louis

POST-DISPATCH—It has several highly melodramatic episodes dating back to those good old days when distinction in public life was won by sheer hard work, * * *

Broadway Ideas

sent through a mountainous region. The result elicited gasps from the audience because the camera eye caught unusual shots of valleys and mountains as the locomotive sped around curves, and gave the spectators the impression that they themselves were on the train.

Another novelty recently shown at the Rialto was a one-reeler called "Pen and Ink Vaudeville," produced by Earl Hurd. This was a burlesque cartoon on a vaudeville show, which was made very effective and amusing by the orchestral accompaniment. For instance, with the cartoon of a trombone player, German band, vocal artist, etc., the necessary sounds were made by the different instruments in the orchestra, much to the amusement of the audience.

A short reel called "Plastigrams" was shown at the Rivoli last week for the viewing of which colored ising-glass spectacles were distributed to the audience. These brought the figures on the screen into bold relief and gave them a stereopticon appearance which, because of the subject matter used, such as water hose directed at the audience, a crawling bug, etc. provided an unusual thrill.

However, the novelty is not the only type of short reel that is important. It is just as necessary to have the general theme of the feature amplified and broadened by the judicious selection of scenes. For instance when "Peter the Great" was shown at the Rivoli, a scenic of the city of Petrograd carried out the atmosphere of the film.

This idea might be developed so that not only the scenic but the comedy used would carry out the general "tone" of the feature. This idea would of course have to be used with discrimination, as with very heavy dramatic pictures, a light and almost nonsensical comedy of the "Slapstick" type might provide the necessary relief.

As an example of the idea, however, with a feature in which the love of little children forms an important part such as Thomas Meighan's "Pied Piper Malone," or "Daddies," the comedy might very easily be one of the popular "Our Gang" series. With a sea story such as "Down to the Sea in Ships," a comedy on the type of Christie's "Navy Blues," or a Bruce Wilderness tale such as "Jean of Haceta Head" which is woven around the romance of a lighthouse keeper could be used, and even with a domestic comedy such as Lubitsch's "Marriage Circle," in which the atmosphere is Viennese, why not a "Spat Family" comedy and a scenic of Vienna to complete the program?

If the average exhibitor would devote as much care to his selection of short subjects as he does to his features, that is, spend more time in trying to compile programs in which the component parts fit well together to form a harmonious whole, the result would be more than satisfactory and he would build up for himself the reputation of a showman, and for his theater a steady, well-pleased patronage.

It's all in the Treatment

By Hal Roach

To most Exhibitors, I presume, an extended run on a two-reel comedy sounds impossible; nevertheless, a Will Rogers Comedy has been running five weeks in Los Angeles and will be held over at least for six, while the feature has been changed three times.

Two comedies produced by this Studio were presented first-run at two different theaters and have received notices in the newspapers topping the feature. It looks as though comedies are coming into their own!

Your audience will think just as much of the comedy you use on your program as you do yourself. If in a corner of your newspaper ad you are going to say "also a comedy," the impression you will give your audience is that it is simply there as a filler to take up time before the feature starts. When an Exhibitor is thoroughly sold on the merits of a comedy and advertises it as a definite part of his program—giving it billing equal to the feature—the audience accepts that program as a double bill and very often feels that it has seen satisfactory entertainment although the feature has not come up to its expectations.

My impression is that the moving-picture-going public are not interested in "how long" a picture is, but "how good" it is, and a comedy properly advertised and presented would be just as important a part of your program as the feature.

I would like to take this opportunity of thanking Exhibitors whom I met on my trip last Fall, for the splendid way they have received the product from this Studio. We are leaving no stone unturned to make comedies of a quality that will appeal to all classes of audiences, and I am looking forward to the day when closer contact between Producer and Exhibitor will make it possible for us to maintain a standard of excellence in our product so that it will be of box office value to the Exhibitor, which in turn will be of financial value to us.

Newspaper Opinions

TIMES—* * * a story of politics, and the tragedy of a wife failing to keep step with her husband as he rises in the world. The situation is the old pathetic one of outworn usefulness.

"In Search of a Thrill"—Metro Colonial, Indianapolis

NEWS—There is nothing unusual in the story nor the filming of it. It is inclined to follow the beaten paths without any explorations along the byways.

STAR—* * * the title of Viola Dana's new Metro production * * * describes as well the scenarist's plight. He needed a big punch to wind up the eighty-five-minute study of a modern young woman's fads and fancies. So he enlisted the Apache world of Paris, staged a realistic fight and gave the story the vitality that it needed.

"A Lady of Quality"—Universal Mission, Los Angeles

(Run beginning Feb. 4)

DAILY NEWS—* * * a noteworthy cinematic effort because of three outstanding features.

First and foremost of these features is the photographic work of Charles Stumar. * * *

Second: Hobart Henley is to be congratulated for the intelligent way in which he handled a difficult story. * * *

Third: For her first starring vehicle Virginia Valli shows much promise of doing even greater things.

EXAMINER—* * * an affair of monstrous sets, of beautiful pictorial quality, and of a great and forceful story * * *

The story is one of tremendous power, with a well sustained romance and love interests throughout, and Mr. Henley has handled his sequences with nice care for the continuity of the drama.

RECORD—"A Lady of Quality" is a hearty, swaggering, blustering impression of England at the close of the 17th century pictured with pleasing beauty and not a little humor. In short, it's a pretty good movie. One of the best Universal has turned out.

TIMES—England, merrie old England with a heigh and a ho, reproduced in "A Lady of Quality," with beauty evident at every turn of the reel in photography, settings and costumes, will fascinate the beholders of photoplay. This feature indeed is one of the surprises of the season pictorially, * * *

"Reno"—Gold-Cosmop. Ohio, Indianapolis

NEWS—Mr. Hughes, who wrote the story and directed the feature, has attempted to walk on the proverbial two fences at one time, and he has, proverbially, fallen between them with a dull, sickening thud. In other words, "Reno" is only entertaining in spite of it. It has, incidentally, the worst climax that reviewer ever saw. Nothing more wild, improbable nor ridiculous could be imagined.

STAR—Major Hughes chose for the text of his sermon at the Ohio the ludicrous variety of marriage and divorce laws, enforced in the different states of the union. * * * he discusses at length the difficult besetting the way of those who would forsake what he calls "marriage bliss for separate blisters."

Half A Dollar Bill

(Max Graf Production—5000 Feet)
(Reviewed by Frank Ellis)

THIS is the best picture Max Graf has contributed to the motion picture industry. It is an ideal example of just what a successful picture should be. It has every detail, the settings are such as one would find in real life and the cast has been chosen with the fitness of the players for the roles to be interpreted in view. The feature has an entertaining story to tell and goes ahead and tells it in a business like manner stands padding, bunk and excess footage. The plot is one of real human interest, the humor is wonderfully blended, the action is of the red-blooded sort and runs smoothly from first to last scene. The continuity is excellent, every situation being well defined and the subtitles are good.

As for the cast, it is well balanced and talented, with little Frank Darro displaying a precocious talent. William T. Carleton does good work as Captain Duncan McTeague. Raymond Hatton has a hard role. He has to go around with one leg strapped up his back so that he can go around on a wooden leg. Mitchell Lewis and George MacQuarrie have the heavy roles and Anna Q. Nilsson is unusually appealing in the role of The Stranger. Then there are two dogs, Irish and Cameo with assignments of some very important "business" and they act like human beings. The title is a bit novel and comes from the idea that a boy is left on a doorstep. In the cradle is left half of a dollar bill. The mother keeps the other half but tells the finder that some day she will return to claim her own and exhibit her half of the bill as proof that she is the mother.

The picture is filled with dramatic situations, there is a stirring fight between three of the men principals and a thrilling climax that is recommended. We predict unusual success for this picture and recommend it unreservedly to exhibitors seeking something out of the beaten path.

THEME. A drama of the bounding deep and seaport town in which an abandoned babe comes into the lives of some rough salt water characters, bringing romance and adventure aplenty.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS. The acting of Frank Darro in the title role and William T. Carleton and Anna Q. Nilsson in their respective parts. The almost human "business" contributed by two dogs.

DIRECTION. Has built heart pull, a wealth of pathos, lots of atmosphere and many other desirable qualities into a plot that abounds in real action. Keeps the story sweeping swiftly along to a fine climax.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES. Have the banks put on Half a Dollar Bill week, permitting persons to open an account with fifty cents. Put on a contest for the best trained pet in town. Put on special parties for orphans.

DRAWING POWER. Suitable for the best houses. SUMMARY. A good picture, finely acted and telling a story of absorbing interest. Has a new child actor who is a wonder and some dogs that will be the talk of the town.

A Blast of Great Drama—that will blast all box office records!

A two-fisted romance of stormy hearts and surging passions, of fighting men who are laws to themselves—you'll say "Half-a-Dollar Bill" started a storm at your box office, when the crowds surge up to buy tickets for this Metro money maker.

If you had half a dozen theatres, and were playing Anna Q. Nilsson, William T. Carleton, Raymond Hatton, Mitchell Lewis, George MacQuarrie and a Max Graf-Metro picture in each of them, you'd think you were "sitting pretty," wouldn't you?—well, here you have them all in one knockout! Every name there is a box office guarantee—and besides the cast the story has every element of popular appeal to men and women and the youngsters, plenty of action and love and adventure, to bring them in and send them away telling their friends about it.

where there weren't any before, and turns a good picture into a smashing special?

Ask the exhibitor who plays "Half-a-Dollar Bill." He knows—and we know—because "Half-a-Dollar Bill" has got what it takes!

Human Interest--Heart Appeal

Of course. That's what makes over-night sensations and creates pictures that audiences love and will never forget.

And all the critics agree on "Half-a-Dollar Bill"—

"chock-full of human interest touches from start to finish" (Exhibitor's Herald)

"the human interest element is the prevailing quality of an attraction worthy the attention of all exhibitors, big and little" (Exhibitor's Trade Review)

"good audience picture that goes big with the average crowd" (Film Daily)

"appealing human note will make it a decided success with the women, while from almost every other standpoint it is a man's picture" (Moving Picture World)

"Three Ages."

"Why Worry."

"Safety Last."

"The Pilgrim."

CARL B. ADAMS

Cincinnati Enquirer

If you mean by the five best comedies of the past six months those coming under the class of short subjects, I would not be qualified to give an opinion, since I avoid them whenever I can, and those that I do see are about equally inane. Of the feature length comedies, I should include "Ruggles of Red Gap," "Dulcy," "Our Hospitality," "Why Worry?" and "The Brass Bottle" among the best of those recently produced.

"BILLY" LEYSER

Cleveland News

The six best comedies I have witnessed during the past six months include "Two Wagons—Both Covered" (This picture, of course, can only be appreciated when one has seen "The Covered Wagon"). "Done in Oil," "The Bar Fly," "Kidding Katie," "Perfect Thirty Six" and "Uncensored Movies."

In the mentioning of the above I make it that Keaton and Chaplin offerings are no further called short subjects but feature productions.

WALTER D. HICKMAN

Indianapolis Times

"Why Worry?" with Harold Lloyd.

"Uncensored Movies" with Will Rogers. (A short subject).

"Going Up," with Douglas MacLean.

"Roughest Africa," a Stan Laurel comedy, also a short subject which had great drawing power on its own merits.

"Potash and Perlmutter," with Bernard and Carr.

Paving the Way

Short subject producers and distributors should welcome 1924 enthusiastically. Unless some unforeseen obstacle arises the short subject should come into its own during the year. Never was the outlook better. The long special or super special which held the screen hour after hour seems destined to be of the past. True, there will be big specials; they will roll along their necessary 10 or 11 reels. But they will be shown in houses specially designed for such entertainment and, as a rule they will not be the annoyance to the average exhibitor that they were during the early part of this season.

And so the short subject promises to be a more important part of the program than during the past season when it was almost out of the question to give them the consideration they deserved. And this is as it should be. The only misery of it is that many exhibitors who have contracted to run the long specials must deprive their patrons for some little time to come of the value of the diversified program which admittedly is the ideal program for the average house. So the day of reckoning is a bit further away than it should be. But better late than never.

PRODUCERS EMBARRASSED

The difficulty is that some of the best producers of short subjects, disturbed by the conditions which developed during the past year, have either withdrawn or have curtailed their production ideas. And this is to be regretted. You cannot have too many good short subjects. Unfortunately there are far too many weak sisters of this type on the market today. They are cheap—ridiculously and disastrously cheap. After looking over a lot of these a Northwest exhibitor told me that he preferred to pay the much higher price for a certain brand—mentioning the name—than to run them in his houses. "I might as well close up as to show such stuff," he said. "The better grade costs a lot more. But it's the old story. In the end they're worth what they cost."

STUDY THE OFFERINGS

Too many exhibitors are far too lax, too careless in the type of short subjects which they show. Too many just consider them as "fillers" buy them as such and run them accordingly. As a matter of fact judicious care in selection of the proper kind of short subjects would materially enhance program values. Too often Mr. Exhibitor buys his short subjects in bulk and just throws them in with his feature, regardless of whether or not they harmonize or clash with the feature subject. Too many short subjects are purchased with more regard to low price than to value, fitting either the feature or the general policy of the house.

If exhibitors would really see the features they play instead of booking them through titles, value of drawing power of star, etc., and so have a more definite idea of the feature to be presented they could fit in their short subjects to much better advantage.

AND THEN ADVERTISING

Perish the mark. If the few lines of type which the average short subject gets from Mr. Average Exhibitor is to be termed "advertising" let's hire Madison Square Garden and laugh out loud. I have just looked over probably 100 theater advertisements from all parts of the country, trying to find something striking; something unusual, something different, for the short subject.

But the advertisements indicate that the exhibitors all feel about the same; they give nine tenths or more of the white space to the advertising of the feature and the short subject gets an inch or two somewhere in the ad where it won't attract too much attention. There is one concern—Educational—which uses reverse plate cuts so that these small ads attract attention. But that is due to the company, not the exhibitor.

TAP YOUR AUDIENCE

Get on the job. Why not find out from your audience just what they think of the short subjects and what you should do with them. A questionnaire distributed on the seats or through your mailing list would attract attention. Make your questions brief and pointed. And from your answers determine just what you should do with them. You will probably be surprised at the mental attitude of your patrons to what you consider an unimportant part of your program.

DANNY.

In the Name of Showmanship— Advertise Your Whole Program

“Loew’s State Theatre, Los Angeles, gives the short subject a square deal in the matter of illuminated sign representation,” said Exhibitors Herald in a recent issue.

“In the name of showmanship, why not? Why shouldn’t the short subject get a square deal? There’s no answer. It should. But it doesn’t.

“Look at the proposition squarely. Get out of the box office for a moment and walk across the street. Go around the corner to the other man’s theatre and see what he has to offer.

“There’s a great deal of space devoted to the title of a feature picture. Maybe it’s good, and maybe it isn’t. If it is, fine; if it isn’t, what reason could anyone find for buying a ticket?

“At Loew’s State, by contrast, suppose the feature picture doesn’t sell itself. Suppose it is not an automatic success. If it’s one of those ‘just a picture’ things, even, there is still a reason to buy a ticket. You are told that there’s a comedy, and the lights tell you just about all there is to tell about it. You are told, in short, that while the feature picture is the big item of the program, there is also another item of importance. You are offered, in this case, two chances of being entertained. So far as you are informed, in the other case, you are staking your time and money on one chance.”

TRADE

Serials for 1924

By Edgar Oswald Brooks, Pathe Exchange

Startling and radical indeed are the changes which have been made in serial treatment and production for this season's output. To put the matter very briefly: "Hokum" has been cut out. "Hokum" refers to the gross impossibilities, the hanging-on-by-the-eyebrows stunts at the end of each episode, the absurdly illogical situations, with which serials were wont to rely for their chief attractiveness.

The word "episode" has gone into the discard, in favor of the logical subdivision into weekly "chapters," emulating the example of the popular magazines which weekly or monthly give their millions of readers installments of serial fiction by "chapters."

The serial story of today, in order to make its widest possible appeal, must necessarily be "written up" to the level of adult audiences and not "written down" to the intelligence of juveniles.

Hence 1924 marks the dawning of a new era in serial production, serial distribution, serial appeal. As our opening gun in the newer and better type of motion picture serial Pathe acquired from Emerson Hough the motion picture rights to "The Way of A Man."

Pathe has an adaptation of James Fenimore Cooper's "Leatherstocking Tales," "The Fortieth Door," taken from the "best seller" by Mary Hastings Bradley. Negotiations are in progress with Albert Payson Terhune for the use of his story of the Everglades, "Black Caesar's Clan" and Philip Barry has written an original story "Ten Scars Make A Man."

Another "future," not so very far distant, may as yet be only hinted at, but it will be of world wide significance and importance when the news breaks, involving as it does the criminal investigation departments of New York, London and Paris.

The foregoing examples indicate the trend of the serial of 1924 and beyond.

"Abraham Lincoln"—Phonofilm Rivoli

"Abraham Lincoln" is a two-reeler in which the action and voice synchronize on the screen. It was produced under a process developed by Dr. Lee de Forest.

EVENING WORLD—The synchronization of action and voice is interesting.

HERALD—The Phonofilm is undoubtedly the best of all the talking movies, in that it achieves absolute synchronization between the action and the sound. * * * But the Phonofilm still leaves much to be desired. The sound is so vastly less realistic than the pictures themselves that it can scarcely carry conviction.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * produced a telling effect. There is no telling how far this invention will go, but it must be said that it is highly interesting and is entirely a new idea.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—* * * rather crudely done.

TIMES—The words coming from the player emanated from the screen simultaneously with the movements of the players' lips. These sounds, however, seemed to come from a corner of the screen rather than from the shadow of the player. Hence in its present stage the "Phonofilm" is not likely to be taken up by those who are producing on a large scale. Nevertheless, this effort disclosed an interesting angle, and that is that speeches made by distinguished men could be produced simultaneously with the picture.

Winning

One of the most successful operators is George Fischer of Milwaukee, who has put over not only the big Alhambra in Milwaukee, but the Milwaukee, another big house, as well.

Read what Fischer has to say of the short subject—and then do some thinking, Mr. Exhibitor. Says Fischer:

"At the very beginning of motion pictures, we knew nothing of the so-called long features. Our programs usually consisted of variety subjects. I feel that these variety pictures were in a great way responsible for the tremendous success of the business today. As we went along, and the two or three reel features supplanted the so-called two or three hundred feet subjects, I still tried to give my patrons a well rounded program, which consisted in those days of a two or three reel feature, news weekly, and a comedy, occasionally adding a singer or quartette.

"The Alhambra, when first opened was considered the largest motion picture theater in the world, and if I do admit it, a very successful one. My programs at the Alhambra always had plenty of variety, and if there was a new short subject on the market, I was sure to show it there. To the present day, I am still a very strong believer in the so-called short subjects. Even when we have played features at the Milwaukee Theater of 10,000 or 11,000 foot lengths, I have always added thereto the usual weekly, travel, cartoon, and comedy, even though I felt that the feature was strong enough without the added attractions. This does not mean that I gave them four full reels of short stuff, but possibly not more than two reels, as the four reels were cut to fit my needs.

"I feel that the success of the Milwaukee is greatly due to, not only the class of productions we are showing, and the service rendered, but to the so-called short subjects that we always offer. It is indeed gratifying to learn that the producers are about to embark on a new policy of giving us features of about 6000 feet. While the short subject market has been very good to us and has given us its best even though the financial returns did not warrant it, I feel that now we can look forward to some of the biggest things in the short subject field."

It Pays

An idea worth following is passed along to exhibitors by David Snaper, proprietor of several amusement enterprises in New Brunswick, N. J., in a letter to the manager of the New York Exchange for Educational Films.

Snaper inaugurated a "Jazz Comedy Day," the program of which consists entirely of appropriate comedy subjects, augmented by a jazz addition to his orchestra. Excerpts from Snaper's letter follow:

"I booked four Educational Comedies, 'Plumb Crazy,' 'Kick Out,' 'Roll Along' and 'Snooky's Covered Wagon,' arranged to increase my orchestra to the extent of one saxophone player and then advertised 'Jazz Comedy Day.'

"The house opened at one o'clock, and man, you should have seen the way we jammed them into the Strand Theater for the rest of the day! Because the show was only eight reels long, we were able to crowd in four complete matinee performances, the most satisfactory business any exhibitor could hope to have. Not a theater in town stood a chance against my bill because the diversity of my entertainment seemed to be just what the people wanted.

"There is nothing like a Short Subject bill for a special occasion. Not only does it mean a saving to the exhibitor from the standpoint of rentals as against the price we are compelled to pay for long features, but it gives the jaded movie audiences the variety they are looking for these days. 'Jazz Comedy Days' have proved wonderful winners for me."

Making the Comedy Pay

One of the best examples of effective advertising recently seen on a Christie comedy was the advertising of Larry Lund owner of The Broadway, Los Angeles, on Dorothy Devore's "Navy Blues."

Lund used "Navy Blues," on all three sides of the marquee, advertising it with Hodkinson's "The Old Fool," as an extra big double bill. He also used three different combination art and photograph lobby displays on the comedy and in addition, thirty by forty, enlarged photographs of the comedy action which was taken on the deck of battleships. Incidentally this comedy received an unusually big news break in the papers when it was reviewed.

Other good advertising on comedies seen recently were Crandall's Ambassador in Washington, which played up Bobby Vernon, in "Hold Everything" as an extra attraction with "Dulcy;" Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo, which advertised Bobby Vernon in Christie's "A Perfect 36" in the electric light display; and the California, Granada and Warfield theaters in San Francisco, which have been carrying the new Christie comedies on all billboard stands in the city.

Out of Their Seats

By Al Christie

Comedy producers are natural students of the psychology of humor and consequently endeavor to study audiences in an effort to ascertain the type of comedy which appeals to the average person. The wide variance in senses of humor leaves this student in a trance for he will always find that there are those who laugh when they shouldn't and should when they don't. This means that their sense of humor differs from his. However, these people are a part of the average audience and are justly considered.

It is obvious that physical discomforture is nearly always productive of laughs and a producer is often forced to inject, against his principles, such puerile "gags" as pie-throwing and falling off cliffs to please those human beings who possess that peculiar complex which demands the ridiculous.

Subtle humor is a terrible gamble. It may possibly garner a 10 per cent acceptance—and those in the audience who make up this 10 per cent are afraid to laugh because they are hopelessly outnumbered. Yet this ten per cent must be appeased, so the producer assumes another worry.

Extensive international sales have a tendency to influence comedy themes because provincialisms must be avoided and the stories are necessarily constructed upon a basis of cosmopolitan understanding. Comedy producers have a lot to think about and they have learned that there is more grief associated with comedy than with tragedy.

Beside being bewildered by the aberrant attitudes of audiences, the producer encounters ambiguous criticisms and comments which contribute little to the solution of "what the public wants." Imagine trying to appraise the effect of one of your comedies after reading the following deviating criticisms of the same picture from theaters in equal sized towns:

"Somebody's Wrong," a Christie comedy. This is the funniest picture I have ever shown. Audience roared from start to finish. Book it and your patrons will fall in love with you.—Star Theater, Podunk, N. D.

"Somebody's Wrong," a Christie comedy. Avoid this one boys. It is the worst mess that I have ever seen. I hid in the basement for fear the audience would shoot me. Moon Theater, Squeedunk, S. D., (10 miles from Podunk.)

Such articles, appearing side by side, are of great help to a producer—if he wants to become a raving maniac. Yet is indicative of the fact that it is impossible to construct a comedy which will be blessed with unanimous approval. So the producer is driven to tears listening to the appeal for comedies that will "knock 'em out of their seats."

It is concluded that a successful comedy would be one that forces the producer to dream the following nightmare:

1. The exhibitor, poking his head out of the box-office, must be greeted with the "thud, thud, thud," caused by the limp bodies of hilarious patrons striking the floor.

2. "Gags" and "hokum" must be avoided.

3. "Gags" and "hokum" must be prevalent.

4. Producers must furnish stretchers with each comedy to replace the customary ushers for the purpose of clearing the theater of helpless, but happy, customers.

5. "Silent laughers" must be shot.

6. The rental price of these humorous riots must not exceed $2.

An All-Year Product

By L. J. Darmour, President Standard Cinema Corporation

The real importance of the short subject in motion pictures is obtaining growing recognition, and the future will see even more rapid developments in this field. Speaking for one of the newest companies in the field, I want to outline the ideas on which our production and sales policies are based.

In the first place, we are working on the fact that there is no slack season as far as the short subject is concerned—that every part of the year is good for the showing of one and two reels of the higher standard.

The reason for this is simple. Theater patrons want to be amused and interested by having short subjects on the program in autumn, winter and spring, but their desire for the lighter and shorter films is still more urgent in the summer, which is the admitted dull season for the regular features.

Following this basis, Standard is getting out and will continue to release new series of shorts throughout the year, starting them in regular order, regardless of the season. This is an innovation which has already received box-office recognition in the case of the Jimmy Aubrey comedies.

Another development in short subjects is, that instead of padding out a subject to two-reels, as used to be the rule, so that even two reels was too long, two-reelers are being made as condensed versions of pictures which could ordinarily run much longer.

This idea of putting punch and story in a few thousand feet, of course, requires infinitely more care in the production, and the expenditure of more money to raise the standard of quality.

Standard has completed plans where by it will start production shortly on a number of two-reelers which, we believe, will be more lavish, more carefully produced, and, incidentally, more costly than any other film of similar length on the market.

The Standard, in order to carry out these plans, is negotiating with several feature comedians, of world-wide reputation, who have appeared lately only in seven-reel features. They will appear in the same type of successful entertainment they have been featured in, but they will be of two-reel length. These comedies will be two-reel features in every sense of the word.

Hold Down Footage

By J. R. Bray

The efforts of Famous Players, First National and Metro, to reduce the footage of average feature releases to six thousand feet or less, it seems to me, will have a very marked effect stimulating interest in the sale of short subjects. The complaint we hear most of, is that the features are so long that the theater manager has very little room for short subjects, and sometimes has room only for a news weekly in addition to his best feature.

With features henceforth cut down to five and six reels in length, there will be a great deal of additional room for first-class short subject material which ought to make it possible for the producers of one-reel and two-reel productions to get a ready market for subjects of good quality.

Not only will such a change create a greater market than at present exists for short subjects, but I feel sure that the theater-going public will greatly appreciate the change. Complaints can be heard on every side now, that the average feature is too long, that when a feature is of only average quality and it runs into so many reels, it has a disastrous effect upon the box office receipts. Criticisms can be heard on every side these days, that the average quality of feature productions is very poor, and wishes are expressed that the feature producers should find fresh angles and new material from which to construct their productions.

Shortening up the features will eliminate a great deal of this criticism, because a production of average quality cut down to the minimum in length will be a great deal more interesting and make a finer impression on the public than one that is overpadded and drawn out to the point of becoming tedious. Considering this proposed change from all angles, I think it will benefit not only the short producer, but the industry as a whole, and be one of the greatest factors towards restimulating the interest of the general public in moving pictures.

How Important Newspaper Critics Regard the Short Subjects

E. D. Keilman, Topeka Daily Capital
I regard the short subject as much essential to the motion picture theater as the big features.

I believe a steady volume of business could be assured if a more consistent policy of playing "harmonious programs" were adopted.

The average theater manager gives all his attention to the feature and just "fills in" with short stuff to get the needed footage.

If short subjects were selected and booked as a part of a planned program it would solve one of the problems the theater man has to fight when thinking of "Old Man Overboard."

As it is many patrons are encouraged to stay away when their part of a picture is not featured. How much better to make that patron realize that it's not just one picture but a whole program that will be offered for his entertainment.

I know several persons in Topeka who make a practise of attending a theater where their favorite brand of news reels are shown. They know they will always be entertained with something that is "Real."

I also know some who always ask there is a good comedy on the bill and make their decision as to the theater they will attend on the assurance of good laughs.

In my position with the Daily Capital, I receive several and some times more than several inquiries of that nature every day in addition to "first and" opinions of the feature pictures being shown.

Why could not some theater manager get those people as regular attendants of his place by having the news and the comedy every program?

It's my opinion that the news should be a regular feature of every bill. The same opinion stands for comedies. The latter should be booked so their general trend or contrast makes them fit the feature picture. When I was managing a house, I aimed to follow a sad or tragic ending on a feature with a particularly uproarious comedy—that for contrast led to let them go out laughing. If it was a comedy feature I used a good two reel drama as an introduction so the comedy would appeal even the more.

I regard prologues an essential when playing these really big features. One always has to hike prices on such pictures and by spending 100 one can devise a suitable little bit that blends with the feature and gives the audience the impression that it is getting an elaborate production at the increased price. I never knew an audience to kick on a price hike when this thing was done.

There is such competition in the comedy producing business right now that it would be hard indeed to pick out any "Five Best," tho I believe the Stan Laurel series of burlesques are about up at the top, and especially fitting for use with programs. I believe comedies and news reels are necessities and not "fillers."

There are times too when an educational or a scenic can be used to create atmosphere for a feature picture and are just as necessary, otherwise if properly picked they will do as the real fillers when extra footage is needed. These can be cut to size much more easily than the features, or the comedies.

William J. Lewis, Pittsburgh Gazette Times

Short subjects are the spice of any photoplay programs always. Quite often they are the best thing. Of course, I am speaking of all short subjects lumped together and thus the general quality of the whole gets a lowered average by reason of the comedies which usually are most rotten. However, that fact is not recognized by the run of movie fans, else there would be no movie theaters, because, bad as they are, the comedies are little worse than most of the so-called features. Here again, the movie critic sets his opinion against that of the movie patron, who, as a rule, is well satisfied with the class of pictures served to him. Getting back to the short subjects, they are most important and no good bill would be complete without them. I do not believe they would attract any person to a cinema theater but I am of the opinion that a large percentage of film patrons would be disappointed if they were not shown.

Pittsburgh exhibitors take good care of their audiences by giving them various short films in addition to the feature. I never see anyone walking out on the short stuff except those intent on seeing only the feature and have given themselves just that much time. About the only thing I know of that makes an average movie customer tired is the usual "Bill Spivens presents Arty Choke in 'The Whirling Wheel,' a Vapid Production, made into a photoplay under the personal supervision of Bill Spivens. Directed by G. W. Driffith. Photographed by J. Artemus Dodds. Scenario by Bessie Blase from the original story by Alfred M. Bridle," etc. Who the hick cares anything but the fact that good ol' Arty is going to thrill us again?

W. H. Landvoight, Washington Star

I regard the news, educational and scenic short reels as often the most enjoyable portions of the photoplay programs shown in our theaters. The Urban Movie Chats are excellent and the news features always interesting. It has been my observation that audiences always give them close and interested attention.

I believe a great majority of the picture audiences would seriously miss the short reels I have referred to. There are, alas, too many short reel scalled comedies—better monstrosities, whose absence would be hailed with much relief by all persons of average intelligence.

Exhibitors in Washington are, as a rule, generous in their exhibition of the good short reel features, although

I believe that some fail to fully appreciate the interest value of the reels I have described and often think they can relieve the density of a tragic picture with a short reel farce, which, they believe, is the more effective the bigger absurdity it is.

I had rather describe the type of comedies I prefer than single out any as the best I have seen. Personally I enjoy really funny pictures, even if they are exaggerations, as well as the finer comedy subjects, but both should reflect brains and thought in the maker. The custard-pie comedy, like coarse slapstick never could appeal to me, and I think only small children or very dense intellects like them. I regarded "Our Hospitality" as very enjoyable entertainment, and, by the way, I was almost as much amused at the laughter at Buster Keaton when he was about to go over the falls, or take the leap for his life, as at the amusing sides of the picture itself. Those who laughed when a man's life seemed in jeopardy, even in a picture, did not reflect, in my opinion, an intellectuality in advance of the irresponsible small boy, who laughed at a funeral, because the corpse looked funny. In comedies as in its more serious drama the picture making industry must employ efficient intellect—and keep the box-office nose out of production.

Harold Kessler, Toledo Town Topics

"Just as important as is the 'funny page' of the daily newspaper, equally important is the comedy film in the picture house. In the newspaper business we pick these features for our readers which experience has taught us hold the widest appeal. It seems that the motion picture houses might well follow this example in building their programs. I think it's pretty well established that people go outside and talk about the comedy, often with more enthusiasm than they discuss the 'super feature' which may or may not be good."

Ted Taylor, Los Angeles Record

"A toast, my friends, to the Short Subject . . . spice of the movie.

"The Short Subject, marked by originality of idea and enthusiasm of production almost unknown among the over-emphasized features.

"Pictures such as Tolhurst's microscopic dramas of insect life; the short comedies of Keaton, Hamilton and 'Our Gang'—and those produced by Christie and Mack Sennett; the delightful whimsicalities of Felix the Cat and the little men who hop out of the inkwell; the wisecracks gleaned from the newspaper columns by the Literary Digest; the grotesque silhouettes of Tony Sarg; the cleancut 'Fighting Blood, and 'Leather Pusher' series; the adventures in scenic beauty of Robert Bruce. . . . These have made picture houses fascinating despite much drawn-out drivel and cut-and-dried-hokum.

"And, too, the news reel—proof that the language of the eye is more international than Esperanto or Volapuk. * * *

David W. Bailey, Boston Transcript

Favoring, as I do, the "unit" program, and never more than one full-length "feature" film on a single bill, I naturally believe short subjects, split reels, comedies, "educational" bits, news weeklies, and magazine stuff to constitute a body of matter from which the alert house manager must choose items suited to the tastes and capacities of his patronage.

My district—Boston—is at present handicapped by the almost universal prevalence of the "two-feature" program. This results in the choice, either of two indifferent or positively bad films at the possible price of one first-rate picture and a few sundry reels, or else of one passably good photoplay and an exceptionally cheap one to accompany it. This custom also leaves little room for intelligently selected short subjects. From such programs as do leave room for these brief, miscellaneous reels I derive the opinion that Bostonians, or a considerable percentage of them, are attracted to picture houses by short stuff. This seems especially true in the neighborhood houses in outlying wards and suburbs, and in the larger houses in such sections as the Back Bay. It goes without saying that the ordinary fatuous and vulgar hurly-burly two-reel comedy does not draw strongly in these more or less sophisticated districts.

It is my opinion (a fallible one, remember) that exhibitors in Boston are showing too few short subjects. Robert Bruce's out-of-doors stuff, some Prizma reels, oddities such as Tony Sarg and the "Inkwell" series, Will Rogers comedies; the "Enchanted City," "Sea of Dreams" kind of filler;—all these have received inadequate showings in Boston. I think that the public hereabouts would welcome more such reels.

E. B. Olwin, Fargo N. Dakota Daily Tribune

I believe short subjects have a rather important place on the motion picture program, except in the case of the super-productions. I believe particularly in the value of the educational, novelty, and news reel features. The short comedies, in most cases, display a monotonous lack of new ideas.

I do not believe that any large number of persons are attracted to a picture house by a short subject, except in the case of established comedy stars such as Buster Keaton and Harold Lloyd. At the same time I do believe that many persons would be disappointed if the short subjects were not shown. I have noticed that many persons who came in late, remain for the short reel subjects after the feature picture is shown, but do not stay for the opening of the feature.

Exhibitors in this section are showing enough short subjects. The length of some of the feature pictures makes it difficult to include short subjects on the bill.

Mr. Al Christie,

Dear Mr. Christie

For the past four years since managing the T. and D Theatre, we have been playing Christie Comedies; in fact the whole Educational Program. Christie Comedies are the "Spice of the Program" sure enough, and we can always rely on them. They are clean-cut and minus the usual Hokum and slapstick of which the modern comedy is so full

I just want you to know how much we enjoy the work of your new star, Jimmie Adams. He is a conscientious hard worker and consistently funny and seems to be very versatile. "Roll Along", "Green as Grass" and "Black and Blue", which we are now playing, are splendid testimonials to a very clever, able young man. His blackface work is very good and in my opinion he is a young comedian who bears watching. He is growing to be a very big favorite with all of our patrons. "Done in Oil", by the way, went over very good and had thrills and suspense

Bobby Vernon, Neal Burns, Dorothy Devore, Vera Steadman and all of the Christie Comics are also liked

This is just a letter of appreciation and encouragement to keep up the good work.

Wishing you a happy and prosperous New Year, I am

Very truly yours,

Helen de Motte, Richmond News Leader

Good short features are undoubtedly valuable in building up a program, particularly educational (real educational ones), news reels and clean bright, comedies, not slapstick.

I do not think any important percentage of people are attracted to picture houses by short subjects. It is possible a certain number would be disappointed if there were no short features, especially if the feature picture is not a strong one, but I believe the majority of patrons of the theaters are attracted solely by the feature picture, either because of the story, favorite players or the work of a well known director.

Exhibitors in Richmond, have well chosen, diversified programs, in the main.

I do not recall the name of any comedies during the past six months. I have neither the time nor inclination to review them and rarely see but a portion of a program, in addition to the feature picture.

Leah Du Rand Des Moines Register and Evening Tribune

I believe that the majority of picture patrons enjoy picture programs built up with a five or six reel feature and the addition of one or more good short subjects. Moreover, the educational and news reels are beneficial as well as enjoyable to the majority. The effect of a "Sing Them Again" or a Bruce Wilderness or a Lyman Howe is worth much, in my opinion.

I do not believe that people are attracted by the short subjects, in fact they never look at any part of the advertising but the name of feature or star, in most cases. But I am sure that most people do enjoy them, some even appreciate the best ones, and all would probably miss them if they were not shown.

Our exhibitors are not showing enough of the best short subjects, but too many of the silly comedies that are a bore.

Richard Hayford, Buffalo Courier

I am in favor of short subjects. Interspersed, they sort of form a relief, especially if the sensational ten-reeler proves nothing but hokum and cheap trash. By all means, give us good short subjects, real comedies, up-to-date educational and the latest news reels.

In my mind there is no doubt that they will greatly help to build up a program. They are often a compensation for a bunk feature. I am always looking to that end after a disappointing top-liner, so much in fact, that once in my review I featured the short subject matter on a program of one of our biggest houses and gave the sensational headliner three lines which was one too many.

I believe that Buffalo exhibitors should show more short subjects than they are doing just now, especially when they themselves know that the feature won't stand the test of good entertainment.

Mae Lillian Fish, Evansville Ind. Spectator

The short subject, in my opinion, always improves a motion picture program. A diversified bill attracts a crowd, particularly in Evansville where people like to get their money's worth. I think the news reels are indispensable. Educational usually are very instructive, although as far as I am concerned, this type of pictures, with the exception of travelogues or travel pictures, is non-essential. I like good, short comedies, too.

I think a great many persons are attracted to picture houses by Short Subjects and that the most of this number are disappointed by what is shown.

Exhibitors in this city are showing enough short subjects, I believe, but apparently good short subjects are hard to find.

I have not seen five good comedies in the past month. It would be difficult for me to name the five best comedies I have seen during the past six months. Producers of comedies, I think, make a mistake in trying to "pad" their efforts. I am not saying there are no good comedians, but the short comedies are few and far between. I like the Toonerville comedies, for the most part, but these are no longer shown here. I am in favor of better short comedies and shorter feature productions.

G. C. MacKinnon, Boston Advertiser

News reels and other short subjects have frequently saved me from dying of ennui. But I should not be surprised to find that the majority of the public disagrees with me in my oft reiterated praises of short subjects. For I often disagree with the majority of the public, and they have every right to return the compliment, and probably do.

Many people, especially in sophisticated city neighborhoods, delight in such films as "Bali The Unknown." Of course, this film was fairly long. But something along the same line, and shorter, would appease them and compensate them for terrible features.

The Fenway Theater is commendable in this respect, I think. Some houses show two long, and often very dismal, features, with two brief subjects, clipped as short as possible, in between. Lately I have noticed sob-hokum and exaggerated thrill-bosh getting the laugh. If an audience doesn't sorrow with a sorrow-film, and thrill with a thrill-film, it seems safe to say that it is being bored.

I doubt that a long, clever comedy tires anyone except a few benighted creatures who cluck at the gags as if agitated and nonplussed. Why not comedies of medium length, and features of the same extent? "Modern Matrimony" was a good length for any film, grave or gay. Or perhaps a bit shorter. I think "Modern Matrimony" ran about fifty minutes.

(Ex Abundantia: "Bali The Unknown" got a great hand at the Capitol, Allston. Jibes, derisive laughter, and other signs of contempt greeted a "moral-lesson" film at a high-class film theater. Is it possible that the city public is getting tired of cinema preachments? Nearly all the long films sermonize. Few of the short ones do so.)

Jack Gordon, Fort Worth Press

I regard the news reel as indispensable, usually the brightest unit of the program. Most comedies I think deplorably trite, inane and wholly unrelishable. Theaters as a whole, in my opinion, slight the educational, thereby overlooking one of the primal possibilities of the moving picture. I cannot see why travel films, entertainingly titled (such as Martin Johnson's stuff) should bore anyone, but rather instruct and amuse simultaneously.

It is most deplorable, I think; to waste good film on the silly comedies being issued when this same footage could be taken up with subjects instructive and engrossing like the Pathe Screen Magazine.

No motion picture program can be complete without the short subject. It would be like a restaurant meal minus the salt shaker. Short subjects fail to bring patrons to a theater because they aren't exploited properly in most cases. Theater goers select their show by the feature, naturally, as it makes up the bulk of the show, but expect suitable short subjects as an appendage to the program.

Exhibitors in this section are very generous with short subjects.

Elmer H. Dressman Cincinnati Post

If I were an exhibitor I would use the same care in the selection of short subjects that I would like to use in buying feature films.

To my mind, while a poor feature cannot always be propped up with good short subjects, many a good feature is hurt by the atrocious comedy or uninteresting short reeler that precedes or follows it. There are cases, however, I believe where a program is saved by the excellence of its "added attractions." I regard them as of almost equal importance with the feature picture and I think they should not be bought on a hit or miss plan by any exhibitor.

I believe there is a large percentage of movie patrons which wants news reels, good comedies, sport and science short reelers, etc. I am confident that, while any given short one may not draw crowds to a picture theater, the consistent exhibition of high class one and two reel added attractions will mean folk are going to come again and again, knowing they are going to see the things they like. If I were an exhibitor I should want Aesop's Fables as a regular attraction. I should like to have a good news reel, sans the parades in Podunk, acrobatic babies, salmon fishing up north and the other perennial fillers. I should want a reel like the Pathe Review or Robert Bruce scenics every once in a while. I'd pick my comedies with care, eliminating the cheap comedians who only imitate and never originate. I'd do all these things providing I could get these pictures, could afford to pay the price and my patrons responded to them.

First-run exhibitors in Cincinnati are presenting, in the main, a very pleasing array of short reel subjects, altho some of the comedies are very mediocre.

Walter D. Hickman, Indianapolis Times

I have noticed for more than a year that the movie going public is not only increasing its interest in an 'all round' program but is demanding such balanced programs. Business men in this city often protest when a news weekly has been withdrawn. One Norma Talmadge picture provoked the comment, "Well there will be a comedy to make us laugh." It seems to me that the exhibitor would profit greatly if more legitimate attention was given to what is termed the auxiliary program. It still remains true that the public still buys a name feature picture but I have seen such pictures fail to draw as they should because an opposition house had a well balanced program.

I am convinced that the house which places the correct importance upon the short subjects will win a definite following over the exhibitor who plugs only a long feature. I believe that the regular movie public is inviting a shorter feature picture. The continuous vaudeville show mixed with movies is teaching the movie public to enjoy variety or not too great continuous length. This new attitude of the public cannot be studied too closely by theater managers and the press. I believe that the great majority of movie patrons are "buying" the movie show which offers a well balanced program, including short subjects and novelties.

The larger houses in the larger cities of Indiana are seeing the necessity of offering short subjects but the smaller houses have not awakened to the demand of the public.

In my conversation with managers, I often have been told that "Our Gang Comedies" have a strong draw in Indianapolis. Also the Mermaid comedies.

"Billy" Leyser, Cleveland News

To this writer, the short subject, which includes comedies, news reels, scenic and travel pictures 'hodge-podges' educational and the like are as important to a motion picture program as the feature picture or even the projection machines.

There are scores of photoplay patrons who go to the theater, with the hope that if the feature is not to their liking, they know they will see one or two short subjects which will compensate them for their time and trouble. And there are some whom I know are disappointed when no short reels are shown.

The one trouble in this section is the apparent disregard of the importance a short reel plays in the completion of a program. Not enough publicity or advertising is given—did I say not enough—I meant hardly any notice is given to the short subjects here in Cleveland, unless it is a mighty popular one or one that has had a million lines of printers ink 'spilled' in its favor.

The attitude seems to be that since the feature production cost so much more than the short subject, that it should be publicized pro rata. To me, the present day exhibitor, many of them rather still consider the short subject, be it comedy, news weekly, novelty or the like, a 'filler.'

When they consider that a fair price for a short subject is merchandise that they can capitalize on, then the short subject is really coming in to its own.

There are few feature productions released today that do not require additional attractions. The public expect them and will pay their money to see them, but the public must be advised that they are being exhibited, first.

Michael Fanning, Ohio State Journal, Columbus

The short subject is as important as it wants to make itself. Some are terrific bores, others are intensely interesting. Sad to say the latter are in the majority.

In my opinion no important percentage of people is attracted to theaters by short subject unless they are serials as "Fighting Blood." However I believe the majority would be disappointed if none was shown.

Exhibitors in Columbus are, if anything, showing too many short subjects and duplicating. Aesop's Fables, the best of them all is shown here in three downtown houses at one time.

W. Ward Marsh, Cleveland Plain Dealer

My opinions haven't had time to change very much from those printed in The Film Daily, issue of Sept. 2, 1923.

I would stress again the value of revivals (at reasonable prices to exhibitors and the public) for summer wear.

Guy Price
Los Angeles Evening Herald

The "short subject" is all-important to the theater program. It is the "relief" so often needed. In the opinion of this reviewer (twelve years experience) the short reels are vastly more helpful to the show than the musical and vaudeville interludes. People go to a picture theater for pictures and they expect to see a variety.

The ideal bill is a dramatic feature, comedy and education or a light dramatic feature, a light comedy and something of an educational or semi-serious nature.

It has been by observation that not a small percentage of film patrons is attracted by the one and two reel subjects.

The theaters in this district are very partial to the short subjects and keep well supplied, using them to advantage in their programs.

Carl B. Adams, Cincinnati Enquirer

Formerly, I regarded the short subject much in the same way as I regard the acrobatic act of a vaudeville show—a necessary and unescapable evil. Of late, there has been so much improvement in news reels, educational, and novelties that I feel a motion picture program is considerably enhanced by the showing of one or two judiciously chosen short subjects. The only department of short subjects that does not seem to have improved with age is the comedy. So far as I am concerned, the short reel comedy is a waste of time both for those who make them

Pointers

"ANYONE who thinks he can be negligent in his attention to patrons is on the road to ruin!

"No man should be satisfied to rest on his laurels and think that because the theater is excellent, the location good, his patronage big, he can stop there.

"A good manager, a good cashier, a good doorman, a good usher, will so impress everyone he comes in contact with that your patrons will look forward to another visit to your theater. You should never be too busy to demonstrate to a patron that it is your desire to make every visit to your theater a pleasant experience.

"Whoever allows himself to become impatient comes to the falling-off place before he is aware of it. By indulging in temper a man loses control of himself—effects nothing except to hurt the institution he represents. Do not turn friends into enemies by hasty speech.

"By conquering yourself you have conquered me," were the words of a great Indian chief when he surrendered to one of our colonial governors.—Harold B. Franklin in "The Close-Up," house organ, Department of Theaters, Famous Players-Lasky Corp.

and those who see them. Not more than one out of twenty-five is really funny. Most of them are still as lame, as puerile, and as devoid of genuine humor as when they first began making them. This is all the more to be regretted, because of the rich possibilities this genre of motion pictures possesses.

In cases when a photoplay of unusual length or unusual emotional depth is shown, I much prefer that no short subject at all be included on the program because it has a tendency to destroy the dominant "tone," mood, or atmosphere of the feature.

It has the same effect as clog dancing, tight-rope walking, or clownish monologues would have if offered during the acts of "Hamlet" or "Mary Rose." That is a custom still followed by itinerant river shows, but I think motion pictures have progressed beyond the river show stage. Of course, in the case of the average feature, the atmosphere is neither so subtle nor so penetrating as to be marred by the introduction of a news reel or other short subject before or after the showing of the feature.

I do not think there are many people in Cincinnati who are attracted to motion picture theaters by short subjects, although they certainly are attracted by the musical accompaniment. Just the same, I am convinced that most of the local audiences would be disappointed if short subjects were not shown at all, and I have found from observation that news reels and Aesop's Fables are particularly popular.

Exhibitors in this city are very careful not to overburden their programs with short subjects. The usual thing is a news reel, and in the case of shorter features a comedy is added to fill up the program.

Bob Crossland, Evansville Courier

I advocate the making of more short reels and news features. In my opinion much education is to be derived from the news reels, and it cannot be denied that short reels break any monotony that might occur prior to the showing of the feature. I know it to be a fact that short reels are indispensable to the exhibitor and play a large part in building his box office receipts.

I firmly believe that many persons are attracted to picture houses by short subjects. In a canvass of the office here I find four men out of ten who declare they desire short reels and would be disappointed without them. In a surmise I should have guessed that 25 percent of the movie patrons consider the short reel topics in selecting a movie.

Exhibitors in Evansville for the most part are showing enough short reels of an educational value but not enough short reel comedies, it is my opinion. I sincerely advocate a comedy being shown with every feature despite the nature of the feature unless it be a comedy within itself. I believe the movie going public seeks variety and what greater variety might be attainable than a tragedy-drama and a screaming farce. The American people can laugh and weep in the same breath and still be satisfied.

George C. Warren
San Francisco Chronicle

I believe, from conversations with ordinary mortals who are outside the businesses of newspapers or theaters, that short subjects are very important, particularly news reels. I do not believe people are attracted by short subjects, but I do believe they would be dissatisfied without them. There are always a comedy, news reel and often an educational or scenic on the programs in the big first run houses, and the first two always in the residential theaters.

Julius Cohen, New York Staats-Zeitung

The short subject is to the motion picture program what corned beef is to cabbage. There are a good percentage of people who are attracted to picture houses by Short Subjects and who would be disappointed if they were not shown at all.

The best comedies seen during the past six months are:

- "Why Worry"
- "To the Ladies"
- "Our Hospitality."

Carl Sandburg, The News, Chicago

The exhibitor, whether he runs a downtown house or a neighborhood theater, naturally can't have his whole program made of short subjects; he must have one big feature; the one big feature takes about an hour or more. Generally then, he has one or two short reel subjects, most often a two-reel comedy and a news reel. This usually eats up about an hour and a half or more of time, which seems to be considered about enough time for pictures. If the show runs longer it is filled with music and vaudeville specialties, or, in some cases, grand opera numbers. It seems to be the case that the big feature pictures are planned to take an hour or more, going six to ten reels, seldom less than six, which takes an hour. There seem to be few or no producers with the whims of a Charlie Chaplin. He found, for instance, that what he wanted to tell in "The Pilgrim" could be told in four reels; he could have stretched it to six reels and made a "one hour program picture," but he doesn't work that way. So, when theaters were showing this Chaplin four-reeler they had more room on their programs for two reel subjects. It seems that there may be more room for short subjects if the producers can be persuaded to make their longest pictures shorter. But we should remember there is a sort of theory or tradition that to make the longer pictures shorter makes the higher price lower to the exhibitor. And there we are.

Exhibitors know a lot about gauging the psychology of their audiences. Some exhibitors have made large fortunes and built chains of theaters because of their expert ability in gauging the psychology of their audiences. It may be that they have not given the short subjects a fair test; this reviewer believes that there is more science, history, poetry and valuable and exciting knowledge in the general mass of short reel subjects than there is in the general mass of "big feature pictures."

Just why more of these are not shown, the exact reason why more two-reel educational subjects are not exhibited, is not clear as yet, outside of the big main reason that the feature program of six reels and more takes most of the time. For one thing, we must understand that the exhibitor has to run a theater, tend to its furniture, heating and ventilation, music, tickets, front lobby displays, and so on, so that he doesn't have much time to go through the extensive lists of short subjects, view them personally and pick what might please his line of customers. If the exhibitors had more time they might be able to make a wise choice of short reel subjects, in which case the children wouldn't have to go to school and study geography or science because they would learn a-plenty at the movies.

There is something of a curse resting on the two-reel comedy. A high percentage of the two-reelers are rot and silly slapstick with no imagination nor healthy fun. As to the news reels, they are decidedly popular and are being used by many exhibitors. Just why more scenic and educational are not used is not clearly known. Of course, if people like prize fights and dancing and jazz parties better than books or science, history and poetry, it is going to be hard to make them like the beautiful two-reelers on the Einstein theory of relativity better than flashes of Cecil B. DeMille's screen version of "The Admirable Crichton," which he titled "Male and Female."

C. B. Bahn, Syracuse American

I'm a strong believer in short subjects, whether they're comedies, educational films or news reels. The primary object of the theater is to entertain. And the short subjects do just that. Sometimes the features do not.

Give us short comedies by all means. I'd rather laugh than cry. And so would you. Give us educational films. Visual instruction is 100 per cent efficient and—whisper—attractive. News reels? By all means. Let's see the news as well as read it. I'd like to particularly call your attention to two recent news reel offerings by International News. One was the insight into the operations of a radio station—W O R, to be specific. The other was that pictorial narrative of Captain Vargas, the darling International cameraman. Both were splendid features—examples of what the newsreel can do.

Would Syracuse picture patrons be disappointed if there were no short subjects? Emphatically, yes! There are feature films, of course, that are sufficiently important to hold the screen alone. But I know hundreds, yes thousands, who look forward to the shorter subjects each week. Syracuse film managers know this. That's why short subjects are found upon their programs.

The five best comedies I've seen in the past six months? That's no easy question to answer. Personally, I'm strong for the "Our Gang" series. And I like the Sennett releases. But I think, for novelty of idea and treatment, the Fox "Unreal News Reel" was one of the funniest comedies I've seen.

An Idea

Film distributing agencies are passing up one big bet—they are failing to keep us on the papers who write of the movies, supplied with pictures and data of the players in the short subjects. Movie theaters themselves have had to educate the public to the value of the short reels. It is about time that the short reel producers get busy and give us good pictures for reproduction so the public may become acquainted with the casts.

What the Public Likes

As part of the questionnaire which THE FILM DAILY issued to several thousand patrons of theaters through several hundred exhibitors was the question:

WHAT TYPE OF SHORT SUBJECT DO YOU MOST PREFER?

The replies varied considerably but were most interesting, especially in view of the fact that the questionnaire was forwarded to what is considered the higher grade element of patrons. The majority favored the comedy type of short subjects.

Some of the replies are presented:

- "News."—Maude Riehm, State Supervisor of H. E., Oklahoma City, Okla.
- "Scenics such as Bruce or Post Nature."—C. C. Marshall, Minister, Meth Episcopal Church, Bridgeport, Conn.
- "None. The short subject always impresses me as a filler because it is usually very incomplete."—F. A. Woll, Asst., Prof. College City of N. Y.

Interesting Replies

To Questionnaire of Motion Picture News from Showmen Regarding Importance of Short Subject

In recent issues of the Motion Picture News appeared the first of a series of reports from exhibitors in answer to a questionnaire issued by that publication.

One of the questions was "What do patrons say when you show a feature only?"

Here are some of the replies:

Wm. Fait, Eastman Theater, Rochester: "Poor show."

Harry Bernstein, Colonial, Richmond, Va.: "We have many complaints about long features."

Frank Rembusch, Indiana: "Nothing. Just rest before they come back."

J. W. Hawkins, gen. mangr. Allen Charobe, Inc., New Bedford, Mass.: "Where's the rest of the show?"

Ralph Talbot, Majestic, Tulsa, Okla.: "Patrons complain when all short subjects are cut out."

Arcade Theatre Co., Minto, N. D.: "Complaints made."

Clyde Wilson, Martz Theatre, Tipton, Ind.: "No kicks."

R. J. McLean, Palace Washington Court House, Ohio: "No complaint if picture is tied up with advertising."

John O. Raar, Rialto, Allentown, Pa.: "Good shorts frequently pull through a poor feature."

C. F. Kreighbaum, Paramount Theatre, Rochester, Ind.: "They raise a fuss."

Robert Sloath, Strand, Cumberland, Md.: "Very small percentage comment on length."

H. C. Beardsley, Beardsley Theatre, Red Oak, Iowa: "Not satisfied."

Hugo Riesenfeld, Famous Players houses, New York City: "I receive many complaints when I omit a comedy or a weekly and I also receive many complaints when I have not a varied program."

H. M. Crandall, Washington, D. C.: "The percentage of people who complain about the feature is very small—but it is those who go out do not complain, but do not come back that worry us."

George W. Trendle, Kunsy Enter. Detroit: "We get continual complaints from patrons who see a long show with nothing else when they are not satisfied that the feature is of sufficient merit to warrant the admission price."

"Roxy" Capitol, New York: "There have been many complaints on long features where the supplementary program has been cut."

H. D. McNally, Theater Operating Co., Peoria, Ill.: "Nothing."

Albert Nadeau, Bluebird Theater, Anaconda, Mont.: "A few express disappointment."

Queen Theater, Wilmington, Del.: "Do producers make comedies any more?"

Joseph Hopp, Illinois Theater, Rock Island, Ill.: "Most of them object."

Roy McMinn, Capitol Theater, Superior, Wis.: "Have tried long feature with 500 ft. filler, but it was unsatisfactory."

E. G. Anderson, Princess Theater

Aberdeen, S. D.: "Show was good but too long."

Star Theater, Walsenburg, Colo.: "Satisfied."

Jolin Graham, Lyric Theater, Butler, Pa.: "Complain."

C. R. Sullivan, Fair Theater, Amarillo, Tex.: "We always show something besides feature."

Phil Gleichman, B'way-Strand, Detroit: "Does not give entire satisfaction."

E. A. O'Keefe, Babcock and Regent Theaters, Billings, Mont.: "Depends on feature."

Frank L. Newman, Kansas City: "No complaint, if feature is top-notch production."

Fred Bezold, Lotus Theater, Sheridan, Wyo.: "We run complete program regardless of length."

H. Hombeck, Colonial, Longasport, Ind.: "If feature is good, they are pleased."

Roy Smart, Anniston Enterprises, Anniston, Ala.: "Many complain at very long programs without short subjects."

Frank W. Buhler, Stanley Co. Philadelphia: "While short subjects do not, as a rule bring in additional business, it is a fact that a news reel or comedy or other short subject added to the feature sends the patron out better pleased."

Variety Program

How It Was Put Over by Paul Williamson, Ideal Theater, Albuquerque, New Mexico

In this theater I play to the masses, not to the classes. This will define the status of the house. Some three years ago, I decided that many of the picture programs were too "heavy," that people went to picture theaters for amusement and light entertainment, and not for the privilege of unraveling some complex sex or social problem. This kind of picture was, to a degree, scarce in the five reel features. I had trouble in finding the four I needed for my four changes each week.

About this time I noticed some good two reel dramas coming from Universal. I already had a serial (two reels) running each-Friday-Saturday. This made four reels. I needed about three more. I decided that as the program was to run on Friday and Saturday I should make a bid for the children's business and so, decided to put in two comedies, one of two reels and one of one reel.

I booked about six of these programs to be run at intervals of about three to four weeks. I found that not only children but many adults were attracted by the "variety program."

I gave this program less publicity than I had been giving features, as I, like all the film world, looked down on a program that did not include a five reel feature, and I never like to over advertise. However in my advertising I was on this (and am on all programs) very explicit. I advertise for two purposes to attract those who like the kind of program I am offering, and to keep away those who do not like that particular kind of an entertainment. Under this plan those who do come to my theater go out boosting, and those who would have gone out knocking did not come.

But I am digressing.

I gave the short subject program less advertising than I had been giving features. Still it drew its share of the weekly business.

I decided then that the people would "stand for it" twice a month and booked the program to run each alternate week. This I continued for a year. Patronage held up. During the year past I have been running this short program every Friday-Saturday. Patronage is still holding up. I can count on a fair legitimate profit from this program each week.

The year's average shows more profit for me in this house on this program than it does on the so called "specials."

The Foreign Angle

By Arthur E. Rousseau, Pathe

Conditions abroad as far as they affect short-subjects are practically the same as those existing in this country. There is the same insistent demand for quality and the same emphasis on the need for variety in the programs. Foreign audiences, like those in America, are made up of elements of different temperaments and tastes, and the diversified program is the one that comes nearest giving the greatest satisfaction to the greatest number.

The type of short-subject entertainment in greatest demand is, of course, the comedy. This demand is not by any means exclusive of the other types of short-length pictures. News reels are also popular, and the scenic, scientific subject, novelty reel and animated cartoon have their followings. But man always enjoys a laugh irrespective of his race or place of habitation, and so the comedy always finds a ready market awaiting it. While there is a widespread demand for slapstick it is the kid comedy, the type so ably represented by the "Our Gang" brand of comedies, that is proving universally popular.

The foreign exhibitors have come to the realization that short subjects are not merely fillers and they now consider a comedy and a news pictorial as essential to the completeness of their program as the feature production. Good quality is especially required in the case of comedies because the foreign exhibitor knows that he cannot afford to spoil the effect of a good feature with a poor comedy. He also appreciates that it is hard to satisfy everybody and that a good comedy will quite often make a success of a show, which would be indifferent without it. Again, every exhibitor is bound to run a mediocre feature once in a while, in which case he has to depend upon an excellent comedy to carry over his program.

Just as the foreign market today only wants the best in features, so there is no chance of selling mediocre short subjects. In cases where pictures are booked individually, the short subjects are now enjoying the same possibilities as in this country; and wherever complete programs are booked, comedies are being considered as an integral part of the show and not as an accessory.

There is a particularly brisk demand for good short subjects in countries where feature programs are in active competition, because the exhibitors there depend upon the short subjects to gain supremacy over their competitors, which results in a general improvement of the motion picture shows all along the line.

The above situation prevails everywhere with the exception of territories where the quality of films is not appreciated and everything depends upon quantity. In these countries, comedies are still being used as mere fillers just the same as the features become fillers when the comedies are the better drawing cards. However, this situation is proving fatal to the motion picture business of those localities where these conditions exist, and it will not be long before quantity will give way to quality in these territories.

The Wise Exhibitor

By D. J. Chatkin

General Sales Manager, Educational Films Exchanges, Inc.

What are the two greatest emotions, if brought to the surface by any dramatic production, make it a lasting success?

Tears and laughter—sympathy and comedy. These are the two supreme achievements so eagerly sought for by producer, director, and highly appreciated by the public in any dramatic production. When these two are combined in one picture, you have a wonderful production. It is 100% entertainment perfectly balanced. A highly sob story without comedy of any kind, cannot be classed as perfect entertainment.

The knowledge of these facts, and being ignorant of same, is the difference between the wise and the foolish exhibitor.

The wise one knows that it takes two elements, viz: comedy and drama to put over any show successfully. He knows his patrons would rather laugh than cry, or both. He knows that only once in awhile can he put over a long dramatic subject without comedy, profitably. He fully realizes his regular business depends upon the two vital entertaining elements—drama and comedy—because his patrons pay admission expecting it and go out with a feeling of disappointment if they find one of these elements missing. It's only nature.

The foolish exhibitor cares nothing about balancing the program. He would just as soon show a long and short drama as anything else. He has only one ambition every night, to count the receipts and heap abuse on the general public not having sense enough to come to his theater in sufficient numbers so he could quit losing money.

Never once will he blame himself for the kind of entertainment he provides. The world is all wrong, he alone is right. He hasn't the slightest conception of entertainment values or what human nature the world over demands. His own idea of what a proper program should consist of is firmly fixed in his mind and no one could ever convince him he is wrong. Therefore, the box office alone proceeds to teach him a very costly lesson.

It's a true saying, "Showmen are born, not made." It takes a peculiar seventh sense to determine public taste, which is nearly the same the country over.

The greatest alibi used by these foolish exhibitors, outside of bad weather is "My town is different, they don't want this, and they don't want that" when as a matter of fact the exhibitor is only thinking of himself, catering only to his personal likes and dislikes. I have heard a number of exhibitors, particularly in small towns, say "My audience don't like comedies of any kind." How utterly ridiculous. There does not live a human being who pays admission into a place of amusement who don't enjoy a hearty laugh. It's all a question of showmanship, which consists namely of knowing how to cater to human nature in general, and not one's self.

The Coming Season

By Al Christie

This is going to be a big year for comedy, and the laughmakers will come into their own more than ever before in the history of the motion picture business.

The tide of long and boresome features has been turned and exhibitors everywhere have demanded in certain tones their desire for pure entertainment, whether it comes in large or small packages.

What will our part in this be?

Our entire organization has been concentrating these last few months on new ideas, new situations, new gags, building up a type of comedy for laughing purposes only, without detracting one particle from the standard we have set for quality production.

We are starting on our fourth year of distribution through Educational, our eighth year as independent producers, and my own thirteenth year of directing behind a camera, and I want to say that I fully believe there is nothing unlucky about the latter number. It has always spelled good fortune before, and this should be our most successful period.

We are encouraged everywhere by exhibitors who believe in the two-reel comedy as a regular diet on all programs. The comedy has been likened to the funny page and the daily funny strip in the successful newspapers.

Publishers have long realized that the cartoon strip is the biggest single circulation builder in the paper. Likewise real motion picture exhibitors know that the building of a steady clientele is dependent to a large degree on the showing of comedies which put their patrons in good humor, which give them good fun for their money. They know that running a picture theater without high-class comedy is like printing a newspaper which is all editorials and reading matter concerning the business, the crime, the grief and the strife of the world.

And there's enough grief in the world without going to a theater to get more. The whole world loves a laugh, and the most successful theater men are taking advantage of this universal demand by making the comedy part of their program one of the biggest advertising assets.

How Producers Regard the Shorter Feature

Laemmle's Views

I am in favor of holding down the footage on feature pictures as far as a proper development of the story permits. I believe five or six thousand feet should be ample, except, of course, in rare instances. I believe nothing would stimulate public interest in moving pictures more surely than a diversified program which can be had only when features are short enough to permit the use of "short stuff" in the same program.

It is my firm conviction that for the good of the business as a whole at least three or possibly four reels of the ten should be short subjects.

CARL LAEMMLE,
Universal Pictures Corp.

Shorter Features Beneficial

If, as you state, Famous Players, First National and Metro are really making a serious effort to reduce the footage of their average feature releases to six thousand feet or less, it will undoubtedly have a most beneficial effect in the short subject field.

Personally, I am very glad to see this because I believe that the average feature would be much better if the producer would condense his story into less footage than is being used at present. It would be beneficial to the exhibitor, and certainly more satisfactory to the audience, for many pictures today drag, due to the fact that the director has over-elaborated his theme, with the result that the action is materially slowed up.

One of the greatest faults with the long feature has been that it has prevented the exhibitor from giving his patrons a more varied program—and variety is essential in motion picture entertainment. Of course, the shorter features will permit the exhibitor to use one or two more short subjects than he has previously been able to fit into his program and this, I think, will materially help business at the box office.

The advent of shorter features would, of course, increase the demand for short subjects and, I hope, would tend to make the exhibitor exercise more care in the selection of his short subjects.

We, of Arrow, have always stressed this point and have endeavored to show through our advertising that often-times the short subject was in reality the feature of the program.

In the past, it has unfortunately been the policy, I think I may safely say, of exhibitors to exercise a great deal of care in the selection of their feature and little or none in the selection of the short subject to accompany it.

The short subjects, generally, have in the past year materially improved, with the result that the exhibitor today has a wide range of subjects to choose from, and can, almost always, get some short subject which will materially enhance the value of his program.

We have been watching this very carefully in our own short subjects, and the comments that we have received from exchanges handling our various brands have shown that this is greatly appreciated and is resulting in increasing business for the exchanges and also for the exhibitors.

W. E. SHALLENBERGER,
President, Arrow Film Corp.

Price Doubts

It is obvious that if features are limited to six thousand feet that the short subject market will be considerably stimulated. However, with all due respect to the producers you mention, as well as to their good intentions, I doubt very much that they will succeed in compelling the leading directors to limit their pictures to six thousand feet no matter how desirable it may seem to be for the general good.

OSCAR A. PRICE,
Tri-Stone Pictures, Inc.

THE IDEAL PROGRAM

By Mack Sennett

What comprises the ideal program, aside from the feature production?

The reply to that question will bring variable opinions. What may be interesting to the patrons of a Los Angeles neighborhood house might not please those who attend a motion picture show in Jersey City.

Naturally, I have my own ideas and preferences, said Mack Sennett, when speaking on the subject. I have made a study of the likes and dislikes of audiences, and given deep thought to Exhibitor needs. First of all, I believe in variety. Second, being a producer of comedies, I feel that no program is complete unless it includes two reels of wholesome, genuine mirth. There should also be a good musical program—for who is there who does not love and appreciate good music? A news reel, and an educational or travel subject are also interesting.

With everything considered, contrast, should be the outstanding feature of all programs. By that I mean, that subjects should be so alternated that the same emotions will not be appealed to at any two consecutive times. For instance—a comedy should not follow a comedy, a news reel should not follow an educational, nor should a light, airy overture follow a comedy any more than a deep, heavy, emotional selection follow a drama.

It has been my observation that short, scenic pictures appeal to lovers of nature and the beautiful, provided of course, they are well done. Travel pictures, I am confident appeal to most everyone, for who is there that has not had a desire to hie away to some remote land, and become a wanderer on the face of the Globe? It is an innate desire in every man, and most women, and the sadness of it is that they cannot accede to the demand that bids them "go." Their enjoyment therefore comes through seeing these foreign lands and customs flashed across the silversheet before them.

News reels are ideal program subjects, though the items of which they are composed should needs be selected with more care and thought than is usually exercised. The public is become surfeited with scenes of parades, army reviews, winter sports and the like. I really believe the public's desires are for more and interesting scenes of unusual people and their habits, events, places and such things. There are countless of these which have never been photographed.

In the matter of program comedies, I have always striven to attain the highest degree of excellence. I maintain a large and competent corps of writers and gag men, have under contract some of the best comedy directors in the business, and a company of the most popular artists on the screen. They include Harry Langdon, whom I honestly think to be one of the greatest finds the screen has had in many years. Ben Turpin, Madeline Hurlock, Alice Day, George Cooper and the beautiful and ever attractive group of new 1924 Bathing Girls, are also prominently identified with all my new pictures. Charlie Murray, little Jackie Lucas, Andy Clyde, Charlotte Mineau and Louise Carver, will likewise be seen in forthcoming comedies. The encouraging success with which Sennett comedies are meeting, proves the efficacy of the two reel comedy as an ideal program feature.

Educational reels, in my opinion are exceptionally good, for they have the effect of visual instruction, than which, according to renowned educators, there are no better.

In general, however, if exhibitors would remember to incorporate more variety into their programs, a majority of people will be satisfied. That's my opinion, at any rate.

CAPSULE ENTERTAINMENT

By Victor M. Shapiro

Speaking of the "long" and "short" of the movies, as is the wont of brokers who speak of the bulls and bears of the stock market, a situation is arising that is exciting the interest of trade and public alike. As this situation centers about the demand among the great body of motion picture patrons for greater diversity and variety in their film fare, a discussion of the point is especially apropos in the current Short Subject Number published by Film Daily.

The theater owner is complaining that the long feature in more than six reels, does not permit him to give his patrons a variety of entertainment in a two-hour show. He complains of padding, of colossal sets that cost millions to build, but do not stir the emotions. He is opposed to features being paraded as deluxe and super-specials in order to extract the last shekel from his till.

The showman is interested in presenting a complete show and so constructing his entertainment that patrons will say "There's always a good show at the _____ Theater."

Even the public, particularly the more discriminating incline to the belief that the yardstick of entertainment should be the quality of amusement and not footage; that people can get as strong an emotional reaction from short subjects as they can from long; that beauty, drama, suspense and laughter can be crammed into one or two reels in dynamic doses with the same psychological reaction as is wrought by the long feature.

In literature, the short story has come into a place distinctly its own. Each year, a competent authority assembles the ten best short stories into one column.

Literature lovers have long since found out that literary TNT can be packed into a thimbleful.

While the motion picture industry has been slow in realizing the "beau" ideal of achievement, the public themselves react to quality in concentrated form knowing it to be as important to their satisfaction as the long feature. The public is interested in the complete unit the courtesy, service, music, atmosphere, feature and the short subject which is now coming into its own.

The News reel, which is President Coolidge's choice in the motion picture menu, is a striking example of quality in a short subject. Its popularity is attested by the fact that over ten million people see the Pathe News each and every week.

Hugo Riesenfeld selected another classic example in "Among the Missing," the Will Nigh Miniature, which recently played the Rialto Theater and the audience response was decisive enough for him to state that here was genuine entertainment concentrated in one dramatic reel.

Will Rogers, who is making a series of two reel comedies, under the Hal Roach banner, is responsible for the classic line: "I am now making two reel pictures because I found that the audiences generally go to sleep around the third reel, and I want to beat them to it."

"Uncensored Movies," in which Rogers impersonates Rudolph Valentino, Tom Mix, Will Hart, and pokes good-natured fun at Doug and Mary in "The Covered Wagon," is cited as another example of an entertainment capsule that packs big laughs in a little package.

Another product of the Hal Roach Studios is the "Our Gang" comedies in which the freckled face Mickey Daniels, the ace of spades beauty Farina and other kids who disport themselves before the public, reveal a new angle in comedy production. Critics all over the country have said that there are more laughs in an "Our Gang" comedy than most feature comedies—in fact, Jimmy Dean, critic of the N. E. A. said: "I laughed more at the 'Our Gang' comedy, 'A Quiet Street,' than I did at Charlie Chaplin in 'Easy Street.'"

Sennett comedies have been an entertainment watchword for years, as have the Ben Turpin two-reelers.

Regional Editors on Short Subjects as Handled in the "Sticks"

Lawrence A. Urbach,
Motion Picture Journal, N. Y.

The average exhibitor in and around New York, in my opinion, does not look upon the short subject with enough foresight to the improvement of his theater. He does not attach enough importance to the short subject, a matter which is of the most vital importance to him to the building up of a patronage that will insure him a continued influx of picture-loving people.

I am of the opinion that the exhibitor in a city as large as New York is always on the lookout for new ideas for the betterment of his theater, and will gladly welcome and embrace such new ideas that will help him give his patrons what they want. And the patrons of hundreds of houses are always on the lookout for a real interesting and entertaining short reel. It should be the duty of the exhibitor to investigate the wants of his patrons in that respect, and fulfill those wants.

I suggest that one day every month be set aside in the neighborhood as well as the larger houses, for the purpose of showing, on that day, a program consisting of short subjects only. This was tried at the Capitol theater, New York City, once, and proved a huge success. There are enough good short subjects to make up an entertaining and attractive program for a "show," and the patrons of the houses where a "short subject day," maintains will welcome the relief from the usual feature, etc. A demand for more short subjects on the part of the exhibitor will have the effect of bolstering the production of good short reels, and will cause the producers of such material to dig up new and interesting matter. And that demand should come from the exhibitor, who has the interests of his patrons at heart, as well as the interest of his box-office receipts. Many a time patrons have been driven away from a neighborhood house because of the cut an dried programs that were foisted upon them for months and months. It is human nature to want variety, and there has not been enough variety in the feature production field to hold the continued interest of the theater-goer.

If the average exhibitor will book the short subject part of his program with as much care as he chooses his feature picture, his patrons will be more pleased, he will be the one to gain at the box-office, and he will establish a patronage for his house that will insure him the foundation of a growing motion picture temple.

David Barrist, "The Exhibitor," Philadelphia

The Stanley Company devotes about one-eighth of its 24 sheet stands to its added attractions, which include the musical numbers as well as the short length films. Both Stanley and Fox carry their complete programs in their newspaper ads.

The repeat run houses in the city, with one or two exceptions ignore their short subjects entirely in their poster advertising, carrying them only on their programs.

The impression seems to prevail that while the bill surrounding the feature will often compensate for the poor quality feature picture and send the patrons home happy, yet short subjects in themselves do not possess sufficient drawing power to justify any special expenditure for advertising. There are exceptions, of course, to this rule in the featured short subjects like "The Message of Emile Coue," "Is Conan Doyle Right?", etc. Especially is this opinion more firmly fixed today with all the star comedians like Buster Keaton and Larry Semon making feature pictures.

Benj. H. Fletcher, Movie Age,
Omaha

The two outstanding exhibitors in Iowa and Nebraska are Joe Garman of the Lyric at Lincoln, Nebr., and Slater O'Hare of the Orpheum at Fairfield, Iowa and the Rex at Albia, Iowa. Both of these men have put over some very good and substantial advertising on short subjects.

As a whole very little effort is made by exhibitors in this territory to popularize the short subject, although they all use them more or less. Most of the effort is on the features. Frequently we hear through the exhibitors report department of an all-comedy program, made up of short subjects, and the idea seems to be gaining popularity which would indicate that the exhibitor is not immune to the desire to improve that end of his program.

The only suggestion we could recommend for advertising the short subject is a special program advertised as "All for Fun," "Family Night," "Comedy Carnival" etc., and we believe that if each exhibitor tried this idea, he would soon be able to put over such a program, and sooner or later be able to set them in frequently.

We find that quite a few of our showmen are being benefited greatly by the tie-up through schools, churches, clubs, etc., of Chronicles of America, and are arranging to show short subjects along with this series to fill out the program. Still more are using only short subjects to fill in with on the nights they run their serials. There seems to be an opportunity in both these instances for further development.

Ben Shlyen, The Reel Journal, Kansas City, Mo.

Though I have made no thorough study of the efforts of the exhibitors of this territory put forth to improve the demand for short subjects used in their theaters, I do find that there is such an effort on the part of exhibitors in the keytowns.

Stanley Chambers Palace of Wichita, Harry McClure the Strand, Emporia, Frank Newman and the Hardings of Kansas City, as well as a few of the suburban theaters in Kansas City, use cuts in their advertisements on their comedies and short subjects. Aside from this there is no particular effort made, to my knowledge, and I am not at present able to suggest any advertising ideas which would be helpful.

Sometime ago I carried an editorial in The Reel Journal calling the exhibitors' attention to the importance of the short subject on his program, and suggesting that he give it more prominence in his advertising to the public. I believe that this did bring about some response, but I have been able to notice it only in the case of the leading exhibitors, except of course, where a subject of a special nature or one featuring Charlie Chaplin, Buster Keaton or Harold Lloyd is used.

The average exhibitor seems to spend more effort in boosting the special short subject wherein a star is featured, than ordinarily. And I believe that this has a tendency to put his regular programs in an inferior class and causes them to be less attractive than if the exhibitor kept up a consistent hammering as to the merit of the short subject that he shows on his program.

Ray Lewis, Canadian Moving Picture Digest, Toronto, Can.

The "Big House" Exhibitor apparently does not take the short subject seriously, as far as advertising is concerned.

Occasionally at the Hippodrome in Toronto, an Educational Scenic, travelogue, or a comedy has been given a prologue setting, but this is exceedingly rare—most of the theaters lose the value of the National advertising which has been given to short subjects, in view of the fact that the Trade Mark and name of the comedy or short subject is invariably omitted during presentation to the public in advertising.

Since producers of short subjects have spent large sums of money to advertise the short subject to the public, it appears that the Exhibitors should take advantage of the money expended; and endeavor to collect on this, by informing their public that they are using the product of which they have heard.

If the Exhibitor persists in calling the comedy a "Blank Theater Creation," making it but an incident of their advertising, the producers of short subjects had better save this National advertising expenditure.

The smaller houses throughout Canada feature their short subjects somewhat. Some Exhibitors have experimented with entire short subject shows, during the summer months, at intervals; and at intervals during the regular season.

In Ontario the Cum-Bac Theater, Toronto, introduced a short subject show with excellent results.

Shooting and Delivering the News Weekly

An all absorbing topic. As an indication of the public interest in this field of endeavor The American Magazine has a lengthy article on "How the Movie News Man Gets Pictures of World Events" and gives Mannie Cohen of Pathe News a great send off; and the New York Tribune Sunday Magazine carried awhile ago a very interesting article on "Munchausens Whose Specialty Is Truth which also told of news weekly cameramen and their adventures.

Stuart Mackenzie's article in The American Magazine went over a lot of ground. In telling of how Cohen "covered" the burial of the Unknown American Soldier at Washington two years ago he said:

"The moment the ceremony at Arlington was over there was wild confusion—just as Cohen had anticipated. Some of his camera men had been perched on the roof of the amphitheatre. They tossed their cans of films to their assistants below; and these men, as well as the other photographers, forced their way through the mass of people to a waiting auto and flung the films into the machine, which dashed off before the tide of homeward traffic had a chance to get in motion. At the foot of the hill the car bumped madly across a field, the films were flung into the airplane, and instantly it was off.

"Hurrying back to his hotel, Cohen called New York by phone and asked if the first plane had reached Jersey City. He was told that it had landed, but at some distance from the laboratory. Why? Because a football game was taking place on the field he had engaged as a landing place! "Well," he shot back over the phone, "clear that field before the second plane comes! Bribe the teams—call out the fire department—buy the field if you have to—but see that the plane lands on it!"

He also tells of how Cohen reached Ercole of Vienna with instructions to get pictures of the burning of Smyrna, and how when Ercole got his pictures to Paris for delivery on the Aquitania he discovered that the boat had left three hours before. Undaunted Ercole hired an aeroplane and dropped the cans on the deck; written instructions on the package doing the rest.

How Cohen outwitted the police and got shots of the Dempsey Carpentier fight is told, concluding with this, after the police had been sent to the roof of the building from which his men were to shoot. "He (Cohen) stole quietly down to a room on the top floor, where he had concealed one of his men in a packing case! The windows of this room were on a level with the top row of seats in the arena. Cohen quickly got his man out of hiding and they went to the window—only to find that their view was cut off by the men in that top row of seats.

"But a seventeen-inch lens has a very long angle. The men who shut off the view were only a few feet from the window. Cohen spoke to them in a low tone—for the policemen were on the roof directly overhead—and

One reason why news weeklies always make fine entertainment.

People like babies, dogs—in other words, human interest.

Plan your program accordingly.

For eight years, "Jack" Cohen, who is only a little past thirty now, has been editor of Pathé News. Cohen has a staff of twenty-five full-time photographers, seventy-five part-time, and fifteen hundred "correspondent" photographers, covering every country under the sun. The thumb tacks on the globe in the picture above mark the places he was watching at the time the photographs were made; places where something exciting was likely to happen, and where he must be ready to send a camera man at a moment's notice.

asked two of them to sit a little farther apart. He held out two five-dollar bills, one for each man. The bills were accepted with alacrity and the men shoved over, leaving a space of eight or ten inches between them. Not much of an opening, but it was enough. And the pictures made through that gap were shown that very night in scores of theaters."

Roosevelt Most Popular

In part the article says: "Who has been the most popular person ever shown on the screen?" I asked.

"Roosevelt, by all odds," was the quick reply. "Wilson was always greeted with applause when he was President. Then there was a reaction; but now he is coming back. And the third person who caught the public fancy to an enormous extent was the Prince of Wales. During his visit to this country, he received an ovation whenever his picture was shown; and he is always applauded even now."

"What kinds of pictures are most popular with audiences?"

"Soldiers, airplanes, battleships—and babies! A picture of a laughing baby, or of a crying one, stirs a ripple of amusement. And a picture of a white baby and a colored one together gets a big laugh.

"I have a staff of 25 photographers whose whole time is devoted to the work. I have 75 other men whom

I use most, but not all, of the time. I have 1,500 'correspondents' covering all parts of this country and most foreign countries. And there are probably more than 1,000 amateurs who own motion-picture cameras and send films to us on the chance of their being accepted. About 35,000 feet of film come into my office every week, from my own men and others. We use only about 2,000 feet of all this material."

Munchausens

S. H. Mackean, in the Tribune Magazine, starts his article this way:

"While on a tiger hunt in India with the Duke of Connaught"—

"Oh, that reminds me. The Gaekwar of Baroda once lent me his cheetahs for an antelope hunt"—

"Speaking of the Duke of Connaught, his nephew, the Prince of Wales, remarked to me on his ranch in Alberta"—

"We were in the Yildiz Kiosk. The Sultan of Turkey strode over and, extending his hand,"—

"Passing over the Rockies at an altitude of 22,000 feet, we headed for Cheyenne"—

"The first shot hit the big bull alligator sunning himself on the bank, but it took several shots to kill him."

And then goes on to say:

"There are few modern Munchausens who would have the temerity to foregather and swap such seemingly obvious untruths as the anecdote cited—at least, not where they could be overheard. Nevertheless, only recently I heard such stories told, not briefly, as I have given them, but extended detail, with many thrilling situations outlined full and delivered with the utmost in dramatic effect."

"And I knew that every man jack of the story tellers was telling the plain, unvarnished truth! I'll let you in on the mystery. The story tellers were motion picture news reel cameramen. They told the truth."

He mentions U. K. Whipple, who he says, "when not world adventuring, lives quietly in New Jersey and likes to put his time there painting the front porch or laying a cement pavement," and tells of Whipple's tiger hunt with the Gaekwar of Baroda, an Indian Potentate. He also mentions Ariel Vargas and E. Carl Wallen, as well as John A. Brockhurst. He tells of the news weekly organization and adds: "There is no limit to the strange places in which news reel editors have to send their cameramen."

Vargas Experiences Unusual

When Ariel Vargas reached New York after an absence of years during which time he lived the life of a Class A adventurer, E. B. Hatrick of International tendered him a dinner at the Friars. And Vargas quiet, un-demonstrative, small of stature and meek of voice, told of some of his happenings. They sounded like Munchausen tales.

Here are some of the things Vargas has done. He left New York in May, 1919; attended the signing of the Peace Treaty at Versailles; was the first foreigner to enter Germany with a camera after the war; got pictures in Berlin of the police shooting down the Royalist mobs; secured the film of the German raider "The Moewe," which excited tremendous attention when released; attended installation of the Regent of Hungary at Budapest; jumped to Switzerland to get photos of the exiled King of Greece; reached Rome and secured the first motion pictures of the Pope; and got some remarkable pictures of Vesuvius in action, using an aeroplane; back to Paris on to Ethonia to get photos of Americans being released from Russian jails; then through starving Russia and back to London to shoot the wedding of Princess Mary. Again back to Greece when Constantin was restored to the throne; and to the ruins of Pompeii. In May, 1922 he sailed for India to the frontier where a war was on, then to Ceylon to "get" a religious festival and then on a tiger hunt with Viceroy of India into the jungle. He caught weird religious festivals in the Straits Settlements and went on to China where he joined the army of Sun Yat Sen and later got shots of the Chinese bandits. He crossed the great Gobi Desert, and then after a trip through Korea, he heard of the earthquake in Japan and rushed there. Finally he got back to Frisco, after travelling 250,000 miles.

The Exhibitor and the Short Subject—Varying Views

Newman Believes In the Feature

We only use our short subjects for a fill-in. We found that there are very, very few short subjects that bring any money to the box office. They are acceptable and are part of the program entertainment, and the patrons expect them, but the feature picture is 90% of the program. No matter how good the short subject may be, if the feature is off color, business suffers accordingly.

We advertise our short subjects, but of course they are part of our program. In other words, it is listed in the papers as one unit of our show. We feel that the short subjects are just fillers and do not, as I said before, bring anything at the gate.

I don't know how I could suggest that the short stuff could be used to the best advantage, only that every house should show a weekly and a comedy because I believe that the biggest percentage of the people enjoy it. I am sorry that I have found in our case that they never amount to anything at the gate. Of course I am not referring to a two reel Chaplin or a two reel Lloyd. This is the usual short subject.

Frank L. Newman,
Kansas City, Mo.

Stolte Enthuses

I consider a short subject worth running, worth advertising.

The same amount of care that is spent with the musical setting for a feature should be given the short subjects. Scenic's should be cut down to agree with the musical settings, and I do not at any time consider a short subject just a filler.

The market affords some of the most educational and intellectual releases that the producers have ever given us.

A. G. Stolte,
Des Moines, Ia.

The Western View

Medium to better class houses are being rated by the public according to the supporting program of Short Subjects. I wish that more varied and better subjects be provided for our selection.

H. E. Huffman Enter.
Denver, Colo.

A Southern Viewpoint

We try our utmost to place on our programs only short subjects of merit, and while we have not found it profitable to feature short subjects too much, we always try in our publicity to give the title—the producer and actors names, one or the other or all some prominence.

The News Weekly is always given reasonable prominence on our program.

R. D. Craver,
Charlotte, N. C.

The Northwest Idea

We use short subjects to the best advantage in the blending of our entertainment programs.

We advertise them by giving proper mention in display advertisements and in "press comment." When the novelty or importance of the "short subjects" permit, they are exploited intensively both in the way of increased advertising space and "newspaper comment." Short subjects pertaining to golfing we have circularized various golf clubs by mailing of circular letters or postal cards. Short subjects pertaining to hunting or fishing we have likewise circularized, securing list of all licensed fishermen and hunters from the County Auditor. News reels, the most important unit we find of short subjects, are especially advertised when some happening of national importance or subject of national interest is contained in such reels.

Short subjects are "fillers" to a certain extent yet we don't consider them that entirely. We believe that such reels have an important part in the "motion picture program" for these reasons; they assist in a proper blending of the program, provide variety to some and offer some solace to those who believe that the "motion picture program" should embrace things of an educational as well as entertaining nature. The fact that so many features nowadays are made in six, seven or eight reels (ofttimes to the detriment of the features) has materially curtailed and in many instances, prevented the use of short subjects (except the comedies) entirely. This is unfortunate as we view it. We believe that the more varied the program the more the factor of general appeal is strengthened.

We believe that short subjects can be used to the best advantage as units of a diversified picture program. We do not believe that the average exhibitor realizes the opportunity for increase of business and for the advancement of the industry as a whole, that lies in a generous use of the "short subject." Judgment of course must be used in selection, in placements, and in exploitation, but if the short subject is taken seriously, given intensive thought in presentation and in advertising, there is no question as we view it, but that the cost and effort involved can be capitalized to the material advantage of the exhibitor.

Lee Lazelle, Princess, Cheyenne,
Wyoming

Short Subjects have become a STABILIZED part of the program.

The News Weeklies, Educational, Scenics, Cartoons, Digests and comedies are expected in your theater the same as they expect to hear music with the pictures.

Serials are alright in certain class houses but the afore mentioned are important in any house.

The public does not expect or want the Short Subjects played up big in your advertising. The Feature is the thing there and it requires strength of Star or Production to get the money in your box office. However that does not lessen the value of the short subject. They are essential in many ways.

Owing to the various lengths in footage they fill the very important need of bringing your shows out on certain times. One can cut out or add to his program to fit the various lengths of the feature and keep his shows always on the same time schedule. Furthermore they give a pleasing variety to the program and help support the educational value of the theater, a thing which is fast becoming recognized by schools, churches and organizations of all kind.

Oft times a Short Subject, properly handled with music and effects becomes a decided "hit" on the bill and stands out above every thing else.

Thanks to the producers, short subjects are usually very good and require little culling out. Comedies demand the most viewing.

In my newspaper advertising I always list the short subjects at the bottom of the ad in small type as "Added Attractions." While the feature is the thing I play up, the other subjects can not help but add interest to the ad and who knows but what they sell a ticket now and then.

I think these short subjects, eliminating the serials, have done more than any thing else in putting the picture theater on a solid footing with the better class of people. For I know there are those, not the masses, but individuals, who go into a theater purposely to pick up what ever knowledge the short subjects have to offer. And they are seldom disappointed.

Waldo Freeman, Imperial, Great Falls, Mont.

We do not feature our short subjects but we do mention them quite prominently, by title, in our daily newspaper ads and we also use photos and one sheets in the lobby. We very seldom run advance slides on short subjects unless it should be an exceptional comedy.

I cannot say that we consider them exactly as fillers for a very good feature will fail to please 100% if the short subjects are not up to standard. We consider it almost imperative to use a two reel comedy with each program.

Harry Bernstein, Colonial, Richmond, Va.

In our opinion, the short subjects are vitally necessary to any program for the needed variety and as we nothing but feature comedies, we always give them prominence in our newspaper advertising, as well as in our program, as we positively know that motion picture fans require this necessary "dessert" to their "dinner." Regarding the News, Travelogues, novelty reels, etcetera, these also are given announcement in the ads and program.

We are glad that there is a tendency on the part of some producers to cut long features to six and seven reels, the length they should be. This will give us considerable more opportunity to give that much more prominence to our short reel subjects.

A "Fill in"

We occasionally run short subjects when the feature picture is not too long.

The importance in program building does not mean anything to us. We do not now, or did not in the past, get 100 per cent or any per cent of short subjects. Probably our greatest advantage in using short subjects is as a fill in.

T. L. KEARSE,
Charleston, W. Va.

Features Too Long

We realize the fact that short subjects are a very prominent part of our show, and we endeavor to get the best on the market. We are using Educational short subjects principally.

We try to match up our features with comedies that do not conflict; and we have found that our patrons frequently inquire with almost as much interest about comedies that are being shown as they do about the features.

Unfortunately, the features, the past season, were so long that it did not give us an opportunity to present the number and the kind of short subjects that we often desired to present, but we believe that this condition will be changed.

FRED LEVY,
Strand Amusement Co.,
Louisville.

"Just a Filler"

I have never found it advisable to include the short subjects in any other way than "just as a filler" except in rare instances when it contains something of extraordinary interest to my patrons.

I might further say that this does not occur more than once in three or four months. It is my thought that no matter how interesting the short reels may be, the patron invariably patronizes the theater where the feature advertised is the one that he desires to see, and it is only in rare instances that the short reel has sufficient drawing power to increase the receipts of the house beyond the regular pulling power of the feature itself.

JOHN H. KUNSKY,
Detroit.

The Saenger Attitude

We handle short reel subjects with the same care of a multiple reel subject, provided it possesses the value and entertainment that will back up its advanced advertising and exploitation. The opportunities for tie-ups with the phase of the subject presented are profitable, if the exhibitor knows how to go after it.

We give short reel subjects necessary display advertising prominence—and on rare occasions—have "divided" and even "topped" the feature drama on the same bill for an unusual unit.

E. V. RICHARDS,
Saenger Amusement Co.,
New Orleans.

Balancing the Program

The importance of the so called "short subject" to the cinema program is being more generally recognized by thoughtful purveyors of the cinema art.

A well balanced program in motion picture entertainment should be the primary objective of the progressive exhibitor. A program, blended in material, properly projected, with a setting of suitable music, prelude, prologue, or entertainment features, is the style of motion picture performance that the public apparently accepts as standard.

The factor of the short reel in program building cannot be discounted, for through no other medium is it possible to provide for the balance and blend in entertainment value that is so much desired.

We take the question of the so called blending of our programs seriously, and no longer consider the short reel just a "filler." Our short reels are reviewed with just as much care as our features, and with the same thought are set in, either in harmony with or in direct contrast to the feature.

Of times as an atmospheric or inspirational setting for a scenic reel, we provide an overture or classical orchestral selection, more often, a pretentious solo classical selection on the organ.

The News Reel, we regard as a most important part in program building.

This has been our observation; that while some patrons fail to enjoy the comedy, the scenic or even the feature, all patrons, as a rule, are interested in and enjoy the News Reel. We censor the News reels, eliminating from time to time, those photographic illustrations of incidents or happenings that are not pleasant, are untimely, or propagandic in nature.

If the producers could but sense the desire of the public for shorter features, and would eliminate the duplication and padding that is so common, it would permit the exhibitor to develop programs not too great in length and well balanced in variety.

About two hours of movie entertainment is the limit (from our study of the psychology involved) that persons can remain in a theater without becoming restive and nervous. Beyond that period it is difficult to hold their attention, with the result that the factor of appeal of the program is reduced. Five to six reels is the ideal length for a feature, and with features of that length, it is possible for the exhibitor to assemble a varied program; and variety, as we view it, unfailingly strengthens the appeal of all forms of entertainment, and especially that of the "movie" program.

"Men Who Forget"

Geneva Distributing Corp.—State Rights

As a Whole... CONVENTIONAL STORY DEALING WITH THE EVER POPULAR ETERNAL THREE; NEW PLAYERS AND DIFFERENT LOCALE MAY HELP IT OVER. AN AVERAGE FEATURE.

Cast... No players known to American audiences, though several contribute rather worth while dramatic performances; occasionally inclined to be over demonstrative but usually quite good. The names given are Bernard Dudley, James Knight, James Barker and Evelyn Boucher. Another girl who does quite well is not credited.

Type of Story... Drama. This state rights offering contains a trite story but it is probable that the appearance of new faces and a fairly unusual locale may give it new strength. A better production and more capable direction would have helped a great deal more to cover up the story's shortcomings.

The development is jerky and quite obvious. Instead of closely weaving the threads together, the director has resorted to episodic twists and turns that give you a disjointed continuity. There is too much skipping about. The locale is good and the views of a Nova Scotia fishing village should prove interesting. The photography is rather poor. Theme deals with the heroine of the village, Eileen, loved by Seth and John, sea-faring men. They fight a wrestling match for her and Seth wins. In the latter's absence, John's lies win over Eileen and she marries him, then leaves him when she learns that his stories about Seth were untrue. Seth returns and marries Eileen since it is told that John died at sea. Once more John returns but this time decides he has really been a cur so gets himself neatly out of Seth's and Eileen's way by suicide.

Box Office Angle... Fair. Will do for an average, one time showing probably and used in conjunction with good scenic pictures and other short subjects should make a fair showing.

Exploitation... Not very much for you to work on except perhaps through the use of trailers. You might mention the locale, Nova Scotia, and tell them it is a dramatic romance of a small fishing village. If you could secure a scenic showing views of the Land of Evangeline it might stimulate interest in feature since the story is laid in this part of Nova Scotia. There are no names to use so you'll have to resort to stills, catchlines and the regulation routine advertising. You might interest men folks by talking of the wrestling match which occurs in the film.

Direction... Reuben Gillmer; could have been improved considerably. Author... F. Martin Thornton. Scenario... The same. Cameraman... Leslie Eveleigh. Photography... Not very good. Locale... Nova Scotia. Length... 4,800 feet.

Madge Bellamy in
"The White Sin"

Film Booking Offices

As a Whole... FINE NUMBER FOR ROMANCERS BUT PROBABLY TOO FAR-FETCHED FOR MOST FOLKS. HAS THE ACKNOWLEDGED ELEMENTS OF AUDIENCE APPEAL NEVERTHELESS.

Cast... Madge Bellamy a hard working heroine. She's kept busy emoting, first because her aunt won't let her attend the ice cream festival, next because the rich idler tells her the marriage wasn't legal and eventually because she can't marry his brother because the idler happens to return, from a shipwreck. Miss Bellamy's work is sincere at all times even though they require too much of her. Hal lam Cooley is slicked up to the tune of the idler and John Bowers always a competent hero. Others Francisella Billington, Ethel Wales, Otis Harlan.

Type of Story... Drama. Poor little country girls are always running away from home for the luxuries of the city, at least according to film plots. Madge Bellamy is the latest victim in "The White Sin," a picture that manages pretty well to hold its own in spite of a fairly weak story. The jazz scenes aboard the private car and then on the yacht all help to dress it up attractively. All this appeals to the average audience. Then they ring in a good amount of heart interest with the girl finally winning the affection of her deserter-husband's parents who offer her and the baby a home. All this time the girl believes the marriage was not legal and she's perfectly happy in her love for the war-invalided brother-in-law. But the announcement that the father of her child still lives brings a shock. That the marriage was legal is a still greater surprise. To satisfy a happy ending the worthless one eventually gives his life to save the girl from a fire. Follows her marriage to his brother.

Box Office Angle... An average one time showing feature that can be played on this basis satisfactorily. Should please a majority and women patrons especially.

Exploitation... The title and certain angles of the story may not make it appropriate for family trade. Better see it if you have to be careful. The title itself readily suggests a story of a sexy nature and even though it could hardly be classed as objectionable at any point, still it would be well to make clear in your announcements, just what the story is about. Mention the lure of the city for country girls, etc. Talk about Madge Bellamy's work and use stills in the lobby.

Direction... William Seiter; made good use of material generally. Author... Harold Shumate. Scenario... Del Andrews. Cameraman... Max DuPont. Photography... Good. Locale... Country town and city. Length... 6,237 feet.

"My Man"

Vitagraph

As a Whole... RATHER GOOD DIRECTION AND INTERESTING PLAYERS HELP COVER UP CONVENTIONAL "GIVE ME YOUR DAUGHTER OR I'LL RUIN YOU" PLOT.

Cast... Patsy Ruth Miller charming heroine a little inclined to be over smiling, however. Dustin Farnum, the typical political boss who eventually manages to win the girl. George Webb adequate as fortune hunter. Others Niles Welch, Margaret Landis, William Norris, Edith Yorke, Violet Palmer.

Type of Story... Drama. George Randolph Chester's "A Tale of Red Roses," from which "My Man" was adapted, might readily have fallen into the average class as far as entertainment value is concerned. But it isn't Mr. Chester that proved the saving grace. His theme is of a very conventional order dealing, as it does, with the oft repeated political boss formula and the pretty daughter of his victim who might readily serve on the altar of sacrifice, that is if she would save her father from ruin. Chester does develop to a climax that aims to get away from the usual routine, and in a measure, succeeds. But it is distinctly the satisfactory manipulations of director Smith that makes "My Man" a pretty fair entertainment. His production is very good and the combined efforts of a uniformly good cast also help to make it interesting. Even Dustin Farnum foregoes his usual overacting to give a thoroughly natural characterization, that of the political boss "who knows when he's beaten" and good naturedly prepares to retire from the battle field only to find himself a sudden victor,—that the girl really loves him. He immediately straightens out her father's finances and it all ends prettily.

Box Office Angle... Has enough audience appeal to probably make it a good number for you. Will appeal more strictly to your women folks than male patrons.

Exploitation... Original title and prominence of red roses in picture gives you first rate hunch for exploitation. You might employ artificial flowers for street distribution with tags attached announcing the showing of "My Man," adapted from George Randolph Chester's "A Tale of Red Roses." Arrange tie-ups with local florists, having them display American beauties in conjunction with stills from the film. Mention Patsy Ruth Miller's name and talk about her work in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." Even if they haven't seen it yet, it's worth mentioning her appearance in that film.

"Daddies"

Warner Bros.

As a Whole... GOOD WHOLE-SOME THEME THAT IS OCCASIONALLY AMUSING THOUGH MOSTLY SLOW MOVING AND WITH A GREAT DEAL OF UNIMPORANT DETAIL AND PADDING.

Cast... Mae Marsh cast almost into oblivion in role that gets her nowhere and gives her very little chance at all to do her typical characterization. Certainly keeps her in background. Harry Myers, Claude Gillingwater, Craufurd Kent, Willard Louis and Boyce Combe suitable bachelor quintette. Muriel Frances Dana a cute kiddie and the DeBriac twins and King Evers make a mischievous set of triplets.

Type of Story... Comedy. Jeanne Eagles appeared in the Belasco stage play "Daddies," which is credited as a success. Mae Marsh has the Eagles role in the screen version but for some unknown reason her part has been considerably curtailed. In fact she makes but comparatively few appearances and those fail to allow her to put over her usual inimitable comedy business. It remains for the humorous touches to be brought out through the efforts of the remaining members of the bachelor's club to do something for humanity by adopting war orphans. Their management of the youngsters, without feminine assistance, offers some good laughs but they are too few and far between to make the picture hold up consistently for six and a half reels. Director Seiter has made a much better showing at the start than he has at the finish. He gets the story off at a good pace but seems to gradually slacken with the ending in sight. You know pretty well what will happen,—that each of the avowed bachelors will succumb and eventually take unto himself a wife.

Box Office Angle... Furnishes a mildly amusing entertainment and will probably satisfy a majority though they may be a trifle disappointed that there aren't more laughs.

Exploitation... You should be able to secure excellent cooperation and at the same time splendidly advertise the picture by arranging a benefit performance for a local orphanage, and be doing two good things at one time. Broadcast the slogan "Adopt an orphan. See 'Daddies' at the blank theater and you'll be interested." Officials and those interested in orphan homes will probably be more than willing to help you. Mention the stage play and you might use Mae Marsh's name but they're bound to wonder at her scant role.

Direction... William Seiter; fair. Author... John L. Hobble. Scenario... Julian Josephson. Cameraman... John Stumar. Photography... Good. Locale... Any city. Length... 6,500 feet.

Short Subject Reviews

"Abraham Lincoln"—Phonofilm
Highly Interesting Achievement
 Type of production 2 reel talking film
 "Abraham Lincoln," is a short reel that depicts two incidents in the life of the famous president—one, the delivery of the Gettysburg speech, and the other, just a glimpse into a soldier's shelter hut during the Civil War. The interesting feature of the film is that under a process developed by Dr. Lee de Forest, the action on the screen and the voices of the players are synchronized perfectly. The words form the words and the correct sounds are heard. In the delivery of the Gettysburg address, each word is perfectly distinct and perfectly synchronized with the movement of Frank McGlynn's lips. From this angle, there is little left to be desired. However, one is always aware that the voice comes from a record of some sort. The sound of the voice might be improved upon. Nevertheless, it is by far the best of the talking films yet seen and was very well received at the Rivoli this week.

"Political Pull"—Spat Family—Pathe
Always Entertaining
 Type of production 2 reel comedy
 This trio consisting of J. Tewksbury Spat, the English husband who never, never right, according to his wife, Mrs. Spat, and her brother Amose, who, according to himself is never, never wrong, are always good for some very enjoyable moments. It isn't so much what they do, it's the way they work together that makes these comedies go over so well, and the naturalness with which they get themselves in the most funny tangles of domesticity. This time they have invited the Governor to dinner. Great are the preparations to receive him. Just when he is expected, a stock selector whose name is McGovern calls and is mistaken for the expect-guest. Complications naturally follow but the mistake is not discovered until Ambrose has signed the dotted line which makes him the unwilling and unwitting owner of a considerable lot of bricks.

"Hards Knocks"—Pathe
Good for Lot of Laughs
 Type of production 1 reel comedy
 This is one of the Charlie Chase series of comedies being released by Pathe, but is so far one of the best of the bunch. The gags used have been done before, times without number but they are the sort that are always good for laughs if properly handled—and they have been in this. For instance, there is the old, old one where the young man is forced to re-act at a party despite his reluctance due to the fact that his dress-shirt is purely a front and he needs his hands held in place and not to gesticulate with. Then, too, the finish of the scene is well handled, keeping them arrested until the final fadeout, instead of just petering out in a chase many of them do.

"The Telephone Girl"—F. B. O.
Promise Real Entertainment
 Type of production 12 episode chapter play

Judging from the first installment of Film Booking Offices new serial, "The Telephone Girl," it seems to promise plenty of fun and really good entertainment which is saying much for a chapter play. Written by H. C. Witwer, the titles have all the snap and sparkle of the "Fighting Blood" series but the action deals with the love affairs of a telephone operator who works in a New York hotel, where her baby stare and intriguing ways cause plenty of agitation to masculine hearts. Each episode is in two reels, and has a complete little plot of its own, although all the episodes are related to each other. The first episode is called "Julius Sees Her," and deals with the telephone operator's love affair with a young chorus man who is also understudy for the leading man, but has waited in vain for an opportunity to display his talent. The leading man happens to be stopping at the hotel where Gladys manages the switchboard and she devises a plan whereby he is to be locked in his room during the performance so that the young lad will get his chance. The way this works out is not altogether what she expected but it's amusing and satisfactory nevertheless.

Alberta Vaughn, has the role of the switchboard girl and gets it over very well indeed. She is cute and fits the part nicely. Arthur Rankin plays opposite, as the chorus man and will also be liked. The cast includes Charles King, Douglas Gerrard, Gertrude Short, and others. Mal St. Clair directed.

"Pathe Review" No. 8
Interesting Magazine
 Type of production 1 reel magazine
 This isn't an unusual number of The Review, but it contains a certain amount of interesting material and the whole shapes up pretty well. The subjects included are some pretty shots of the Colorado Rockies, in which the light effects have been very well handled; a study of the caddis worm; a visit to a plate-glass factory in Pittsburgh which is probably the best feature of the reel, and finally a colored bit showing peasant life in French provinces.

"The Half-Back of Notre Dame"—Sennett—Pathe
Typical Sennett Comedy
 Type of production 2 reel comedy
 This is a typical Sennett comedy, full of knockabout rough and tumble action, enhanced by the well-known bathing beauties that somehow or other get pulled into the picture whether they belong there or not. The title may prove attractive and good for a laugh. The cast includes pretty Madeline Hurlock, Harry Gribbon and Jack Cooper. You'll know the type of comedy this is; you've played it times without number.

"Peg O' the Mounted"—Century-Universal
Baby Peggy at Her Cutest
 Type of production... 2 reel comedy

Baby Peggy, always cute, is even cuter in this short reel, made over a year ago and just being released. She appears more tiny than ever and her every move is delightful. They have her all dressed up as a Canadian Northwest Policeman and have her chasing a band of mountaineer moonshiners whom she finally does tie up in the very rope with which they lasso her and leads them into headquarters. Don't let this one pass, because it's a thoroughly enjoyable short reel. That's all you need to know.

"The Very Bad Man"—Universal
Average Comedy
 Type of production... 1 reel comedy

Neely Edwards and Bert Roach are usually funnier than they are in "The Very Bad Man," but perhaps this is due to the story. At any rate, this team in tramp make-up usually get their laughs over by means of their funny facial expressions and this time there isn't so much of this sort of stuff and more of the usual chasing around. However, where the team is liked, this probably won't be noticed. Ned and his valet try to steal a pie but are chased by a dog into a town that is being terrorized by a "bad man" for whose capture a reward is offered. Ned has his valet impersonate the desperado so they can get the reward, but the "bad man" finds him first. Nevertheless, by means of a ruse, they are enabled to hit him on the head and drag him to the sheriff.

"Cities of Other Lands—Rome"
Post Scenic
Many Beautiful Shots
 Type of production... 1 reel scenic

Horace C. Schimeld, photographer, has secured many very beautiful views of "The Eternal City," as Rome is called. The reel contains many of the famous spots of the great city, all interesting and splendidly reproduced. Among them are scenes of the Tiber, the old castles St. Peter's, the Vatican, the Colosseum, the Roman Forum and other points of interest. This scenic is conjunction with either of the two recent excellent pictures that have Italy for their locale—"The White Sister" and "The Eternal City."

"Felix Loses Out"—Pat Sullivan
Amusing Cat Love
 Type of production... 1 reel cartoon

Pat Sullivan has his cats perform many comical antics in his latest cartoon, called "Felix Loses Out." Indeed Felix can't compete with his rival when it comes to love-making even though he rigs up a tin lizzie to compete with the other cat's home-made wagon. The cartoon isn't as funny as some of Sullivan's Felix numbers but they'll get enough laughs out of it to satisfy.

Enormous Spectacle With Pleasing Color Features Startles Broadway

"Ten Commandments" Last Word in Photo Plays Uses Latest Development in Natural Colors
—Does Great Credit to Famous Players and
Cecil De Mille

"The Ten Commandments" with its unique and absorbing story is pronounced by all the pinnacle of perfection in color photography. During its long continuous run on Broadway, the thousands and thousands who witnessed this soul-gripping drama, emerged from the theater as in a daze—mystified at the wonderful photographic effects and the beautiful scenes in natural colors.

To Famous Players is due the highest of compliments for their rare judgment in selecting such a theme and to Cecil De Mille for its successful execution. To them also is due a great deal of credit for their selection of color photography to obtain such wonderful and striking effects. Produced by Famous Players, directed by Cecil De Mille, printed by Technicolor on Duplex printers.

In recent years there have been many millions of dollars spent on various ways to obtain true color photography, and although many different companies have developed processes that were able to turn out "beautiful effects," not one has been able to produce the true colors of Nature as accurately as "Technicolor."

The remarkable achievement gained by Technicolor is the result of many years of most extensive scientific research. The many, many experiments (all of which have cost an untold fortune) finally placed Technicolor on a plane never before attained in the development of screen effects.

After the many years of research the process became thoroughly perfected and the Technicolor organization then found it necessary to turn their attention to mechanical means of reproduction, where the extreme accuracy could be maintained and sufficient speed attained in printing to put Technicolor prints on a commercial basis.

Having arrived at this point in their work, it was but the natural thing to select the man who had invented the most successful printer for black and white reproduction, and this man, H. O. Carleton—president of the Duplex Motion Picture Industries, Inc., designed and manufactured the printer which has proven so successful.

The creation of a printer for Technicolor is alone a remarkable feat of motion picture engineering. However, such a scientific achievement is but one of the many products created and manufactured by this inventive genius.

The entire Duplex line used throughout the motion picture industry has been directly or indirectly the result of this wizard's brain. The many time and labor saving devices invented by Mr. Carleton are too well known to merit space in these columns. However, in the last year or so he has brought into being two products which are perhaps destined to be the most remarkable creations of the many years of Motion Picture Equipment manufacture.

But few who read these columns are not aware of the present method of developing film. Those who are more thoroughly acquainted with the operation of the equipped laboratories will realize that at its best the development of motion picture film by hand is after all exceptionally slow—very expensive—and more or less unreliable though the finest developing experts are employed.

All of us have realized the present "method of developing" was not all that it should be—that compared to the scientific methods attained in other phases of the industry, developing was indeed very crude and a sadly neglected department of the business. To remedy this situation Mr. H. O. Carleton has devoted several years of his time and after considerable expense, his ever consistent and conscientious efforts has created the present "Duplex Developing Machine" which in both speed and accuracy is perfect. This machine develops film with super-human intelligence and is after all no less than marvelous.

Occupying a space of but 47 feet in length and little less than 7 feet in width (platform and all) this super-human piece of mechanism fairly devours the yellow rolls at one end—while from the other end emerges most beautiful ribbon of clear pictures which are wound into rolls now ready for the shipping room.

The entire process from start to finish is automatic and at no time after the roll is once placed on the spool is it touched by human hands. It develops, fixes, washes and dries, tints or tones the film, not only equaling the best efforts of any laboratory expert, but excelling both as to the consistent quality of pictures and the speed with which all work is done. Then, too, the drying of the film in motion over a series of sprockets, greatly adds to its flexibility, therefore giving it a longer life during projection.

The second great achievement of Mr. Carleton in recent years is the creation of the "Projectograph." Very few have seen this projector for use in the home. Imagine its beautiful appearance, its simplicity, its dependability. The same remarkable construction consistent in all Duplex equipment prevails in this little projector for the home.

The Duplex Motion Picture Industries is a business that has grown in the last fifteen years from a little machine shop, to a concern of world-wide reputation, as almost every user of motion picture apparatus in this country, and many in Europe, have some piece of Duplex equipment.

They are now on the eve of their greatest expansion. Plans are now formulated for the construction of a large five-story building on Long Island which will house the world's largest motion picture laboratory as well as a new factory for manufacturing Duplex Machines.

Its capacity for developing film will be truly enormous and will contain many new features for the handling of prints and the service rendered to the trade will undoubtedly be unrivaled for the world over. Ample space for manufacture will of course, greatly speed up the factory end of the business, and Duplex equipment will in the near future be stocked in such great quantities that immediate delivery can be had on almost any article.

In the history of the motion picture ever so often some truly remarkable process or the part of some producer or manufacturer is shown; and in such cases we feel it is interesting, educational and well worth the attention of the thousand who read the "Film Daily."

RITZY

By DANNY

For a long time to come the Edison lunch—as it will be called—will be remembered by those who attended. It was a happy thought which inspired George Kleine to devise this; and the manner in which it developed proved the interest in the event. Everybody who was anybody was there. From the old timers—like Percy Waters and all the old inventors and litigants—like Raff and Gannon; Kennedy of the old organization which superseded the General Film; and many others of bygone days, down to the men who are important these days.

A Round Table

The pioneers—as they were called—had a table all to themselves. Percy Waters was there, J. J. Kennedy, H. M. Marvin, who brought his son along; Herman Casler, Tom Armat and Charles Urban, while at other tables were Ned Porter, Norman Raff and Richard Hollaman of the old Eden Musee.

And they swapped stories and had a great time.

There was a lot of hand shaking prior to the gathering. Men who had not met in many moons seemed glad to again see each other. Jesse Lasky met a lot of people he rarely sees; Elmer Pearson and Earl Hammons recalled Palm Beach days; and "Roxy" found himself at the trade press table—all by himself—and stole the thunder of Broadway.

George Eastman showed up. Most unusual for Eastman to leave Rochester for such an affair. But it was easily understood when, in responding he said fervidly, "honoring this most miraculous man; this most marvelous man."

And Eastman is somewhat of a marvel himself.

Major Bromhead of Gaumont of London was one of the many from foreign fields who sent congratulations. Tilley of "Kine" and the editor of Bioscope also forwarded cables.

Terry Ramsay made a hit when he said he had started three years ago to find out for Photoplay who invented the motion picture, and he hadn't found out yet. He said Edison invented the motion picture during a rest—after he had made the phonograph. "And since then none of us have had a rest."

Trade Board Official Alleges Harding's Secretary Interceded for Paramount in 1921

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Washington—Huston Thompson, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission appeared before the Senate Interstate Commerce Commission on Saturday and intimated that George B. Christian, former secretary to President Harding had endeavored to influence the course of the commission in its complaint against Famous Players. The testimony came in a hearing to determine the committee's recommendation regarding the appointment of Christian to the Commission.

Thompson said he was called to the White House in May, 1921, and went into Christian's private office. The latter, said Thompson, talked with him about the complaint. Asked if he considered this action improper, Thompson replied that his feeling and that of other Commissioners with whom he talked was that this was an effort to bring pressure to bear to prevent issuing the complaint.

Thompson said that field agents had reported that strong influences were protecting the Famous interests

3 Cities Considered

For M. P. T. O. Convention—New York Out of the Deliberations Entirely

In the next few days, the directors of the M. P. T. O. will probably decide on a city for the annual convention to be held in May. A three-cornered discussion looms up with Cincinnati, Boston and Rochester mentioned.

It is not believed that New York is favored, because the impression seems to be that the sources of amusement in a city of this size are too varied and may distract the delegates from the work of the convention.

Clements Heads Coast M. P. D. A.

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Los Angeles—Roy Clements has been elected president of the Motion Picture Directors' Association. Harry Franklin is vice-president; Reeves Eason, technical director; Harold Shaw, secretary and William P. S. Earle, treasurer.

Many B'way Runs

Scheduled for Late February and March—Five New Specials To Open

Five new productions, all of them in the "special class," are designed to open on Broadway shortly. Two of them open within the week and the others in March. The pictures and theaters are:

"Yolanda," starring Marion Davies and frequently described by Cosmopolitan as its most lavish picture to date. At the Cosmopolitan, beginning tomorrow night.

"America," D. W. Griffith's newest. At the 44th St. theater, beginning Thursday.

"Thy Name Is Woman," directed by Fred Niblo for Metro. At the Lyric, beginning March 3.

"The Thief of Bagdad," the Fairbanks spectacle. At the Liberty, beginning March 17.

"Secrets," starring Norma Tallmadge. At the Astor, beginning March 23.

In addition to these, it is expected that "Abraham Lincoln," will continue at the Gaiety while "The Covered Wagon" will of course, remain at the Criterion and "The Ten Commandments," at the Cohan.

Again Heads Colorado M. P. T. O.

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Denver—H. E. Huffman, of the Blue Bird and Bide-a-Wee theaters has been re-elected president of the M. P. T. O. of Colorado. Other officers are Harry T. Nolan, first vice-president; C. E. Marguand of Loveland, second vice-president; F. W. Bronte of Yuma, third vice-president; Max Shaback, treasurer and Charles Gillan, secretary.

Competition on Broadway

Two pictures, both of which have had their own theaters on Broadway are playing at competitive first-runs this week. "Scaramouche" is at the Capitol and "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," at the Strand.

Arrive From East

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Los Angeles—Major H. C. S. Thomson and Joseph I. Schnitzer of F. B. O. are here from New York.

"White Sister" Closes

Edison cupped his hand over his ear to get this sally and joined in the general laughter.

Sydney Cohen and some of his associates were on hand to listen particularly to Mike O'Toole talk on the public service feature of the MPTO. Mike was all right altho he talked a bit too long. He said that statistics showed that 15 million people saw pictures every day and told of co-operating with the Government.

Hudson Maxim was in great form and delivered a eulogistic poem on Edison. It scored. Maxim received a big hand. He stole the show up to the time he sat down. Then Rupert Hughes in turn stole it; and Mary Pickford finally stole it from all of them.

Dr. Lee deForest—who, incidentally, is some pumpkins of an inventor himself—declared Edison was "the greatest living benefactor of our race"—with which the big crowd enthusiastically agreed, and then Senator Edwards of New Jersey created a roar when he declared that Edison had evened things up—he had invented the stock ticker to take away all the money the picture people made. You should have heard Adolph Zukor's laugh at this. Also Bill Atkinson's.

Major Hughes delivered one of his well known attacks on censors and censorship. He said this great boost for Edison was all wrong; that he wasn't the great man these people said, but was "the arch fiend of modern times. People used to live in their homes until Edison invented moving pictures," he said. "And with that Edison invented crime. Before this there were dark porches, where love was made—that horrible industry—then came the movies, and since then old women of both sexes are in a position of power to paw over what movie makers make—and destroy." He said he had started to invent a "skipper" so one could skip over the part of pictures they didn't like—just as they "skip" in books and about art galleries—but that he had been too busy busting picture concerns so he turned the idea over to Edison for whatever value it had.

He went into physics and declared that light travelled 186,000 miles a second—sounds like the cost sheet of a production—and that sound travelled only 1100 feet—which sounded like the profits of a picture. This brought a roar.

Senator Owen of Oklahoma urged everyone to remember Edison's message.

Doug and Mary had arrived by this time and Doug was called on. He respect to Edison and told a story of California he was proud to tender his respect to Edison and told a story on Will Rogers and Lubitsch. "Rogers was toastmaster when Lubitsch was called upon. Lubitsch bowed, and in a Sam Bernard accent said he was glad to be present, and started to bow out. "Come back, Lubitsch," called out Rogers; "come on and speak. There aren't many people in our business who can speak English."

When Mary was called on—and made a great little speech—Edison's expression was worth going a long way to see. He was all excited. And when Mary finished he went over and shook hands, and autographed her menu as a keepsake.

and that "something would happen before the complaint was issued." These agents built up the case and efforts were made by "certain parties in New York to get us to eliminate certain parts of the case," according to his testimony.

When Thompson saw Christian, the former testified that Christian wanted to know why the complaint was being issued without giving Famous a hearing. Thompson expressed surprise at the fact Christian knew of the proposed complaint, he testified, and in answer to a question, the Commissioner said it was unusual to be called to the White House on matters of that kind.

Christian will appear before the committee later.

A reporter of the New York Herald quoted Adolph Zukor as commenting with regard to the Christian matter as saying: "It is a deliberate, malicious lie, that is all I have to say about it."

TEARS

By DANNY

Sam Goldwyn is all het up. Travelling to Hollywood. With a precious diamond decked story in his possession: "Stella Dallas." Going to make a special with it. And expects it to be one of the greatest pictures ever made.

"Stella Dallas" was written not quite a year ago by Olive Prouty. At that time we all said it would make a picture. And tried to convince a producer or two to do it. But they couldn't see it. Then a half dozen tried to get it. After they learned it was to be made into a play. And Goldwyn outbid the lot. And got it.

If some director doesn't muffle this one it should be a sweet one. It is one of the finest mother love stories ever written. And has a punch at the end that should send the women folk out all wet and teary.

Goldwyn has his own ideas as to the cast. Talked it over with him. And while we don't agree in toto—we never do fully agree on anything—still it looks as if he has a real cast in mind. So let's hope for a lot.

Muffling It

That little note about a director muffing it means something. Had the most glaring case in months only last week in "The Next Corner." Made by Sam Wood. Incidentally you are liable to see less of Sam Wood productions from Famous as a result. The Kate Jordan story was written for the camera. It was sure fire 100 per cent. Joe Schenck wanted it for Norma. And tried hard to get it. But Famous landed it and there were great expectations. Especially as clever Dorothy Mackaill was cast for the lead.

Then Monte Katterjohn took the story and made an 1895 movie of it, and Sam Wood did the rest. Result, an ordinary mediocre picture. Just a movie and nothing more. Should have been a triumph. This will result in Famous losing what should have been a sweet, clean profit; and if it breaks into the black ink the sales department will be good. In fact they will be better than that.

Warren with Famous. Well, well. That's a real move. With a lot of possibilities back of it. Good for both.

"The Extra Girl," in which Mack Sennett presents Mabel Normand, is proving the outstanding hit of that popular comedienne's career. It's an Associated Exhibitors release.—Advt.

Wants Exploitation

"Doug" Says It Is As Important As a Better Distribution to Offset Extreme Costs of Present Plan

"Doug" got away from art and got down to hard business cases yesterday. And while Mary was talking about Hollywood and her plans "Doug," hammered away on his favorite subject.

"Distribution which costs a producer 24 to 25 per cent or more is all wrong" he said, "and it must be changed. I am certain that for those associated in the United Artists we can take our average picture and sell it on the phone and make a good deal with the average exhibitor. With other concerns and other product that is another matter; but our pictures are as well known as Pears Soap or any other commodity. The exhibitor knows what he is going to get from us. So this 24 per cent for distribution, which is altogether wrong from an economic viewpoint, should be

Theaters Unmolested

No Action in Northern Jersey—Exhibitors Found Sunday Business Satisfactory

Exhibitors interested in theaters in Hudson County declared yesterday that since no definite interference has been made in the operation of the 40 odd houses in that county in Northern Jersey, they would continue to operate on Sunday, despite the existing "blue laws" which supposedly prohibits Sunday shows.

The seventeen theaters in Jersey City were open all day Sunday and played to a satisfactory business. This condition existed all through the county. No interference was attempted by any of the authorities. It is expected that action of some kind will be taken shortly by the authorities but it is now five Sundays that the theaters have been operating.

Warren With Famous Joins Company's Sales Control Board and Will Advise Generally on Merchandising

Famous Players announced yesterday the engagement of F. B. Warren, effective immediately. Warren will have a seat on the sales board of control of which S. R. Kent is in general charge.

Warren will serve in a consulting capacity in the merchandising end of the business.

Warren is one of the best known figures in the distribution end of the business. He was one of the vice-presidents of the original Goldwyn company, later joining Hodkinson and Associated Producers, in charge of distribution. His last connection was as vice-president of American Releasing.

No Hearing On Censor Repeal

(By Long Distance Phone)

Albany—No request has been made for a hearing on the Walker censorship repeal bill. This indicates that apparently there is not much opposition to its passage. The bill is now in the hands of the Senate Finance Committee and will probably be reported out in a few days. Its passage in the Senate is assured, but whatever opposition does develop will occur in the Assembly.

Bronx Exhibitors Held

Four exhibitors in the Bronx waived examination and were held in $300 bail each for trial in Special Sessions, one obtained an adjournment and one was discharged on charges of permitting minors to enter their places unescorted. The complaint was made by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

In The Courts

Supreme Court Justice Wagner has granted an application by the City of New York to strike out the defense of the W. W. Hodkinson Corp., to a suit by the city to collect a tax on the personal property of the Hodkinson corporation assessed at $100,000 in 1919. The defense was that the officers of the corporation stated at the time the assessment was made that it had only $5,000 of taxable property, and they were told by representatives of the Department of Taxes that they would have an opportunity to fill out the property blanks to state this fact. This was not done and the corporation has been sued for the tax. The court found that the promise, if made, was not binding on the city.

A suit for $2,655 on a draft in Paris for 50,000 francs was filed against the Sept. Cinema Camera Distributors Co., Inc., by the French American Banking Corp. The draft was drawn to the Sept. Societe Francais.

Plans For Dinner

New Angle on Naked Truth Party This Year—"Wampas" to Listen by Radio

The committee in charge of arrangements for the Naked Truth Dinner of the A. M. P. A., which occurs at the Astor on March 29, has a number of interesting plans under way. This year's function will be different in that there will be dancing and, of course, ladies will be invited.

The chief events of the evening will be broadcasted so that the "Wampas" on the coast can get an idea of what the party is about. The A. M. P. A. is offering a prize of $100 for the best comedy sketch on the business. It's a free-for-all competition, everyone eligible and the only limitation, the fact that the skit must be performed in fifteen minutes. The judges will be Harold Lloyd, James R. Quirk, of Photoplay and Maurice Henley of the Newspaper Enterprise Ass'n. Scripts must be sent to Henley, Room 306, at 461 8th Ave. Tickets are $15 per couple or $10 per individual, sale limited to 500 couples. Charles Einfeld at First National is in charge of their distribution.

Allvine Swears It's True

Glen Allvine who is handling publicity on "The Ten Commandments," inserted a lost and found ad in several papers yesterday, seeking the return of a spare tire stolen from his automobile. Saturday night and offering as a reward, a brace of tickets for the picture. Allvine swears it's true. Detectives from 162nd St. police station verified the fact that Allvine owns an automobile and that a tire was missing from the spare rack.

Lawrence Denies

Edmund Lawrence denies that he is to co-direct with Ivan Abramson on "Meddling Women." He says he has been acting in an advisory capacity only. Chadwick Pictures announced Lawrence would head a production unit for them but the latter declares the announcement was premature, since nothing of a definite nature has been decided upon.

Bans Kiddies from "Flaming Youth"

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Virginia Minn.—H. E. Billings of the Garrick decided to keep children away from the theater when "Flaming Youth" was being shown because he felt it was not the best entertainment available for children under sixteen. He arranged a special program of juvenile films for Saturday morning to take care of the minors.

Samuels Leaves

Sig Samuels, Metropolitan Theater, Atlanta, left for home yesterday following a short visit here.

Hurley Showing Cannibal Films

Capt. Frank Hurley who secured cannibal pictures on a recent trip to New Guinea and arranged them in a picture known as "The Lost Tribe," is showing them in conjunction with a lecture at Carnegie Hall on Friday night and Tuesday, Feb. 26. James B. Pond is handling the lectures for Hurley.

Soft Focus Lens for Costumes

Harry Fischback is doing the chief camera work on "Monsieur Beaucaire." A soft focus lens is being used, this being decided upon following experimental work with the costumes. Excellent results are being obtained and an innovation in picture photography is promised.

Big House For Tulsa

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Tulsa, Okla.—W. M. Smith has let contracts for the $760,000 new Orpheum vaudeville and picture theater to be erected on W. 4th St. The theater will seat 1500.

Signs Barnard and Carr

Samuel Goldwyn has definitely signed Barney Barnard and Alexander Carr to appear in "Potash and Perlmutter in Hollywood," based on the stage play, "Business Before Pleasure."

Martina After Road Shows

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Mt. Morris, N. Y.—Charles Martina of the Family has opened a dance hall. He will use it for road shows and pictures.

O'Reilly Opens Casting Office

J. Francis O'Reilly has opened a casting office at 159 W. 46 St. He was formerly with the Metropolitan Casting Office.

Grossman Here

Edward Grossman, Epic Film Attractions of Chicago, is in New York looking over the market. At the Astor.

Sigrid Holmquist has been engaged to play opposite Lionel Barrymore in "Meddling Women."

Wants Exploitation

changed. And some day it will be; whether the physical handling is by parcel post, American Express or some other agency.

"And when this change comes, and perhaps earlier, we must develop a school of showmanship.

"Led by men like Syd Grauman and Morrie Gest we can revolutionize this business. There are 50 million people in this country who will go to see a picture, and who do not go to see pictures regularly. If the producer only gets 40 per cent of their 25 cent average admission that would be around $5,000,000; which is a lot more than pictures get. Only showmen of the type such as I have mentioned can do this. And that is what this business needs tremendously. Grauman has brought three quarters of the population of Hollywood to see 'Robin Hood.' That's the best answer."

"Doug" and Mary will remain here until after the opening next month, then sail for Europe where they will look into business matters relative to foreign distribution of their pictures, and when they return "Doug" expects to have another big idea for his next picture.

The firm name, Animated Products Co., a Delaware corporation, has been changed to Animated Products Corp.

"Discontented Husbands" is at the Broadway this week. James Kirkwood and Cleo Madison are co-starred.

Arthur Smallwood doing a lot of it. On that idea of distribution. And has received over 200 letters. Showing interest in his proposition. From all sorts of people—distributors, exchange men, film folk generally—and even the Curtis Publishing Co., as well as the man who edits the house organ of the American Ry. Express Co. All of which shows a thing or two of the circulation of the little old paper, as well as the interest generally in this problem.

"Doug" Fairbanks let loose an idea or two on this same problem Monday. It's in the air—there isn't any doubt about it. And sooner or later something must happen to change the existing disorder of things in the distribution field.

Some Percentages

In his last open letter Smallwood suggests a basis of percentages to apply on bookings of various sorts; scaling from 10 per cent for the booking of $1,000 and more down to the less than $10 booking for which a charge of 40 per cent should be made for selling. Now these percentages may be far from right. Different minds view these percentages from various angles. But generally there is a belief that they can be improved. The point in the favor of the idea is that it has started some people thinking that there is something in the Smallwood idea.

Robert Edmund Jones—the famous scenic artist wants to see a picture directed by some unknown artist, aided by a musician like Strauss, to give the proper tempo and swing. Thinks it would result in a great picture. Which leads to the thought that perhaps Riesenfeld might become a great director. This, even tho the skeleton rattles and reminds of "Roxy's" efforts in production.

Who Gets "Brummel"?

Warner's Want Special Broadway Theater But the Strand Has a Contract for It

There is some discussion between Warner Bros. and the Strand management over "Beau Brummel". The producers feel that the picture is strong enough to stand a run at a legitimate theater on Broadway and have therefore approached the Strand to ascertain if the house will relinquish the picture.

The Strand contract for "Beau Brummel" was made along with a number of other Warner pictures at the beginning of the season. An official connected with the theater stated yesterday that the agreement included the Barrymore picture and that there would be no deviation from the letter of the contract.

Plan Causes Comment

A. N. Smallwood Receives Over 200 Letters to Date On His Distribution Plan

Following the publication of his open letter addressed to distributors in which he suggested taking "the bunk" and "the air of mystery out of film distribution," Arthur N. Smallwood of Pyramid Pictures declared yesterday that he had received over 200 letters from newspaper publishers, producers, exchangemen and exchanges in which considerable interest is evidenced in the plan. Excerpts from some of the letters follow:

A New York laboratory official says:
"The cause of independence * * * is a lost one unless others take up the fight as you have and start some constructive action."

The editor of "The Express Messenger," house organ of the American Railway Express Co., writes:

"Your circular addressed to express company, I believe, contains some helpful suggestions which I would like to publish in our house organ, "The Express Messenger."

Wm. Farnum Signs

To Be Starred by Paramount—Adolphe Menjou to Stellar Rank Later

William Farnum has signed a long-term starring contract with Famous, according to announcement yesterday. He leaves for the coast Thursday to start work on the first picture which will be directed by Wallace Worsley. It will be Farnum's first picture in over a year and Worsley's first since "The Hunchback of Notre Dame".

Farnum will be accompanied west by Edward Peple who will adapt the stories. Peple is the author of "The Littlest Rebel," in which Farnum starred some time ago.

Adolphe Menjou has been added to the stock company on the coast. He will be featured in a group of pictures of which the first will be "The King" and will later be elevated to stardom.

Philadelphia—Paramount has eight pictures at prominent theaters this week, seven of them at picture houses and one at a legitimate theater. This unusual occurrence was heralded by an advertising splurge in the Sunday newspapers. The line-up follows:

- "The Ten Commandments" at the Aldine;
- "West of the Water Tower" at the Fox;
- "The Humming Bird" at the Stanton;
- "Pied Piper Malone" at the Stanley;
- "Flaming Barriers" at the Victoria;
- "His Children's Children" at the Palace;
- "Around the World With the Speejacks" at the Karlton;
- and "The Covered Wagon" at the Forrest.

Bromberg Out of Educ'al

tions of motion pictures in the February 13th issue of FILM DAILY is very interesting and I would ask you to be kind enough to send to me three copies of each letter you have issued. They ought to prove very valuable to the cause of independence."

An independent producer in Los Angeles writes:

"Your expose of conditions, while generally known to me should be of great assistance to independent producers. If you will send me three copies of each letter published, I will place them where they will do the most good and trust you will command me if I can be of any assistance in carrying on your work."

A New York producer writes:

"The distribution of motion pictures such as you describe will bring in a millennium for the independent producer."

The Chicago manager of a national distributor writes:

"Your plan of distribution would give the men in the field something worth while to shoot at."

The Curtis Publishing Co., advertising department, writes:

"We would like to avail ourselves of your offer to send copies of each of the letters in your series. We have read those with considerable interest."

A distributor of Louisville writes:

"Your letters are very interesting and will surely go a long way toward correcting the present abuses in the motion picture business."

Pola's packing 'em in!

IN NEW YORK —

The Rivoli did the biggest day's business in its history last Sunday with Pola Negri in "Shadows of Paris." Jammed to the limit day and night. In spite of strongest opposition!

IN ST. LOUIS —

All records smashed at the Missouri. Nearly $10,000 in two days (last Sat., Sun.). And getting bigger by the minute!

IN THE NEWSPAPERS —

"The best Negri picture made in America."

NEW YORK TIMES

"More good acting than in ten average movies. The old fire of Pola flames again."

NEW YORK HERALD

"Cast fine, story rapid-fire melodrama, acting couldn't be better."

DETROIT TIMES

"Shadows of Paris"—F. P.-L.
Rivoli

AMERICAN—* * * so closely related in theme to "The Humming Bird" they might almost be founded on the same story.

If there are any holes to be picked in "Shadows of Paris" the fault does not lie with Herbert Brenon, but rather with Miss Negri, who in some indescribable way has changed immeasurably from the brilliant artist who captivated America in "Passion" and "Carmen."

DAILY NEWS—The Negri is a goodly sight when dressed in trailing, stately white, but in Apache getup I can't hand her very much. Her eyebrows do a lot of work. Her subtle features do not shirk when called upon to register mad love and hate, and such.

EVENING WORLD—Pola Negri came back into her own * * * the little emotional Pole of two or three years back flames anew for the first time since she had been transplanted to the hot-house atmosphere of Hollywood.

HERALD—There is more good acting in "Shadows of Paris," * * * than is to be found in any ten of the average movies. * * * "Shadows of Paris" is effective because of Pola Negri and because the director, Herbert Brenon, has displayed the genius of a Rex Ingram in casting. He has not slipped up on a single part, with the result that his picture is played to the hilt by everyone, from Miss Negri down to the lowest extra.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—Here is a star who, because of her very genius, needs stories like "Revelation," "Rain" or a "Miracle Man," but instead she gets shoddy, made-to-order box office stuff that is just movie. We agree that this one will do the right thing by old mother ticket office, but just think what a flood there would be with one of the above mentioned types * * *

POST—Her American producers have at last found an excellent story. * * * The cast is a perfect one.

SUN—* * * she is dynamic, forceful and intriguing. She has some acting to do instead of posing. In fact, the director has given her the gamut to play with, and Pola, needless to say, runs it with ease. "Shadows of Paris" is an exciting melodrama.

TELEGRAM—Pola Negri, with her flair for romantic roles, is particularly effective * * * makes each character vital and moving.

TIMES—* * * gives Pola Negri a far better opportunity to display her histrionic talent than any of her other productions made in Hollywood. * * * As the best picture made in America with Miss Negri, "Shadows of Paris" will interest everybody who sees it, and, those who are a little fastidious about Parisian atmosphere will find that the action makes up for what there is lacking in some costumes and scenery.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—That two of the famous stars follow each other (Swanson in "The Humming Bird") in roles so decidedly similar may have been a coincidence.

The two stars are entirely different types, Pola being heavier and grosser. But Pola manages to emote sufficiently in a couple of scenes to make up for anything else that she lacked.

TRIBUNE—She is the old Pola, and she not only looks more beautiful, but she has more fire than she ever had since she came to America. Her performance alone is worth the price of a loge seat even if you have to stand up.

WORLD—* * * a feverish, trivial and preposterous story * * * It is something like "The Humming Bird" in theme. Yet in treatment it is not to be compared * * * The devitalization process through which Miss Negri has passed since coming to America has left her just a fairly good emotional actress in these fairly interesting pictures. Miss Negri, in comparison with the playing of Miss Swanson, does not begin to act so capably as the American girl. All things considered, this conclusion is an amazing one.

Out-of-Town

"Big Brother"—F. P.-L.
Century, Baltimore

EVENING SUN—This joint performance of Moore and Bennett makes of "Big Brother" as charming and entertaining a film as has hove into the local port for many moons. If you're hunting for inspirational, superclean entertainment in the movies, here it is. Go to it!

"The Courtship of Myles Standish"—Asso. Exhib.
State, Cleveland

NEWS—"The Courtship of Myles Standish" will never be written in the book as the best picture Charles Ray ever made, but it is one that everyone should see. As Mr. Ray explained to the writer, "It is not dramatically correct, but it is historically correct."

PLAIN DEALER—"Myles Standish" is recommended to you for its historical and pictorial qualities. It is the sort of picture which does the screen much good. It won't entertain the hectic drama lovers quite so much as the run-of-mine jazz-age films, but you can take grandma and all the children with the assurance that they will see something worth while.

PKESS—We did not expect to find in the picture the truly epic quality of "The Covered Wagon," and were not disappointed in "The Courtship of Myles Standish."

TIMES—Whether or not the picture is historically accurate, it is entertaining to watch the characters in their brave struggles against the vicissitudes of that first winter. Charles Ray enacts the role of John Alden, and does it well.

"The Darling of New York"—Universal
Victoria, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—It is calculated to make her a great favorite with film fans, because she does some really remarkable things for one so tender in years.

NORTH AMERICAN—This youngster has been attracting attention for some time in shorter films, and finally became so popular that it was decided to turn her into a female Jackie Coogan. While she is very winsome, with a pair of lively and snappy black eyes, she is totally lacking in any personality of an original sort and consequently the picture is a trifle flat in places.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—* * * with the ever-delightful Baby Peggy, is the feature picture at this theatre. This is her first appearance as a full-fledged star, and even the more skeptical are convinced of the possibilities of this child. The picture will appeal especially to those who have enjoyed the diminutive star's work in her two-reel comedies.

"Going Up"—Asso. Exhibitors
The Chicago, Chicago

HERALD-EXAMINER—"Going Up" is funnier on the screen than it was on the stage.

NEWS—It is a comedy that tortures you with laughter and fear * * * "Going Up" is just as funny as when Geo. M. Cohan had it on the stage and immeasurably more exciting.

"Heritage of the Desert"—F. P.-L.
Madison, Detroit

FREE PRESS—* * * will appeal irresistibly to the lovers of nature and the great outdoors. It has all the elements of a worth-while story—thrills, suspense, action and heart appeal, and some of the finest photographic "shots" the screen has shown in many a day.

NEWS—* * * is not as good a picture as "The Covered Wagon" as has been freely admitted by its producers. It is, however, a mighty good western—better pictorially, perhaps, than dramatically—and rings in some rousing situations that furnish Torrence and Beery a chance to work at top speed in grimacing at each other.

TIMES—If you like real "red-blooded" stories, this one of Grey's is sure to please you. And if you have never been attracted by western tales, this will be a good time to begin for the thrills are genuine and the photoplay ranks with the best productions dealing with the west.

"Hook and Ladder"—Universal
Moon, Omaha

WORLD-HERALD—"It isn't as good as some of his (Hoot Gibson's) recent ones but the star does his best to please.

"Shadows of Paris"—F. P.-L.
State, Minneapolis

STAR—Miss Negri makes an admirable underworld character as well as a society belle.

TRIBUNE—Miss Negri offers a performance which rivals her "Du Barry" of "Passion."

"The Ten Commandments"—F. P.-L.
Woods, Chicago

AMERICAN—It is worth your time if for no other reason than it provides what may be called, for want of a better name, stunts never equalled, it seems, on the screen; that it furnishes photographic beauty which probably has never been excelled; that it tosses before you a wealth of amazing sets and that it pours forth scene after scene which will astonish you because of its turbulent action. * * *

The modern story is melodramatic, but interesting throughout.

HERALD EXAMINER—There is more theater than theology in "The Ten Commandments," which is one way of saying that Cecil De Mille is responsible for it and that it is an exciting picture show. It is all theater, but it is a mile wide; and he would be a hardened wretch and unworthy who couldn't sneak a thrill out of the desert chase of Egyptian chariots. * * *

JOURNAL—Such miraculous performances as the Red Sea's parting * * * and fire springing out of nothing to make a barrier for the pretty pagans are triumphs in effect. * * * I think there can be no doubt that the Woods will house a great success with this film. It has the elements of sentiment and splendor that make for crowds.

NEWS—Cecil De Mille took unfair advantage of a waiting world when he produced a picture of the magnitude of "The Ten Commandments" without inventing the necessary adjectives to go with it. How inadequate the poor descriptive weaklings tremendous, stupendous, magnificent, costly, epoch-making, overwhelming seem when applied to the photoplay revealed at the Woods * * *

"Through the Dark"—Gold-Cosmop.
California, Los Angeles

(Week ending Feb. 9)

EXAMINER—"Through the Dark" however tells in vivid and dramatic manner some of the handicaps which await the chap who wants to desert his devious paths of crime * * *

EXPRESS—What an amazing little artist Colleen Moore is! Seldom does interest center in the star of a motion picture. Colleen Moore compels attention in this latest Boston Blackie story in a schoolgirl role—a most remarkable accomplishment. * * *

HERALD—* * * probably is as charming and as fascinating a yarn as the camera has ever visualized.

RECORD—* * * tells the hardships that attend a young crook's efforts at reformation.

TIMES—* * * full of fascinating thrills as well as fresh plot twists. There is smashing dramatic situation and action * * *

"Thundering Dawn"—Universal
Rivoli, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—* * * a colorful, romantic and thrilling picture showing at the Rivoli Theater this week. The dominant episode in the picture is a realistic reproduction of a destructive typhoon followed by a tidal wave, * * *

STAR—* * * No, the plot is not one of the points to recommend the picture, but there are others. Exotic Java for a locale affords fresh and little-used subjects for excellent photography. Incidental bits of local color are especially telling.

TIMES—* * * There are thrills galore, along orthodox lines.

"When a Man's a Man"—1st Nat.
State, Los Angeles

(Week ending Feb. 9)

EXAMINER—But this picture possesses least five manifest counts upon which to base a gilded differentiation between itself and what is generally—too generally—referred to as a "Western."

EXPRESS—John Bowers * * * alone sustains the interest in the first part of story, in which certain preachment upon which constitute virility, brings to mind the questions of little Rollo and the answers of ever-ready Uncle George.

RECORD—There is a very satisfactory lack of hokum in the play. The story travels along smoothly and interestingly from start to finish, but there is no effort to pep up the action by artificial methods. The melodramatic bits in, instead of being injected in unappreciated pressure.

TIMES—The Harold Bell Wright vic point is generally tinged with an aggravated smugness, but the photoplay keeps fairly clear of this, * * * Eddie Cline's direction, which possibly showing too much of slapstick influence, is free of the slushier banalities, and doubtless affected the generally favorable quality of the acting.

In The Courts

Pat Sullivan, producer of the Felix Animated Cartoons, has filed suit in the Supreme Court against Margaret J. Winkler, for a court ruling as to whether she has an option for his next series of 24 cartoons. He said he has turned over all of the series contracted for except one which he is ready to deliver, but she contends that she has an option on another series. Sullivan contends that the agreement between them is void because it is too uncertain.

Miss Winkler stated yesterday she held a bona fide option with Sullivan and that, after two years of work in building up the Felix cartoons, she did not intend relinquishing her rights on the new group.

Youngstown, O.—Theater men arrested for violating Mayor Scheible's Sunday closing order will be arraigned shortly. An injunction to prevent the Mayor from interfering with Sunday vaudeville shows will be asked. The injunction will question the right to discriminate in enforcement.

MILLIONS

By DANNY

Talked of by "Doug." From people who do not regularly go to pictures. And who would. If the proper exploitation was used. His figures aren't the least absurd or unusual. Many thinking people believe that the radio has taken a lot of the old time regulars from the picture houses. And that a new lot of fans have been created by the newer and bigger pictures. And they aren't far from right. This is a business of exploitation. And advertising. The better the publicity and advertising the better the result, no matter how good your picture is. Proven time and time again.

This business of publicity should start before the picture is started. And it should never be allowed to drop a whit in momentum. The means and methods are enormous; the possibilities of circulation stupendous. No one has ever figured out the possibilities of the right kind of publicity. If they do few will believe them. That's how big they are.

Still harping on a pet idea: What becomes of the pictures after the first run? And why isn't something done to give more definite and better paying circulation to all of them? Take, for instance, "The Hunchback" playing at the Strand this week. It has had a long and profitable run in the Astor, that's true. The Strand business is big. House records might easily have been broken had not the picture run to such footage. And after the Strand run here it will go to the neighborhood houses and then drop to the third, fourth and fifth runs.

Why? "The Hunchback" is good enough to run indefinitely on Broadway at 50 cents top. So are other pictures which just pass away and are forgotten. All of which is wrong. It's just like throwing pearls in the gutter. And just as sickening.

Piracy Check

I. M. P. P. D. A. Members To Mark Prints With Secret Code To Eradicate Evil

The I. M. P. P. D. A. has taken steps to eliminate piracy as well as disputes or court actions regarding the ownership of positive prints which often get outside of their territory.

A committee composed of Arthur N. Smallwood, Jack Cohn and John Lowell Russell, has been investigating the situation, having conferred with George A. Blair, of Eastman Kodak and with some of the laboratories. It was agreed that nothing could be accomplished in the way of a protective measure, by photographic or mechanical processes, either at the source of raw stock manufacture, or at the laboratories and it was therefore decided that each company should adopt a secret code for each release, to be inserted at different intervals on the margin of all reels.

First-Runs Congested

Flood of Big Pictures in General Distribution the Reason, John C. Flinn Found

John C. Flinn is back in New York following a short trip through the Middle West. It was on this trip that he arranged for a number of Hodgkinson pictures to play first-runs at the King's theater, St. Louis.

Flinn said yesterday he found the first-run situation far from satisfactory and laid the blame to the fact that so many of the special productions that had their own Broadway theaters have now been placed in general distribution. This has resulted in tying up the booking time of a number of theaters that would ordinarily be available to other product.

He said "The White Sister" and "The Humming Bird," were two outstanding examples of the type picture he meant. He found both of them playing to unusual business.

"America" Opens Tonight

"America" opens at the 44th St. theater tonight. The audience will include a group of society people from Richmond, Boston, Lexington, New Bedford and Great Barrington.

Repeal Looms Up

Administration Censorship Law Excellent Chance for Passage in the Assembly, Is Belief
(By Long Distance Phone)

Albany—There has been a decided change in the attitude of many legislators toward the repeal of the State M. P. Censorship law. Just what the reason seems to be is hard to ascertain but certainly the sentiment has reversed itself to the advantage of the industry.

It is believed that when the Administration repealer comes before the Assembly sufficient votes to assure its passage in the lower house can be mustered. This opinion is based in particular on the attitude of a prominent Republican leader in the Assembly who voted against the

Sennett Coming East?

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—A local paper reports that Mack Sennett will leave for the East shortly relative to a new releasing contract.

"Eph" Asher, Sennett's Eastern representative, hasn't heard about Sennett's proposed trip. He said there remained a number of comedies yet to be delivered to Pathe under the present contract.

"Racing Luck" Through A. E.

"Racing Luck," produced on the coast with Monty Banks starred, will be distributed through Associated Exhibitors. Banks declared yesterday that he would make three a year for the company and that he would leave for Hollywood today to start work. Roy Crawford at Associated verified the acquisition of "Racing Luck," but declared there had been no deal for further product.

No Plans for "Southern Love"

Al Woods' office stated yesterday that no plans have as yet been made for the release of "Southern Love," produced by Graham Wilcox in Europe and purchased for this country by Woods at a reported figure of $250,000.

Tomorrow, February 22, being Washington's Birthday and a legal holiday, there will be no issue of THE FILM DAILY published.

"Yolanda"—Gold-Cosmop. Cosmopolitan

AMERICAN—* * * the greatness of "Yolanda" does not rest alone in the magnificence of its settings—* * * but in a combination of effects—good acting thrilling dramatic situations and a romantic story that keeps up its tempo to the last reel.

DAILY NEWS—* * * you may get quite a kick out of moats and drawbridges, and Johnny Dooley as a mad prince, and Holbrook Blinn as a still madder king. You may also be found of mob scenes, with hundreds of extras bearing spears. There are plenty of these in "Yolanda." There are also pretentious sets * * *

EVENING JOURNAL—Marion Davies, in the most beautiful and brilliant photoplay ever produced, gives her most beautiful and brilliant characterization * * *

EVENING WORLD—* * * In reality the first picture Marion Davies ever saved. * * * She is the real life preserver that is thrown out to bring the plot (if any) back to the spot it belongs on the screen. * * * Marion Davies in "Yolanda" is one of the best actresses we have ever seen on the screen. * * * It's a picture worth anyone's while to see—if only to note the transgression of Marion Davies.

HERALD—* * * gorgeous to behold, rich in its pageantry, but lamentably spineless in its drama. Far along in its career it manages to get started, and then it fairly rushes to a climax; but it has been a long wait. * * *

The early tedium is relieved by the beauty of the backgrounds and of the ubiquitous Marion Davies and by the splendid acting of Holbrook Blinn. * * * emphasizes the ancient truth that scenic splendor is not so important as crude drama, on the screen or anywhere else.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * a splendid picture, even if in the opinion of some * * * night, it cannot be called the best that the Cosmopolitan Pictures have ever produced. * * * There were no two thoughts on the elaborate investiture of the Joseph Urban sets, * * * nor of the direction of Robert G. Vignola, and yet with it all there seemed to be a feeling that there was not enough action for the spectacle.

SUN—"Yolanda," for all its loveliness of settings and costumes, for all its castles of heavy stone, its plumed knights and their fair ladies, seemed to us a heavy footed, cumbersome, historical romance. We may feel this way about it because costume movies have been done to death—knighthood is no longer in flower.

TELEGRAM—In "Yolanda" one follows scene after scene of exquisite beauty, with a stirring drama constantly developing, * * *

TIMES—The cast alone is one calculated to attract persons not usually interested in photoplay efforts. * * * The scenes and settings of this film are a tribute to moving pictures, as are also the faultless and expensive costumes. In addition to this there are splendid portrayals * * * Miss Davies' acting is effective throughout, but we must say that Ralph Graves is far too modern. * * *

To those persons who desire a love story rendered by a pretty actress with clever support in amazingly beautiful surroundings, this picture will have its appeal.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—* * * is a splendid production, but it lacks the punch it seems to have needed.

Full of the romance of the Charles Major story, it aptly fits the charming Marion, who gives a sterling performance without, however, the bewitchery which "Knighthood" permitted for her.

TRIBUNE—The picture is a gorgeous production. It is costly, beautifully directed, marvelously photographed and well acted. * * * But it is not Miss Davies's most attractive production. We liked "Knighthood" and "Little Old New York" better. However, "Yolanda" will undoubtedly make many more millions than it cost.

WORLD—* * * seems fully as expensive and fully as beautiful to look upon as "Knighthood." Perhaps it is made up of dramatic situations which are just exciting and as absorbing as those of her first success, but we don't think so. Indeed, "Yolanda" deserves the highest praise which can be bestowed upon it for loveliness of scenic mounting and costume. The work of the star is good enough.

The picture seems to us to be far from thorough in its sequence and distinctly inferior in the rather important business of making the heart beat faster.

"Twenty-One"—1st Nat'l Rialto

AMERICAN—* * * Barthelmess is at his best. Not since "Tol'able David" has he given a better performance.

DAILY NEWS—* * * Mr. Barthelmess, with shiny black head and defiant dark eyes, does some fine work as the rebellious Julian. The action is swift and smooth.

EVENING JOURNAL—Barthelmess is always a splendid actor, but "Twenty-One" is that inconsequential stuff from which film features are sometimes made. * * *

EVENING WORLD—The brilliant young star rose to the heights wherever it was humanly possible to do so, but this story obviously is not at all suited to his talents.

HERALD—While there is much in "Twenty-One" to make the judicious grieve and the exacting complain the vast majority will undoubtedly hail it with delight. For in this Barthelmess picture at the Rialto Richard is himself again.

Some of the flashes of form which had endeared him to the public are there undoubtedly, but even Barthelmess is not able to make a success of this story.

TELEGRAM—* * * takes its place among the best.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—Despite the fact that the material for the fundamentals of this has been committed to memory long ago, the leading players give the whole thing a freshness and buoyancy which helps more than a little.

While "Twenty-One" is not a world-beater by any means, it serves to entertain, and that is more than lots of pictures achieve.

SUN—* * * made interesting by the presence of Richard Barthelmess, who is interesting. Without him it would be unthinkable—a ten cent melodrama; and we're not so sure but what the ten cents would have a large sized hole in it, too.

TRIBUNE—Plot nearly downs Barthelmess in "21," but his charm and looks win.

TIMES—* * * "Twenty-One" does not even approach the idea of comparison with "Tol'able David," which was full of suspense, action and excellent acting. It is quite obvious that the character of Julian McCullough does not suit Mr. Barthelmess in the least.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—* * * it's a good picture. Furthermore, it looks like something more important than a good picture—an excellent box office proposition. It's an inspiration. * * * The story is clearly and concisely told, and the cast, by its capable interpretation, enhances its undeniable entertainment qualities.

WORLD—The best that can be said for it, then, is that it strikes an average and makes no attempt whatever to advance the motion picture by the split of a hair.

Out-of-Town

"The Call of the Wild"—Pathe Strand, Cincinnati

POST—"Those who love dogs will be delighted with the screen version. * * *

TIMES-STAR—Hal Roach, in transferring the story to the screen, has not only followed the plot faithfully, but has succeeded in obtaining the desired atmosphere. Above all, however, he has in Buck a canine star who capably demonstrates that a real dog can do everything that London attributed to the "Buck" of the written pages.

"Defying Destiny"—Selznick State-Lake, Chicago

HERALD-EXAMINER—Only a spectator motivated by charity, sweet charity, could call "Defying Destiny" a good cinema. The motivation which regulates the characters is, on the whole, absurd and unconvincing.

"The Humming Bird"—F. P.-L. Allen, Cleveland

NEWS—The story in spots presents something new by way of screen fare and in other spots is interesting and thrilling. * * *

On the whole it did not impress this reviewer as being a great production but then there are those Swanson fans who will perhaps applaud with much gusto at the denouement.

PLAIN DEALER—* * * the finest thing Miss Swanson has done. It is pitched high on the emotional scale, and Gloria strikes a sharp with gelatinous clarity at the climax. A new chapter may now be added to film history—another bathing beauty from Mack Sennett's swimming pool has made good.

PRESS—It is flashy movie stuff, quite unreal, but reasonably convincing, expertly made and emotionally effective.

Alhambra, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—Gloria Swanson has doffed her customary brilliant bird of paradise plumage in "The Humming Bird," * * * and in place of wardrobe she has assumed a histrionic garb which is far more becoming.

Capitol, Montreal

STAR—* * * she carries out this Apache role in full measure, and whether she is thieving in an underworld cabaret or changing her attire in a church, she takes full advantage of the opportunities offered.

Strand, Omaha

NEWS—Gloria Swanson brings tears to the eyes * * *

WORLD-HERALD—With its realistic reproductions * * * "The Humming Bird" * * * is one of the best pictures of Paris and Apaches we have ever seen and one in which there is not an uninteresting instant.

Stanton, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—Thrills which fit consistently in a story of regeneration make "The Humming Bird," * * * fairly hum with interest. It is a vivid picture of love and patriotism, spiced with episodes from the Montmartre sections of Paris by way of good measure.

INQUIRER—There is a distinctly Parisian atmosphere created in the picture that makes it one of the most interesting and gripping shown on a local screen in many weeks.

Miss Swanson has a peculiar ability to touch chords of sympathy. It would be interesting to analyse it.

NORTH AMERICAN—Miss Swanson is at times very attractive and funny as the daring thief, who masquerades as a boy * * * Of course, with the aid of many disguises she escapes with ease and comparative comfort.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—In our mind Miss Swanson has made a great mistake in forsaking Fifth Avenue for the Boulevards. With all her vivacity she has gotten very little of Parisian color into her labored portrayal of the little gamin, with its excess of shoulder shruggings and grinning.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—Gloria Swanson forsakes the role of beautiful lady and tries her luck with a boy-girl part as "Toinette" in "The Humming Bird," a somewhat hectic tale of Apaches, war and love.

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame"—Universal Circle, Indianapolis

STAR—In many respects it is the most remarkable of all the superfilms. The portrayal of the Hunchback by Lon Chaney alone is more than sufficient to elevate it to the highest plane of cinema accomplishment.

* * * a massive picture, superbly produced, beautifully photographed and directed with rare skill by Wallace Worsley. Everywhere there is apparent meticulous attention to the slightest details. A big and stirring spectacle that takes rank among the notable things that have been done in moving pictures. From first to last it holds the interest through a long succession of scenes taking about two hours to show, scenes that are greatly diversified and are yet held together by a unity in which the great cathedral is a dominating factor.

"Rosita"—United Artists Hippodrome, Baltimore

AMERICAN—All the touches that Ernst Lubitsch gave "Passion and Deception," he has given to "Rosita." * * * But the reason for "Rosita" is Mary Pickford herself.

NEWS—"Rosita" is a most amusing photoplay. And Miss Pickford is a delightful comedienne. There are lots of people, massive palaces and all that sort of thing in "Rosita," but Miss Pickford doesn't take it too seriously.

POST—Mary isn't much of a dancer but she is a finished coquette. She is at her best when half-insane from grief toward the close of the picture. * * * You'll like Mary as "Rosita."

SUN—Mary Pickford has tucked up her curls an desavoyed to play the vampiest of vampire roles in her latest photoplay. But, when the final check-up is made, the moviegoer is quite likely to vote that beneath it all is the same Mary Pickford.

"St. Elmo"—Fox The Fox, Philadelphia

INQUIRER—The screen version is a delight in more ways than one. It will make many grown-up sixteen-year-olds bring out their copies of "St. Elmo" to find out if the novel was really as sentimental as the picture. As popular as "St. Elmo" was with the young romantic of several generations, it may safely be said that the screen version will not find favor with the flapper of today.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—One might even say that it was dull and hackneyed without being accused of exaggeration. But the subtitles are taken almost word for word from the original novel, and they are vastly amusing. The story is too well known to bear repetition. Written more than fifty years ago, it has failed to retain the vigor of some stories of the period.

"Sporting Youth"—Universal Randolph, Chicago

POST—Speed is the key-note of this production * * * it is the sort of picture which exhilarates your sporting blood and almost brings the audience to its feet with suspense.

Hippodrome, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—The production abounds in youth and what is expected to go with it—vim, vigor and vitality. It is a happy selection as the feature of a "jazz" program. Randolph, Chicago

HERALD—* * * a fast and comic romance with a tempo (as the drama critics call it) that seldom lags. Included in the action is an automobile race so excellent photographically and melodramatically that I don't hesitate in calling it the best of its kind. * * *

JOURNAL—* * * Denny is given almost exactly the kind of story they used to provide for Wally—thinner of plot and frailer than many of Reid's pictorial narratives, but still a Reid story and a Reid role, with one of Reid's standard "props," a swift motor car. They have even given him Reid's scenario. With such material as he receives, Denny completely makes good his claim to consideration.

Capitol, Detroit

FREE PRESS—The race scenes have seldom been excelled and a dozen times Sunday the Capitol audience broke into cheers as the rushing cars dashed by. Of course the hero wins, but not until after a series of scenes that will quicken the pulse and set the nerves to tingling.

NEWS—There's not the slightest suggestion of sense or reason to be found in the scenario of "Sporting Youth," * * * but still it is one of the most satisfying pictures offered in months. It is thrilling and it is funny and it has the personalities of two charming film players to add to its worth.

And what is more, it is a film that may be fed to every member of the family without a possible chance of sad after effects.

TIMES—If you want thrills you want to see "Sporting Youth." Harry Pollard who directed Denny in his series of "Leather Pushers" stories, held the megaphone over "Sporting Youth" and he has done a good job. His idea of thrills is just about the idea of the American public in general. He certainly has given plenty of them in photographing the race.

"You Can't Get Away With It"—Fox Apollo, Indianapolis

NEWS—It may upset your ideas of what a movie story should be, for it is seldom trite, but it ought to please you much, for it seems to the writer to be an excellent effort on the part of William Fox to lift the screen from the mire of platitudes which have engulfed it.

STAR—* * * is by no means Mr. Fox's most lavish production, but it is distinguished by uncommonly good sense.

"Wild Bill Hickok"—F. P.-L. Piccadilly, Rochester

HERALD—And Bill Hart has brought a picture to the Piccadilly that will not only endear him more to his old fans, and they were legion, but will win for him thousands of new admirers, * * *

EVE JOURNAL—Bill Hart in action is enjoyable, even when the action is as naively arranged to give him the whole stage as it is in the picture at the Piccadilly this week.

TIMES-UNION—There are not many dragging moments in the picture and Bill Hart fans will no doubt find enjoyment in it.

"Wild Oranges"—Gold-Cosmop. Alamo, Louisville

COURIER JOURNAL—There is a tremendous fight scene, when the girl tries to escape, between the half crazed man and the man she loves.

The picture is tense with excitement and some of the added touches that are lent to add gruesomeness to the deserted barn of place are almost Poe-esque.

HERALD—King Vidor has given another excellent character study in a picture which is full of thrills and sudden climaxes. There is no doubt but what he has surpassed "Three Wise Fools" * * *

Keep Crowds Moving

Toronto Theaters Make Transportation Deal to Eliminate Congestion After Performances

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Toronto—An unusual arrangement is embodied in an agreement drawn up by a dozen of the downtown theaters and the Toronto Transportation Commission to facilitate the handling of crowds during the rush hours of the late afternoon and evening. Matinee performances are held at hours that will enable patrons to board street cars for outlying districts before 5 P. M. Hours arranged by practically all of the important theaters for the regular afternoon shows enable the performances to close at 4.30. The theaters co-operated in making formal announcements regarding the schedule agreement under the heading of "For Your Convenience" as follows:

"Cordially co-operating with the Commission in the interest of better street car service, managers of the principal theaters have made arrangements so that their afternoon performances will be over in time to allow patrons to get on street cars before the 5 o'clock rush begins.

"In most cases, this will mean that the afternoon programs will begin promptly at 2 or 2:15 P. M. and end by 4:30 P. M. at the latest.

"You can add to the pleasure of your matinee outings by being in your seat at the theater before 2:15 P. M., by boarding a street car for home before the rush begins and by riding home in comfort.

"Please leave the rush hours' cars free to carry the homeward-bound workers who will appreciate your kindly thought for their comfort."

The theaters which have signed the agreement are the Hippodrome, Regent, Tivoli, Uptown, York, Pantages, Massey Music Hall, Shea's, Princess, Royal Alexandria, Loew's Yonge Street, Grand and Empire.

To Operate Through United

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Albany—Allied Prod. and Dist. Corp. has filed notice of surrender of authority with the Secretary of State.

Dennis F. O'Brien, a director of United Artists explained yesterday that for purposes of company management, the business of Allied will now be handled under the name of the United Artists Corp. It is known, of course, that the Allied and United product have been sold by the same sales force, operating out of the same exchanges: those of United.

Fear Death of Cameraman

International News Service reported from Naples yesterday that a cameraman believed to represent International News Reel lost his life when an aeroplane carrying him fell into the crater at Vesuvius. E. B. Hatrick's office said the man was Umberto Romagnoli, one of International's crack cameramen. A private cable received last night indicated that he may not be lost, in view of the fact that he purposely descended into the crater to shoot pictures and thus establish a record for work of that character.

Big House For Brooklyn

A 2,000 seat theater will be part of a new building venture to be built at 109th St. and Liberty Ave. in the Glenwood section of Brooklyn by a syndicate represented by Sefferman's, the theater brokers. The house will be ready by the fall.

For Stricter Censorship

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—A campaign to make censorship more effective by its application to productions before they have been nationally advertised and sold will be launched by the National Censorship League, recently organized here.

Exhibitors To Visit Olcott

A group of local exhibitors headed by Billy Brandt are to pay Sidney Olcott a visit at the Paramount studio today to watch the shooting of several scenes for "Monsieur Beaucaire."

Rosen Denies

Phil Rosen wired this publication yesterday from the coast that he had not signed a year's contract with Graf Prod., as reported. He will make only one picture for that organization.

After 100 Runs

1st Nat'l Seeking That Many Day and Date Engagements for "Lilies of the Field"

First National is seeking to line-up fully one hundred simultaneous first-runs for "Lilies of the Field" which is set for release in March. Robert Lieber has issued a call to First National franchise holders and open market exhibitors to play the picture, beginning March 16 as the opening smash of a nation-wide sales drive.

"Lilies of the Field Day" has been proclaimed on March 16 for that purpose. It is probable that the Strand will run the picture that week. Important theaters that have already booked it for that week include the Chicago, Chicago; Kinema, Los Angeles; Metropolitan, Washington; Capitol, Detroit; Circle, Indianapolis; Metropolitan, Atlanta and Warfield, San Francisco.

It was stated yesterday that returns for "First National Month" were very satisfactory and the campaign the most successful in the company's history. While no figures were mentioned, it will be recalled that the quota set for January was $3,000,000.

May Be Some Time Before Max Reinhardt Directs for Cosmopolitan—Urban Angle Interesting

Theatrical circles along Broadway are of the opinion that it will be a long time before Max Reinhardt, the famous German master of Stagecraft, will direct Marion Davies for Cosmopolitan. As a matter of fact, it is rumored in some quarters that this will never occur, despite the fact that the Hearst organization officially announced that Reinhardt had affixed his name to a contract for a period of years.

Reinhardt is to produce for the theater to be erected by Otto Kahn for Morris Gest. Those in the know point out that Reinhardt and Joseph Urban are close friends and that these great artists are not likely to interfere with each other in their respective undertakings.

Warners' Buy Three

The Warners' have purchased three pictures for production on the 1924-25 schedule. They are "The Lost Lady" by Wida Cathers; "The Dark Man," by Ernest Pascelle, and "The Melancholy Girl," an adaptation of a French play.

The greatest of film comedienues, Mabel Normand, is still scoring a nation-wide hit with "The Extra Girl," produced by Mack Sennett and distributed by Associated Exhibitors—Advt.

What of Olcott?

Present Contract Ends With "Beaucaire"—Lasky Here to Settle Matter

One of the interesting matters that Jesse L. Lasky is expected to settle while he is in New York will concern the future of Sidney Olcott.

Olcott is now directing "Monsieur Beaucaire," at the Long Island studio. This marks the end of his present contract and to date, no arrangements have been made for his future services. However, it is known that Paramount officials are very much pleased over the manner in which he directed "The Humming Bird," which is playing to big business generally throughout the country and want to keep Olcott in the organization. Olcott, on the other hand, is seeking a contract on a new financial basis. He has received a number of offers from other companies, several of which stand willing to place him at the head of his own unit.

$84,000 For One Scene

Studio gossip declares that Famous will spend about $84,000 for one elaborate shot in "Monsieur Beaucaire." The scene will represent a garden outside of a palace in France. A miniature lake and a cascade effect will be specially constructed on the upper stage of the Paramount studio. The scene will probably run no longer than three minutes on the screen.

Fannie Hurst talking. At the National Board lunch. Declared producers were practically guilty of selling drugs to minors in providing the type of picture they are doing instead of developing the average audience by giving them better pictures. And then added that she did not find that altruism in producers that indicated they were willing to take a sporting chance. Fannie Hurst is sure hard to please. Ever since she and some producers could not agree on just what was the kind of a picture that should have been made from one of her stories.

Shucks! Wasn't "The Bluebird" made into a picture? What greater altruism could there be?

THAT FOREIGN BUSINESS

Gets more and more difficult. A bulky letter from Berlin carried on the envelope stamps valued at over 165 million marks. Which in the good old days would have meant over $41,000 in postage—in American money. No wonder Louie Auerbach uses wireless.

50 Features Reviewed In 17 Cities

"Anna Christie"—1st Nat'l Circle, Indianapolis

NEWS—Even though you saw "Anna Christie" as a stage play, you will enjoy the picture * * * which statement is no faint praise.

The essence of the story has been retained and transferred from one medium to another, and the feature, consequently, has the starkness and magnificence of the drama.

STAR—* * * make the future of the screen seem more hopeful * * * Ince has not weakened under the temptation to make a box-office picture. He has not sacrificed the fundamental grimness of the O'Neill drama to skirt the censors.

"Bright Lights of Broadway"—S. R. Broadway, Los Angeles

(Week Ending Feb. 16)

EXAMINER—In "Bright Lights of Broadway" you will find plenty of well accelerated action, plenty of conflict, plenty of drama and plenty of suspense.

EXPRESS—The cast is the thing * * * It overshadows the play completely. However, "Bright Lights of Broadway" is not entirely reprehensible as to plot, its deviation from interest is chargeable to the number of times it has been used previously.

HERALD—* * * rests upon a very good foundation. This foundation is nothing more or less, it must be admitted, than the feminine * * *

RECORD—The picture proves conclusively that a woman cannot have a career and home bliss, both at the same time.

TIMES—* * * you are going to see some wonderful acting. * * * One cannot toss the story so many bouquets. While there are some fresh twists, * * * and while the suspense is well sustained, still there are some scenes that seem absurd.

"Daytime Wives"—F. B. O. Family, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—The story itself is interesting and diverting, and is told with commendable directness, but the cast is even better than the story. The leading roles are convincingly portrayed * * *

POST—An interesting story is developed, * * * The settings and photography are good.

TIMES-STAR—Although the plot was in its hey-day when Major Anderson evacuated Fort Sumter, "Daytime Wives," * * * is ably acted. Wyndham Standing does excellent work, despite the handicap of a be-whiskered vehicle, and is well supported * * *

"Don't Call It Love"—F. P.-L. Regent, Rochester

DEMOCRAT-CHRONICLE—We did not have time to read the original, but we venture to say that whatever of merit the central character of the original tale had to offer was completely massacred by the screen interpretation of Nita Naldi. * * * William De Mille, who directed this picture, needs a vacation or something of the sort to bring him back to normal.

HERALD—This story * * * is a good one. It could be a splendid motion picture, but somehow it misses out. It rather resolves itself into a series of poses, much as in a fashion salon, by Nita Naldi, and, distracted pulling of his own hair by Jack Holt. With the exception of Theodore Kosloff, who is extremely good, the entire cast seems rather inadequate.

JOURNAL—The director who took "Jack" Holt off "the great open spaces" and put him to making love in perfectly appointed drawing rooms did "Jack" a great injustice. * * * several reels are devoted almost exclusively to the prostration of Mr. Holt at the feet of Nita Naldi. * * *

TIMES-UNION—* * * is likely to give a sufficient amount of entertainment * * * though it is not likely to make any great or lasting impression * * * Nita Naldi, who plays the role of Rita Coventry, suggests little of the subtle but compelling charm that was attributed to the Rita Coventry of Mr. Street's story * * * but she gives to the role the necessary arrogance and wilfulness of the character * * *

Columbia, Washington

TIMES—If ever there was a movie, here's one! And what a movie! Something to suit every taste.

"The Eternal City"—Gold.-Cosmop. Rivoli, Baltimore

AMERICAN—* * * Combines a love story and a series of spectacles with surprising coherency. But, * * * you'll recall the backgrounds when the story has faded from your * * * memory. * * * Photographed against Rome and the surrounding campagna, * * * "The Eternal City" once more asserts the superiority of genuine scenic settings over those which Hollywood can provide.

SUN—* * * sounds a note of special patriotic appeal to the Latin movie fan and rather submerges certain details of the novelist's original tale. * * *

The production has been mounted in lavish style. A cast of prominent players measures up to the demands of the occasion.

Capitol, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—* * * a powerful romance of heroic proportions, accentuated by situations of an intensely dramatic nature, and beautified by settings that are as lovely as they are authentic. * * *

TIMES-STAR—George Fitzmaurice, * * * has made an excellent job of it. He receives splendid support in the histrionic department, * * * Fitzmaurice also has utilized to their utmost artistic advantage the architectural beauties of ancient and modern Rome for a series of sumptuous backgrounds.

"Fashion Row"—Metro Delmonte, St. Louis

(Week Ending Feb. 16)

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—* * * easily the best of Miss Murray's long list of successes. It has every pictorial and dramatic appeal that delights audiences and the story is interesting, the scenes stunning and costumes worn by the star beyond description.

POST-DISPATCH—Mae Murray's wonderful gowns and her excellent acting in a dual role make "Fashion Row" a decidedly worth while picture.

STAR—"Fashion Row," * * * is a fashion show with a plot.

TIMES—The cast is adequate, and the picture moves swiftly.

Warfield, 'Frisco

CALL—The story is ultra-melodramatic, * * * The admirers of Miss Murray will be inclined to credit this as her best picture.

CHRONICLE—Mae Murray seems on the verge of forgetting she is a personality, a teetering, tottering personality, and quite a fascinating one, and is trying her wings as a real actress.

DAILY NEWS—No devotee of Mae Murray will be disappointed with "Fashion Row," for it is the most elaborate of her series of razzle-dazzle dramas * * *

EXAMINER—The story * * * has been cleverly brought to the screen, allowing for an entertaining combination of the spectacular and human heart interest.

HERALD—* * * revealed to us a somewhat new Mae in a somewhat different line of work. Many of her former pictures have been frothy, so far as plot and story were concerned; but in this production we are given something deeply dramatic, rising tumultuously at times, and then sweeping on to a regular Muscovite climax.

"Flaming Barriers"—F. P.-L. La Salle Garden, Detroit

NEWS—There is nothing about "Flaming Barriers," but it is a nice, enterprising little film and has a good cast.

Victoria Philadelphia

INQUIRER—Again does the flaming forest fire come into its own. This time it is the climax of a rather conventional story, with some thrills, called "Flaming Barriers," * * *

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The most exciting thing about the picture is a great forest fire, * * *

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—There are many elements of interest, the greatest of these being a great forest fire. It is one of the most ambitious forest fires ever screened.

Palace, Washington

HERALD—The fire scene forms the climatic episode of a thoroughly forceful and particularly engrossing story.

TIMES—"Flaming Barriers" is a story packed with thrills, brimming full of good, rich comedy, replete with subtle satire—a broad statement but true.

"George Washington, Jr."—Warner's Piccadilly, Rochester

DEMOCRAT & CHRONICLE—The utter improbability of the story of "George Washington, Jr.," is its chief point of appeal * * * In addition to this desirable quality there is plenty of humor. * * * With positive assurance it can be stated that the photoplay will offer a large measure of entertainment for adults as well as for the children.

HERALD—One dreads the day when this freckle faced youngster (Wesley Barry) will be grown up and gone into the more serious roles of the movies.

JOURNAL—When the picture isn't suggesting musical comedy, it is reverting to good old slapstick, but it is all very good fun. * * * For the first time Wesley Barry is all dressed up—* * * and he doesn't make a play for heart throbs once, which is a great relief. All in all, the picture is very good diversion.

TIMES-UNION—"George Washington, Jr.," is crammed with action and with Wesley Barry and probably no one will be so greedy as to ask that it be plausible as well.

"Half-A-Dollar-Bill"—Metro Colonial, Detroit

NEWS—* * * has many appealing moments.

"Her Temporary Husband"—1st Nat'l Karlton, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—* * * one of the best comedies seen in some time. The punch begins when the first caption is flashed upon the screen, and it gains power until the big climax at the very end.

INQUIRER—Sidney Chaplin, * * * yesterday scored a hit * * * The farcic comedy, * * * kept the audience in continual laughter with its mirth-provoking situations, * * *

NORTH AMERICAN—Without doubt this is the funniest picture which has been turned out within the last many, many months.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—It is one of the funniest films we have seen in some time. * * *

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—* * * provides an abundance of laughter, because it satirizes a subject that has been used over and over again in the movies.

"Innocence"—C. B. C. Cameo, San Francisco

(Week Ending Feb. 16)

BULLETIN—To all those people who like a good, holding story in their filmfare, who are not contented with the facial contortions of pretty stars, but who demand intelligent acting and artistic dressing of production, "Innocence" should make a strong appeal.

CHRONICLE—If you are interested in machinery perhaps an occasional whirring and creaking in the plot * * * won't bother you.

DAILY NEWS—An old-fashioned melodrama. * * * and the usual court room stuff, that's "Innocence" at the Cameo.

HERALD—It is a good picture, nothing startling nor sensational, but containing an interestingly blended combination of circumstantial evidence, mystery, intrigue and romance.

"In the Palace of the King"—Go Cosmop. Royal, Kansas City

POST—The settings and scenic effects magnificent. The action drags but the r are well cast and well acted. Blanche Sweet and Edmund Lowe carry the leads.

Kings, St. Louis

(Week Ending Feb. 16)

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—Not alone has director done a workmanlike and artistic but the continuity, written by June Mathis, editorial director for Goldwyn, is something to be marveled at for its smoothness, adherence to the dramatic story unfolded * * *

POST-DISPATCH—* * * a fine old swab buckling play * * * The versatility of Blanche Sweet was never better shown than in contrast between her work in the role of Anna Christie and in this costume drama.

STAR—Sometimes the movies dig up old novel and make it into a first rate picture. "In the Palace of the King" is v packed with sentiment and probably will please audiences at the Kings.

TIMES—* * * a beautiful picture. is at the Kings. Blanche Sweet again demonstrates that she has returned to the screen a greater actress than ever.

"In Search of a Thrill"—Metro Strand, Minneapolis

JOURNAL—* * * is pleasant enough, so only when the serious minded director asks Viola to be emotional. She shouldn't do * * *

STAR—Viola Dana always furnishes interesting and entertaining hour and a half when she puts in an appearance.

"The Love Master"—1st Nat'l Park-Mall, Cleveland

NEWS—"The Love Master" has one qualification at least which removes it from the usual run of dog pictures. Its subtitle have a snap and a vein of humor that is bound to keep the most blasé spectator attention most of the time. The scene also is above the average, * * *

PLAIN DEALER—"The Love Master" good screen fare—doubly so for the children * * * If we would be absolutely fair about the thing, "The Love Master" should be said to co-star Strongheart and Lady Julia. The latter does fully as much in this picture, and does it just as capably as her more famous mate.

"Judgment of the Storm"—F. B. C. Butterfly, Milwaukee

NEWS—"Judgment of the Storm," has story to tell and tells it, in a straight-forward way.

"Just Off Broadway"—Fox Washington, Detroit

(Week Ending Feb. 16)

NEWS—The punch to this plot is through mistaken identity. You, the spectators, know that John Gilbert really is not the clever scoundrel he seems to be. That is why it is so interesting to watch his relations with the others who really are desperadoes but trustful to him.

"Little Old New York"—Gold-Cos. Walnut, Cincinnati
(Week Ending Feb. 16)

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—Screened from the stage play of the same name, the play shows the delightful Miss Davies in an even more refreshing role than she has filled heretofore.

TIMES-STAR—The play is excellently cast and there is something almost uncanny about the way in which the famous characters of a past day suddenly step naturally and nonchalantly into view. To us the picture was much more interesting as a vivid re-construction of an historic period than as a drama.

"The Love Master"—First Nat'l Strand, Milwaukee
(Week Ending Feb. 16)

SENTINEL—Sounds rather risqué, doesn't it? Brings up visions of couches of roses and three minutes kisses. But don't get excited, "The Love Master" is as pure as the driven snow, and there is plenty of that for it is a romance of the white stretches of the far north.

"The Marriage Circle"—Warner's Eastman, Rochester

DEMOCRAT-CHRONICLE—* * * will offer the discerning who appreciate finesse in screen acting and accuracy of technique in manner of presentation, an amount of satisfaction to be derived from few, very few, recent photoplays * * * intelligence breathes in every detail of the picture, and the fact that the pictures tell their own story without the use of numerous subtitles is a triumph worthy of especial note.

HERALD—A remarkably amusing comedy of the totally unsubtle type, in which Monte Blue does some well high perfect acting, Adolphe Menjou is splendid. Florence Vidor is extremely beautiful, and Marie Prevost is insufficient. * * * a relief from the ponderosity of spectacles. It is frankly amusing, light and in no way pretentious. The settings are simple, the plot well developed, the action smooth if perhaps a little too speedy.

JOURNAL—Mr. Lubitsch has turned out a highly sophisticated comedy. It is ever so merry all the way through, always in the best of taste and generally as pranking as a draught of champagne.

TIMES-UNION—* * * quite the cleverest, most subtle movie comedy that we have seen, and is one of those artistic triumphs that permits a vision of what may be ahead for the motion picture if directors arise who study their medium and their actors * * * The cast is practically flawless, * * *

"Maytime"—Preferred Metropolitan, Baltimore
(Week Ending Feb. 16)

POST—* * * proclaimed by many * * * to be even more delightful than the musical comedy itself. The story, which covers a period of time from the early eighteenth century up to the present day, is very picturesque.

SUN—A tender sentimental romance of yesterday and today.

Strand, Cincinnati

ENQUIRER—Up to the last reel or so this * * * is as picturesque and as unassumingly charming as "Smilin' Through," and its mingling of humor and pathos is undeniably delightful. But just in the last reel or so the key suddenly changes, * * *

TIMES-STAR—* * * it has the fragrance of faded love letters scented with lavender. It needs no jazz party or harrowing bedroom scene to give it a "punch," and the introduction of such discordant elements indicates not only an amazing grossness on the part of the director, but an utter lack of good taste and artistic perception.

"Modern Matrimony"—Selznick Granada, Frisco
(Week Ending Feb. 16)

CALL—* * * one of the brightest bits of farce comedy brought to the screen in a long time.

CHRONICLE—* * * a very good light comedy * * *

DAILY NEWS—"Modern Matrimony" * * * starts out to be nearly as funny as "Love Is An Awful Thing," with the same pernickety comedian, Snitz Edwards, in it.

EXAMINER—* * * a sparkling comedy on the futile attempts of a pair of newlyweds to establish a home.

HERALD—* * * an interesting comedy built along somewhat original lines, * * * The story is almost entirely comedy, and it is comedy of a most acceptable type * * *

"Name the Man"—Gold-Cosmop. B'way-Strand, Detroit
(Week Ending Feb. 16)

TIMES—When a picture goes three weeks at the theater there is something to be said about it besides the simple "it's a good picture." It has to be something more than a good picture to remain at a Detroit theater more than two weeks.

Merrill, Milwaukee

SENTINEL—The title aptly implies its content yet it is not clap-trap melodrama but good stong dama due to the masterly direction of a new personality in the American film world. Victor Seastrom, noted as Sweden's premiere director, was recently brought here by Goldwyn and "Name the Man" is his initial picture and one that argues well for his future as a teller of shadow stories.

Rialto, Omaha

NEWS—Victor Seastrom * * * has brought old-world artistry to the American screen. * * *

WORLD-HERALD—He has proved that he is a master director by the manner in which he has handled this production, based on a most melo-dramatic story.

"The Next Corner"—F. P.-L. Metropolitan, Los Angeles
(Week ending Feb. 9)

EXAMINER—Dorothy Mackaill * * * shows a surprising versatility, a fluid emotional power and a diverse beauty which

"No Mother to Guide Her"—Fox Hippodrome, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—* * * leaves the impression of being a pretty poor entertainment. The film version, * * * naturally has many advantages over the old-time stage production of the piece. It gives an opportunity for fine outdoor settings and more elaborate interior scenes than they saw in the old ten-twenty-three days. But despite these advantages it fails to get over in first-class style.

Rialto, Washington

HERALD—If all motion pictures were as good as "The Marriage Circle," you would go to the movies every day. * * * Lubitsch has deftly woven the delicate skein of the involved relationship of the five main characters in the story into an intricate web with relentless analysis, subtle humor and a general outlook on life as different from the accepted standards as it is intriguing.

TIMES—A worthy candidate for the place of highest rank on this year's lists of the "ten best pictures." * * * Ernest Lubitsch has not only succeeded in adding to his own fame and that of his players, but to cinema history as well in introducing several new ideas in direction.

"The Old Fool"—Hodkinson Orpheum, Minneapolis, Minn.
STAR—It is enjoyable.

"On the Banks of the Wabash"—Vitagraph Pantages, Frisco
(Week Ending Feb. 16)

DAILY NEWS—J. Stuart Blackton planned a great picture * * * but it sagged through excess of sentimentality. We find it amusing for its tonnage of pathos, rural types, flagrant melodrama and hilarious bumpkin comedy. It's a good long one, too, running nearly two hours.

"Painted People"—1st Nat'l The Chicago, Chicago

AMERICAN—Mistitled, based on an unoriginal story, which, incidentally, is lacking in suspense, and given in its early stages to airing thin philosophy about ambition, this picture still succeeds in entertaining because of its chief personality and its liveliness.

JOURNAL—But with all the screen's horses and all the screen's men, "Painted People" would remain purely Colleen Moore. Hers is an effervescent personality that bubbles over everything.

TRIBUNE—I have a "hunch" that "Painted People" is the picture that will "make" little Colleen Moore. She is adorable in it!

Strand, Milwaukee

NEWS—We take off our hats to Colleen Moore. She is the screen comedienne of the day—refreshing, original and entirely likeable.

"Pied Piper Malone"—F.P.-L. Century, Baltimore

SUN—The production may be ranked of average program merit. The cast includes Lois Wilson, George Fawcett, Cyril Ring and a numerous band of child-actors.

Metropolitan, Los Angeles
(Week Ending Feb. 16)

EXAMINER—* * * it's a nice, simple little tale which children especially will enjoy. Lois Wilson plays opposite the star and looks quite her prettiest. * * * It is not one of Meighan's best adventures on the silversheet, but it is after all Thomas Meighan, and he seems always to be popular regardless of his vehicle.

EXPRESS—The combination of Tarkington and Meighan brings a refreshing wholesomeness to the production. * * * Sentiment is adroitly mixed with comedy throughout and the story which might come under the classification of "sweet" escapes being cloyingly so.

HERALD—Booth Tarkington is the author, and there's lots of children in the picture, so you know it must be clean. * * * Besides Mr. Meighan, who, of course, is always a great attraction * * * there are a number of interesting film lights in the picture.

TIMES—Everything to make the Tommy Meighan fan joyously happy, * * * one of the best in which Meighan has lately appeared.

Rialto, Louisville

COURIER-JOURNAL—The story is delightful. Tommy Meighan is Jack Malone, while Lois Wilson plays Patty Thomas.

HERALD—Thomas Meighan has never appeared to greater advantage.

Missouri, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—* * * it fits Meighan like a glove and he has made the most of it by turning out one of the best pictures of his career.

POST-DISPATCH—As a romance of sea and home life, the picture has had few equals.

STAR—Tom Meighan in a part that fits, a real story about real people, * * * all are in "Pied Piper Malone" * * *

TIMES—* * * The Meighan and Booth Tarkington following will like it, as will the children, but it is a bit dry for grownups, and too much along fairy tale lines.

State, Minneapolis

STAR—Nothing is left to be desired by this week's offering.

Stanley, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—A pleasing sea tale. * * *

INQUIRER—It has fallen to the lot of that popular movie idol, Thomas Meighan, to appear in nothing lately but the most innocuous pictures. His latest film, "Pied Piper Malone," * * * the Stanley this week is no exception. The picture is interminably drawn out.

NORTH AMERICAN—Meighan plays his role in his accustomed fashion, a straightforward style, and in such a manner that one knew perfectly that he would never do anything but the right thing under any circumstances. His scenes with the children were very amusing and well done.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The mere fact that Thomas Meighan is in a picture is in itself, a sufficient guarantee, but when one learns Booth Tarkington wrote the story, one is doubly sure to enjoy it.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—* * * has been woven into a delightful photoplay with just enough of a love strain in it to give it a modern appeal.

"Pleasure Mad"—Metro State, Los Angeles
(Week Ending Feb. 16)

EXAMINER—Aside from its theme—that getting money doesn't really bring you a thing in the way of happiness—the film has little that is novel. The acting is only of medium quality * * *

EXPRESS—* * * one of many other screen tales as like as peas in a pod. * * * The direction is good but not notable; the photography adequate and the settings attractive.

HERALD—The film is really engrossing and entertaining. * * *

"Pleasure Mad," is not a particularly ingenious drama, but it is human and intrigues the eye from first scene to last. * * * Laughs are intermingled with tears, giving the picture a popular appeal.

RECORD—The picture is lavishly staged, and the company, for the most part, is well picked. Mary Alden, as the mother, is fine.

TIMES—* * * a pearl of a picture * * * a better picture than it was a play.

"The Rendezvous"—Gold-Cosmop. State, Cleveland

PLAIN DEALER—It shows touches of genius—just as "Fool's First," "Minnie" and one or two other Neilan products have shown * * * Sydney Chaplin shows that the Chaplin flair for comedy is more of a family than an individual matter. If it weren't for Syd, "The Rendezvous" would be about 100 per cent duller than it is now.

NEWS—* * * depends on thrills to put it across. * * * is a picture that will be entertaining to those fans who enjoy good film drama and who are willing to overlook those impossibilities that are certain to crop out in almost any screen story.

Kings, St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—* * * proves to be one of the best productions made by this master of film technique.

The film is an exceedingly dramatic one; * * * POST-DISPATCH—Lucille Rickson, * * * gives an excellent account of herself * * * The picture also has the added merit of some of the finest comedy touches seen in many a day.

TIMES—Watch this little girl Lucille Rickson. She's advancing. In "The Rendezvous" she gives an excellent performance * * * The story generally is interesting, well worked out, and worth seeing.

"Reno"—Gold-Cosmop. Strand, Minneapolis

(Week Ending Feb. 16)

STAR—The action of the play is rapid * * * the picture holds the interest of the audience by its action rather than the quality of the acting in it.

TRIBUNE—It is difficult to trace the development of the story. However, it provides an opportunity for some moments of passion that must stir the most cold-hearted.

"Resless Wives"—S. R. New Lyric, Minneapolis

(Week Ending Feb. 16)

STAR—The producers have emptied the full bag of tricks in building up the plot. * * *

TRIBUNE—There is a fire scene in this picture for which an exact duplicate of the author's home was built and burned at midnight.

"Richard the Lion Hearted" Allied Artists Gifts, Cincinnati

(Week Ending Feb. 16)

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—* * * is not as splendid a picture as was "Robin Hood" its predecessor.

Of its kind, * * * proves fairly good. There are some spectacular scenes and a few thrilling hand-to-hand encounters between the Crusaders and the Saracens, but the deft touches of "Robin Hood" are missing.

POST—All who saw "Robin Hood" will be interested * * * you will like Beery in this, his first starring role.

TIMES-STAR—* * * the acting of the principal character, Wallace Beery, as "Richard" is all that could be asked for; but those who go with the expectation of seeing a second "Robin Hood" picture will come away sadly disappointed.

"Rosita"—United Artists Liberty, Kansas City

POST—It has been said that it is the story of "The Spanish Dancer," a Pola Negri film, done over. You'll see that it is but you won't care a hang for Mary, petite and a direct contrast to Pola, makes another and more sympathetic character of the street singer.

Sun, Omaha

DAILY NEWS—It is by far the most ambitious picture Mary Pickford has ever appeared in, and has many emotional scenes.

"The Shadow of the East"—Fox Liberty, St. Louis

POST-DISPATCH—There is an element of mystery running through the picture and a thrilling, if not convincing, climax in which he shakes off the spell, with resultant reconciliation with his English bride. The picture has much scenic beauty.

TIMES—Although not outstanding, this photoplay is good entertainment, and worth seeing. The plot succeeds in holding the attention, although the story rambles a bit.

"Six Cylinder Love"—Fox Strand, Washington

TIMES—The picture is bigger than the play, with the same clever lines and sympathetic work of the star retained.

"The Song of Love"—1st Nat'l Alhambra, Milwaukee

NEWS—She is cast in a part calling for turbulent passion and an abandon that is very unlike the Norma of other films. * * *

Although the plot travels a well-worn groove, it is forgotten in the presence of Joseph Schildkraut and Arthur Edmund Carew.

"Sporting Youth"—Universal Newman, Kansas City

POST—It is full of intrigue, wars, fights, shots and burning love. * * * George Fitzmaurice has displayed a fine Italian hand in shooting his story. Plenty of money has been spent in the film abroad. Most of you will like it.

California, Los Angeles

(Week Ending Feb. 16)

EXAMINER—If you have red blood in your veins—* * * you'll get a dynamic thrill out of "Sporting Youth."

The screen version—despite the fact that this is an out-and-out comedy drama—is plausible and the continuity is swift and satisfactory.

EXPRESS—"Sporting Youth," shows Mr. Denny at his best, even if the story is at times a bit woru. * * * There are ample thrills in "Sporting Youth."

HERALD—The production may be classified as chemically pure despite its title, albeit it has a kick of its own.

TIMES—If you miss it, you will, indeed really overlook one of the best and speediest comedies with a mile-a-minute finish that has flashed by the grandstand in many a day. It's a real he-man picture, and one that the women will probably like too, * * *

Garden, Milwaukee

NEWS—* * * but Reginald Denny is irresistible in "Sporting Youth." He is so much better on the dirt track than in the squared circle that we straightway promote him to this type of role in the future.

POST—George Fitzmaurice has accomplished little in modernizing Sir Hall Caine's story, "The Eternal City," but he has given us some of the finest settings for a motion picture ever obtained by any director.

"The Ten Commandments"—F. P.-L. Aldine, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—* * * its story in varied forms has been told in countless ways and in innumerable dramas of life, but it remained for Mr. DeMille to combine everything that is stunning and magnificent in the photodramatic art * * *

It is in the first part, however, that the producer and his associates have scored their triumph.

INQUIRER—* * * a truly notable production and one which in several ways has created something new in the way of motion picture photography. * * * In the latter half of the picture De Mille has stepped near the brink of the sentimental, but the bigness of the subject and the bigness of his handling of it prevents it from ever becoming maudlin. * * * The second part of the picture is little different from the average good film. The first part, however, is one that stands out as something unique and impressive. It represents the highest peak motion picture photography has yet reached.

"To The Ladies"—F. P.-L. Regent, Rochester

(Week Ending Feb. 16)

HERALD—If it is not so funny as we remembered the play, the fact must be due to the limitations of the screen. Certainly it is not the fault of the cast, which has been unusually well chosen.

JOURNAL—* * * one of the most pleasing comedies that the Rochester screen has presented in many a day. It is pleasing in the first place because it is a good story of the struggle of three ambitious clerks for the empty office of manager in the Kincaid Piano Works; in the second place it is remarkably well cast.

TIMES UNION—* * * does not equal the stage version in subtle comedy effect but is, nevertheless, quite well done. Helen Jerome Eddy does a splendid piece of acting as Elsie Beebe, and Theodore Roberts acts the part of the president of the piano factory to the life.

"Twenty-One"—1st Nat'l Metropolitan, Washington

HERALD—The story is visualized with all of the skill that has characterized the earlier Barthelmess pictures directed by John S. Robertson. Many of the outdoor scenes are of transcendent beauty, * * *

TIMES—One thing that we thank Dick Barthelmess for is that he never acts and in this picture he uncovers a subtle vein of humor which pleases us immensely.

"Under the Red Robe"—Gold-Cosmo. Rialto, Los Angeles

(Week Ending Feb. 16)

DAILY NEWS—Not since the exhibition of "When Knighthood Was In Flower" has this little Broadway theater been able to say that it was showing a film which cost its producer over a million; nor could it boast of a film play which seems a constant parade of magnificence and finery.

EXAMINER—The glamour of tender romance, the intrigue of regal politics, and the pictorial beauty of Old France combine to make "Under the Red Robe," a picture for every spectator.

EXPRESS—By so thoroughly relegating historical incidents to the background * * * the affairs of the state which might be events of enormous dramatic import are passed by with but scant notice * * * So if romance was expected to be the keynote of the production, it has missed fire. Altogether deserving of praise, however, are the lavish sets * * *

HERALD—Cavalier costumes and bewitchingly picturesque gowns give a colorial note of fascination. * * * Detail of scene direction is especially worthy of mention.

TIMES—It is yet under contribution to the dazzling decorativeness of the film spectacle, and while it echoes any number of stories that have gone before, there is in the romantic adventure that forms the plot a good share of reliable entertainment value. * * * though cheaper tricks of comedy and action are not altogether avoided, the story will doubtless have a satisfactory popular appeal.

"The Virginian"—Preferred Apollo, Indianapolis

NEWS—One of the good pictures * * * Harlan will in no way spoil your previous conceptions, for he gives a notable performance in the role.

STAR—Georgous open spaces and vigorous men's men are important features of the excellent production * * * The new picture is a far better piece of work than the early Farnum production and it is a pictorial delight.

"West of the Water Tower"—F. P.-L. The Fox, Philadelphia

BULLETIN—"West of the Water Tower," an excellent and intensely human drama of American small-town life, * * * furnishes Glenn Hunter and May McAvoy a vehicle in which they contribute perhaps the best acting of their screen careers.

INQUIRER—With Glenn Hunter, May McAvoy, Ernest Torrence and George Fawcett * * * could hardly fail to be a good picture. In addition, there is a plot, an intensely interesting and dramatic one, and the picture has been well directed.

NORTH AMERICAN—* * * supposed to be an authentic picture of small town life, but its principal fault lies in overdoing the small town atmosphere. In fact, if any town dared to be so small it wouldn't be a town at all. It just couldn't exist.

PUBLIC LEDGER (MORNING)—The superb acting of Ernest Torrence and Glenn Hunter go a long way toward making this an interesting and sincere picture, despite its concessions to popular and censorship taste.

PUBLIC LEDGER (EVENING)—* * * a small town story of a rather unusually realistic type. * * * It is difficult to find words to express our admiration for Mr. Hunter's inimitable artistry in the depicting of youth.

"The White Sister"—Metro New Garrick, Minneapolis

(Week Ending Feb. 16)

STAR—There is a religious profundity about "The White Sister" that might very well outweigh the theme with a ponderous note, but for the histrionic skill of two persons. One is Lillian Gish * * * the other saving character is Ronald Colman. * * * a most worthy production.

TRIBUNE—* * * an extraordinary photoplay. * * * Lillian Gish * * * is very good. The story comes to a highly satisfactory close.

"Wild Bill Hickok"—F. P.-L. New Lyric, Minneapolis

JOURNAL—Classical western drama should soon recover from its relapse from popularity with Bill Hart once more in the saddle.

STAR—All you can say about Bill Hart of today is that he is the Bill Hart of old. He is in a class by himself.

"Wild Oranges"—Gold-Cosmop. Ohio, Indianapolis

NEWS—Mr. Hergesheimer's narrative moves swiftly to a strong climax and it has been adapted to the screen with excellent taste and appreciation. The cast is capable * * *

STAR—* * * King Vidor has made an entertaining picture that mounts at times to tense melodrama.

"A Woman of Paris"—United Artists Hippodrome, Baltimore

SUN—Indeed, Mr. Chaplin has turned out quite a creditable film-drama—although, * * * it is not meant for the children, being somewhat sophisticated and all that. * * *

The story, which is rather tragic in theme, is told in a straightforward, interesting fashion * * *

"Woman to Woman"—Selznick McVicker's, Chicago

(Week Ending Feb. 16)

NEWS—All French dancing girl pictures—in fact all revelry pictures whatever—take their cue from the memory of Gaby Deslys. * * *

This picture is Betty Compson and the unmentioned over-ghost of Gaby Deslys—the supporting cast will do, but you won't remember it.

Colonial, Indianapolis

NEWS—One reason the reviewer liked "Woman to Woman," * * * is because the story ends in the only way it could possibly end, which is, one must admit, unusual in pictures. Another reason most is that Miss Compson is excellent most of the time, * * *

STAR—Miss Compson not only shoulders the entire acting burden, but she also succeeds in making good screen entertainment out of Michael Morton's story.

"The Yankee Consul"—Asso. Exhib. Allen, Cleveland

NEWS—* * * MacLean has turned out a spicy bit of celluloid amusement in this comedy. It is racy, full of pep and action, in fact does not contain a dull minute.

PLAINDEALER—"The Yankee Consul" is funny throughout and slightly enervating * * * There's no use trying to tell the plot * * * It is quite too nutty, and besides there is some mystery in it—so try to see it from the beginning.

where from 85c to $1.00 per reel. Why wouldn't it be a good idea to get statements from various distributors, as to just what they estimate their cost to be per shipment? If it costs only 50c a reel, or $3.00 to inspect and ship a six reel show, for a $7.50 booking, and if it is worth an additional $3 to sell a $7.50 booking, which I contend, there would be only $1.50 remaining for the producer.

If distributors must travel salesmen at a cost of about $25 a day to sell $7.50 or $10 bookings to small towns, I don't understand how this matter can be honestly handled unless there is adequate selling commission on the small towns; unless the time comes when some form of collective buying by the small town exhibitors makes it possible to sell them without travelling men for that purpose, in which event the lower selling commission can be provided.

On the other hand, if the $3 physical distribution charge and the $3 selling commission are equitable, it means that the producer must realize that $7.50 bookings are not profitable to him, which might bring about higher minimum rentals.

Hal Hodes all upset. Received this postal from Middletown,

Ohio: "Dear Sir: I am a lonely man and would like to get a job as an extra at your studio. I am a sheik; a humdinger with the girls and a good actor having played in 'The Japanese Girl.' Jerome Snath, 704 Park St."

Perhaps Fred Desberg can use him in a prologue.

ONE ON DUELL

Before he left for Europe Charley Duell had some interesting ideas as to the value of "The White Sister" which, incidentally seem to be borne out by the business it is doing. However, when he reached London he was willing to listen to offers. For the United Kingdom. Among his callers was Woolf of the W&F which handles the Lloyd's in England. Without a quiver Duell asked £75,000 for the Gish triumph—despite that the highest a picture has booked in England so far is a bit over £100,000. Woolf was somewhat staggered at the price. But queried: "Before I say 'no' to your proposition, which I probably shall, can I see the picture?"

To which Duell replied: "It should be good enough for you that it ran 15 weeks in Philadelphia. And if you don't want to buy it at that price, good day."

Business of door closing on Woolf. Further business outside the door: Woolf gasping for breath.

Douglas MacLean in
"The Yankee Consul"

Associated Exhibitors
As a Whole.....NICE LIVELY COMEDY NUMBER WITH MACLEAN AT HIS BEST; AFFORDS GOOD AMUSEMENT AND PLENTY OF LAUGHS. COULD BE IMPROVED UPON BY SHORTENING STUNTS THAT ARE KEPT UP TOO LONG.

Star....Very much at home in type of role that he knows how to handle very well. Works hard to keep his audience amused and succeeds creditably.

Cast.....Ample though no one required to work as hard as MacLean. Patsy Ruth Miller opposite star and others Arthur Stuart Hull, Stanhope Wheatcroft, Eulalie Jensen, George Periolat, Fred Kelsey.

Type of Story....Comedy. Douglas MacLean's latest offering contains a story suggested by the Henry Blossom-Alfred Robyn musical comedy success of the same name. It provides the star with an appropriate vehicle that includes all the stunts and comedy business that he is especially suited to. All in all the picture furnishes a good amusement and even though the plot, on the whole, is a more or less conventional brand, it isn't likely that "familiarity will breed contempt," in this instance. Director Horne has supplied almost continuous action and from the moment hero steps aboard the boat to have some trunks removed and then finds the vessel sailing down the bay, there are laughs galore. The only mistake, and a common one, is that where they do get a new gag, they work it overtime. This is most noticeable in the attempts of MacLean to take his own picture and the chase climax where he tries to rescue the girl. There is far too much footage in these latter reels. They would be greatly improved by cutting.

Box Office Angle.....Good. You should know how the MacLean pictures go. Look up your records and see what you did with "The Hottentot," "The Sunshine Trail," "Bell Boy 13." "The Yankee Consul," is a good live entertainment that will make them laugh. Fine if they want to be amused.

Exploitation....Can be handled effectively. For a street stunt have a shabbily dressed man going about with a "sandwich" sign reading: "Don't be a down-and-outer. Get a new interest in life. See 'The Yankee Consul' for a remedy." Have throw-aways printed in the form of steamer tickets and bearing the lines: "Here's your passage to Rio, the place where Douglas MacLean finds excitement in his latest release, 'The Yankee Consul.'"

Pola Negri in
"Shadows of Paris"

Paramount
As a Whole.....PUTS, POLA NEGRI BACK IN ONE OF THOSE "TIGER WOMAN" ROLES THAT SHE DOES SO WELL; APACHE ATMOSPHERE AND STAR'S PERFORMANCE INTERESTING, BUT THE FORMER QUITE OVERDONE.

Star....Puts plenty of fire into her portrayal and will please those who favor her in these highly spirited characterizations. Has opportunities to appear in fashionable gowns.

Cast.....Charles de Roche, Huntly Gordon, Adolphe Menjou principals in support of star. de Roche good as her Apache lover, Gordon right type as prefect of police and husband of Pola and Menjou effective in characteristic role.

Type of Story....Drama. Pola Negri's latest vehicle, an adaptation of the play "Mon Homme," provides her with a role rather reminiscent of some of her earlier characterizations and therefore likely to prove attractive to her numerous admirers. Pola is the fiery Apache, the Black Bird, queen of Paris' underworld, who, following the news of the death of her Apache lover at the front, consents to become the wife of the wealthy Prefect of Police. He knows nothing of her past and lavishes luxury upon her but the girl yearns for the old life. The story is, in reality, without any particularly startling situations. It remained for director Brenon to round it out with atmosphere, detail and effective settings, all of which he has done successfully. It does reach some fair dramatic heights in the climax where Pola admits her connection with the underworld, or the bit in which she orders the sightseers out of the cafe.

Box Office Angle....You should be able to judge this one for yourself. By now you know what the star's name means to the box office. If she brings them in, boost "Shadows of Paris."

Exploitation....Besides Pola Negri's name to work on you have the Apache atmosphere to talk about. It always serves to interest a big majority if you can tell them the story deals with the Parisian underworld. Use stills showing Pola in her Apache costume and others contrasting in fashionable gowns. Catchlines: "What happened when the Parisian Prefect of Police raided the Apache quarters and found his wife the leader of them?" Or, "Married to a rich gentleman but in love with an Apache thief. See the solution to the triangle in 'Shadows of Paris.'" Broadcast the star's name liberally and mention Charles de Roche, Huntly Gordon and Adolphe Menjou in support.

"Thy Name is Woman"

Producer: Mayer-Niblo
Distributor: Metro
As a Whole...EXCELLENT DRAMA RETARDED BY TOO MUCH FOOTAGE AND WITH TWO OF THE THREE PRINCIPALS DYING AT THE FINISH. BUT PRESENCE OF BARBARA LA MARR AND RAMON NAVARRO WILL INSURE THIS AT THE BOX OFFICE.

Cast....While a number of people appear the real work is divided between Navarro and LaMarr and Wm. V. Mong, and they do excellent work. One of the finest acted performances seen in a long time. Too much unessential footage hinders, or slows up the story. Wallace MacDonald, Robert Edeson, and Edith Roberts have fairly important parts. But LaMarr and Navarro make up the bulk of the show and are excellent.

Type of Story....An awkward, ambitious soldier, anxious to win sergeant's stripes by unearthing a band of smugglers falls in love with the young wife of the leader of the smugglers. Tragedy follows when she is killed by her husband who dies at her feet, while the soldier is cared for by the daughter of the Commander of the post. Navarro is the soldier and LaMarr the young wife of the old smuggler. Their work is fine, and the story runs along nicely excepting for too much detail which at times almost smothers interest. It will probably appeal, however. Niblo gives this his usual masterly treatment.

Box Office Angle....Here is a rich find if your folks like Navarro and LaMarr. It is a great box office combination and should prove sure fire. These two, in combination with the name of Fred Niblo should make your showing profitable.

Exploitation...Excellent performances by two of the most popular stars of the day should put this one over. This is the second time Navarro and LaMarr have been put to work in one picture and the result is satisfying. Navarro as the ambitious soldier, LaMarr as the love-hungry wife of an old man, make for a splendid combination. Play up both of them. Tell of their work in recent outstanding successes; Navarro in "Scaramouche" and if "The Eternal City" has played in your town remind your folks of La Marr's work in that. You have other good names to work with including Edith Roberts, formerly a Universal star, Wally MacDonald, Bob Edeson and Mong, as well as Niblo, who should have a strong following in view of his fine directorial skill.

Direction....Fred Niblo; gets a lot out of his story.

"Yolanda"

Producer: Cosmopolitan Pictures
Distributor: Goldwyn-Cosmop.
As a Whole.....ANOTHER GORGEOUSLY PRODUCED COSTUME PICTURE DEALING WITH THE PERIOD OF CHARLES THE BOLD. TOO MUCH FOOTAGE AND LACK OF STORY RETARDS INTEREST ALTHOUGH STAR WORKS HARD AND USES SOME WELL KNOWN MARY PICKFORD HOKUM ADVANTAGEOUSLY.

Star.....Gives an outstanding performance. Uses a lot of delightful hokum which makes one think of Mary Pickford's work in days gone by. Gorgeously gowned. On the screen a lot.

Cast....Ralph Graves struts about in the early sequences and poses too much as hero; Holbrook Blinn gives his usually excellent performance as King Louis and Lyn Harding is Charles the Bold. Others Leon Errol, who uses his funny legs excellently, but has too little to do; Johnny Dooley funny but also has too little to do; many others but with practically no box office value.

Type of Story....Another one of those huge spectacular films, with the usual love story, but that is about all to recommend it. Too tiresome to hold interest generally. Fans who have long since tired of these spectacles will find little to hold them excepting where they like Marion Davies. And she is very cute and does some excellent work. But the story—or lack of it—kills whatever value she brings to it. Lots of armored men, armored horses and gorgeous sets in castles. This cost a million easily, and you can see it, but it doesn't get very far in holding interest. The love story threads its way to a natural conclusion, and is interspersed with various gallant deeds of hero but—. You inevitably come to a "but" in trying to describe this one.

Box Office Angle....While you can talk about the star and the cost of this immense production you will likely interest your crowd more by sticking to "Little Old New York" and reminding your people that Marion Davies is the star.

Exploitation.....Stick to Marion. Never mind the rest. You can get a lot of stills and prove that this is another super-production. They will know it is a costume picture, and they may come along anyway but if you stick to Marion you may get them in regardless of all else. She did splendidly in "Little Old New York" and made an army of fans.

Direction....Robert Vignola; usually fair, but story hampered, and too much footage was necessary.

Hoot Gibson in
"Ride For Your Life"

Universal

As a Whole.... ENTERTAINING AND FAST-MOVING WESTERN THAT SHOULD PLEASE BECAUSE OF STAR AND CAST REGARDLESS OF RATHER IMPROBABLE AND ILLOGICAL PLOT.

Cast....Hoot Gibson and Laura La Plante make a very pleasing team that your folks probably have learned to look for by this time. Robert McKim just the type for the villainous "Gentleman Jim." Others Harry Todd, Howard Truesdell, Fred Humes.

Type of Story....Comedy drama of the west of twenty years ago, with the hero impersonating a bandit at opportune times to save the girl from the clutches of the bad man and to get back, by means of a spectacular hold up, money that the villain has cheated him of. There is always something doing—the action never drags for a minute, but the development is sometimes illogical. For instance it is difficult to understand why the girl does not recognize Gibson's voice when he is masquerading as the bandit. She has long conversations with him both masked and unmasked. Nevertheless, the picture is diverting, and entertaining and the star's personality is likeable in whatever he has to do.

Box Office Angle....If you've been playing Gibson's releases right along your crowd will know about what to expect and will probably be anxious to see his latest picture. They should be satisfied with this one particularly if they like their entertainment with plenty of romance and hard riding, to say nothing of bullets.

Exploitation....Play up the star, talk about his previous ones such as "Blinky" and "Out o'Luck, and feature the title prominently. Tell them that it is a story of the west of 20 years ago, and that they'll see all the fast riding they want to. Get after your western fans with teaser throw-aways that read: "$5,000 reward for the capture of the Cocopah Kid" and then follow it up with "See the Cocopah Kid 'Ride For His Life' at the blank theater on." You should also mention the star's name in your announcements. In the event that you want to use a ballyhoo stunt, a masked man on horseback riding through the streets at a fast pace distributing throwaways with the words "Ride For Your Life" on one side, and on the other the name of your theater, and the date.

Direction....Edward Sedgwick; sustained interest all the way and worked comedy stuff in nicely.

Author.....Johnston McCulley
Scenario Raymond L. Schrock and E. Richard Schayer

Cameraman.....Virgil Miller
Photography.....Satisfactory
Locale....Cattle ranch, gold camp

"Leave It To Gerry"

Grand-Asher-State Rights

As a Whole.....PRETTY GOOD STORY THAT SHOULD HAVE MADE MUCH BETTER PICTURE. POOR DIRECTION KEEPS IT FROM GETTING FAR AS ENTERTAINMENT.

Cast....Billie Rhodes and William Collier, Jr., a pleasing pair who would have been able to put the picture over splendidly if they had been properly handled. Well balanced cast and capable consisting of Claire MacDowell, Kate Lester, Joe Girard and Kathleen Kirkham.

Type of Story....Comedy-drama. It is unfortunate that when they do get a fairly good story that offers something worth while and could be made into an interesting picture, that it has to be ruined by poor direction. "Leave It To Gerry," might readily have served for a thoroughly good little entertainment if director Gillstrom hadn't dragged it along so unmercifully. He has introduced no end of unnecessary detail and irrelevant business that makes it a slow-moving, tedious affair from start to finish. At times he gets off the track entirely and seems to forget all about the original theme, then suddenly switches back, forcing you to think fast to recollect your thoughts. There is, to be sure, much good detail especially in the way of comedy business, such as the boarding school sequence, but much of it that is unimportant should never have been included. Gerry, a tomboy, goes to live with a rich aunt while her poor mother, unknown to her is forced to the poor house by a fortune hunter who seeks to marry the aunt. How Gerry exposes his fraud, wins her aunt's affection and the heart of the boy she loves, is finally arrived at, but in a very round-about fashion.

Box Office Angle.....If they could see their way to cutting this, it would be improved a hundred per cent. The story is rather interesting and the cast could put it over. The comedy business of the tomboy heroine will probably please your patrons.

Exploitation....You have a catchy little title here that should get their attention. Play it up first in teaser fashion by just using the words: "Leave It To Gerry," printed on throwaways and poster sheets. Then follow with catchlines such as: "Are you in a fix? 'Leave It To Gerry,' she'll get you out of it. See her at the blank theater." You might mention the names of Billie Rhodes and William Collier, Jr., in your announcements. A trailer of one of the comedy bits should interest them.

Direction....Arvid Gillstrom; could have made a much better entertainment by speeding up his development and thereby providing a more sustained interest.

"The Blizzard"

Fox

As a Whole.....SWEDISH PRODUCTION THAT OFFERS AN UNUSUAL ENTERTAINMENT THROUGH A STRONG DRAMATIC STORY, A BIT GRUESOME, BUT SPLENDIDLY ACTED AND WELL PRODUCED.

Cast....Pauline Brunius excellent as the mother of the insane boy, the latter played effectively by Einar Hansson. Mary Johnson pleasing though rather lacking in expression. The director might have used her to better advantage. Adolf Olchansky and Stina Berg excellent as circus performers. Their comedy turns are quite acceptable.

Type of Story....Drama bordering on tragedy. The Fox company has imported "The Blizzard" from Sweden, the source of several previously worth while films. It is from the story by Dr. Selma Lagerlof, winner of the Nobel Prize for Literature. It is unusual in theme and from a dramatic standpoint, a thoroughly strong and forceful theme. Very likely it will be over the heads of the average, modern picture audience, and unfortunately this class makes up the greater portion of picture patrons. Still the offering deserves a fair trial. While it may, in certain of its sequences, appear a trifle gruesome to be entertaining, nevertheless, it is the splendid direction and forceful presentation that must be considered. Events culminating in the hero's insanity are vividly pictured. Probably never before has there been filmed anything quite as unusual, in its own particular line, as that of the reindeer stampede and the wild dash of the leader who drags hero by the leash for many miles. There's genuine thrills in this. From this point the story drags slightly. It would have preserved the interest much better to have permitted the little violinist to effect her cure more rapidly.

Box Office Angle....A meritorious effort and deserving of a showing. If they appreciate any unusual entertainment, they'll be well satisfied.

Exploitation.....Plenty for you to talk about in this one. Tell them the story won the Nobel Prize for Literature. Action lovers will find new thrills in the reindeer stampede and a trailer of this sequence will serve to give them a very definite idea of the genuine excitement contained in it. The scenes in this episode are splendid pictorially, also, and the sepia tinting adds considerable to their beauty. Promise excellent acting and play up the title with street stunts. There are no names known to your patrons.

Direction.....Mauritz Stiller, unusually good; displays great sense of dramatic values.

"The Uninvited Guest"

Producer: Submarine Film Co
Distributor: Metro

As a Whole.....TROPIC ISLAND ATMOSPHERE AND SEQUENCE DONE IN COLORS, TOGETHER WITH SOME FINE UNDERWATER BITS MAKE THIS VERY GOOD ENTERTAINMENT.

Cast....Maurice "Lefty" Flynn first rate hero and well suited; J. Tolley particularly fitted for part she plays; very pretty in sequence. Mary MacLaren; Wm. Bailey a rather bungling croquet but fulfill requirements adequately. Louis Wolheim great in role of pearl fisher who strangled to death by an octopus. Well balanced cast.

Type of Story....Drama. Here's story that, in skeleton form, would probably rank as a most conventional South Sea island number with a plot both familiar and slight. But all this is shelved pretty well into oblivion through careful direction, splendid incidental business, good detail, thrills, great underwater sequence, gorgeous color effects, and a good cast. Director Ralph Ince certainly does prove that it can be done. "The Uninvited Guest" is a really interesting picture and its good points nearly overshadow a fairly trite story. Once they land the principals on the desert island, following the shipwreck, things begin to happen and Ince hasn't wasted any time getting to this point. There follows a liberal episode in colors that is very beautiful. Later, when the crooks depart, taking with them the identity of the heiress whom the desert, comes the hero who rescues her, brings her to the trading station and protects her from the fiercest of the island. The Williamson underwater photography patents are used in conjunction with the octopus fight that offers genuine thrills.

Box Office Angle.....Should be very good number. Your folks will be pleased with "The Uninvited Guest," a wholly worth while version that has many interesting features to hold them.

Exploitation....Contains numerous effective advertising angles. Talk about the underwater business; the pearl fisheries, the fights with the octopus on the ocean bottom and numerous shots of ocean vegetation. Be sure to use a trailer of the beautiful color sequence. They're certain to be interested through the In your ad sheets use the lines: "If you're looking for something new in the way of thrills, see the fight for life with an octopus. Plenty of excitement for you in Metro's 'The Uninvited Guest.'" You can make promises for the feature's pictorial appeal and use plenty of stills in the lobby.

"Do It Now"

Phil Goldstone—State Rights

As a Whole...GIVES WILLIAM FAIRBANKS CHANCE TO PUT OVER A COUPLE OF GOOD FIGHTS BUT OTHERWISE IS A WEAK ENTERTAINMENT. STORY WAY TOO SLIGHT AND WITHOUT ORIGINALITY.

Cast...Madge Bellamy, as the owner of oil lands struggles with a role that doesn't mean very much for her. Dorothy Revier's part just a series of poses, and Arthur Hoyt appears in one of those unamusing English characterizations for which he is so frequently miscast. He is not a comedian in any sense. Raymond G. Nye the usual villain who bars the doors and then attacks the heroine. William Fairbanks offers one or two good scraps.

Type of Story...Dramatic romance. Just because Rosemary Smith wants him to be a "man's man," hero William Fairbanks leaves his fortune behind, and boards a train for the oil lands owned by Rosemary's father. His mission is to oust one Thurston who claims ownership. Hero commutes back to the city, his job supposedly done, only to learn that he actually put off the Smith crew. Back he goes again, this time to find that Thurston is, in reality, the pretty miss he met on his first trip. He's just in time to save her from an attack by her foreman. Follows the usual romance and clinch. Malcolm White, credited as author of "Do It Now," had but one good idea and that was the title—providing, of course, that he is responsible for that also. But right there his originality ceased. The plot is the conventional hero formula and serves chiefly as a vehicle in which Fairbanks is permitted to display his usual athletic ability. Production is adequate and the cast fair but "Do It Now" is weak on entertainment.

Box Office Angle...About an average number that will likely get by for the regulation single day showing. Not worthy of expended advertising nor promises unless you know they like William Fairbanks very well.

Exploitation...You might be able to get them interested with the title which is catchy and lends itself readily to good advertising lines. Catchlines can read: "He who hesitates is lost. 'Do It Now.' Go to the blank theater." Used in teaser fashion, distribute throwaways reading: "Do It Now." Post the town with the title and then follow up with announcements of the showing. All this of course, providing you want to bring them in. If you cater to regular trade, however, it may not do to go in for extensive publicity.

Tom Mix in

"North of Hudson Bay"

Fox

As a Whole...MIX OFFERS MORE VARIATION IN FROZEN NORTH MELLER THAT CONTRIBUTES ACTION AND THRILLS FOR THOSE WHO FAVOR THIS KIND OF ENTERTAINMENT.

Star...Performs a few new feats and has an exciting time of it generally between fights with natives, an encounter with a wolf pack, and a struggle against a death sentence which according to Northern tradition, consists of sending the guilty one into the wilderness and following him until he dies. Mix required to work hard.

Cast...Usual bad men types with various characterizations adequately handled by Frank Campeau, Frank Leigh and Fred Kohler. Kathleen Key, suitable lead. Others Will Walling and Eugene Palette.

Type of Story...Drama of the North. Mix appears to be getting away from the usual routine western or perhaps it is just a temporary variation which they are giving him. At least "Ladies to Board" and "North of Hudson Bay," are entirely different in atmosphere. This one is a more or less conventional theme but with Mix doing one of his thrilling performances it comes up nicely and where they favor suspense, action and stunts, you can count upon the story pleasing them. There is the customary, highly popular rapids climax in which the heroine seems destined to death until rescued by hero. There's more good suspense in the clever contraption of the villain who places his gun in such a position as to be set off by the sun's rays. Of course all the guilty persons are properly punished in due time and hero sails for home with his bride-to-be.

Box Office Angle...You can promise more variation for Mix's following and they'll be well pleased, thrill chasers in particular.

Exploitation...A trailer of any one of the thrills in "North of Hudson Bay," should serve to bring them back. The trick explosion of the gun sequence will give a good idea of the suspense they may expect. Promise an exciting story of the North and be sure to let them know the picture is considerably different from the usual Mix entertainment. Posters with suggested catchlines are "On the journey of death where men fought for life against the wild wolf packs of the Arctic. See this and more in Tom Mix's 'North of Hudson Bay' at the blank theater."

Short Subjects

"Frogland"—Fox

Most Unusual Novelty

Type of production...1½ reel comedy
 Russian refugees in Paris, known as the Russian Art Society, have made one of the most interesting novelties to come to the screen. It is claimed that it took nearly two years to complete this short subject and it can readily be believed upon viewing the offering. It consists of the genuinely artistic miniatures of frogs with a highly imaginative background representing the frogs' domain at the bottom of a pond. The lighting, the movements of the carefully constructed frogs and the colorful settings are indeed extraordinary. Besides the wonderful construction work there is a little story connected. It seems that the frogs, discontented with their king, appeal to Jupiter, a rotund little fellow who sits up in the clouds and throws down lightning when the frogs' discontent annoys him. Finally Jupiter elects the stork as King of the frogs and then matters in frogland become worse for the stork eats all the disgruntled inhabitants of his kingdom. The novelty, like Aesop's fables, offers a moral: "Let well enough alone." This is one of the best novelty numbers and well worth a place on your program. It's amusing and interesting.

"Haunted Hills"—Bruce-Educational
 Always Beautiful

Type of production...1 reel scenic
 Some of the most unusual shots, both pictorially and from the point of subject matter, that have ever been screened are included in this Bruce Wilderness Tale. In addition the story which is woven into it is different and interesting although inclined to be a bit too morbid, especially at the finish. It deals with the efforts of a peaceful old man to get back his store of supplies that have been stolen from him by a man who uses the hills as a place of refuge. Unable to best the man by physical blows, the old man "haunts" him on his march through the sandy canyons and beautiful hills—that is, he follows him and plays constantly upon his nerves by throwing stones down the mountains, disarranging his pack when he isn't looking, until finally his nerves give way entirely and he falls terrified down the Sand Creek Canyon.

"Lonesome"—Educational
 Hamilton Scores Again

Type of production 2 reel comedy
 Lloyd Hamilton is always good for about fifteen minutes of mirth and this time, although the gags are not as consistently funny as some of his pictures have been, it is a safe bet to say that your folks will find "Lonesome," very amusing indeed. One bit is particularly worthy of mention. It is that in which Lloyd who is suffering keenly from the pangs of hunger, is invited to dine by a stranger. He orders clams. They are served unopened. For fully five minutes he tries to get the best of those clams, but to no avail. They bite his fingers, and shut tightly when he tries to pry them open, finally grabbing his cigarette and puffing it. This is a new gag and a very amusing one. The sequence in the tramps rooming house is rather "messy", but will probably be thought funny by the majority.

Guarantees

The following communication has been received from W. C. J. Doolittle of the Selznick Dist. Corp.:

"I noticed in your issue of January 31st a front page story which announces that the H. R. Ebenstein Co. has developed a plan for financing producers.

"This story is of especial interest to the Selznick Dist. Corp., in that it ties in to a certain degree with our nine months guarantee to producers, our producers' trust fund and our guarantee insurance plan.

"It would seem to us that with the inception of a company which will loan money to producers at normal rates of interest, when such producers are backed by a contract from established distributors, that much of the unnecessary cost of production which is represented by bonuses for financial advances can be eliminated, which naturally means a representative reduction in final production costs.

"It has long been our contention that the business methods which obtain in other lines of endeavor must eventually become incorporated in the production and distribution of motion pictures and that the sky blue financing of other days must eventually land in the well known discard.

"In our small way we have inaugurated policies which in their fundamentals have paved a way for a saner and more intelligent financing of motion picture production and distribution and we feel that the Ebenstein Co. has undertaken a work which is basically sound and will represent a safe type of investment, while at the same time offering an economical and practical saving to producers of recognized standing, integrity and established success.

"If we have finally arrived at a point where the producer can follow through the various stages of financing beginning with an airtight guaranteed contract with a distributor; financing to enable him to meet his production cost at normal rates of interest with a final guarantee that his certified negative costs are assured to him, then we also have arrived at a point where the three most important factors of the motion picture industry—the producer, the distributor and the exhibitor—are reasonably certain of a true measure of success and permanence."

AMERICA

By DANNY

The genius of Griffith. The turn of the Master. A tremendously big picture in many ways. And yet, when the end came—suddenly, unexpectedly—something was missing. What was?

Box office value "America" is. Griffith the showman saw that. And fought Griffith the artist to a standstill. There is much of showmanship; of box office value in the picture. That the newspaper critics raved over the ride of Paul Revere is natural. That the crowd was thrilled with it quite in keeping with what DW intended. And got.

But where was the grandeur; the epic value of the theme—the greatest in American history? Left to the melodramatic touches of the villain Butler, and his renegade Indians? Is that all Robert Chambers could find?

Where was DW's showmanship in not showing the blood stained tracks of the soldiers at Valley Forge? Colored processes are numerous. A touch of crimson blood on the white snow would have been supremely effective. And where was that great possibility of the camera—Washington crossing the Delaware! And where the reproduction of that famous painting, "The Spirit of '76"? with the tattered trio with fife and drum?

Of course the theme is tremendous. Of course no one—even DW—could, in one night, show the real worth of this nation. And so much of it, of necessity, to be thrown away and forgotten. But that so much footage should be wasted on Walter Butler and his villainous crew, seems a pity, when there was so much more important matter to be considered.

"America" is big; is important. It will not have the life and sustaining power of "The Birth of a Nation." But, when cut, it has big possibilities at the box office. The witchery of the Griffith photography is again thrilling. Some of the shots are superb. What effects; what results gets! And he can be thanked also for finding Neil Hamilton, his lead man. Hamilton will be heard of here.

"Douglas MacLean is a masterful manufacturer of mirth" says the Boston Advertiser. "In 'The Yankee Consul' he gets a laugh a minute out of you." This great hit is distributed by Associated Exhibitors.—Advt.

Peekskill "Blue" on Sunday

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Peekskill, N. Y.—The village board has turned down a petition filed with President Jordan and the trustees to have a referendum as to whether Sunday shows should be allowed in Peekskill. Theaters will remain closed Sundays as heretofore.

Seek Sunday Shows in Elizabeth

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Elizabeth, N. J.—Petitions calling upon legislators at Trenton to oppose legislation prohibiting Sunday shows have been distributed by the Boosters' Club, a civic organization, to all retail stores. Thousands of signatures have already been affixed.

Acord Series for State Rights

Art Acord is making a series of westerns for state rights distribution through the Madoc Sales Co. Two have already been completed.

Grainger Leaves for Coast

James R. Grainger left for the coast on Saturday. He will visit Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan exchanges en route.

Everybody's stepping out. March 29. T.N.T. At the Astor.

B. & K. Show $1,048,946 Profit

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—The report of Balaban & Katz Corp. for the six months ended Dec. 20, 1923, shows operating profits were $1,048,946, from which $106,956 were deducted for depreciation and $106,713 for Federal taxes, the net income being $734,937, equivalent after preferred dividends, to $2.40 a share on the common stock, or on an annual basis of $4.80 a share.

The company is erecting a large theater at Broadway, Lawrence and Magnolia Aves., and will have a long time lease on a theater which will be part of the new Masonic Temple on Randolph St.; also a long term lease on a house at 63rd and Kedzie, now in construction by Fitzpatrick & McElroy.

Plan Test on "Merchant's Nights"

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Cleveland—The Cleveland M. P. Exhibitors' Ass'n will stage a test case of "Merchant's Night" assailed by local police as a lottery. Exhibitors claim that patrons buy admission to a theater, not a lottery ticket. If they want to give away something extra in addition to the picture show for which the patron paid, they are within the law. Local police have stopped all "Merchant Nights."

Ray's Next

Expected to Return to the Type of Picture Which Made Him a Big Box Office Success

Negotiations are understood to be under way which will result in Charles Ray returning to the Coast in the early future to resume productions for the coming season.

If plans discussed are completed it need not be surprising to find Ray returning next season in a series of the type which established him as a big box office bet, but which, when changed, led to a reversal of opinion by fans generally.

He will not undertake another big spectacular production such as "The Courtship of Myles Standish."

No Deal in Phila.

Fox Still Retains Theater There—Some Pictures to Be Interchanged

There has been considerable discussion in the past few days relative to the situation existing between the Stanley Co. and the Fox interests in Philadelphia. It has been reported that the Fox house has been sold to Stanley and that the first-run situation in Philadelphia has again become a closed one.

Saul Rogers, general counsel of Fox, stated on Saturday that reports of the sale of the theater which opened in the fall were ridiculous. "There has been no change of ownership," he said, "and none is contemplated."

Last week the Fox theater for the first time since its opening played a Paramount picture, "West of the Water Tower." The flood of reports arose largely from that fact. Rogers explained that the Stanley organization often found itself with more pictures on hand than it could show and that, when such a situation arises and whenever possible, a switch in bookings will be made to the Fox theater. This will work the other way as well. It is probable that not more than six pictures will be interchanged in this manner throughout the year.

The grill that comes once in a year's time. T. N. T.

A. M. P. A. Assures Fair Play in Determining Winning Author for Naked Truth Skit

Just to prove that there isn't going to be any skulduggery about the awarding of that $100 prize for the best fifteen-minute comedy sketch submitted for production at the annual Naked Truth dinner of the A. M. P. A., at the Astor, March 29, A. M. Botsford, chairman of the entertainment committee, announces a new special provision for contestants.

It is that contestants should sign a nom de plume to their manuscripts, to which should be attached a small sealed envelope containing the rightful name of the author. The sealed envelopes will not be opened until the night of the Naked Truth dinner, when the comedy will be presented and the identity of the author of the winning manuscript will be revealed. This means that the aspiring track-walker of Kenosha, Wis., will have an equal chance with the president of the United States; that anyone, in or out of the industry, has a fair opportunity to win.

The contest closes March 1 and manuscripts must be mailed or delivered in care of Maurice Henley, Room 306, No. 461 8th Ave., New York.

Engage Barrymore's Support

Sigrid Holmquist, Dagmar Godowsky, Flora Finch, Ida Darling and Antoni D'Algy will support Lionel Barrymore in "Meddling Women," to be directed by Ivan Abramson at the Tec-Art studio. Frank Zucker will be the cameraman. Barrymore and Miss Godowsky were engaged through Jenie Jacobs.

Dorothy Kingdon has been cast for "It Is The Law."

Weber and North Sales

"America"—D. W. Griffith
44th St. Theater

AMERICAN—David Wark Griffith is himself again. After dabbling for months in inconsequential film tales, he returned with "America," which is by far the best thing that he has made since "Way Down East." There is such a wealth of historical data associated with the period of 1776 that no one producer could possibly touch it all. Mr. Griffith has left unfilmed enough material to furnish at least three other productions.

DAILY NEWS—The first half of Mr. Griffith's "America" is all charm; the second half, all war. No one can outdo him in the films when it comes to charm, and he has a flair for battle scenes which serves him well in such a tale as this. Mr. Griffith will do well to cut footage, especially in the latter half. And if he ripped out a certain grinding scene, showing a dead soldier carried in to his father's room, I should not mind. Outside of that—the ayes have it, for "America."

EVENING JOURNAL—A living, breathing document of the sacrifice and idealism of the men who freed America. The production is intensely vivid, and historically accurate and fascinating. Mr. Griffith amassed a wealth of detail, and, with comprehensive vision, represented every actual occurrence of the period of the Revolutionary War, and wove into it, an appealingly romantic story. One is held tense through the innumerable thrilling incidents of the period—all of which Mr. Griffith has taken together, and, with a crescendo of dramatic intensity, combined into one, human, compelling whole.

EVENING WORLD—"America," in our estimation, is the greatest thrill-picture of the season; but when we say "thrill," the thrill one gets out of "America" is one that brings every bit of patriotism to the boiling-over point. The writer has seen many big pictures, but we cannot recall one single instance since "The Birth of a Nation" when we so much desired to give voice to our enthusiasm. By all means "See America First." Then go see it again to retrieve the parts slithered over during your first visit. Verily, verily—David Wark Griffith has done it again!

HERALD—Perhaps the most thrilling episode that the silent drama has ever achieved. It is the midnight ride of Paul Revere. For spectacular dash, coupled with tremendous historic significance, the movies have never known its equal. In this instance, the Griffith formula has been reversed. Revere's magnificent ride comes at the very start of the picture, instead of at the finish. It is safe to assume that, if D. W. Griffith had staged the revolution, he would have forced Paul Revere to wait a few years. It's too bad he didn't. For, after the battles of Lexington and Concord, "America" resolves itself into a mammoth and thoroughly lamentable anti-climax. There are subsequent moments of greatness—notably in the scenes at Valley Forge—but the general trend of Mr. Griffith's spectacle is down-hill. The later reels are incoherent and wearisome and the finish extremely flat. There are, however, plenty of scenes in "America" which reflect the erratic genius of D. W. Griffith. Many of them are beautiful and impressive.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—Viewed from any standpoint, this latest production of a great director must be called a masterpiece of exquisite photography, flawless direction and of blood-stirring, appealing force. The only criticism that could be heard last night was that in working out his double theme there was at times a slowing down of the action. The drama was too much subordinated to the development of the spectacle.

SUN—The first half represents by all odds the most thrilling and satisfying motion picture entertainment in the city. It is inspiring not only because its subject matter is inspiring, but because it has been produced with a bit of the sweep and fire and fine indignation that spurred our forefathers to the signing of their declaration of independence. Thereafter, however, "America" seemed to become only an exceptionally thrilling, brilliantly directed movie. It seemed to have lost some of the revolutionary fire of the first half. A little of it was a bit cheap, in addition.

TELEGRAM—Not since the "Birth of a Nation" has he produced as noteworthy a film, although it may not be so ornate, in so far as numbers and sets are concerned. By all means, you film fanatics who rave and rant about the wonderful pictures you have seen, see "America" next. Then you'll have a real good reel to talk about—something to brag about.

TIMES—Because in the latter half of this production the artist got the better of the showman and insisted on length, which failing will undoubtedly be remedied by generous cutting. But the first reels of this photodrama, which incidentally was sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution, are something to be remembered, something greater than even Griffith has ever done himself. Nobody who views this marvelous section of the production will ever forget his rendering of Paul Revere's historic ride. Tears were drawn last night, and sighs and sobs came from trembling women. The Battle of Bunker Hill and Paul Revere's ride make up for all the superfluous detail in the latter half of this picture, which is certainly one that will stir the patriotic hearts of the nation as probably no other picture ever has done.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—Griffith and his horsemen have done it again. The picture seems to slow up towards the latter stages of the initial half and never again picks up the enthusiasm touched by that ride, although a second solo gallop is revealed in the after intermission period, as well as Griffith's well-known capabilities of picturing a body of horsemen on a rescue mission. Most of the later stanza is taken up with the story itself, and there is undeniably room for deletion. Running 164 minutes, the film is over long and suffers thereby. The picture is there. Of that there can be no question, and it is simply further proof that Griffith not only has, but can still stage 'em and stage 'em right.

TRIBUNE—The second half of "America" cannot compare in any way with the first, but its faults cannot impair the memory of that first great half when Paul Revere takes his famous ride. This to us was the greatest screen thrill of all our experience. We are quite sure that we were not the only person in the theater who got nervous and and tired when the scenes of sensual re were dragged out interminably. then, is our grievance; but in spite of "America" is a great picture—one of greatest.

WORLD—The mightiest thrill which have ever met in the cinema is the rich Paul Revere in "America." Here motion picture which will set a new star of achievement in this picture play full high and as commanding as Mr. Griffith "Birth of a Nation" set in its day. By of this latest product of the man from maroneck, Mr. Griffith, for our own passes definitely into the ranks of those we think of as being the immortals.

In The Courts

A verdict for $1,981 was returned in the City Court against Ross C. Croppy in a suit of the estate of William W. Wertenberger. The suit was based on notes made at St. Joe, Mo., 1917. The defense was that Wertenberger sold Croppy his stock in the Standard Film Co., of Missouri upon the delivery to Wertenberger of a release on an $8,000 note of the corporation, on which Wertenberger was liable, a sum in cash and $2,000 in notes. Croppy alleged that he failed to get the stock in time to vote it at the ensuing annual meeting of Standard Film, and counterclaimed for $4,615. Croppy failed to appear at the trial.

Los Angeles—Legal technicalities have been cleared away and work is at last ready to begin on a theater to cost $1,000,000, at Ocean and American Aves., Long Beach, following a decision by Judge Hardy of the suit brought by Walter F. Horne and others against Henry Fidroeff and others. Fidroeff claimed a lease to the property, extending for 200 feet on Ocean Ave., and the plaintiffs brought suit to prevent him from filing papers which would encumber the property and prevent the erection of the theater.

West Coast Theaters, Inc., intervened to protect their interests, and then Judge Hanby settled the issues and cleared the title so that building operations can be started.

Trenton, Mo.—Edward Dubinsky, indicted by a Federal grand jury with his brother Morris, on an embezzlement charge, has appeared before George D. Beardsley, United States commission and given $10,000 bond, returnable in the April term of court. The Dubinsky brothers were indicted in connection with their alleged failure to return $7,910.96 in war taxes to the government on the Tootle theater, St. Joseph, which they formerly occupied.

Trenton, N. J.—Samuel D. Oliphant, referee in bankruptcy, has granted permission to William E. Green, trustee for W. Henry Elfreth and William J. Vernon, alleged bankrupt theater operators, to lease the South Broad theater. The playhouse was seized with other property of Vernon and Elfreth when bankruptcy proceedings were instituted against them more than a year ago.

Supreme Court Justice O'Malley has granted an injunction restraining the Long Island M. P. Co., owner of a theater in Jamaica, from holding an election of officers and issuing certificates for additional stock of $50,000 until William Isensee and others have had an opportunity to subscribe for an allotment of the additional stock to which they are entitled.

Final scenes for "In Fast Company" are being shot at F. B. O.

Buy 'Spring Cleaning'

Stage Success Goes to Famous—Swanson Scheduled for "The Swan"

Famous Players has acquired one of the prize plums of the present theatrical season: "Spring Cleaning" which is enjoying a successful run at the Eltinge theater. It is quite likely that the play will be released in film form as "The Smart Set." That, however, is a matter yet under discussion. "Spring Cleaning" will be one of the fall releases.

The schedule of the next group of Gloria Swanson releases has been determined upon. "A Society Scandal" opens at the Rivoli on March 9 and the sales department is attempting to line up as many simultaneous runs for the picture as possible, beginning with March 24. A sales executive stated yesterday that it looked like 200 or more runs.

Miss Swanson's next picture will be "Manhandled" and following that will come "The Coast of Folly," from the new novel by Coningsby Dawson; then "The Swan," now running at the Cort theater and "Aren't We All," written by Frederick Lonsdale, who incidentally is the author of "Spring Cleaning."

Le Baron, Paramount Supervisor

William Le Baron has resigned from Cosmopolitan to join Famous Players where he will supervise two of the producing units at the Long Island studio. Le Baron will work in conjunction with Julian Johnson and E. Lloyd Sheldon.

"America" for Boston Run

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Boston—"America" opens at the Majestic on March 3 for a run.

The Griffith offices have not made any further plans for out-of-town runs for "America." The usual number of key cities will have special engagements, as is customary with all of the Griffith pictures.

Unger Joins Famous

Joe Unger, former New York branch manager for First National yesterday joined Famous Players, in charge of the local exchange. John Hammell will supervise New York, Albany and Jersey.

Millions In Theaters

$179,821,700 in New Projects Planned for 1924, "Architectural Forum" Survey Shows

The "Architectural Forum," a recognized journal in its field has prepared an analysis of new building construction planned throughout the country during 1924. The report shows that $179,821,700 will be expended on new theater projects.

This total is divided as follows:

Northeastern states	$30,209,500
North Atlantic states	29,192,700
Southeastern states	2,055,300
Southwestern states	18,848,000
Middle states	81,003,000
Western states	18,513,290
Total	$179,821,700

The survey was conducted through the offices of architects throughout the country. No special information was sought relative to the kinds of theaters, but those familiar with the construction situation, stated yesterday that there could not be any doubt but that the greater percentage of the total involved concerned motion picture houses.

Charnas Here

Harry Charnas, Standard Film Service Co., is in town from Cleveland.

Reviving Keystones

Kessel and Baumann to Resume Production—Plans In the Making

Kessel and Baumann have plans under way for the revival of the famous old Keystone Comedy brand. Adam Kessel and Charles O. Baumann will be directly concerned in the production of the new series.

The matter is now being discussed and while final arrangements have not been made, they will be completed very shortly. Just where production will be centered has not been determined upon. The pictures will be known as Kessel and Baumann's Keystone Comedies.

Form Canadian Subsidiary

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Toronto—Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan, Ltd., has been chartered here to distribute in the Dominion. Goldwyn releases are now being handled by Regal.

The formation of a subsidiary in Canada carries no special significance, according to Gabriel L. Hess at Goldwyn. Distribution will continue through Regal, as heretofore.

"Lab" Combine In Air

Republic, Craftsmen and Erbograph Involved—New Moves by Rothacker and Evans

A three-cornered consolidation of important laboratories operating in New York is understood to be taking definite shape. In each instance, the report is denied by persons involved, but despite that, the move is said to be progressing.

The plants involved are the Republic Laboratories, Inc., which have a capacity of about 1,000,000 ft. weekly; Craftsmen Film Laboratories, which are understood to have a weekly capacity of about 900,000 ft. and the Erbograph Co., which has a capacity of about 750,000 weekly. The name of the combined organization is expected to be Consolidated Film Laboratories, Inc. and the purpose is to eliminate the overhead in operating expense and at the same time make the volume of business greater. It is planned to eliminate certain members of the executive staff of each plant and thus cut the salary list considerably.

At Republic, H. J. Yates was said to be out-of-town and in his absence, no one cared to discuss the matter. L. J. San, general manager of the Craftsmen plant scouted the report and said it was the bunk. Ludwig G. B. Erb of Erbograph said such a move had been talked about for some time but that there had been no developments to occasion a new crop of reports. He admitted that figures concerning a consolidation and the advantages put forth on behalf of such a move had been advanced from time to time.

It was learned yesterday that Tom Evans of Evans Laboratory had taken over the Kessel and Baumann laboratory at Fort Lee for a period of five years and that Evans had already taken actual possession of the plant.

It is understood that the number of laboratories in and around New York will be increased by a new plant which Watterson R. Rothacker intends building. It was reported yesterday that this plant would have a weekly capacity of 2,000,000 feet. Rothacker, when reached at the Ritz-Carlton, stated that he had nothing to say at the moment but that upon his return from a cruise in the West Indies, he would be willing to talk. He sails today.

The Film Laboratory Credit Ass'n held a meeting at the Astor last night at which, it was earlier reported, the consolidation was to be discussed.

Newspaper Opinions

"The Song of Love"—1st Nat'l Rivoli

AMERICAN—Norma has changed. She, either by some new diabolical mental process or tonic, has taken ten years off her age. She looks as she did at the time she played in Vitagraph pictures, when her radiance and beauty swept her into stardom. *** I cannot call the story, based on Margaret Peterson's novel, either original or great, but it does provide an opportunity for some excellent scenic effects and atmosphere.

DAILY NEWS—For loveliness and glamour, I highly recommend this photoplay of amour. I find it such a blend of beauty for the vision, of feasting for the eye. There's padding in the story but happiness at close.

EVENING JOURNAL—Norma Talmadge is always beautiful, but in this picture she is exceedingly and appealingly so. *** Carewe, as Ramlila, makes the most attractive sheik of them all.

EVENING WORLD—*** The film, *** is rather charming throughout its many reels inasmuch as one sees a lot of her *** gives Miss Talmadge an excellent chance to go through all the emotions she is noted for. It is, in our estimation, well worth the seeing.

HERALD—"The Song of Love," is a highly amorous melodrama. *** Although there are the makings of a good thriller in "The Song of Love," not all the materials are used to the best possible advantage. The early plotting and intrigue is well managed, and the amours of Miss Talmadge and Mr. Schildkraut generate sufficient voltage—but the climax of the picture is badly botched.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—In comparison with other Talmadge pictures it does not stand up, mainly because of unnecessary dragginess which could be easily eliminated by cutting the wealth of incidental details that retard the action. The best thing about it is that it disclosed the fact that Norma can color her work with subtle comedy with as great effect as she can handle the heavy emotional climaxes for which she is famous.

SUN—"The Song of Love," at the Rivoli is the best of the "sheik" series. *** Norma carries off the most of the honors in connection with "The Song of Love." He acting is quite striking. *** All in all, "The Song of Love," is an entertaining, romantic melodrama. It is scarcely edifying, but it is never boring.

TELEGRAM—Matching the superb acting of Miss Talmadge is the support of her two leading actors. ***

TIMES—Her vitality and charm cannot be denied, as she performs in this attractive part. Some might even say that it is remarkable that Miss Talmadge did not attempt such a characterization and adopt this costume long ago. *** The story has suitable complications, and the Biskra atmosphere is decidedly pleasing. There are some splendid shots. *** "The Song of Love," has plenty of thrills, especially where Arabs sweep on in their attack against the French garrison.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—"The Song of Love," is another one of those desert pictures, full of sheik stuff and Norma Talmadge is a little Arabian dancing girl who falls for the French secret agent. *** Pictorially the picture has considerable action and quite some battle stuff.

TRIBUNE—There seems, somehow, to be not enough of it. Not in length—we do not mean there should be more reels—but more depth. *** Norma could not possibly be any better than she is in this new picture, and we cannot remember when she has been so pretty.

WORLD—*** fair-to-middling entertainment for the please-easies of the movies, with Miss Talmadge under dressed a good part of the way, out of respect to the box office.

Olcott Deal Pending

Famous Reported Ready to Boost Salary But Director Wants Less Interference

The negotiations between Famous and Sidney Olcott are still pending. It was reported yesterday that Famous had made bids that reached very close to the highest offers Olcott has received from competitive companies.

It seems that the director prefers remaining with Famous but that he wants to be sure that his pictures will not be materially changed after he completes his work. For that reason, he is said to be insistent upon a number of rather stringent clauses in a new contract.

It is also understood that production officials at Famous are anxious to have Olcott direct "Peter Pan," but, of course, they have nothing to say in this connection in view of the fact that under the present circumstances, Olcott will have no contract with the company following the completion of "Monsieur Beaucaire." There is some talk that if a new deal is made, Olcott will direct the second Valentino picture and then make "Peter Pan." This would tide the Barrie piece over to the summer but if this plan is not carried out, Olcott is slated to make "Peter Pan" after "Beaucaire."

Irrespective of the director, "Peter Pan" will be made on the coast.

Race For "Peter Pan"

Next Pictures of Famous Players Directors to Determine Who Will Make Barrie Classic

Famous Players will have "Peter Pan," ready for release along about the holidays. This means the picture will be placed in production during the summer months.

It was learned yesterday that no one had as yet been selected to direct the famous Barrie classic but that a competitive arrangement will be made involving all of the Paramount directors. The next two or three pictures from each of the group will be used as a basis for the final determination of the matter. A film man well versed in production yesterday advanced the names of two directors now in the Famous list, Sidney Olcott and William de Mille.

Brenon Here

Herbert Brenon is in town from the coast to direct "The Mountebank" for Famous.

Ask Danny—He knows shows. T. N. T. Astor.

Charles Hastings in Screen Mirror: "Mabel Normand is 'The Extra Girl' and—the extraordinary girl! We looked and laughed and shrieked." A great Mack Sennett production distributed by Associated Exhibitors.—Advt.

Boston The City

Selected for 1924 M. P. T. O. Convention—Dates Indefinite But The Month is May

The 1924 convention of the M. P. T. O. A., will be held in Boston some time in May. The definite dates have not as yet been named. The selection was made by the convention committee comprised of M. E. Comerford, Glenn Harper, Fred Seeger, John Schwalm, R. F. Woodhull, Joseph W. Walsh and Sydney S. Cohen.

Apparently, the selection of Boston was influenced by the fact that Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New Hampshire had all voted in favor of that city.

Sign Contract for Dean Prod.

The contract between Priscilla Dean Prod. and Hodkinson was finally signed yesterday. The first picture will be placed in work April 1.

Buys "Mary the Third"

Goldwyn has purchased film rights to "Mary the Third." King Vidor will direct.

Reunite Old Team

Lubitsch to Direct Negri in One Picture for Paramount—Follows "Manon Lescaut"

By arrangement with Warner Bros., Ernst Lubitsch will direct Pola Negri in one picture for Famous. It will be placed in production in June, following "Manon Lescaut" which will be Lubitsch's next picture for the Warners. Following the Negri picture, the director returns to his present affiliation.

Miss Negri is now at work on "Men." It will be followed by "A Woman of the Night," which Dimitri (Continued on Page 2)

O'Reilly for T. O. C. C. Presidency

Partial nominations for T. O. C. C. officers were named at the regular meeting of the body yesterday. Charles L. O'Reilly is undisputed in the field for president; Charles Steiner, for first vice-president; James Jame and Rudolph Sanders for 2nd vice-president; Sam Moross for secretary and Sam Schwartz for treasurer.

Kick Over Shelving

Barthelless Objecting to Non-Playing of Pictures—Seeks New Releasing Arrangements

The varied reports concerning the strained relations between Richard Barthelless and Inspiration Pictures, Inc., were reported yesterday to have reached the point where the former had definitely served notice on the company that unless the releasing contract with First National was brought to an end, he would not continue producing pictures for Inspiration.

It is understood that Inspiration is committed to deliver three more of the Barthelless series to First National under the present contract although the star's contract with the producing company runs for a number of years. Barthelless' complaint is said to be directly concerned with the failure of the First National franchise holders to play his pictures. There is said to be no complaint over the gross on the Barthelless pictures but only over the fact that the first-run houses are apparently booking the series and then shelving them.

At Inspiration, J. Boyce Smith had nothing to say about the matter. No one at First National could be reached for a statement and an effort to communicate with Barthelless failed.

Universal Buys "Miracle"

Through Cora C. Wilkening, Universal has purchased rights to "Miracle," an unpublished novel by Clarence Budington Kelland. Reginald Denny may be starred. It will be released as a Jewel.

New Smallwood Letter Talks About Advertising as An Aid to Exhibition Grosses

The value of advertising is discussed by Arthur N. Smallwood in the fourth of a series of open letters, this one addressed to newspaper publishers and the trade press. Smallwood declares that advertising will enable the producer to get all of the available business from a given territory within twelve or fifteen months after the initial showings instead of having it drag over a period of years. He is also firm in the belief that it will aid the exhibitor in a great measure. He says, in part:

When Miss Negri came to this country and started work for Famous, her first pictures, in the opinion of many, proved disappointing. (Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Clarksburg, W. Va.—According to a decision handed down by the Supreme Court of Appeals, the Orpheum will remain the name of the theater building at 4th and Pike Sts. Jack Marks, a former lessee, who now operates a house on West Main St., sought to enjoin Frank Moore, owner, and Claude Robinson, present lessee, from using the name "Orpheum Theater," but the restraining order was denied him both in the Circuit Court and the State Supreme Court.

When Marks left the Orpheum and opened the Bijou on West Main, he named the latter the Orpheum and instituted proceedings to prevent Moore from using that name in conjunction with the old house which the latter leased.

Dayton, O.—Burt Fiala, owner of the Alhambra, filed suit in the common pleas court for a court order restraining the operator's union from picketing in front of his house. The difficulties started when Fiala refused to employ a union operator in place of a non-union man.

WHAT THE CRITICS SAID:

NEW YORK SUN and GLOBE:

"My Man" is much better than several more pretentious and sophisticated features in town at present. Dustin Farnum plays the powerful politician. He does it very well, too. He gives him a bit of a sense of humor which is refreshing. Patsy Ruth Miller is the girl. In "My Man" she is lovely.

NEW YORK EVENING WORLD:

Dustin Farnum and Patsy Ruth Miller carry off the honors, and the "he-man" introduces some cave man tactics in his love-making that are novel.

NEW YORK AMERICAN:

David Smith, who directed the picture, has undoubtedly made a good box office attraction.

NEW YORK TELEGRAM and MAIL:

David Smith has turned it into a lively screen play and at the Rialto Theatre this week it goes along like a breeze.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE:

Patsy Ruth Miller is the sweet and attractive heroine and a very good actress she is, too.

available to the newspaper publishers of this country—and an additional two and a half million dollars of business to the motion picture trade press—just as soon as the present faulty and high cost system of distributing motion pictures gives way to a new system in which the independent producer will have opportunity to merchandise his product intelligently.

“Manufacturers in other lines profitably expend amounts exceeding ten per cent of their total sales for Advertising. But in the motion picture industry, where the exhibition value of the product and its ability to attract patrons to the box-office are dependent largely upon advertising and other exploitation, a percentage allotted is less than two per cent; whereas if there is any business in which twenty per cent appropriation should be a rule, it is the motion picture business—‘show business’ wherein the value of the product is determined not by manufacturing cost but by intangible qualities that cause people to plunk down good money at the box-office.

“Radical reforms in the methods of distributing and merchandising pictures are due. And not only will these reforms benefit the independent producers who will bring them out, but every newspaper and trade paper publisher will profit—inasmuch as the new plan contemplates intensive merchandising and advertising and exploitation through a liberal use of printer’s ink. This in turn will create greater public interest in the motion picture theater and bigger receipts for exhibitors. I speak advisedly when I say these reforms are due. There is not an independent producer, large or small, who is not thoroughly disgusted with the present-day distribution, not a single solitary one.

“The independently produced pictures outnumber those released by the large producer-distributor organizations. These latter produce less than one-third of the total number of feature length photoplays made in this country annually, and an even smaller proportion of the short subjects. But because of excessive cost of faulty distribution afforded the independent producer, the producer-distributor organizations dominate the business to the extent of virtual monopoly. These producer-distributors are not promoting or fostering any reforms in distribution for the simple reason that the present system is slowly but surely exterminating their independent competitors without in any way making them amenable to the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. And the present so-called independent distributors are not fostering any reforms for obvious reasons.

“The tendency toward monopoly in the motion picture business must be apparent to anyone who observes the quiet acquisition of theaters by producer-distributors, and the production activity of exhibitor-distributing organizations. And with all this expansion by single organizations covering production—distribution exhibition, requiring the introduction of important ‘new money,’ where is the whole proposition headed? But one way: toward eventual amalgamation; toward—monopoly!

“A reform in distributing methods, segregating physical distribution and selling of pictures, and placing physical distribution upon a flat service basis—instead of on a percentage basis, as at present—this coupled with trade paper exploitation and liberal use of newspaper advertising nationally, by the producers themselves, copy to be released when picture plays key points in the newspapers’ territory, will afford the solution of the problem.

“It takes a good article to stand the acid test of advertising—of real advertising. And in the measure in which the production would stand that test and justify the cost of advertising by the greater number of seats it would sell for the exhibitor, so would its exhibition value be set. Then would come real, not imaginary exhibition values.

“When the independent producer gets proper distribution for his pictures, you newspaper and trade paper publishers will find hundred thousand dollar appropriations for advertising a regular thing; and furthermore, the producer-distributors will be forced into similar advertising and merchandising channels, resulting in there being no less than four pictures a week, or two hundred and eight per annum being exploited through the newspapers, with appropriations that will readily average $100,000 each—or more than $20,000,000 per year!

“This motion picture producer advertising investment in newspapers throughout the country will enhance the exhibition values of the pictures advertised to exhibitors throughout the country; it will assure the independent producer first run representation and enable him to get quick bookings and play dates from exhibitors in each territory who will want maximum benefit from the producer advertising. This advertising will also enable the producer to get all available business from a given territory within twelve or fifteen months after initial showing—instead of having it dragged out over a period of two or three years—thus enabling the producer to limit his contract with the selling organization to eighteen months, and permit the re-editing and re-issue of big proven attractions, with new prints and a new advertising campaign, within two or three years after its premier showing. Proven successes on the legitimate stage are put on the road year after year with profit to the producer, and this condition can be brought about in the motion picture industry. Intensive advertising and selling will reveal those pictures that can so survive.

“The A. N. P. A. may well take cognizance of the necessity for reform in motion picture distribution, and foster such a reform in view of its new business potentialities. The motion picture trade press is aware of the need for such reform and should openly champion it. The motion picture exhibitor who doesn’t wish to be throttled by monopoly and who wants better box-office attractions should actively interest himself in speeding the day when the new order of things shall be functioning. Branch managers and salesmen should be vitally interested because of the bigger opportunities for profitable employment to be presented them.

“And the American Railway Express Company should be vitally interested because, as agency for physical distribution, they would come into tens of millions of dollars of new business.

“And every independent producer of motion pictures is interested because it will enable him to merchandise his product more efficiently and with profit to himself.”
